To Meet Germans

The Nineteen American Yachts From Which to Select Three

The Auk and Manchester, the challenger and defender of the Quincy cup, started in the open race of the Eastern yacht club on Tuesday, but for lack of wind none of the class of eleven finished within the time limit.

With the international races between the boats of the Sonder Klasse only a month away, interest increases daily, says the Transcript, among the yachtsmen of this country and of Germany, whence come the three competing yachts, seeking to carry back the Roosevelt cup.

All eyes are now turned toward the North Shore, where already 11 of the nineteen Sonder Klasse boats have assembled to tune up for the trial races, which are to be held under the auspices of the Eastern Yacht Club during the week of Aug. 13.

The yachts of the Sonder Klasse are limited in dimensions to a total of thirty-two feet in the combined length of the water line, the beam and the draught. The sail area is restricted to 550 square feet and the crew to three men, all native born citizens of the country in which the yachts are built, with the helmsman an amateur. The displacement must not be less than 4,035 pounds, without the crew, and all the yachts must be weighed. No centreboards are allowed, but the rig is optional.

As the yachts have all been built for something less than $2500, the average being about $2000, the American yachtsmen have entered into the contest as never before in an international event. Six of the yachts are owned by members of the Eastern Yacht club; the New York Yacht club has an aspirant in the Vim, owned by Trenor L. Park, and the Southern Yacht club of New Orleans in a boat named for that city and owned by Commodore Heaslip and others of the club. The Quincy club has the Auk which is also a challenger for the Quincy cup. Two of the yachtsmen have become so enthusiastic over the contest that they have entered two boats each. The entries, which closed two weeks ago, are as follows:

Yacht and owner.	Club
Alecto, E. W. Hodgson and R. L. Pond	Boston
Auk, C. F. Adams 2d	Quincy
Bonidrei, G. H. Wightman	Hingham
Caramba, C. H. E. Foster	Eastern
Chewink IV, F. G. Macomber, Jr.	Corinthian
Cod, Dr. Morton Prince	Boston
Ellen, C. P. Curtis, Jr.	Eastern
Hayseed I, H. L. Bowden	Corinthian
Hayseed III, H. L. Bowden	Corinthian
Lorelei, B. P. Cheney & C. D. Lanning	Boston
Manchester II, Dr. J. L. Bremer	Manchester
Moslem II, B. D. Barker	Eastern
New Orleans, Commodore S. F. Heaslip et al	New Orleans
Sally VIII, L. F. Percival	Corinthian
Skiddoo, H. M. Sears	Eastern
Spokane, F. Lewis Clark	Eastern
Sumatra, Francis Skinner	Eastern
Vim, Trenor L. Park	New York
Windrom Kid, F. G. Macomber, Jr.	Corinthian

A majority of these yachts says the Traveler are now engaged in tuning up at Marblehead. These events will probably continue almost daily until the trial races, which will be held during the week of Aug. 13th under the direction of the Eastern Yacht Club, which originated the International contest for these small boats and donated the cup named for President Roosevelt with his permission.

After the trial races the club will elect three of the 19 yachts to sail against the three German boats which are now being brought to this country on steamers.

The cup races will occur during the week of Sept. 3, and five races will be sailed, the trophy going to the yacht that wins the majority of the contests, or wins the fifth race of the series. Provision is made in case of a tie.

The three German yachts that have been selected to represent that country are the Glueckauf IV. of the Imperial Yacht club; the Wannsee, of the Seglerhaus Yacht club, and the Tilly VI. of the North German Regatta club. The Glueckauf IV and the Wannsee are expected in New York shortly, while the Tilly VI, will reach Boston about the middle of August.

All the yachts have been designed and built in the country which they represent and under the conditions agreed upon by the Eastern Yacht club and the Imperial Yacht club of Kiel.

While all the Sonder Klasse boats have not yet met in any one race, and but 11 of them have raced thus far in any one regatta, the Daily Ledger gives the standing of the boats up to fourth place showing what they have done to date:

Gas for Heating.

One of the delights of housekeeping during the hot muggy weather that has been served out in Quincy in the immediate past, is a gas stove. It is quick and economical, and there is no danger of being blown up as with some other stoves. With gas at $1.50 per thousand cubic feet, people who can use it should avail themselves of the opportunity.

The Citizens' Gas Co., at their office on Granite street, have a large line of these stoves on hand ready for immediate delivery. To owners of houses not already connected the company offer to make free service connections with houses a reasonable distance from the street. In addition to this it will be seen by an advertisement in the Daily Ledger that in addition to free connection the company will install free a bracket burner over the stove.

Quincy can now congratulate itself upon having an up-to-date gas company. A company that is living up to its agreement, and striving to give the city the gas service that has long been denied it.

Grocers' Day

Excursion to Crescent Park With Sail in Narragansett Bay

Today is grocers day and all business in that line among the members of the Old Colony associations in Quincy and surrounding towns is suspended for the day. It is the fourteenth annual outing of the association. The day is not being observed in Quincy as generally as usual. In other years nearly every business house was closed, but today the closing is confined to the grocery and provision men. An effort was made to have all of the merchants suspend business, but all would not agree and the plan collapsed.

The morning gave promise of being a typical grocers day; that is threatening weather and rain. The grocers knew from past experience, however, that the early morning hours do not always prove true prophets, and the weather did not deter anyone from making the start.

The special train, which took the party, left Quincy at 7.40, and made stops at South Quincy, the Braintrees, South Weymouth, Abington and Whitman. The train was due at Fall River at 9.30

There were two engines and eleven cars on the train when it left Quincy, and three more cars were added at North Abington.

The program includes a sail down Mt. Hope bay through Bristol harbor and the Narragansett to Crescent Park, R. I.

Dinner was the principal number on the program at Crescent Park, where the party were due to leave at 3.30 for a sail through Narragansett bay and Newport harbor back to Fall River. The special train will leave for home at 7 o'clock.

Large Decrease In July Crime

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear in his report for the month of July says the total number of criminal cases before the district court for the month was 196, a decrease of 113 from the month of July 1905.

Of the July cases, 79 were for drunkenness. The other cases were as follows: assault, 31; liquor search, 15; larceny, 14; violation by laws, 8; disorderly on public conveyance, 6; violating park rules, 5; search for stolen goods, 4; malicious mischief, threat, keeping and exposing liquor and sale of liquor, 3 each; breaking and entering, carrying dangerous weapons, employing minors and liquor nuisance, 2 each; and one each for assault with dangerous weapon, assault on officer, bastardy, disturbing the peace, embezzlement, kidnapping, tramp and trespass.

Of the warrants issued, 19 were not served; continued for hearing, 20; continued for disposition, 14; sentence suspended to pay fine, 15.

To Launch a Large Schooner

Captain Elisha D. Atkins of Bromfield street sailed August 29 on the "Fuller" for Bath, Maine. Mrs. Atkins was with him. On Friday their daughter, Helen, with her friend, Marian Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seamans of Bromfield street join them to attend the launching of the four masted schooner, "Elisha Atkins," which has been built for the captain by the Geo. H. Deering Co. It is the 20th vessel built in 20 years by the company. Captain Atkins' eldest daughter, Helen Gertrude, is to christen the vessel "Elisha Atkins" at 11.30 A. M., Saturday, Aug. 4.

Will Open on Date Set.

In referring to the recent South Framingham disaster which ruined the Amsden block, in which Henry L. Kincaide & Co. of this city were to have a large store, Mr. Kincaide today said that this accident would not interfere very much with their plans, and although the investigation of the cause of the accident had not been completed that they would open for business in a new location on the original day set. They have secured quarters in the new Bullard block opposite the station, consisting of two stores on the ground floor and the entire upper portion of the building. A large gang of mechanics are now making necessary alterations and installing an elevator for the new firm.

A Low Tax Rate.

Another city reports a decrease in tax rate, and a low rate. Waltham is a city which is pushing Quincy in population, and in many ways is similarly situated.

The Waltham board has fixed the tax rate for 1906 at $16.50, a decrease of 30 cents from last year. The increase in real estate valuation is more than half a million dollars, while the increase in personal property is above $200,000. The number of polls assessed is 7206. The real estate valuation is $17,398,200; personal valuation $6,397,256.50; total valuation, $23,795,456.50.

The increased valuation of real estate over last year is $551,800, and personal property, $242,996.50, a total increase of $794,796.50. The increased number of polls is only four.

Burglar Caught

Desperate Negro Was in House on Independence Ave. At 2 A. M.

James Girardu, a negro aged 22 years who claims his home to be at 8 Chamber street, Dorchester, was caught redhanded at 2 o'clock this morning in the house of Antony L. Lucche at 125 Independence avenue.

Mr. Lucche was awakened by the negro who was trying to open a bureau drawer. When he saw Mr. Lucche was awake the negro stooped down and began to crawl toward the bed. At that Mr. Lucche grabbed the negro and a tussle for supremacy ensued.

Mrs. Lucche cried for help and some of the men boarders flew to the rescue, and threw the fellow on the floor and held him. In the meantime a son had run to the police station and the wagon with Officer Murray was soon on the scene and had the fellow under arrest.

Investigation showed that he had gained entrance by raising a screen and opening a porch window. He had then possessed himself of a child's bank and gone to Mr. Lucche's room and taken a knife and some small change from the pockets of his trousers.

He had then secured a key to the bureau from behind a picture and was opening the drawer when Mr. Lucche was aroused.

When searched at the police station the knife and money were found in his clothing. The negro said that he was a cook and was on his way from Brockton to Dorchester, and that he went into the house to get something to eat.

He further said that if he had had a revolver Mr. Lucche would never have captured him.

He was arraigned in court and held in $1000 for the grand jury.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Most all the tributes summed up resolve themselves into the fact that Lady Curzon was a lady.

The illustrated three-column feature of the Saturday eight-page Daily Ledger this week will tell of the personal side of Robert M. LaFollette, Wisconsin's fighting senator.

Plymouth may well be proud of her distinguished guests at the 300th anniversary of Pilgrim church this week, Governor Guild, ex-Governor Long, the Rev. Edward Everett Hale and Professor E. C. Moore.

A Brooklyn judge has officially declared that "to be single is hell." The divorce court records of the country indicate that a good many people are of the opinion that there is a worse place.

If Mr. Bryan is wise, he will have an important engagement in Europe, studying the conditions there, including the money systems, until after the fall elections. If he comes home and mixes up in the roughhouse, his boom may not look nearly so pretty after the returns are all in, whereas should the Democrats possibly win, he can claim long-distance credit.

Drift of Opinion.

☞They are beginning to ask what Moran has actually done, and the reply is not helpful to Moran's ambitions. Three things are set up to his credit—the fracas with the Boston hotels over the screen law, and the consequent ingathering of a few thousand dollars into the public treasury; the conviction of Proctor, Senator Lodge's private secretary, in connection with the mysterious disappearance of a political contribution; and a vast assortment of promises and excited activities which so far have led nowhere. These are not achievements upon which the people of this Commonwealth are going to found their choice for governor. They do not even stamp the Suffolk district attorney with the mark of a Benjamin F. Butler. There was a day or two when it looked as if Moran might emulate the famous campaign of General Butler for the governorship, and he may make the attempt. But the indications are that he cannot keep it up until election day in November.—New Bedford Standard.

SEVERE FIGHTING

Three of Russia's Great Sea Fortresses In Jeopardy

A GIGANTIC CONSPIRACY

Prematurely Sprung by Attempt to Arrest Mutineers--War Vessels Subjected to a Hot Fire From Barracks--The Casualties Extremely Heavy

Helsingfors, Aug. 1.—Sveaborg is entirely in the hands of the mutineers, who now have in their possession every kind of armament.

Horrible scenes occurred during last night, when the fierce fighting was continued. The heaviest artillery was used during the conflict. Several officers were killed or wounded. The wounded were transported to Helsingfors.

Colonel Nataroff was bayonetted. He begged in kindly tones for transportation to the hospital, promising forgiveness in exchange. Instead he was stoned and thrown into the water with a stone tied around his neck.

Helsingfors, Aug. 1.—A gigantic military conspiracy, aiming at the simultaneous capture of Russia's three great sea fortresses, Cronstadt, Sebastopol and Sveaborg, arranged by the revolutionary military league, was prematurely sprung here Monday night by the attempt to arrest members of a company of sappers who had mutinied on account of the death of one of their comrades, alleged to have been due to ill-treatment.

The entire garrison of the fortress at Sveaborg flamed out instantly in revolt. All the artillerymen and sappers garrisoning the place were involved. Only four companies of infantrymen remained loyal. The mutineers seized 40 machine guns and practically all the quick-firers and light artillery in the fortress, but even with this aid they were unable to hold the main fort against the loyal infantry. The fighting continued all night long. The heaviest firing was heard from 11 o'clock in the evening till 1 in the morning.

Yesterday morning a detachment of civilian revolutionists seized the marine barracks at Skatudden island, hoisted the red flag, and were joined by all the marines. Nine cruisers, torpedo boats and destroyers lying in the harbor opened fire on the barracks. This fire was answered from the third story windows of the barracks with machine guns and rifles.

The torpedo boats and the destroyers, which were lying closer to the shore, were subjected to such a hot fire from the barracks that their crews were driven below decks. They finally steamed out and joined in the bombardment with the cruisers. This sea attack was in co-operation with attacks by Cossacks and infantry from the land side, which began at 9 o'clock in the morning and continued throughout the whole day. Finally, towards evening, the firing ceased and the authorities announced that the barracks had been captured.

At 1 o'clock in the afternoon the Cossacks cleared the square in front of the palace facing Sveaborg and then drove the public from the entire waterfront for the purpose of preventing the sending of assistance from the city to Sveaborg.

The exact situation at Sveaborg is not known. Firing can no longer be heard. Rumors are in circulation that the entire fortress has now fallen into the hands of the insurgents, but they lack confirmation. It is believed that this cessation of fighting is but a prelude to the renewal of the battle between the mutineers and the government troops.

An authoritative estimate of the killed and wounded cannot be obtained, but the casualty list on both sides must be heavy, for the fighting was waged with desperation.

There are various rumors to be heard regarding the fate of the officers who were at Sveaborg and in the Skatudden barracks. According to one rumor, almost all the officers, and, according to another, almost all the junior officers, sided with the mutineers. The marines at Skatudden are said to have convened an elective court martial which condemned several officers to instant execution.

The wives and families of the officers on duty in the fortress were sent ashore by General Laiming and not molested by the revolutionists.

The "Red Guard," whose leaders were cognizant of the plot, dispatched an expedition by a special train, as soon as the revolt broke out, to cut the railroad track outside of the city in order to prevent the arrival of reinforcements.

A general strike was declared yesterday afternoon and was obeyed by the workmen of all the factories.

Captain Koch, an ex-officer of the army and a socialist, who was leader of the November strikes, stopped the St. Petersburg express yesterday. He was supported by revolutionists. This occurred near Riihioaki. Koch was joined by the Riihioaki "Red Guard" of 85 men. At 10 o'clock the entire party went to Kikia station and were breaking up the tracks, thus cutting off the approach of intended reinforcements reported to be coming from Willmanstrand and Viborg. Up to the present time this has been the only native activity.

A further cause of the revolt is said to lie in the fact that yesterday was the anniversary of a mining disaster, caused by reckless officers, in which a dozen men lost their lives.

The Viborg manifesto of the outlawed parliament has been distributed among the Cossacks, who quietly put it in their pockets. Numerous Russian revolutionists have suddenly become visible in town.

The cruiser squadron, including the battleship Slava, is reported to have sailed from Reval yesterday afternoon.

The telegraph building at Sveaborg is reported in ruins. The barracks and the cathedral there are badly damaged as a result of the shells from 11-inch guns.

The Socialists are expectant, but the townspeople fear a bombardment should the squadron arrive.

Another Uprising Imminent

St. Petersburg, Aug. 1.—Ominous discontent is reported among the troops at Tambov, in central Russia. Copies of the appeal to the army issued by the lower house were distributed to the soldiers there.

Fighting Still In Progress

London, Aug. 1.—A dispatch received here from Helsingfors says fierce fighting broke out again last night in the Sveaborg fortress and is still proceeding.

Lynched In Sight of Victim

Atlanta, Aug. 1.—Floyd Carmichael, a negro, 22 years old, who was identified by Miss Annie Poole as the man who had assaulted her early yesterday, was shot in front of the Poole residence at Lakewood in sight of his victim late yesterday by a posse which had captured him. Annie Poole, who is 15 years old, was attacked by the negro and choked into unconsciousness. Late yesterday afternoon the negro was captured and brought into Miss Poole's presence and she immediately identified him. A volley of shots rang out and the negro fell dead.

Scott Letters Admitted

Pittsburg, Aug. 1.—Attorneys for Augustus Hartje, who is seeking a divorce from his wife, have somewhat unexpectedly closed their case. The much-disputed Helen Scott letters have been admitted as evidence. These are the letters purporting to be from Helen Scott to her sister, Mrs. Hartje, which, counsel for the libellant assert, prove that Helen was a go-between for "Tom" Madine, one of the coachmen co-respondents, and Mrs. Hartje.

Third Yegg In Custody

Boston, Aug. 1.—Suspected of being implicated in the daring holdup perpetrated in Charlestown last Saturday, when Policeman Schiel and a coal dealer named Hickey were shot by so-called yeggmen, Alfred B. Morse was arrested last night. George W. Everson and Frank Sacketti were arrested immediately after the affair. The third man of the trio escaped, and the police now believe they have the culprit in Morse.

Ice Discussion Goes Over

Providence, Aug. 1.—The projected meeting between representatives of two local ice companies and the committee of the Providence Board of Trade, which is conducting the ice investigation in this city, did not materialize yesterday on account of the inability of the two convening parties to agree upon the time for the meeting. It will probably be held on Friday.

Birth of New Prince

Berlin, Aug. 1.—Germany is rejoicing at the arrival of Kaiser Wilhelm's first grandson, born to Crown Princess Cecilia, and the joy is heightened because the little fellow bears a striking resemblance to his imperial grandfather. In feature and all characteristics, he is a Hohenzollern, and he already has been nicknamed the "Little Kaiser."

To Relieve Legation Guard

Washington, Aug. 1.—It is stated at the navy department that there is no intention of increasing the legation guard at Pekin. The marines stationed there are to be relieved and it is probable, according to the department, that the rumor gained currency that the men were going to Pekin were reinforcements instead of a relief.

National Democratic Club

New York, Aug. 1.—Justice McLean of the supreme court has signed an order authorizing the Democratic club to change its name to that of the National Democratic club. The purpose of the club is to extend its operations to all sections of the country and to admit to membership citizens of all the states.

Prison Sentence For Nobleman

Paris, Aug. 1.—The Marquis of Montebello, a recent candidate for election to the chamber of deputies, was sentenced to 15 days' imprisonment and $100 fine for assaulting his successful opponent, M. Larguier, in the street.

Iowa Republicans May Compromise

Des Moines, Aug. 1.—The talk of compromise between the Republican factions is quite general, rumor saying that the two steering committees are to be brought together to agree on a ticket.

Executed an Hour After Arrest

Mayfield, Ky., Aug. 1.—Allen Mathis, a negro, accused of assaulting a white girl, was arraigned at 7:05 last night, convicted a few minutes later and legally hanged at 8 o'clock.

CRASHED IN A FOG

Battleships Alabama and Illinois In Collision

GUNS PERHAPS DAMAGED

Injury Is All Above the Waterline--Crews Went to Collision Drill, Fearing Serious Accident --Seaman Has a Leg Amputated

Newport, R. I., Aug. 1.—Rear Admiral Evans, commanding the Atlantic fleet, has received reports in detail of a collision which occurred during a fog between the battleships Alabama and Illinois, about eight miles southeast of Brenton's reef lightship. The side of the Illinois was scraped by the bow of the Alabama, and several plates of the forward part of the Alabama were dented. It is feared also that one or more of the six-inch guns on the battleships were damaged. Evans says that neither ship was injured below the waterline.

The collision occurred between 8 and 9 o'clock Monday evening. Both the first and second divisions left Rockport Monday morning for Newport. They sailed in single column formation, with the first division in front, consisting of the battleships Maine, Missouri, Kentucky and Kearsarge. In the second division were the battleships Alabama, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa. The fleet was making about eight knots an hour on the run to Newport when the weather turned foggy and orders were signalled to reduce the speed to five knots and keep the ships 400 yards apart.

When the collision occurred the first division ships were well into Newport harbor, while the second were southeast of the lightship. In the thick fog the Alabama and Illinois came together at an angle, with the Alabama to starboard. The Alabama hit the Illinois just breast the forward turret and the bow of the Alabama scraped the side of the Illinois, crushing in the rail for some distance. A seaman was standing near a lifeboat on the Illinois when the collision took place and was so severely injured by the fall of a davit that it was necessary to amputate one of his legs last evening. On the Illinois the gunwale on the starboard side forward was dented in, while the billboard on the bow of the Alabama was also damaged.

The crews of both ships went to collision drill as soon as the accident happened. This included the closing of all water-tight compartments, the flooding of magazines and shell rooms, and standing by to abandon ship. Officers of both ships say the discipline was of the highest order, although everyone feared that something very serious had occurred. On the bridge of the Alabama were Rear Admiral Davis, Captain Comly, commander of the vessel, Lieutenant Commander Bryan, the navigating officer, and other officers. Captain Blocklinger and Lieutenant Commander Davis, the navigating officer, were on the bridge of the Illinois.

As soon as the fact of the collision became known to the other ships of the division, the Iowa and Indiana stood by the damaged ships, ready to give assistance in case it was needed. Rear Admiral Evans was informed almost immediately of the accident by Rear Admiral Davis, who sent him a wireless message. Evans ordered the division to anchor for the night in the vicinity of Brenton's reef lightship and yesterday afternoon the second division joined the first in Newport harbor.

Bishop Names Negroes' "Enemies"

Washington, Aug. 1.—The negro young people's Christian and editorial congress has begun a five days' session in this city. Bishop Gaines of Atlanta was the principal speaker at the opening session. He specifically named as avowed enemies of the negro Senator Tillman, Governor Vardaman, Governor Davis, and Thomas Dixon. He added that John T. Graves of Atlanta was "the most dangerous of the group, because he is the most highly educated."

Prospectors Killed by Heat

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 1.—According to reports which have reached here, terrible heat conditions are prevailing in the Inyo county gold fields and adjacent desert and mining prospectors are dying daily. At Ballarat the thermometer registered 135 at noon and at the midnight following had dropped to only 114 degrees, which was the average for three days. In the desert section lying south of Redlands the mercury went up to 160.

Urging Mutiny In Sweden

Copenhagen, Aug. 1.—The young Socialist party of Sweden is again encouraging the troops to turn mutinous. Thousands of copies of a pamphlet asking the soldiers to leave their barracks have been distributed. This pamphlet was printed secretly. The police are investigating.

First Message by New Cable

Tokio, Aug. 1.—A new telegraph cable, via Bonin, which establishes direct communication between Japan and the United States, was opened to the public today, this being the first message transmitted over it.

Whaling Schooner May Be Lost

St. Johns, Aug. 1.—Whaling schooner Era, New Bedford, Mass., for Hudson bay, went ashore at Miquelon yesterday and may be a total loss. The crew is safe.

BABY WAS STUBBORN

Alleged Abuse by Its Father Results In Death

Barnstable, Mass., Aug. 1.—Arthur S. Hoxie of Sandwich, aged 38, was held without bail by the grand jury, charged with the murder of his infant son. This was the action ordered by Judge Swift in the district court after a brief hearing.

Arthur, the 3-year-old son of the defendant, died on July 22 at the Hoxie home, and Medical Examiner Faunce, who was the sole witness at the hearing, found that the child's death was caused by blows of the hand delivered on the head and over the heart.

In his testimony Faunce stated that Hoxie had admitted to him that he had struck his child, urging as justification the child's stubbornness. The father also admitted to the physician that several abrasions found at various places on the child's body were made with a stick with which he had chastised the boy.

Result of Factional Rivalry

Boston, Aug. 1.—A concert by the Boston Municipal band in ward 9 last night was brought to a close before the second number on the program was finished, on account of the bombardment of sticks, stones, vegetables and fruit to which the musicians were subjected. The concert, as originally planned, was to have been given on the Randolph street playground. Influences of the faction at the other end of ward 9 brought about a change in location and the musicians attempted to play at the corner of Compton and Emerald streets. E. N. L'Africaine, the leader of the band, was struck over the head with a piece of wood during the disturbance and he immediately suspended the concert.

Chaffeur Fined $50

Salem, Mass., Aug. 1.—The automobile accident at Manchester, Mass., on July 20, in which the champion steeplechaser, Land of Clover, was run down and subsequently had to be killed, resulted in the finding of Robert W. James, the chauffeur, guilty of reckless driving and the imposition of a fine of $50. James appealed from the decision of the court. Land of Clover was owned by Robert C. Hooper and was mounted by a groom at the time of the accident.

New Bedford Strike Situation

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 1.—The trolley strike situation continues unchanged, the men maintaining their attitude of apparent confidence in the ultimate success of their cause, while the company is operating cars on the usual schedule with the aid of non-union motormen and conductors. No police guards were carried on the cars yesterday, but last evening the cars of the Purchase street line each carried a policeman.

Autos In Hill Climbing Contest

Bretton Woods, N. H., Aug. 1.—The motor vehicle meet in the White mountains closed with the Bay State Automobile club's second annual hill-climbing contest, in which 30 cars competed in eight events. Some fast times were made, but there were many hairbreadth escapes in the 3 1-4-mile run up the narrow road. The best time was made by Guy Vaughn's 30-horse power gasolene car, which covered the distance in 2:48.

Horse May Have Had Hydrophobia

Uxbridge, Mass., Aug. 1.—A horse supposed to be afflicted with hydrophobia was killed here after exhibiting many of the violent symptoms of that disease. The animal was bitten by a dog which had shown signs of madness. The horse was quarantined on account of the bite, but the quarantine was raised on July 26, and until yesterday the rabies scare was thought to be over.

Skull Fractured by Robbers

Marlboro, Mass., Aug. 1.—The local authorities have been searching for the assailants of Angelo Degromini, night watchman at the railroad station here, who was attacked and probably fatally injured by men whose motive is supposed to have been robbery. Degromini's skull was fractured by a blow of a heavy weapon. The robbers secured $85 which the watchman had.

Came In Contact With Live Wire

Machias, Me., Aug. 1.—After holding an inquest to determine the cause of the death of Harry Kominsky, whose body was found on the floor of his fruit store under circumstances which appeared mysterious, Coroner Johnson rendered a finding that there was no indication of foul play. He decided that Kominsky's death was caused by contact with a live electric light wire.

No Chance to Race

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 1.—Several attaches of the German legation watched 11 of the 19 American boats built for the defense of the Roosevelt cup off Marblehead neck for a few hours, but they gained very little knowledge of their ability, for the open race, the event of the day, was called off for lack of wind.

Killed by Three-Story Fall

Boston, Aug. 1.—Patrick Callahan, 40 years old, was killed by a fall from the third floor of a stable at 23 Chardon street, where he was employed. He was helping to hoist hay from a wagon, lost his balance, and fell to the wagon, sustaining a fractured skull.

Child Starved to Death

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 1.—The finding that the death of a child 5 months old was due to starvation led to the arrest last night of the child's mother, Margaret Flynn, on a charge of manslaughter. The woman is 23 years old.

DICK AND FORAKER

Both Ohioans Will Back the Roosevelt Administration

"STAND PAT" ON TARIFF

Would Be Bad Political Sense to Change Schedules In Sixtieth Congress--Republican Outlook In Ohio Declared to Be Bright

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Senator Dick of Ohio and Elmer Dover, secretary of the Republican national committee, went to Sagamore Hill and with President Roosevelt discussed the political situation in Ohio.

The simple fact that Dick came away bearing the president's expressions of enthusiastic desire for harmony and success in the coming congressional campaign is regarded as a political occurrence which will have decided weight in the Republican situation in Ohio. It has been said in Ohio that Dick and Foraker did not stand for the Roosevelt administration, and this report bade fair to cause at least a degree of trouble. It has now been "nailed to the mast," if these words from Dick have meaning:

"It is safe to make one prediction, that President Roosevelt's administration and the work of congress will receive sincere and enthusiastic endorsement in the Ohio Republican platform."

Senator Dick has for years made the first draft of the state platform, and this was one of the principal topics of his discussion with the president. As indicating the part President Roosevelt took in the conference, Dick said:

"The president is greatly interested in the result of the congressional campaign, and he does not hesitate to say so. Rightfully, he feels that he has inaugurated policies which he is hopeful of concluding successfully. This can only be accomplished with the help of a Republican majority in the Sixtieth congress. The president is ready to do all he can to bring about a Republican victory in the coming campaign. This does not mean that he is going on the stump; he could not do that. It does not necessarily mean that he is to mingle in local conferences, but he will have a keen general interest in the result and aid in all possible ways."

Besides the strong endorsement of the president, with which the Ohio platform is to be featured, there is to be a "stand pat" declaration regarding the tariff. Dick expressed himself freely on this point.

"It would be practically impossible for the Sixtieth congress to revise the tariff," he remarked. "Besides, it would be decidedly bad political sense. There has never been an exception to the occurrence that when a political party in control of congress undertook to revise the tariff two years preceding a national election, it failed to elect candidates in that campaign." The Republican party, he said, would go before the people pointing to its record with pride.

"The Republican party of Ohio," he said, "stands now, as always, for the protection of the American workingman. The present tariff law, known as the Dingley law, has produced in this country unparalleled prosperity. No nation ever knew such universal prosperity as the American people have continued to enjoy under it since the enactment by the Republican party nearly a decade ago.

"However, we must at the proper time recognize and deal with the sentiment which demands a revision of certain schedules. The Republican policy has always been and the expressions of the leading advocates of the protective tariff idea have been for prudent revision, when needed, of such tariff schedules as shall on account of changing conditions sooner or later need to be changed."

Senator Dick then gave his reasons for saying that the Republican political outlook in Ohio at the present moment is decidedly better than it was a year ago. Herrick, he said, was defeated for re-election as governor, largely, if not entirely, on the temperance question. This question is not now a factor. The defeat of Herrick had a salutary effect on Ohio Republicans. It had undoubtedly brought them to a realization that they could not be split up by dissensions and win at election.

Secretary Dover remarked, when asked about his presence with Dick: "Oh, I just came along as referee, but I was'nt needed even for that."

Bryan Asks Sullivan to Get Out

Chicago, Aug. 1.—An interesting contribution to the literature of the next presidential campaign has been furnished by William J. Bryan and Roger Sullivan of Illinois. Bryan demands that Sullivan, member of the Democratic national committee from Illinois, resign from that committee in the interest of harmony. Bryan maintains that Sullivan holds his office by fraud. Sullivan refuses to resign, and in a letter attacks Bryan and the friends of Bryan in Illinois. He declares that the seat which he holds in the Democratic national committee is one to which a Democratic national convention declared he was entitled.

Roosevelt Responded With a Dollar

New York, Aug. 1.—President Roosevelt has contributed $1 to the Republican national congressional committee's campaign fund. The contribution was sent in response to a general appeal for dollar subscriptions.

Reduction In Railroad Fares

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—The Pennsylvania Railroad company has decided to reduce the maximum one-way fares from 3½ and 3 cents to 2½ cents a mile. This action will involve a readjustment of all through fares from the south. It is assumed that the competing lines which reach New York by way of Cincinnati and Louisville will meet the Pennsylvania company's reduction by a readjustment of fares.

Hearing on Ice Question

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 1.—The charge that the ice interests of the city have combined for the purpose of increasing the price to the consumer will be considered at a hearing to be held on Aug. 3 in the common council chamber. The date of the hearing was announced yesterday and simultaneously the ice companies announced an increase of 5 cents for each 100 pounds to all except the family trade.

Two Schooners May Be Lost

Parrsboro, N. S., Aug. 1.—The tug Parrsboro has left for the scene of the wreck of schooner Marjorie J. Sumner, which went on the rocks at the entrance of Chicnecto bay during a fog, and it is expected that another tug will go to the assistance of the schooner Mollie Carter, which also went ashore at the mouth of Apple river. It is feared, however, that both vessels will prove total losses.

Explosion Kills Five Men

Newark, N. J., Aug. 1.—Four men were killed and a fifth man is missing, as a result of an explosion of guncotton in the works of the Cooper Chemical company on the outskirts of this city. The missing man's name is not known. It is believed that he was blown to pieces. The building was totally destroyed.

NEWS IN BRIEF

An option has been secured to 250 acres of land, including the race track at Saugus, Mass., on which a syndicate proposes to build a three-mile track which will be devoted to automobile racing.

For the first time since their marriage Prince and Princess Michael Cantacuzene, the latter born Julia D. Grant, have returned to the United States.

E. S. Gurley of North Andover, Mass., who attempted suicide by shooting, died from the effect of his wound.

The factory building of the Vaughn Calfskin company at Peabody, Mass., was partly burned, the entire interior of the structure being practically destroyed. The building, with its contents, was valued at $50,000.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

VIEWS OF SAGE'S HEIRS

How Some Relatives Regard Financier's Bequests of $25,000.

THANKFUL, BUT EXPECTED MORE

None of Them Intends to Contest the Will—For Many Years Uncle Russell Had Aided Some of Them Substantially—Incidents of His Early Days Recalled by Intimate Friend.

For many years the heirs of the late Russell Sage, the famous financier, have been living in expectation of becoming wealthy upon the death of Uncle Russell, says a special dispatch from Troy to the New York World. He has helped the majority of them financially from time to time, paying doctors' bills or answering with a check an appeal for rent money. Some of the nephews have boasted in years past that upon the death of Mr. Sage they would be worth millions.

James H. Sage, a member of a firm of fish dealers, is perhaps the most prosperous of the nephews in Troy, N. Y. He has probably a few thousand dollars in his own name.

"Of course," said he recently, "I'm not fool enough to throw money over my shoulder when I can get it without working for it, but I don't have to get a slice of Russell Sage's fortune in order to live. I've got some money of my own."

By way of proof he reached down in his trousers pocket and pulled out a roll of bills which, he said, "would choke a cow."

Charles R. Sage, another nephew, lives on the third floor of an apartment house in Troy. He is a thickset man, with gray hair and gray mustache. When employed he may be found upon the delivery wagon of a manufacturer and bottler of soft drinks. Charles Sage has four daughters and two sons, all grown and all but two still at home. The daughters are hard working girls and contribute largely to the support of the family by working upon collars.

Lydia, one of the daughters, some years ago married Charles Burnham, who is employed by the United Traction company as a conductor. To them a deaf and dumb son was born. When the boy was about twelve years old an appeal was made to Russell Sage to educate him. The old gentleman placed the boy in a deaf and dumb asylum in New York. About six months ago the lad returned without the knowledge of either Mr. Sage or his parents and engaged a room for the night at the Harmony hotel, in Cohoes. The next morning the gas in the room was found turned on. He had committed suicide. Despondency over his affliction is supposed to have been the cause. The family of Charles Sage are emphatic in their denial of being parties to a proposed will contest.

"Why, we never think of such a thing," Mr. Sage said. "After all Uncle Russell has done for us it would be the height of ingratitude. He thought so much of us that he even sent us clothing. Mrs. Sage, the dear old lady, need never worry. We will not make trouble for her if we can help it."

Albert Sage, the third nephew, in Troy is familiarly known as "Pidgie" Sage. He has always been obliged to work for everything he received in life and has seen much trouble. "Pidgie" is employed by his brother, James H. Sage, in the fish market. He has two sons, Walter, who is employed at the plant of the General Electric company at Schenectady, and George, who is employed on one of the ice wagons of Copper & Co.

When Albert Sage first learned of the provisions of the will he was greatly pleased to think that the great money maker had remembered even him.

"Me contest the will?" he asked. "Not on your sweet life. I have always had to work hard, ever since I was a kid, and I guess I'll lay off now and take it easy for the rest of my days. No, $25,000 is a pretty good little bunch of dough, and Uncle Russell was all right. You can put it down for straight that there won't be any contests if I have to start them."

The niece in Troy of Russell Sage, Mrs. Sarah M. Gardner, lives in a pleasant little cottage at 40 Glen avenue. She is the widow of Charles H. Gardner, who was a machinist by trade. She is nearly sixty years old, has two children and owns the house in which she lives.

"I don't know what the others will do," she said, "but I will enter no objections to Uncle Russell's will. I will not say that his relatives did not expect to get more, but I would not start a contest even though he had not left me anything."

Mrs. Gardner has a son, Russell S. Gardner, a clerk in a drug store. The latter said that the impression seems to prevail in New York that all the members of the Sage family in Troy are paupers.

"While this here little family has no great wealth," he said, "it might be well to mention the fact that we are not dependent upon anybody just yet."

Among the intimate friends of Russell Sage in Troy was F. J. Parmenter, a very old and highly respected citizen. Mr. Parmenter recalled the days when they shared each other's company much of the time.

"In 1852 I think it was," he said. "Russell received his nomination for congress. He had had no practice in oratory, yet it was not long before he made two of the best speeches upon finance that were made there during the session. The wags, during his canvass for congress, were accustomed to say: 'Come on, boys. Let us go down and get a cup of sage tea.' He once informed me that he learned to read by the light of pine knots. Mr. Sage did not forget his Troy friends. He came here to attend the funeral of the late Father Havermans, and he was also here at the dedication of the Russell Sage hall. On that occasion Senator Depew, then in his prime, delivered an oration. Mr. Sage followed him in an oration of less length, but which was generally regarded as the better of the two."

By the will of Russell Sage the Chapin family of Oneida, N. Y., has been made considerably richer, each of the heirs receiving $25,000, an aggregate of $250,000. Samuel Chapin, Jr., the eldest, is proprietor of an extensive jewelry store in Oneida, Dwight is a retired merchant, Frank W. and Fremont conduct a successful business in the paint and wall paper line, and Homer and Taylor are managers of the jewelry house. The others are Miss Helen Chapin, Mrs. Angeline Lyle and Mrs. Jennie Munroe. With the exception of Earl, all reside in Oneida. The family is satisfied with the will and has never entertained any thought of a contest and will not approve of a contest should one be made by any of the heirs. The nieces in the Chapin family have often been entertained by Mrs. Sage. Last winter Miss Helen Chapin and Mrs. Jennie Munroe were for several months in California as the guests of Mrs. Sage.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chapin were among the early settlers of Oneida and reared a large family that is honored and respected in business circles and society. All are well to do, self reliant and progressive.

All the relatives of Russell Sage living in Joliet, Ill.—and they are numerous—show no disposition to find fault with "Uncle Russell's" will. Elizur W. Sage, a brother of Russell, left a family of two sons and six daughters, most of whom have moved from Joliet. Olin Augustus Sage, born in 1871, took charge of his mother's farm when he was fifteen, and he has managed it successfully ever since. He received his education in the public schools, and in September, 1892, married Miss Whitmore of the same neighborhood, and they have six children. Mrs. W. B. Davis, his sister, lives on her husband's farm, about two and a half miles from him. She is the eldest sister of Olin and is the mother of four children. Elizur W. Sage, Jr., a brother, who is about fifty-two years of age, left Channahon six years ago and settled in Rensselaer, Ind. The family in Joliet has not kept close track of him. It is thought that he is now either out west or in some other part of the Hoosier State. Mrs. Alta Sage Martens is a daughter of Elizur Sage, Jr., and lives in Channahon on a farm with her husband. The Sages have never presumed on their relations to the celebrated financier. They are respected and well liked.

Mrs. Helen S. Holbrook and Mrs. Fanny E. Crisler, nieces of Russell Sage, say they are satisfied with the provision he has made for them in his will, although they have no knowledge of it except what they have read in the newspapers. They are daughters of Elisha Sage, and live in Park Ridge, some twenty miles northwest of Chicago. Stanley Holbrook, husband of Mrs. Holbrook, is a clerk, and Mr. Crisler is an accountant. Both women have families and have had a hard struggle to get along in life.

PREDICTION OF GREAT WAR.

Everybody Will Be Against America, Says General Miles.

General Nelson A. Miles recently said at Philadelphia that he expected war to come shortly after the opening of the Panama canal.

"When it does come," he said, "it will be the United States against the world. Commercial rivalry will be at the bottom of the struggle, which will be the most terrible the world has ever seen.

"In such an event the army and navy would not avail the country much," he continued. "The United States has about 3 per cent of the commerce of the world and other nations have the rest. Struggle would have to be made single handed against them all. It will have its inception in commerce, and the United States and other nations will be like a lot of dogs fighting over a bone. The United States, as I say, has 3 per cent only of all commerce. If will seem to others therefore that they have a 97 per cent right to the canal against this country's 3 per cent. Struggle is inevitable."

That the struggle he foresees is not likely to come for some time is General Miles' opinion, but sooner or later, he says, class commercial interest in South America and about the isthmus is certain. Then will begin the great war.

Peaches In the Hair.

The latest addition to the list of coiffures is the Ceres wreath, in which fruit is substituted for the ordinary flower, says the London Mail. At a recent ball a pretty girl produced a sensation by wearing peaches composed of hand painted velvet. A woman approaching mature years, in whose coiffure a bunch of luscious looking purple and green grapes was arranged, provided additional proof of the advent of the vogue. Tiaras of cherries are being sold for brunettes. They are made of velvet or a composition closely resembling ivory realistically colored. The precious metals are being used for making more elaborate Ceres wreaths in which corn and fruit are mingled. One wrought in gold and three tones of yellows to express the lights and shades of wheat ears and currant clusters rises toward the front, where the spikes of grain cross. Silver wreaths are preferred by some women and are made of frosted and burnished metal, showing apples and foliage and plums mingled with grasses and the blossom of the plum tree.

Medical Examiner Jones has pronounced the death of Peter Sutton, who was found in a field at Randolph on Monday to be due to cirrhosis of the liver, as primary cause, and the acute cause as dilation of the heart and pleurisy with effusion.

Boston police are looking for the parties who held up a man Tuesday noon, supposed to be Dennis C. Collins of Quincy, and relieved him of a watch and a sum of money. The robbery is said to have been committed at Mount Ide near Station 2.

—About 100 members of the Old Stoughton Musical Society were at Sharon on Tuesday for the annual concert, a feature of Old-Home week.

New Men at The Y. M. C. A.

Charles F. Reed of Montclair, N. J., began his duties as boys' work director of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association today.

Mr. Reed is a young man of promise; he has had several years of very close affiliation with the 23d street branch, New York city, and has been with the Boston & Maine railroad branch since last autumn.

With the new and improved equipment for boys he should be able to make a great showing for the boys of Quincy this year.

He will spend the last week of August at the Silver Bay (Lake George) Institute for boy workers.

The association has recently called W. Henry H. Pierce of Melrose to become assistant secretary. Mr. Pierce is a graduate of Boston University, class '06, and comes well equipped for the duties he is to take up.

He is now attending the Silver Bay Institute, on educational work. He will begin his work with the association in Quincy on August 20.

TODAY'S COURT.

John J. Tracy was arraigned for drunkenness at Weymouth. Case continued until Aug. 22.

James Girardee was arraigned for breaking and entering at Quincy and was held in $1,000 for the grand jury.

Fred Bussey was fined $8 for assault on Enos Foster at Quincy.

—In its crop report for July, out today, the State Board of Agriculture includes an article by Prof. William P. Brooks, professor of agriculture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College and director of the Hatch Experiment Station, on "Clovers: their value, characteristics of varieties and methods of production." Copies of this bulletin can be obtained by application to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those wishing it may have their names put on the mailing list to receive future issues.

—In the Peabody Police Court Monday afternoon, Justice Hall presiding, Cornelius J. Cacey, charged with exposing poison, was held in $1000 for the Grand Jury. It is alleged that Casey threw poison on the ground in the chicken yard of John Murphy, a neighbor, and that 40 hens ate of the poison and died. The case was brought to the attention of the court by Charles F. Clarke, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

—The cruiser Washington, built at the yards of the New York Shipbuilding Company, was formally turned over to the government Monday. The vessel proceeded to League Island to await official entry into the United States navy.

A Doctor's Story

[Original.]

A physician's life is like the sunlight flecked by the leaves of a tree. It is a mixture of light and shade, though I admit that the shade greatly predominates. He will announce to a family that one of its loved members is doomed, jump into his buggy and drive to his next patient to find a happy household getting a convalescent out of bed.

The greatest relief I have felt in my professional duties has been in bringing a child safely into the world. The strain over, the mother smiling, the father taking a "bracer," the nurse putting on the baby's first clothes—all these are as delightful to the physician who has borne the responsibility as to any member of the family. I had gone home one night from such a scene as this and, tired out, had thrown myself on a lounge. I was falling asleep when the clock struck 12, and at the same moment my night bell rang violently. Rousing myself, I went to the door. There stood a man white as a sheet, and I noticed blood on his coat sleeve.

"You a surgeon?"

"Yes; physician and surgeon."

"Come with me, quick. My wife will die before you can get there."

My man had not finished unharnessing my horse, and I directed him to put him back in the buggy. Then I asked the stranger to get in and got in myself. As we drove off I asked, "Is it far?"

"About six miles."

"Six miles! Did you walk it?"

"Yes—no. Whip up your horse. We shall be too late."

There was something uncanny about this person and I began to feel an instinctive dread of him. Though he was sitting beside me I could neither hear him breathe nor see any rising or falling of his chest. But I attributed this to my own disturbed feelings, for I do not know that I could have heard the one or seen the other. My horse seemed as uneasy as I and shied at every object beside the road. Constantly urged to drive faster, I was not long in making the distance, and on arrival at a massive dwelling standing alone in large grounds I was ushered into a parlor. There on a lounge lay a young woman. Beside her knelt a man about her own age, and another woman who looked younger than the invalid sat weeping at the foot of the lounge.

Removing an afghan with which the invalid was covered I saw blood on the clothing and soon discovered a large knife wound in the side. It was my duty to tell those present that the woman's life was ebbing out and that she could live but a few moments. All made way for the man who had brought me, and quivering in every nerve he leaned over her. I heard her say, "I forgive you, darling." There was a fainting, a rattle in the throat and the woman was dead.

I have no recollection of anything further till in the gray of the morning I found myself sitting in my buggy, my horse tied to a post before the gate of the house I had been in. How I came there I could not conjecture. The house was closed and not a light was to be seen within. Then I noticed that every shutter was closed and the house had a dilapidated appearance. It was hard for me to believe I had been in an inhabited dwelling in which I had passed through a death scene. My nerves, or, rather, my brain, seemed toppling. To pull myself together I endeavored to banish that which was now a confused picture by calling up its predecessor, in which the central figure was a newborn child. Again I laid the infant beside its mother and saw the heavenly smile with which she greeted it, while the father bent over and gave both a kiss. This gave me time to recover, and I turned my attention again to the house before me. As a wind blew over it, rustling the leaves on the trees beside it, there was a want of response which told me for the first time that no one was within.

Where had that death group gone?

I got out of the buggy and unhitched my horse with a view to putting distance between me and the grewsome place as quickly as possible when I heard the sound of wheels, and presently a milkman drove by. I hailed him, and he pulled in his horse.

"Is that house occupied?" I asked.

"No, and it hasn't been in ten years."

"Singular," I said musingly.

"We was talkin' about it last night. It was jist ten years at midnight that the Morrison murder took place there. Mrs. Morrison was confidante in a love affair of her sister that was forbidden by the girl's parents. Her husband didn't know nothin' about it, but he got on to it and suspected the girl's lover was his wife's lover. The lovers were married secretly, and Mrs. Morrison was harborin' 'em unknown to Morrison. He came home suddent one night and found the new husband alone with his wife. He made a lunge at the man. Mrs. Morrison jumped between 'em and got the stab, shoutin' as she received it, 'He's Dolly's husband!' They got a doctor, and as he came in the woman died. What's the matter with you?"

My head was swimming, but by an effort I recovered myself and, whipping up my horse, drove home as rapidly as possible. I was delirious when I got there and was not a well man for weeks. When I recovered I told the story of my night visit to my physician, who said my attack had been coming on for some time previous to my final breakdown and the whole scene was a creation of my brain. I know better. The murder actually took place. The milkman's story was true.

The Auk Second

The Manchester Was First In Sonder Class Of Eleven Boats

The challenger and defender of the Quincy Yacht Club cup were first and second on Wednesday in the open race of the Corinthian club at Marblehead, but the Manchester boat led the Quincy boat by a wide margin. The Manchester led at both turning points, and finished nearly five minutes ahead of the Auk, which in turn was over six minutes ahead of the Sally VIII. The other eight yachts were strung out at length some being nearly an hour behind the leaders, as will be seen by the summary:

Heroic Rescue From Quarry Hole

But for the courageous and heroic act of Arthur Morrisette, there wonld have been a drowning in the old Barker quarry on the North Commons on Monday afternoon.

Between 3 and 4 he was walking in the vicinity of the quarry when he was attracted by the outcry of a number of small boys. Investigation showed that a boy was struggling in the water of the quarry hole which is very deep. Without waiting to remove any of his clothes Mr. Morrisette jumped into the water, and with difficulty rescued the boy, who had gone down at least twice.

The name of the boy rescued was Virgil Elison, and it was very fortunate for him that Mr. Morrisette was nearby.

Has a Record For Moving

The picturesque old yellow house which has begun another journey, from Faxon avenue, was built by a grandfather of Mr. Peter Turner, more than a century and a quarter of years ago, and first stood near Neponset bridge. Later it was located at the corner of School and Hancock streets.

Then it took a journey to the corner where now stands Mr. Taylor's house occupied by C. C. Hearn and Dr. Hallowell. Its third journey was down the street where it now stands.

It has many interesting features of old colonial architecture, and has also been the scene of many comedies and tragedies of human life. Probably this will be its last journey.

Milton Man for Judge.

Chief Justice John F. Brown of the Boston municipal court, a resident of Milton, was on Wednesday appointed by Gov. Guild as a justice of the Superior court, to succeed John J. Flaherty. Judge Brown was born in Douglas in 1849, and was graduated from Harvard in 1872. He has been a Boston judge since 1894. With his wife and two children he lives at Milton.

—"Now, children," said a teacher in a Germantown school not long since, "let us see what you can remember about the animal kingdom, and the domestic animals that belong to it. You have named all the domestic animals but one. Who can tell me what that one is?" No one answered. "It has bristly hair, is like the dirt, and it is fond of getting into the mud," hinted the teacher helpfully. "Can't you think, Tommy?" she asked encouragingly of a small boy. "It's me," said Tommy reflectively.

Fewer Autoists Being Arrested

The operation of the new automobile law had much to do with the decrease in the number of criminal cases before the district court in the month of July over the corresponding month last year.

A year ago the officers, particularly those at the Blue Hill reservation, had many automobile drivers before the court for exceeding the speed limit, and Wednesday had become known among regular court attendants as automobile day.

Since the new law went into effect however, business in this line has been particularly dull. There were but five cases in court last month for this offense against over sixty for the corresponding month last year.

Grocers Report Enjoyable Time

Those who participated in the outing of the Old Colony Grocers' and Provision Dealers' association on Wednesday reported having a very enjoyable trip. There was about 700 in the party. The day was not as clear as it might have been, and there was a smart shower during the afternoon while they were on the boat in Narragansett bay.

The party arrived at Crescent Park at noon and a game of ball was started between the Invisibles and the Miserables. The outcome of the match is in doubt, as the call to dinner brought it to a sudden end.

Leaving the Park at 3 o'clock the party had a delightful sail the whole length of Narragansett Bay.

The Steamer also visited Newport harbor affording a fine view of the fleet of war vessels that are there.

The special train left Fall River about 7 o'clock and the Quincy party arrived home at 9 o'clock.

These are the Days.

These are the days when the word "Adirondacks" sounds good to everyone. Up there the sun is just as bright, but the days are never hot and enervating—the nights are always cool and the pine-laden air has that invigorating something in it that brings sleep, appetite, rest and new life to the jaded urbanite.

These are the days! The season is at its height. All the hotels are open and there is room enough for everyone. The Adirondack country is too vast ever to become crowded. From east, west, north or south you can reach the North Woods via the New York Central Lines, "America's Greatest Railroad."

GOOD AFTERNOON.

We have been asked by several people why the town clock has such a feeble strike lately. The fire alarm test comes in strong, but when the clock strikes it can be heard only a short distance, and then one has to listen closely or they will miss the count.

In walking through Mount Wollaston cemetery the occasional uncared for lot is an unpleasant sight among so much tidiness and also goes to show how soon we are forgotten when we pass from this world. One lot we noticed recently was looking particularly seedy. Here is buried a man who died a few years ago leaving his children each independently rich, yet the father lies in a neglected lot with grave unmarked. It must be thoughtlessness for surely the few dollars needed each year cannot be begrudged by the next of kin. It would seem wise in making a will to provide for a headstone and also to leave $150 to the city for perpetual care of lot.

A great many lots at Mount Wollaston are under perpetual care, others are cared for by the year, $5.00 per annum, and still others are cared for by their owners who toward night, after a busy day at their duties, may be seen diligently trimming grass, watering plants, etc. The care of your lot is not only a labor of love and duty, but it gives pleasure to every visitor to the cemetery.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Whether journalism be classed as a trade or a profession is a matter of no consequence whatever. The fact remains that much of it must be learned in the shop, while at the same time all the universities in the world are not beyond the reach of its demands. There is no real school of newspaper art and science but the newspaper office itself, and yet all human knowledge is needed in the conduct of a newspaper.—New Orleans Picayune.

CUMMINS' VICTORY

Nominated For Re-election by Republicans of Iowa

A PROTECTIVE PLATFORM

Changes In Tariff Schedules Should Be Made Only When Necessary--Perkins Now Belongs to the "Common People"

Des Moines, Aug. 2.—Governor Albert B. Cummins was nominated for re-election by the Republican state convention in a harmonious session that belied all prognostications of a possible split in the state party over control of the head of the state ticket. A full state ticket was named, most of the candidates being nominated by acclamation.

The platform adopted says in part:

"We commend the aspiring character, important achievements and undaunted leadership of Theodore Roosevelt. It is with exceeding pride that we contemplate the confidence reposed in him by the people of our country, and the admiration which he commands from the whole world."

The platform endorses the work of the Iowa congressional representatives, endorses the administration of Governor Cummins, and concludes:

"We pledge ourselves and our party in this state to the enactment of a wise and judicious primary election law, which will provide for the nomination by direct vote of all candidates for office to be filled at the general election and an expression of public preference in the selection of United States senators.

"We are unalterably opposed to the domination of corporate influences in public affairs. We favor the enactment of stringent statutes to purge the politics of our state and nation from the corrupting influences of corporate power; and we pledge ourselves to the enactment of such laws as will render it unprofitable and unpopular for corporations to engage in politics or in any way contribute to political campaigns.

"We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection. Duties on foreign imports should not be levied for revenue only, but should be so adjusted as to promote our domestic interests, enlarge our foreign markets, secure remunerative prices for the products of our factories and farms and maintain a superior scale of wages and standard of living for American labor.

"Wise and unselfish tariff laws maintained in the interest of the general welfare, equally opposed to foreign control and domestic monopoly, are essential to our commercial and industrial prosperity. We believe that all inequalities in the tariff schedules, which inevitably arise from changing industrial and commercial conditions, should be adjusted from time to time; and, condemning without reserve all assaults upon the protective system, we favor such reasonable and timely changes as will keep the tariff in harmony with our industrial and commercial progress.

"We favor the reciprocity inaugerated by Blaine, advocated by McKinley and Roosevelt and as recognized in Republican platforms and legislation."

When the nominations for governor were called for H. L. Clark named Albert B. Cummins, J. S. Lothrop nominated George D. Perkins and E. E. Voorhees named S. W. Rathbun. The ballot resulted: Cummins, 933; Perkins, 603; Rathbun, 104.

Governor Cummins made a brief speech, saying that the hope nearest his heart was the continued supremacy of the Republican party; that he would urge in the future, as in the past, the same sound principles of government for which the party had stood for the individual rights of man.

George D. Perkins, in a brief speech, said he now belonged to the "common people." Since manhood he had been interested in the Republican party, "and tonight," he said, "I re-enlist in its service." He had, he said, advocated things which he believed to be true and would continue to advocate them.

Governor Cummins, as he asserted all along, had a majority of the delegates, and the action of the state central committee in adding to the temporary organization some Perkins delegates did not interfere with Cummins' control of the situation. His friends were dominant in the convention, securing the adoption of the platform which they submitted.

Waiting For Moody's Ideas

Boston, Aug. 2.—Contrary to expectations, there was no enunciation of tariff policy issued at the monthly meeting of the Home Market club. It was announced that no declaration would be issued until the directors of the club had conferred with "an important authority," who is understood to be Attorney General Moody, who, as chairman of the committee on resolutions of the coming Republican state convention, will draft the party's platform.

Idaho "Insurgents" Defeated

Pocatello, Ida., Aug. 2.—Governor Gooding was renominated for governor at the Republican state convention last night over Hugh France. Sixty "insurgent" delegates put France in the field against Gooding. Senator Heyburn emphasized the importance of upholding the protective tariff and nominations were then called for, Gooding winning by a good majority.

Results of Mine Explosion

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 2.—A terrific explosion occurred in a mine at Warrior Run and a miner was instantly killed. Through crevices formed on the surface by the explosion the gas escaped from the workings below into the houses situated over the mine and caused another explosion, which resulted in the death of Margaret Williams, aged 16. The settling of the earth also affected the water mains of the village and two homes were totally destroyed.

Icemen Concluded to Yield

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 2.—Prosecution of the alleged ice trust came to an end by the ice manufacturers entering into an agreement with the prosecuting attorney whereby they promise to at once dissolve the Jacksonville Ice Delivery company, the alleged combination of manufacturers in restraint of trade, and by the giving of a written guarantee that they will sell ice to consumers at greatly reduced prices.

Quickly Recovered From Insanity

Albany, Aug. 2.—The authorities of the state hospital for criminal insane have declared that Richard E. Preusser, the sporting man of this city who shot to death Myles B. McDonnell of Boston, is sane. Preusser was acquitted by a jury five weeks ago on the ground that he was insane at the time of the killing and was sentenced to the hospital at Matteawan to remain until cured.

Capture of Black Hand Worker

New York, Aug. 2.—In the arrest of Attore Ricco the police declare that they have captured one of a gang which has been extorting money from Italians by Black Hand methods. Ricco is charged with having accepted a package containing $500 in marked bills from Alfonso Schiattino as a bribe to prevent the death of Schiattino, his family, and a friend.

Banker Killed In Carriage Accident

ERROR OF POLICE

Thought to Have Taken a British Lord Into Custody

ARREST MADE IN MAINE

Was at Request of Southern Authorities, Who Wanted "Lord Douglas," a Bigamist--English Detectives Consulted

Portland, Me., Aug. 2.—Instead of having in custody an American bigamist known as "Lord Douglass" and other names, and who is wanted by the authorities of many states, as was at first supposed, the Portland police, it is thought, have detained Lord Sholto Douglas, third son of the late Marquis of Queensbury, who has resided in Bakersfield, Cal.

Several days ago a Portland detective was requested by the police of Asheville, N. C., to arrest a man who rented a cottage on the shore of Sebago lake. The officer went to the lake Tuesday and detained a man known at the lake resorts as S. G. Douglas. The Asheville police were notified of the detention of the man, but the local authorities suspected that a mistake had been made and they refrained from making public the occurrence.

The suspect told the officer who called on him that he was Lord Sholto George Douglas. With him were two persons who, he said, were Lady Douglas and their son. So convincing was his story that the local police notified the Asheville officers yesterday that in their opinion the man was what he claimed to be and they advised that the Asheville police order his release.

A firm of bankers in Portland states that the man detained at Sebago is really Lord Sholto Douglas. They say that he brought letters of credit from a London banking house and that a number of drafts which he presented were honored by the London institution. The police here state that the description of the bigamist, beyond a slight resemblance, does not correspond to that of the Englishman. Lord Sholto is 34 years of age, according to Debrett's Peerage, while the American "Lord Douglass" is about 45, according to the description sent out by the police of several cities.

The suspect says that he was with his family in England from November, 1904, until last May, whereas the crimes of the American were committed mostly last year. Last night the police sent a cablegram to Scotland Yard, London, asking if the detectives there can verify the statement. If the reply, which is expected today, is favorable to the man under detention, he will be released, regardless of the telegrams received from Asheville.

The prisoner states that the health of his wife had not been good and that he decided to come to Maine for the summer. They selected a cottage on the shore of Sebago lake in order that they might have seclusion, and in order to avoid publicity they were known as Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Douglass. The suspect is now in this city in custody of the local police.

Manchester an Easy Winner

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 2.—The Roosevelt cup defender aspirants raced in light winds and an easy roll of the sea over a course that through a shift of the breeze gave two windward legs and a run, and the Manchester, owned by J. L. Bremer, administered a decisive defeat to her 10 competitors, winning by a margin of nearly five minutes in a 11 3-8 mile contest.

Voliva Named as Dowie's Successor

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Wilbur G. Voliva has been endorsed for the position of general overseer of the Christian Catholic church at Zion City by a vote that was almost unanimous. Judge Landis of the federal court will at once be notified of the wishes of the former followers of Dowie, and it is thought that he will appoint Voliva general overseer without delay.

Composer Mascagni Wins His Suit

Rome, Aug. 2.—A court of appeals has awarded Pietro Mascagni, the composer, damages against the Rossini Lyceum, the musical conservatory at Pesaro, for having deprived him of the directorship of the lyceum in the summer of 1902, in consequence of his having undertaken a concert tour in the United States.

Wrangled Over Fiddling Abilities

Keene, N. H., Aug. 2.—Vaschi Czenoves, a Pole, who was arrested at a lumber camp near Fitzwilliam, charged with killing a fellow-countryman, Adam Carpiska, after a quarrel, was held without bail for the superior court. A dispute over their abilities as fiddlers is said to have led to the killing.

Railroad Up to Clouds

Denver, Aug. 2.—The Argentine Central railroad, from Silver Plume to the summit of Mount McClellan, on Gray's Peak, has been opened for traffic. This road reaches a point 14,000 feet above the sea level and is the highest traction road in the world, with the exception of the Peruvian Central in the Andes.

New Trotting Record

Philadelphia, Aug. 2.—At the Ardmore Driving club races on the Eagle track, Ed Bryan, a bay gelding, broke the world's trotting record for two miles on a half-mile track. The horse covered the distance in 4:59. The best previous record was 5:14, held by Templebar.

DEATH BY DROWNING

Only Conclusion Arrived at by Jury In the Braley Case

Belfast, Me., Aug. 2.—A verdict of death by drowning was returned by the coroner's jury last night in the case of Clara Braley, aged 17, whose body was found in Penobscot bay after she had disappeared from the home of her uncle, with whom she lived at East Belfast. The jury found that the girl came to her death "by drowning, but whether by suicide, accident or other means is to the jury unknown."

Miss Braley left the home of her uncle one night last week. She had apparently begun preparations for retiring for the night, having loosened her hair and partly removed her collar, when she went out suddenly from the house and was not afterward seen.

Various theories of foul play, in which a mysterious motor boat is supposed to have figured, have been advanced, but Foreman Dickey of the jury said that no definite evidence regarding any motorboat was presented to the jury, and that the night was in fact so foggy that a boat would hardly have been able to reach the cove in front of which the girl lived.

Industrial School Well Conducted

Vergennes, Vt., Aug. 2.—The state investigating committee which is looking into the conditions in Vermont public institutions has completed the examination of the affairs of the state industrial school here. An expert accountant said he had found nothing to criticise in the financial management of the institution, and that there was "no possible chance for dishonesty, graft, rake-offs, or any other crooked work." Other conditions at the school were apparently satisfactory to the commission.

Marine Killed In Navy Yard

Boston, Aug. 2.—Private Duer of the marine corps was killed last night by a blow alleged to have been struck by acting Corporal Jenkins. Jenkins was afterwards arrested by the naval officials, charged with causing the death of Duer. The affair occurred in the navy yard and, as the killing occurred on the government reservation, the case was not reported to the local police, the navy yard officials refusing to give out any of the details.

Lantern Causes Gas Explosion

Boston, Aug 2.—In attempting to remedy a leak in a gas pipe, when a lantern accidentally stood near, Samuel Schankolf, a plumber, was burned about the arms and face in the basement of 59 South Market street, and was taken to a hospital. The gas exploded with a report that frightened several other plumbers, but they escaped injury. The damage to the building was slight.

Guild Appoints Superior Judge

Boston, Aug. 2.—John F. Brown of Milton, chief justice of the Suffolk (Boston) municipal court and ranking municipal justice in the state, was nominated by Governor Guild as associate justice of the superior court, succeeding the late John J. Flaherty of Gloucester. Brown was admitted to the bar in 1874. He was appointed justice of the municipal court in 1894, being promoted to the position of chief justice four years ago.

Alleged Incendiary Held

Ossipee, N. H., Aug. 2.—Eugene Merrill, proprietor of a feed store and grocery, was brought before Justice Miles, charged with hiring John Swett to set fire to the store. Merrill was held in bonds of $1000 for the grand jury and went to jail, as he was unable to procure the required bail. Swett is said to have made a statement in which he declared that Merrill hired him for $5 to set fire to the store.

Yacht Dashed Into Obstruction

Block Island, R. I., Aug. 2.—Schooner yacht Amazon ran onto the sunken dredger Columbia at the entrance to New harbor, tore her port davits and a naphtha launch from the decks, badly ripped the mainsail and but for the timely arrival of a tug would have pounded on the breakwater nearby. The Amazon was entering the harbor under full sail when she dashed on the sunken dredger.

New Bedford Strike May Soon End

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 2.—At the beginning of the 10th day of the strike of the street railway employes the prospect is that a settlement of the difficulty may be reached. National President Mahon of the Street Railwaymen's union is due here today and a conference has been arranged between him and President Crapo of the three companies against which the strike was declared.

Advance Does Not Please All

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 2.—The Lowell Textile Council, after a discussion of the advance in wages inaugurated in this city last Monday, gave out a statement to the effect that the advance had been found to average 5 to 6 percent in some departments, while in others it fell below. Some dissatisfaction was expressed, but action was deferred until all the returns should be reported.

Savage Attack by Pet Bulldog

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 2.—C. M. Collier of New York is under medical treatment for injuries inflicted upon him by a pet bulldog. The animal attacked Collier as he was about to step into his automobile and 40 distinct wounds were inflicted. Collier, who is 70 years old, is said to be comfortable.

Adams Weavers on Strike

Adams, Mass., Aug. 2.—About 300 employes of mill 4 of the Berkshire Cotton Manufacturing company left on a strike unexpectedly. They say their grievance lies in the discharge of the president of the English-speaking Weavers' union.

MUTINY ON SHIPS

Four Said to Be Roaming at Large In Gulf of Finland

WARNING AT CRONSTADT

Imprisonment of Sailors Whose Loyalty Was Questioned Prevented Possible Revolt--Revolutionists In Need of Arms

St. Petersburg, Aug. 2.—St. Petersburg is anxiously awaiting news of the outcome of yesterday's battle between the mutineers and the government forces at Sveaborg. No definite information has been received, owing to the damage done to the land telegraph wires. The advices received by the government by wireless telegraphy have not been divulged.

The utmost importance is attached to the conduct of the fleet. According to semi-official intimation the crews of these vessels are still under the control of their officers, but private advices say that some members of the crews have been confined below decks for fear of mutiny. There was a rumor in circulation here that four of the ships of the Baltic squadron were in complete mutiny and roaming at large in the Gulf of Finland, and that the commandant at Cronstadt had been notified to be prepared for an attack by these vessels.

It is worthy of note that a dispatch to an official agency from Helsingfors, announcing the arrival of the fleet off Sveaborg and the fact that it opened fire, does not mention what it opened fire against.

Vice Admiral Birileff presumably has gone to Helsingfors to assume personal command of the fleet, as it now develops that Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch, the czar's brother, is not with the fleet as previously reported, but at Gatchina with the empress dowager.

The most intense anxiety still prevails with regard to a possible uprising at Cronstadt and the general spread of the revolt through the entire naval establishment. A personal visit by a press correspondent to Cronstadt, however, shows that the authorities there received timely warning of the events at Sveaborg and nipped a possible revolt in the bud. They had the situation well in hand Tuesday night and quietly placed detachments of infantry at the doors of the marine barracks and removed the carbines from the racks in the buildings.

Yesterday morning the 1500 sailors composing the seventh equipage, quartered at Cronstadt, whose loyalty had been questioned, found themselves prisoners. The correspondent saw them looking out of the windows of their barracks and unable to communicate with the outside. The streets of Cronstadt are swarming with troops of the loyal guard regiments and the newly arrived men of the Twenty-fourth division, who serve to overawe the disaffected elements.

As the correspondent was crossing from Cronstadt to Orenienbaum he saw the imperial yacht Pole Star lying with steam up at the pier below the imperial residence at Peterhof.

The revolutionists are in need of arms and ammunition, and one of the principal obstacles in the way of procuring these has been the difficulty of landing them. Several attempts to land arms on the coast of Finland, the only place where such a landing could be attempted with any advantage to the revolutionary cause, have been frustrated.

With Sveaborg, which dominates the Gulf of Finland, Helsingfors, the capital and principal seaport of Finland, and the railway line to the Russian capital securely held, the revolutionists would be able to establish not only a landing place, but a base of supplies. The arsenal for the department of Finland, which in all probability is well stocked with implements of war, is at Sveaborg.

Sveaborg is perhaps the most strongly fortified point on the Baltic. It is situated on seven islands in the inlet to Helsingfors, and is only three miles from the capital. The islands are connected by pontoons. The fortress was constructed in 1749, when Finland was a Swedish province, by Albert Ehrensward, the foremost Swedish strategist and builder of warships of his day. On May 3, 1808, during the war between Sweden and Russia, the fortress was betrayed to Russia by General Cronstedt, the Swedish commander. It sustained a heavy bombardment from the Anglo-French fleet on Aug. 9-10, 1855.

The fortress at Skatudden, which with Sveaborg forms part of the harbor defenses of the Finnish capital, is situated on an island in the harbor proper, and is connected with the city by a bridge. It is half a mile long and a quarter of a mile wide, and is given over entirely to the works of fortification. The fort forms the western terminal of the railroad line to St. Petersburg.

Governor Threatens to Resign

Warsaw, Aug. 2.—In view of the recent outrages in and around Warsaw, the increased energy of the revolutionaries, and the inadequacy of the repressive measures at present in force, the governor general has informed the government at St. Petersburg that he will resign unless he is permitted to establish a strict state of siege.

SUBURB OF THEIR OWN.

Washington Newspaper Men to Lay Out Novel Rural Retreat.

Washington is about to have a suburb like unto which there is nothing in the records of things suburban, says the Washington Post. Probably the most remarkable thing about this suburb is that it is not going to be put on the market. This is not its only unique feature, for it is to have no streets, and a man with a bank account of more than three figures will not be welcomed within its limits.

It is to be a "truly rural" suburb, controlled by a diminutive suburban trust, and if the plans of its builders materialize the civic millennium will have been discovered and folks living out Chevy Chase way will have a model settlement where great social problems will have been solved, where there will be neither capital nor labor, where politics will be an entity and the lion and the lamb will lie down together.

The trust that is about to give being to this mysterious suburb is composed of Washington newspaper men who, with a modesty that is paradoxical, request that their names be not published. About six months ago, when Washington generally was warming its feet at grate fires and steam radiators, these men—six in number—bought a part of Clean Drinking manor, just to the eastward of Chevy Chase lake and adjoining the estate of Old Nick Jones.

The tract, twenty-three acres in all, is covered with a natural growth of timber—in fact, it is a veritable forest. The six newspaper men have divided the property, and each one is preparing to construct thereon a low, rambling bungalow of logs, with rough shingle roofs, broad porches, dormer windows and all that sort of thing.

Instead of streets the boys have provided for typical country roads winding through the trees, thus retaining to a marked degree the rustic effect. The material for the bungalows will be cut from the roadways and from the clearings for the building sites. The entire tract is to be fenced in, little pathways will be laid out under the pines and the poplars and the elms, the wilderness of honeysuckle will be left undisturbed and the members of the suburban trust will settle down far from the madding crowd.

In order to assure a thoroughly congenial community the boys will not let any one else in on the deal except possibly one or two mutual friends.

DOCTORS UP IN A BALLOON.

First Ascension In Interest of Physiological Research.

A balloon trip which is expected to have wide results in the aeronautic world was recently made at Philadelphia by Dr. Samuel Jottinger and Dr. T. Chalmers Fulton, both well known physicians of that city and graduates of the Jefferson Medical college, says a Philadelphia special dispatch to the New York World.

Meteorological experiments have been made from balloons for several years, but this trip was, so far as is known, the first balloon ascension ever made for the purpose of physiological research.

The aeronauts landed in a field four miles southwest of Media, Pa., twenty miles from their starting point, shortly after 7 o'clock in the evening, after being up nearly five hours. The landing was without mishap or incident, the balloon settling easily to the ground. They reached an altitude of more than three miles and say that the views above the clouds surpass description.

They pronounce their experiments very successful and say that they have collected data which is destined to have a wide influence on the aeronautical world. Experiments tried alternately on each other at high altitudes prove the theory that the rapid changes in altitude that attend ballooning are beneficial to nervous diseases of the eye and to respiratory diseases. They also made observations as to the effects on blood circulation.

The balloon was lent by members of the Aero club of New York. It has a capacity of 55,000 cubic feet. Pure coal gas, which is much more buoyant than the commercial illuminant of coal and water gas mixed, was used.

Professor Charles King, Philadelphia's "grand old man" of aeronautics, superintended the preparations. It took three hours to fill the bag. The two aeronauts took up a large assortment of instruments for performing their experiments. The instruments for the meteorological experiments were lent by the United States weather bureau and the other set, all delicate instruments, is the property of medical societies in Philadelphia.

Footless Man to Run For Congress.

William R. Scullin, candidate for the Democratic nomination for congress in the Twelfth Missouri district, is a well known lawyer, but is badly crippled, his feet having been crushed off in a railway wreck, says a St. Louis correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald. He was born in St. Louis in 1881 and received his education in the public schools and at a local law institute. His father is a real estate dealer, and his uncle, John Scullin, is conspicuous as a financier and promoter. Friends of Mr. Scullin say that he is the logical candidate and that his physical defects will not prevent his making a winning race should he receive the nomination which he is seeking.

A Mechanical "Hired Man."

B. E. Moore, a practical farmer near Winsted, Conn., thinks he has solved the scarcity of farmhand help problem by installing a milking machine, gasoline engine and electric motor, says the New York World. Sawing the wood, cutting ensilage, shearing Angora goats and sheep, milking cows, separating milk, churning butter, washing clothes, lighting the house and barns are all done now by power at Moore's.

THAW'S MOTHER YIELDS

Now Agrees With Line of Defense Proposed by Her Son

New York, Aug. 2.—Yielding to the persuasion of her son, Harry, Mrs. William Thaw has dispensed with the services of the firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, whom she had retained to conduct the defense of her son on the charge of murdering Stanford White. Following a family council, Mrs. Thaw sent the following letter to her counsel:

"After fully considering the question, I have decided that my son's position is the right one. Will you therefore kindly deliver to Messrs. Hartridge & Peabody all documents, letters, notes, memoranda, data and all papers you have for me and a full statement of your account."

Black's firm was engaged by Harry Thaw to take charge of his defense a few days after the tragedy. A disagreement occurred between the prisoner and Olcott on the question of the line of defense to be adopted, the latter insisting on the plea of insanity, to which Thaw was unalterably opposed. A day or two before his mother's arrival from Europe Thaw dismissed his counsel and placed his affairs in the hands of his personal attorney, C. W. Hartridge.

Mrs. Thaw's first act on landing was to re-engage Black's firm. Since then Mrs. Thaw has been unremitting in her efforts to persuade her son to acquiesce in her views and permit her to dictate his defense. In this she failed. This is taken to mean that his plea of "not guilty" will stand, and that "emotional insanity" and evidence going to show justification under the "unwritten law" will be relied upon to secure acquittal.

Strike of Lithographers

New York, Aug. 2.—A general strike of members of the Lithographers' International Protective and Benefit association has been ordered. The strike will affect about 30,000 employes of lithographing concerns in the United States and Canada. The association made a demand on the employers for 48 instead of 53 hours' work a week. President Stecher of the employing lithographers says that they will fight the strike.

What Divorce Cost Corey

Braddock, Pa., Aug. 2.—It is said here, the former home of W. E. Corey and his wife, that the price paid by Corey to his wife as a settlement prior to the divorce proceedings was $3,000,000. She promised that she would not bring the name of any woman into the case or press the claim of non-support, while he agreed that he would not combat the contention of desertion.

Politicans to Blame For Surrender

Madrid, Aug. 2.—The Spanish generals who were concerned in the capitulation of Santiago to the American forces on July 17, 1898, have replied to attacks in the press regarding this capitulation by signifying their intention to issue a manifesto explaining that the blame for the surrender of the city attaches to the politicians of that time.

An Outbreak of Cholera

Madrid, Aug. 2.—Several sporadic cases of cholera have been discovered here and have caused considerable alarm. The disease is attributed to cotaminated water. A committee on hygiene has taken immediate and effective steps to prevent its spread. A number of suspected wells have been ordered closed.

Town Treasurer Has Disappeared

New York, Aug. 2.—John J. McIntyre, town treasurer of Union, N. J., has been missing since Thursday last. His relatives and friends fear he has met with foul play. His associates on the township committee have begun to check up the town accounts. So far as known they are correct.

Over the Crescent Bend

[Original.]

The stage driver between Golden Gulch and Quartz City was inclined to be facetious. Beside him sat a quiet little man and on the next seat back were the rest of us, who were outside. Jake, the driver, seemed bent on scaring the little man.

"We're comin' to the most dangerous part of the road," said Jake. "Many's the coach that's gone over and down into the creek fifty feet below. The road turns sharp around, and it slants off a little so's the coach is sure to swing to the edge unless you go slow. Here we are."

There was the turn, sure enough, but instead of slowing up the driver cracked his whip about his horses' ears and went around at good speed. We on the back seat gripped at what we could and held our breaths. The little man folded his arms and bore the ordeal without flinching. After making the descent on the other side of the bend Jake looked back at us and winked, as much as to say, "I'll scare him yet." We would have protested against any more such attempts, but feared that if we showed fear the driver would be incited to still greater recklessness. We therefore held our peace.

The driver persisted in taking the outer wheels of the coach within a foot of the edge at every abyss and would look back at us, winking at the little man, who, however terrified he might have been, managed to keep from showing his terror. Once when one of us—a woman—squealed at a lurch on the very verge of a hundred feet of sheer precipice he looked back inquiringly. The woman asked Jake to be more careful, but Jake assured her that he was driving his best and was not responsible for the condition of the road. He did not mend his ways, and when driving rapidly over a place where one wheel was several feet above the other he nearly upset the coach we all joined in a request that he would cease his pranks.

It may be that Jake had a little liquor in him. At any rate, his failure to scare the little man and the effect of his "close shaves" on us irritated him. He grew sulky and kept on driving without respect to our comfort or safety. Stones or ruts or inclines only seemed to move him to shake us to the utmost. We men held our peace, fearing that if we irritated him further he would upset the coach on purpose. An inside passenger poked his head out of the window and snapped:

"What's the matter with the driver? Is he drunk?"

"I'll show you that he's sober enough," Jake snarled, "when we come to the Crescent bend, where there's a straight fall of 1,000 feet.

Jake made the threat in such a malicious tone that we were all in terror at the prospect. The little man beside the driver, though he showed no sign of fear, we believed was more frightened than any of us, for he made no protest. Presently we came to a pitch in the road requiring all a driver's skill and caution, down which Jake plunged without even applying the brake. The women both outside and inside kept up a continued shrieking, and by the time we reached the bottom of the declivity one of those outside fainted. The little man looked around and asked what was the matter. There was a babel of voices, some swearing at the driver, some beseeching him, all in a tumult of indignation.

"Do I understand," said the little man, "that you object to this kind of driving?"

There was a universal shout that we did.

"Why didn't you apply to me? Driver, you needn't do any more funny business."

"What kind of a tenderfoot are you," growled Jake, "to interfere with the driver of this coach? Git up!"

The next thing to arrest our attention was the little man holding a revolver nearly as big as himself pressed against Jake's left ear. Jake felt the cold steel and made no movement except to draw rein.

"Is this the Crescent bend we're coming to?" asked the little man.

Jake muttered that it was. When we reached a point near the center of the bend, coming to a tree growing on the very verge of the precipice, the little man in the same soft voice he had used from the first directed Jake to come to a full stop, to tie the reins to the brake handle and to get down from the box. The little man got down after him, keeping the revolver in position, and on reaching the road relieved Jake of a revolver. He then drove the ruffian to the boot of the coach and ordered him to take out a rope.

"What y' goin' to do?" asked the terrified Jake.

"I'm going to show you how it feels to dangle over the cliff."

While the little man covered the driver he ordered one of the passengers to fix the rope to an overhanging branch, and, tying the other end to Jake's belt, he drove him at the point of the gun over the abyss. There he swung with 1,000 feet of atmosphere between him and the creek below.

"How does it feel?" asked the little man.

"It makes me feel sick," said Jake, his face white as chalk.

"Does it make you feel repentant?"

"Yes."

"Well, we'll let the horses breathe awhile, and in the meantime I'll consider whether it'll be better to feed you to the birds or take you in."

Jake was kept dangling a full half hour, during which he pleaded that his belt was giving w[illegible] then was taken in and drove the rest of the way with the utmost caution.

Flight of Eagles To Worcester

John Adams aerie 1180 of the Fraternal Order of Eagles made a neat and attractive appearance this morning previous to their flight to Worcester where the order is holding its annual field day.

The members turned out in large numbers, and were arrayed in white. The outing shirts had blue trimmings and a blue tie and badge and red belt set them off. Canes should not be overlooked, for each member carried one.

Headed by a drum major and drum corps, with a flag and banner flying, the aerie marched through Washington, Elm, Hancock and other streets previous to their departure about 8 A. M.

The convention of delegates opened at Worcester on Wednesday when Martin F. Carney of Watham was elected president.

In the evening there was a contest for degree teams in Mechanics hall, when the honors went to Salem and New Haven.

Later there was a banquet at the Bay State house.

Today there will be a series of sports for which valuable prizes are offered.

TO REPUBLICANS:

We are anxious to have every Republican in close touch, and working in harmony with the Republican National Congressional Committee in favor of the election of a Republican Congress.

The Congressional campaign must be based on the administrative and legislative record of the party, and, that being so, Theodore Roosevelt's personality must be a central figure and his achievements a central thought in the campaign.

We desire to maintain the work of this campaign with popular subscriptions of One Dollar each from Republicans. To each subscriber we will send the Republican National Campaign Text Book and all documents issued by the Committee.

Help us achieve a great victory.

ROCKEFELLER TRIP STORIES

Novel Incidents of the Oil King's European Tour.

Dr. H. F. Biggar, the family physician, who accompanied John D. Rockefeller abroad, says Mr. Rockefeller was greatly benefited physically by his recent European trip.

"Mr. Rockefeller showed himself to the people of France as the quiet, good natured man that he is," said Dr. Biggar to a Cleveland (O.) correspondent of the New York Times. "While there he went about the streets a great deal. Every one learned to recognize him. He had a warm handshake for all whom he met."

Dr. Biggar told several anecdotes of the trip. On one occasion, he said, while the party was stopping at Compeigne, Mr. Rockefeller expressed a desire to inspect the markets. Accordingly a trip was planned for the next morning at 11 o'clock. The mayor of the town and several officials planned to make it quite a formal occasion. When the party formed the next day there was no Mr. Rockefeller. As the leaders were hurriedly dispatching messengers in every direction the guest of honor was discovered coming up the street with a market basket under his arm. He had been investigating the markets on his own account for several hours and had brought back considerable green stuff, which formed part of the dinner given to the mayor's party. Mr. Rockefeller started on his expedition at 7 o'clock in the morning, before the mayor was up.

On the occasion of their visit to the government forests he frightened the members of his party by disappearing. It was thought that he was lost. In a few minutes he was found questioning one of the peasants in regard to his knowledge of forestry. "Might come handy at Forest Hill," he is said to have remarked, jocularly. He seemed surprised at the alarm of the party over his absence.

Not a day passed, according to Dr. Biggar, without the familiar sight of the millionaire oil man walking the decks with some child friend whom he had met on shipboard.

Dr. Biggar said that Mr. Rockefeller's friendship for children led to another pleasant incident of his European trip. While the party was stopping at a little town on the way to Compeigne, Mr. Rockefeller made his first hit with the French peasantry. When he reached the town he made friends with a baby which was perched in the middle of a big chair in the reception room of the little tavern.

Rockefeller neglected such minor details as seeing to his quarters in playing with the youngster. It belonged to the concierge. The baby was just old enough to prattle a little French. Mr. Rockefeller taught it to say a few simple English words. It was a fine day and the baby soon grew tired of instruction. Accordingly the citizens of the town were soon startled by the sight of the concierge's baby being wheeled about in a little gocart. After a short jaunt about the streets Mr. Rockefeller and his charge returned.

HUGE POSTAL CARD.

Head of Armour Postal Department Receives Record Souvenir.

Mr. and Mrs. John Forsyth, who recently arrived at New York on the Teutonic, received the largest postal card ever sent through the mails, says the New York Globe.

"Uncle" Forsyth is the head of the Armour postal department, and he and his wife went abroad three months ago on his first vacation in twenty years. The postal measured 2 by 3 feet, was of heavy cardboard and was sent by Mr. Forsyth's fellow employees, who paid $1.04 to put it in the mail.

On one side was a small picture of a boat, with "Aunt" and "Uncle" standing in the bow. Below was the address. On the other side was printed "Welcome home," the entire side being covered by signatures and good wishes. Mr. Forsyth will have it framed.

"Trousers Optional."

The dispatch that tells us that London society men will wear blue evening coats this season goes on to say, "Trousers or knee breeches will be optional." It seems, says the Boston Globe, as if one or the other were essential.

The News From Peterhof.

What's the news from Peterhof—from quiet little Peterhof,
From peaceful little Peterhof, where
Nicholas resides?
What's the double guard about? And what's the fighting hard about?
And what's the bloody yard about?
And what's the row besides?

Douma, eh? D'ye mean to say he's knocked it in the head?
Freedom, eh? D'ye mean to say the parliament has fled?
Nicholas, proud Nicholas, what dreams are in your head?

What's the news from Peterhof—from restful little Peterhof,
From sweet, Edenic Peterhof, where
Nicholas retires?
What's the din and roar about? And what's the bolted door about?
And what's the running gore about?
And what are all the fires?

Joking, eh? D'ye mean to say he's canceled all he said?
Joshing, eh? D'ye mean to say it wasn't on the dead?
Nicholas, weak Nicholas, what folly's in your head?

What's the news from Peterhof—from cozy little Peterhof,
From soothing little Peterhof, of which we've often read?
Whose corse is that upon his shield?
What man is that the Cossack steeled?
And why is Nicholas concealed in underneath his bed?

Fighting, eh? D'ye mean to say he's willed that blood be shed?
Riots, eh? D'ye mean to say the hope for peace is dead?
Nicholas, fool Nicholas, how cheap you hold your head!

—Clark McAdam in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Two Types of Biographical Writing.

It is an interesting fact in the history of literary genres that two of the great examples of biographical writing occur almost side by side. Less than a decade separates the completion of Johnson's "Lives of the Poets" from the publication of his own life by Boswell. Yet with the latter book a new type of biography came into being. Johnson, in the main, had, like most of his predecessors, followed a simple narrative and expository method, prefixing a plain story of the poet's life to a systematic account of his character and a critical estimate of his works. He gathered his facts and impressions together and spoke for the author and for himself. Boswell, on the other hand, making use of a more dramatic method, succeeded in his attempt to let the author reveal himself, and, instead of an exposition of character, painted a picture of personality to which his own comments were subordinate. What we see as a type of mind and character in Johnson's work we see as a living man in Boswell.—William T. Brewster in Forum.

Wise Girl.

Now, there was a certain girl, and she had three wooers. The first wooer said she was the whole world to him, but she frowned upon his suit. The second wooer said she was the sun, moon and stars to him, but she bade him be on his way.

"To me," said the third, "you are a young woman of agreeable manners, with eyes that might be a little bluer, with a nose that is a wee bit puggy and with a few freckles and an annoying habit of blurting out your thoughts."

She married the third wooer. Being pressed for an explanation of her conduct, she said:

"My goodness! I think I was sensible. I married the only one that had courage enough to tell me of my faults before marriage, instead of waiting to throw them up to me afterward."—Life.

Slashing of Salads.

Too many people who are well bred in nearly every other respect are guilty of the solecism—to call it by the mildest name—of cutting up their salad on the plate. Of course salad has sometimes to be reduced to lower dimensions, so to speak, but it need not be done by the wholesale or quite in the businesslike fashion practiced by some. Grasping a knife in one hand and a fork in the other, they slash away at the inoffensive green stuff with a vigor and a noise of a miniature mowing machine until the bruised leaves are converted into shreds of their former selves. There is common sense in the convention that prohibits such a course. Nearly all green salads are broken into pieces of convenient size before sending to the table. Even when these are too large the leaf should be quietly divided with a fork.

Famous Boys.

A boy used to crush the flowers to get their color and painted the white side of his father's cottage in Tyrol with all sorts of pictures, which the mountaineer gazed at as wonderful. He was the great artist Titian.

An old painter watched a little fellow who amused himself making drawings of his pot and brushes, easel and stool, and said, "That boy will beat me some day." So he did, for he was Michael Angelo.

A German boy was reading a blood and thunder novel. Right in the midst of it he said to himself: "Now this will never do. I get too much excited over it. I can't study so well after it. So here goes!" And he flung the book out into the river. He was Fichte, the great German philosopher.

Monkeys Have No Fleas.

It is curious that monkeys should be thought to be infested with what naturalists call the Pulex irritans and what ordinary people know as the flea. As every zoologist is aware, monkeys have neither fleas nor any other parasite whatsoever, in which of course they differ vastly from man. As a matter of fact, when monkeys begin to pick each other about in the friendly way we have all observed they merely detach bits of hardened sebaceous matter which has been excreted by the glands, and the flea idea is entirely fabulous.

Her Sun Spots.

Sir Robert Ball on one occasion, after delivering a lecture on "Sun Spots and Solar Chemistry," met a young lady who expressed her regret that she had missed hearing him on the previous evening. "Well, you see," he said, "I don't know that it would have interested you particularly, as it was all about sun spots." "Why," she replied, "it would have interested me extremely, for I have been a martyr to freckles all my life."

Two Epitaphs.

An epitaph from a cemetery in Bridgton, Me.:

She was—words are too feeble to tell what.
Think what a wife should be;
She was all that.

This from Bar Harbor, Me.:

I reach my arms out fondly,
But they clasp the open air.
There is nothing of my darling
But the shoes he used to wear.

The Good and Beautiful.

To see the good and the beautiful and to have no strength to live it is only to be Moses on the mountain of Nebo, with the land at your feet and no power to enter. It would be better not to see it.—Olive Schreiner.

Cheerful.

Hook—Jones is the most melancholy fellow I know. Rook—I should think so, indeed. He proposed to a girl once by asking her how she would like to be his widow.

Your Sick Child

can't tell you what it has or how it feels—it only shows it is sick and miserable. If it is restless and peevish, doesn't sleep well, has pains in the stomach and bowels or has an erratic appetite the trouble undoubtedly is stomach or pin worms. Give the little one a few doses of that famous old life saver

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

IN USE 54 YEARS.

If worms are present they will be expelled. If no worms exist this wonderful medicine acts gently, yet positively, in toning up the whole system to rugged health.

CENTRE ABINGTON, MASS.

DR. TRUE.

DEAR SIR:—I wish to inform you of the success I have had in using your Elixir. I gave it to my children and after the third dose, one of them, a boy six years old, passed a long round worm which I believe is more than six inches long, what you call a stomach worm. I also wish to say it is one of the safest and best medicines to have in the house for children. I would not be without it now. Sincerely yours,

Second Again

This Time However Our Challenger Outsails the Cup Defender

The Sally VIII came to the front in the Sonder Klasse class at the Corinthian race at Marblehead on Thursday but the Auk from Quincy pushed her hard and finished only 55 seconds behind. The fact that the Auk outsailed the Manchester, which is the Quincy cup defender, is pleasing to members of the Quincy Yacht club. Nine boats started in the class. The first leg was a beat and the Auk turned first. On the spinnaker run to the second mark she dropped to fourth place, but on the run home she passed the Manchester and Sumatra. The time was as follows:

SONDER KLASSE.

	Actual Time.
Sally VIII, L. F. Percival	2 29 13
Auk, Charles Francis Adams, 2d.	2 30 08
Manchester, Dr. J. L. Bremer	2 30 37

Mrs. Hamilton Devoted to Home

Mrs. Jeanie W. Hamilton, the beloved wife of John Y. Hamilton of Hollis avenue, departed this life Sunday night last. She was a faithful and devoted mother, her home life being her whole life. The writer remembers with pleasure the happiness and joy that shone in her countenance every time he visited the Hamilton household and talked about the two children. Mrs. Hamilton's life was given for her family. She would do nothing for herself for fear that she might be separated from those she loved dearly. Her neglect of her own person was the real cause of her early death. She deserves to be longed for by those she nourished and brought up, and the husband of such a wife can never find sufficient solace in the fact that many are left in an equally trying position.

There was a short service held at the house Wednesday morning. The body was taken to Clinton, Mass., Mr. Hamilton's boyhood home, and buried from the Church of the Good Shepherd, the Rev. James Sheerin conducting the service. May the remaining ones find peace and joy in the sure knowledge of her rights to Heaven's best reward.

Must Vacate.

The Board of Health has ordered the houses at 78 and 82 Union street, occupied by Italian families, to be vacated within six days on account of the filthy condition of the premises, and the unsanitary condition of the houses, the stench from these houses has been a source of annoyance to the neighborhood for a long time. As soon as vacated the houses will be plumbed and connected with the sewer.

Football League.

Sunday is the date for the annual meeting of the Merrimack Valley football league, and an effort will be made to organize a State association. Applications have been received for membership from 25 clubs. Thomas Barker, for many years secretary of the league, finds it necessary to resign, and there are many candidates for the position.

Have the Daily Ledger sent to your out-of-town vacation address.

A Candidate For Lieutenant

Ensign John Downs, Jr., a son of Lieut. Downs of the National Sailors Home, left Thursday for Washington to take examinations for promotion to the grade of lieutenant in the navy. If successful in his examinations he will receive official notice of his advancement and be assigned to Camden, N. J., aboard the armored cruiser Washington, which will go into commission in a few days.

He has served on the gunboat Nashville and has been in the service for five years. He is a member of a family whose name has been conspicuous in the navy for several generations. He was appointed to the naval academy in 1897 by President McKinley.

His great-grandfather was a commodore in the early days of the American navy, and was at one time in command at the Charlestown navy yard. His grandfather commanded the monitor Nahant during the Civil war.

His father was also in the navy, and in 1893, owing to a disability incurred in the service, he was placed on the retired list. Ensign Downs after graduation from the naval academy served on the cruiser San Francisco.

Old Home Week.

The reunion of the Weymouth High school graduates on Thursday at South Weymouth, was a great success, and is a good way for any town to observe one day of Old Home week.

President Bates Torrey welcomed those who assembled. The speakers were Charles J. Lincoln of Dorchester, a graduate of 1861, Representative George L. Barnes, Mrs. Mary A. Holbrook, Edwin R. Sampson, Henry B. Reed and John J. Loud. There was also a musical program. In the evening there was a concert and dance.

To the Lover of Good Coffee

We have installed a new Royal Electric Coffee Mill which is equipped with cutters which cut the berry into uniform particles (instead of grinding it). Thus it is not crushed as by the old method, and the little oil cells remain unbroken. The essential oil (food product) cannot evaporate and is preserved indefinitely.

This is one reason why a pound of coffee cut in this mill will make from fifteen to twenty cups more of full strength coffee than will any coffee ground the old way. One feature about this mill is that you can have your coffee cut as fine as the finest sand, and it will still be free from that fine dust that is produced by the old method of grinding, therefore you will always have a clear cup of coffee, instead of the muddy effect which is the result of the old way of grinding.

When you see this mill in a dealer's store you can rest assured that he is trying to have you get the best results obtainable from your coffee.

Royal Cut Coffee is Especially Adaptable for Percolators or French Drip Coffee Pots.

Try a pound of our Coffee Cut on a Royal Mill and we know you will be pleased with the results.

Houghs Neck

Burglary Reported. Boy in a Predicament. New Arrivals

Word was telephoned to the Police station this morning that sometime during Thursday night the Florence cottage at the corner of Center road and Rogers street had been entered and $25 in money taken. The cottage is occupied by Mrs. Thompson and family.

Peter Mc Gaffigan, aged 4 years, of 11 Darling street, Roxbury, had a narrow escape at Houghs Neck on Thursday. The little fellow with his parents was visiting at the Magnolia cottage for the day. In the afternoon he wandered onto the flats near the Fensmere and got stuck in a mud hole. He was slowly sinking, and had gone down to his hips, when his 11 year old sister Margaret heard his cries and rushed to his rescue. She also sank in the mud but succeeded in getting her brother out.

There are more people at the beach this year than ever before. All the cottages have been let, and the real estate men report that they have to turn away applicants daily.

The Midland hotel is to be floated across the bay to Nantasket the coming winter.

Austin Baker has gone to Brant Rock for a few days' visit.

Albert Johnson and family of Roslindale are in the After Cabin cottage on Centre road.

John J. O'Connell of Milton is at the Fleur de Lis cottage on Charles street.

Fred B. Smith and family of West Roxbury are in the Sunlight.

Kenney Chisholm of Everett, and family, are in the Philedian cottage on Prospect avenue.

J. F. Kettell and family of Boston are in the Weston cottage on Charles street for the month of August.

Samuel B. Hart of Dorchester has taken the Bay Cliff cottage for the month.

Mrs. Charles McCarthy of Roxbury is at the Doris cottage on Centre road.

W. H. McDonnell of Roxbury is at the Happy Thought cottage on Centre road for the balance of the season.

John J. Donovan of Dorchester has purchased the Ruth cottage on Manet avenue, and is occupying it with his family.

Joseph Hart of Hyde Park with family are at the Unity cottage on Center road.

Alonzo Gavin of Brockton is at his cottage on Rogers street.

John J. Nyhan of Brockton is at the Pleasant View cottage on Center road.

William George and family of Roslindale are at the Moffitt cottage on Darrow street.

John Brant of East Boston and family are at the Jones cottage on Turner street.

Ex-Representative John P. Lanegan of Ward 17 Boston is at the Merrimac cottage on Rogers street.

Lester C. Adams of Boston is at the Marjorie on Charles street.

German Trial Races.

The trial races for the Sonder Klasse boats off Marblehead, Aug. 13-17, are to be started at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, instead of at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon, as originally intended. Official details were given out last night by the regatta committee of the Eastern Yacht club.

There are to be two courses for the races designated as Course S and Course T, respectively. The starting line and finish line for each will be between a white flag on the committee steamer and a flag buoy, anchored about one-half mile southeast of Halfway Rock; in starting and finishing, the flag buoy is to be left to the southward and eastward.

Course S will be from the starting line, to and around a mark six miles to windward or leeward and return, leaving the mark on the starboard hand. Course T will be from the starting line, five miles to and around a mark, thence five miles to and around a second mark, thence five miles to the finish line.

—The Lawrence gas company has promised Mayor Kane that the city shall have gas at 95 cents on Oct. 1.

Bicyclist Runover By Automobile

Gordon Rowe, aged about 9 years, a son of William E. Rowe of 132 Winthrop avenue, Wollaston, and a student at the Wollaston school, was run over by an automobile on Hancock street, Thursday afternoon, and severely injured.

The young man who was riding a bicycle, attempted to cross the car tracks near the residence of Dr. Gordon to avoid an approaching car. As he did so his wheel slipped on the mud and he was thrown directly in front of an approaching automobile. Before the driver could stop his car it struck the boy and passed over him.

In passing over him the boy's arm caught in the gear chain and was badly scraped. His right leg was also broken near the hip and he was severely bruised. The driver of the automobile stopped the car as soon as possible, and the boy was taken to the office of Dr. Gordon where his injuries were attended by Dr. Gordon and Dr. Burke.

After having his injuries dressed he was taken to his home in Hall's ambulance. The automobile was numbered 14,076.

The Eagles At Worcester

Twenty-three aeries participated in the parade of the Eagles at Worcester on Thursday, accompanied by 16 bands, several drum corps, 10 floats and tally-ho coaches. Although the Quincy aeries made an attractive appearance in their white suits they were not in it with the Providence aerie which turned out 500 strong in new cream flannel suits and won the $100 prize. The same aerie was also awarded $50 for the cleverest float, a representation of the landing of Roger Williams.

Gov. Guild and staff, Mayor Duggan and others viewed the parade. The prizes for sports were largely won by professionals.

MANY SUDDEN DEATHS

From Poisonous Rheumatism.

The Disease Has Its Dangers—Should Be Taken in Time.

Rheumatism has long been regarded as a trouble which, while it might be painful, was not necessarily dangerous. Very few persons, it was thought, ever died from Rheumatism. Recent investigation among scientists has proved, however, the utter fallacy of such a belief. Three-fourths to seven-eights of the sudden deaths, heart failures, etc., are due primarily to neglected rheumatism. The Rheumatic Acid Poison is allowed to stay in the system until suddenly one day it grips the muscles of the heart and all is over.

Rheumatism is curable if the proper treatment is used. Liniments, plasters and all local applications may relieve the pain for a short time, but no one ever heard of their permanently curing a case of rheumatism. The only way to cure Rheumatism is the Uric-O way. Neutralize the Rheumatic acid and drive it from the system. That is what Uric-O does. No matter what is the kind or character of the Rheumatism, it is all caused by the same Rheumatic poison. Lumbago, Muscular or Articular Rheumatism yields at once to Uric-O. The store of E. J. Murphy is the home of Uric-O in Quincy, and he can tell you all about its wonderful virtues and the many cures it has made right here in your own city. It sells for 75c. and $1.00 a bottle. If you wish to test Uric-O before purchasing, a letter to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., will bring you a trial bottle free of all charges.

Outing of Granite Manufacturers

The annual dinner and outing of the association will be held Saturday at the Rockland house, Nantasket Beach. Arrangements have been made with the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and a train with three special cars attached will stop at Quincy at 10 A. M. and at Quincy Adams at 10.02 A. M. Tickets for this part of the trip will be furnished on the train.

A committee on sports has arranged to entertain the party on the grounds in front of the Rockland house and at 12 o'clock there will be a ball game between nines composed of members and their sons. Dinner will be served promptly at 2 o'clock.

The outing promises to be one of their best, as dinner will be served at the Rockland House. The committee have done all in their power to make it a success and it only remains for the members to lay aside care and stone dust for the day to make it enjoyable.

The committee contemplated having three special electric cars to convey the party, but this was abandoned because of price, and President Miller had to hustle to make arrangements with the New Haven road, which will give the party three special cars. All members and invited guests will have free transportation.

Merrymounts—Braintree.

The Merrymounts will go to Braintree on Saturday for the second game of the series with the strong Braintree aggregation. The Braintree games are always exciting and a large crowd of rooters are going along to encourage the locals. The game takes place on French's common, South Braintree, at 3.30 o'clock.

Secret Drawer.

In the old Gen. Lincoln house at Hingham where Lafayette was once entertained, a secret drawer was discovered on Thursday in an old desk. It contained a lot of old coin, which the finder sold for $10.

Brakeman Killed.

G. C. Morrell, a brakeman, was killed at Braintree on Thursday. His body was found beside the railroad track near Union street early in the morning. He was about 30 years of age and leaves a widow. The body was taken to Fay's Uudertaking rooms at Quincy.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Evidently the taxpayers of the city must take more interest in city affairs with a view to reducing the tax rate. Only twice in the 115 years of Quincy's history has the tax rate been higher than this year,—$19.20 in 1899, and $18.80 in 1897. A rate of $18.60 is high for a city; in fact the highest that has come to the notice of the Daily Ledger this year. None of these are larger than last year but six of the seven have lower rates, viz:

Four of the cities, like Quincy, are in the Metropolitan district, so that the assessments levied cannot be held responsible for the increase. The State and County taxes and Metropolitan assessments upon Quincy this year are but $4,052.83 more than last year, but the current expenses of the city, including interest and $6,000.00 for sewers, are $29,712.35 larger. The maturing city debt is but $1,728 larger.

Principal Assessor Johnson furnishes the following summary showing at a glance the changes in the items which make up the tax levy for 1906. There are two new items, and more increases than decreases.

The Daily Ledger finds the increase in appropriations by the city and the increase in interest are the main causes for the increase in tax rate. At the same time the city has in 18 years accumulated a debt of over $1,700,000. It was $1,740,330 on Jan. 1 last according to the Mayor's inaugural address, and is now larger.

Thus the city has increased it mortgage about $100,000 per year, and it would require a special tax of over $60 per $1,000 valuation to cancel the debt. An effort should be made to reduce the debt and interest, as well as the appropriations and tax rate.

Just think of it, you can go away to Revere beach from Quincy for 15 cents. Three five cent fares will take you comfortably, or you can go by train—9 cents to Boston and 5 cents on ferry and train right to the beach. To go to Nantasket, which is close by, costs 25 cents from Boston and 20 cents from any part of Quincy. It looks as though it was cheaper to travel in almost any direction out of Boston, than toward the South Shore. The fare to Nantasket is too much.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, in buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. BULLETS FOR TWO

Youthful Lover Kills Sweetheart and Takes Own Life

TRAGEDY UNEXPECTED

Probably Due to Girl's Refusal to Leave Home--Shooting Followed Argument of but a Few Minutes' Duration

Kingston, Mass., Aug. 3.—Remado Zecchi, 21 years old, shot and fatally wounded his sweetheart, Avelina Vezzana, 18 years old, in the kitchen of the house of her father last evening, after which Zecchi fired a shot into his neck, leaped through a window, ran down a steep hill into some woods, where he fired another shot into his temple and fell dead.

Both the Vezzana girl and Zecchi had recently arrived here from Italy and found work in this vicinity, the former at the Puritan woolen mills and the latter at the Plymouth Cordage company. Up to a few minutes before the shooting occurred the two were apparently on the best of terms. Zecchi was trying to persuade the girl to go to New York with him on Saturday. It is believed that her persistent refusal led her lover to commit the deed.

Zecchi and the Vezzana girl went to Seaside yesterday with another Italian named Alfredo and a woman whose name is not known. Both of the latter came from New York. The quartet returned to Kingston in the evening and all went to the Vezzana house, where they learned that the family, consisting of the girl's parents and her four brothers and four sisters, were away.

A few minutes after arriving there, Zecchi began to urge the girl to go with him to New York, but she refused. The pair went into the kitchen, where the arguments continued, but no high words were heard. Suddenly those in the front room were startled by two shots fired in rapid succession, followed by another and then by the crash of breaking glass.

They rushed out and found Miss Vezzana lying on the floor, bleeding profusely from wounds in the arm and breast. The entire window looking out toward a back street was torn out and, looking through it, Zecchi was seen running down the hill leading to the woods. A few moments after he disappeared another shot was heard.

A doctor was sent for and it was found that one of the bullets had passed through the girl's left arm and that the other had entered her breast near the heart. No hope was given of her recovery.

On going to the back of the house, Zecchi's footsteps could be seen and his long strides down the hill were plainly evident. On reaching the clump of woods his body was found within a few feet of the street, the last shot having ended his life, according to the doctors, almost instantly.

Disasters In Northern Waters

St. Johns, Aug. 3.—Steamer Cyril, which went ashore on Cape Race, is a hopeless wreck. She crossed half a mile off shoal water before lodging fast and tore nearly the whole bottom out. Schooner Stella struck an iceberg in Bell Isle strait and sank. The crew, with the captain's two daughters, barely escaped. Schooner Yvonette was abandoned off St. Pierre Wednesday. The crew rowed 50 miles to land.

Rioters Subdued by Police

Detroit, Aug. 3.—After repeated charges with drawn revolvers, the police successfully put down a riot of strikers and strike sympathizers at the Ideal Manufacturing company's plant. A riot alarm called out reserves when the crowd begun to roughly handle some of the officers. The trouble arose from the alleged assault by strikers upon a negro employe of the company. Eighteen arrests were made.

Shift of Army Officers

Washington, Aug. 3.—Brigadier General Mills, commandant of the military academy, has been formally ordered by the war department to proceed to the Philippine islands, where he will relieve Brigadier General Edgerly, in command of Fort William McKinley. Edgerly is ordered to San Francisco, where he is to report to the department for further orders.

Eagles' Gathering at Worcester

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 3.—Five thousand members of the Order of Eagles from many parts of New England took part in a parade and field day exercises here. The prize for the best appearance in the parade was awarded to the Providence aerie. Field day sports were held and there was an entertainment for the visiting Eagles at Lake Quinsigamond.

Nine Knots an Hour Under Water

Kiel, Aug. 3.—A submarine boat, constructed by Mont Justin, at Krupp's Germania works, was launched yesterday. The boat displaces 180 tons, has a surface speed of 12 knots and a speed of nine knots below the surface. Her engines are driven by electric motors and she will carry a crew of from 12 to 16 men.

Living In Coral Houses.

The church built of coral is one of the curiosities of the Isle of Mahe, one of the Seychelles islands, in the Indian ocean. The Seychelles islands, which are supposed by many to be the site of the Eden of the Old Testament, form an archipelago of 114 islands and are situated about 1,400 miles east of Aden and 1,000 miles of Zanzibar. They rise steeply out of the sea, culminating in the Isle of Mahe, which is about 3,000 feet above the level of the ocean and is nearly the center of the group. All these islands are of coral growth. The houses are built of a species of massive coral hewed into square blocks, which glisten like white marble and show themselves to the utmost advantage in the various tinted green of the thick tropical palms, whose immense fernlike leaves give pleasant and much needed shade. These palms grow as high as 100 feet or more, overtopping both the houses and the coral built church. They line the seashore and cover the mountains, forming in many places extensive forests.

The Boring of Glass.

Strong glass plates are bored through by means of rotating brass tubes of the necessary diameter, which are filled with water during boring. To the water there is added finely pulverized emery. It is said that thinner glass can be perforated with holes in an easier manner by pressing a disk of wet clay upon the glass and making a hole through the clay of the widths desired, so that at that spot the glass is laid bare. Then molten lead is poured into the hole, and lead and glass drop down at once. This method is based upon the quick local heating of the glass, whereby it obtains a circular crack, the outline of which corresponds to the outline of the hole made in the clay. The cutting of glass tubes, cylinders, etc., in factories is based upon the same principle.

Moderation In Exercise.

It is better to be lazy than dead, and it is probably just as comfortable. For obvious reasons the prescription to take moderate exercise is misleading and unsatisfactory. Most of us are constitutionally incapable of exercising moderately. We begin violently and end quickly. And what is moderate exercise? One philosopher who tried it for twenty years arrived at this conclusion: "Keep a pair of Indian clubs in your bedroom. Look at them frequently. Exercise by their suggestion." This has the merit of moderation. It is the same as to walking. Smell the morning, look down the long way that separates you from your business. Then take a car.—Detroit Free Press.

Anticipating Him.

"Katharine," said Bob as he brought his club chums down to the depot platform, "these are all my friends."

"Glad to meet you, gentlemen," replied the bride sweetly, "and I am so sorry that you are going to be sick."

"Sick?" echoed the crowd in astonishment. "Why should you think we are going to be sick?"

"Oh, because soon after the honeymoon a married man always finds a great many sick friends to sit up with."—Columbus Dispatch.

Not of Much Account.

The lord chief justice of England used to sing in the choir of a parish church. A woman once asked the verger to point out Sir Richard Webster as he then was. The verger replied, "Well, ma'am, that's the vicar and them's the curates and I'm the verger, but as for the choir, as long as they does their dooty we don't inquire into their hantecedents!"

Stupid.

"I wish I was half as beautiful as Miss Brown," remarked the fair Edith to Mr. Green.

"Well, you are, you know," replied Green, thoughtlessly.

Then he wondered why she suddenly rose and left him.

BRYAN ENDORSED

Choice of Michigan Democrats For Presidential Nomination

HIS LEADERSHIP NEEDED

Claim That He Would Bring Relief From Ills That Are Attributed to the Republicans--Kimmerle Named For Governor.

Detroit, Aug. 3.—Endorsement of William J. Bryan for president in 1908, the defeat of a resolution calling upon the national Democratic committee to investigate the charges made against National Chairman Taggart and demand his resignation if they were proved, and the nomination of Charles H. Kimmerle for governor over Stanley E. Parkhill, the only other candidate, after a spirited ballot, were the features of the Democratic state convention held here.

In the contest for the nomination for the governorship Parkhill drew unexpected support in the early balloting and until Wayne cast its 130 votes for Kimmerle the result was in doubt. Wayne's vote gave Kimmerle the head of the ticket and Parkhill immediately moved that his nomination be made unanimous. There was no contest for any other office.

The resolutions say:

"Evils under the form of combinations and trusts, which have so shocked the moral conscience of the nation in the last few years, are a direct outcome of class legislation by the Republican party conferring privileges upon corporations at the expense of the common people. A continuance of such legislation is now threatened by the many bills of like character, as, for instance the ship subsidy bill, and inadequate remedial laws, enacted by the recent congress, showing that there is no honest purpose on the part of the Republican party to relieve the people from the evils thus cast upon them by this unjust legislation. Their affiliations with the classes thus favored make it absolutely impossible to obtain relief from Republican sources.

The platform then cites the rejection of the propositions of Senator Lafollette with regard to railroad legislation as proof of these assertions. The endorsement of Bryan is as follows:

"Fully believing in the honesty, integrity and wisdom of William Jennings Bryan, and that under his leadership the people would receive relief from the many ills above referred to, we commend him to the people of the United States as a candidate for president in 1908."

The resolutions further favor the nomination of all candidates by direct vote, nomination and election of United States senators by direct vote, and enactment of laws making it a criminal offense for members of the legislature to accept railroad passes.

Ohio Prohibitionists' Ideas

Columbus, O., Aug. 3.—In state convention here the Prohibitionists divorced their party from other temperance organizations, condemned the Aiken $1000 saloon tax law as vicious in principle and powerless as a remedy, and adopted a platform declaring for direct legislation, woman suffrage, international arbitration, election of United States senators by direct vote, and a more rigid bank inspection. It was declared that the liquor traffic can only be curbed by a party organized for the one purpose.

Bryan's Election Predicted

Minot, N. D., Aug. 3.—W. J. Bryan was unanimously endorsed for president by the Democratic state convention. The Nebraskan was called the greatest friend of the working people, and his election was predicted. The resolutions condemned the Republican platform as a mass of meaningless generalities and the controlling faction in the party as corporation representatives.

Investigation In the Philippines

Washington, Aug. 3.—An investigation of alleged irregularities in the Philippine islands is now being conducted, the inquiry being in charge of Colonel Wood, inspector general. The war department has made a special detail of officers familiar with methods of business and conditions in the Philippines to assist Wood. No result has yet been reported to the department.

Second Advance In Price of Meat

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Meat prices are again soaring in Chicago. Following raises in Kansas City and Omaha retailers announced another increase in all choice cuts of beef, lamb and pork. This is the second advance in price in Chicago in the last two months and the net increase in the cost of meats in that time is about 10 percent.

SAYS SHE WAS DRUGGED

Young Woman Tells Wierd Story of Alleged Experience

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 3.—A story related to the police by Miss Josie McTaggart, 18 years old, of prepossessing appearance, led the police to take into custody William T. Manchester of this city. Miss McTaggart disappeared from the home of her uncle, George H. Hall, and was found in a semi-conscious condition lying in the shrubbery at Fort Hill park.

Physicians who examined the young woman said they found no indications that she had been attacked, though they desired that their report be considered as incomplete. In a statement made to newspaper men, Miss McTaggart said that while she was on her way to work Wednesday noon two men forced her into a carriage at the corner of Middlesex and Central streets, in spite of the fact that the street was crowded with people and the men were strangers to her. She said they then drove away, forcing whisky down her throat until she became unconscious. When she regained consciousness yesterday afternoon she said she was at Fort Hill park. The alleged attack by Manchester took place after that, according to Miss McTaggart. She said that Manchester was known to her by sight and that he was not one of the men in the carriage.

Manchester denies any connection with the affair and says that he can easily prove an alibi. Miss McTaggart came to Lowell four months ago from Brooks, Me., where her parents live.

Crazed by Son's Death

Bath, Me., Aug. 3.—Crazed with grief by news of the death by drowning of their 12-year-old son, Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice W. Weinblatt were with difficulty restrained from ending their lives. They rushed to the wharf, from which their son had fallen while climbing from one wharf to another, and would have jumped overboard had they had been held back. Weinblatt was taken to a hospital for treatment. No serious results are expected.

Killed by Electric Light Wire

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 3.—Martin McNulty, aged 21, fell from an abutment of a railroad bridge, 15 feet, striking on a curbstone in River street, late last night, dying instantly. He was seen sitting on the abutment, holding onto a telephone wire, before he fell. Medical Examiner Lyons examined the body and said McNulty was electrocuted. The wire McNulty caught hold of was an electric light wire, carrying a current of 2300 volts.

Boston Broker a Suicide

Boston, Aug. 3.—Walter C. Hook, a broker, killed himself yesterday afternoon. Hook had been in poor health for some time. He stood before a mirror in his bedchamber and sent a bullet through his brain. He had made every preparation for his death. Wednesday night he arranged the details connected with the disposition of his estate and settled his accounts at many business houses. Hook was 50 years old.

Union President Was Discharged

Adams, Mass., Aug. 3.—The four mills of the Berkshire Cotton Manufacturing company were ordered closed last night as a result of the strike of employes, who are dissatisfied because of the refusal of the company to reinstate a discharged employe, Samuel Whittam, president of the Weavers' union. The strikers reiterate the intention to remain away from the mill until Whittam is restored to his old place.

Booty Found on Prisoners

Boston, Aug. 3.—In the arrest of George F. Murphy and Patrick E. Foley, the Boston police believe that they have captured the men who have been responsible for numerous burglaries in this city and the suburbs during the past few months. Property aggregating $2500 in value was found on their persons. This consisted principally of silverware and jewelry and was carried in little bags.

No Change at New Bedford

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 3.—No apparent progress toward a settlement of the strike of the employes of the local trolley system has been made, in spite of the conferences in which President Crapo of the trolley company and President Mahon of the Amalgamated Association of Carmen figured. The situation appears to be unchanged on both sides.

Douglas Released From Jail

Portland, Me., Aug. 3.—Boiling over with indignation because he had been jocked up in jail as the "bogus Lord Douglas," who is wanted in Asheville, N. C., to answer a bigamy charge, the real Lord Douglas was released by the Portland police department. The officers humbly apologized to Douglas for casting him in a cell for the crimes of another.

Charged With Burglaries

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Aug. 3.—Samuel Winslow of Lowell, Mass., and Paul St. Peter, a Canadian youth, who were arrested in Woodsville, N. H., and brought here charged with burglaries in Vermont, were arraigned here and remanded to jail for the next term of the superior court in default of bonds of $1000 each.

Killed Marine In Self Defense

Boston, Aug. 3.—It was learned at the Charlestown navy yard that the investigation into the death of Michael Doher, the marine who was killed by Acting Corporal Jenkins while Doher was resisting arrest, was ended last night, when the investigating board found that Jenkins acted in self-defense.

THE FIRE OF REVOLT

May Soon Spread to Corners of the Russian Empire

MUTINEERS ARE SUBDUED

Loyalty of Crews on Warships Is Questioned--Details of Uprising as Conceived by the Revolutionary Military Committee

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—Although the mutinies at Sveaborg have been quelled and the one at Cronstadt has been practically put down, the outlook is still black. The revolutionists, whose hands were suddenly forced by the premature rising at Sveaborg, are apparently undaunted at these initial reverses and intend to persist in their program of calling a general strike on Saturday or Monday.

One of the leaders of the revolutionists boasts that the word has gone forth and that the fire of revolt will spread to the corners of the empire. His closing words were: "Now watch Reval, Riga and Libau."

The mutiny on board the armored cruiser Parmyat Azova, off the Esthonian coast, is fraught with enormous possibilities. The crew of this vessel rose and killed the commander and four officers. Ambassador Meyer has received a dispatch from the American consul at Reval saying that the Pamyat Azova entered that port yesterday afternoon with the red flag at her masthead. Should this cruiser, under the flag of the mutineers, sail to the northward and appear before the main squadron in the Gulf of Finland, the loyalty of the crews of the vessels would perhaps be put to a stronger test than they could stand.

Although the admiralty claims that the squadron off Sveaborg did not waver in its allegiance, there is something mysterious about the reports of the ships' actions which warrants the suspicion that all is not right aboard. Only two ships fired on the mutineers, the others remaining on the horizon as if the admiral were not sure that they could be depended upon.

When the firing began at Cronstadt Wednesday night there ensued a wild panic in the imperial palace at Peterhof, as the palace lies under the guns of the fortress. All preparations had been made in advance to flee to Tsarskoe Selo, but the report that the czar and his family actually had fled in the middle of the night was denied later at the chancellery of the imperial household. It was explained, however, that on account of "dampness" at Peterhof arrangements had been made for the return of the imperial family to Tsarskoe Selo.

Martial law was proclaimed at Cronstadt yesterday, and all day long reinforcements landed there from the mainland. No one is permitted on the island without a pass and, although the correspondent of the press was thus equipped, he was held up and searched upon disembarking from a rowboat.

While passing the arsenal at 4 o'clock in the afternoon the correspondent heard a volley which he subsequently learned had cut short the lives of six prisoners who had been sentenced to death by a drumhead court martial. It was declared that the 300 sailors who had surrendered during the night had been shot earlier in the day, but it was impossible to obtain absolute confirmation of this statement.

Earlier accounts of the Cronstadt trouble have been largely incorrect. The mutinous sailors never went to Fort Constantine. The plan of the uprising was conceived by the revolutionary military committee. While it was executed to the letter, it failed because the information of the situation at Fort Constantine and the arsenal was faulty.

When the signal was given at 11 o'clock at night the sailors, sappers and pioneers left their barracks and divided into three groups. The mission of the first and smallest group was to kill the officers, the second was to take possession of the arsenal, and the third was to seize the fortress and the train. The train crew had agreed in advance to be ready. Revolutionaries cut the telegraph and telephone wires.

The horrible task of the first group was accomplished hurriedly, and it then joined the second group, which was already on the bridge leading to Fort Constantine. This is the only fort directly connected with the mainland, the others being on detached islands. The sentinel at Fort Constantine offered no resistance. The artillerymen remained neutral and submitted to imprisonment in the casemates.

It was at this time that the sappers and pioneers, who comprised these two groups, found themselves checkmated. The batteries of the fort are arranged in two tiers. The guns on the lower tier can be swung on an arc of 45 degrees and command only the sea, while those of the upper tier are on pivots and can be directed in any direction. The magazine, however, while containing a full supply of shells for the lower tier guns, had in it only two shells for the guns of the upper tier. When, therefore, the storming party later brought up field and machine guns, the mutineers were without the possibility of using artillery and were compelled to surrender. Their flag, inscribed with the words "land and liberty," which they had hoisted on entering the fort, was hauled down.

About 100 of the mutineers, including all the revolutionary civilians, escaped in a steamer which was lying off the port.

To the sailors, who all were practically unarmed, their carbines having been taken from the racks in their barracks by order of the commandant the day before, fell the task of capturing the arsenal. This proved easy, but to their amazement, the men found it practically empty. With the exception of a few old style guns, there was neither artillery nor ammunition to be found. The sailors then made an unsuccessful attempt to release their comrades of the seventh equipage. Then, after a hasty consultation, they decided to return to their barracks and barricade themselves.

In the meantime the loyal troops were closing in and several skirmishes had occurred. The sailors had only automatic revolvers, supplied by the revolutionaries. During these encounters most of the casualties occurred. Once the sailors were inside the barracks the loyal soldiers immediately surrounded the buildings, but it was decided to be preferable to starve them out than to compel the men of one arm of the service to fire upon their comrades of another arm.

About 300 sailors who became separated from the main body on the return march to the barracks were cut off and captured. As far as can be ascertained everything was practically over at 4 o'clock in the morning.

May Be Military Dictatorship

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—On the heels of the other bad news comes the startling statement that the czar has flatly refused to accept the conditions to which Premier Stolypin agreed in his negotiations with Count Heyden, Alexander Guchkoff, Prince Nicholas Lvoff, Paul Vinogradoff and Senator Koni for the reorganization of the cabinet. There is increasing apprehension that the czar proposes to take the final step of turning the country over to the military dictatorship of Grand Duke Nicholas. The streets of St. Petersburg again are filled with patrols.

Official Word on Salisbury Disaster

London, Aug. 3.—Presiding at the half-yearly meeting of shareholders of the London and Southwestern railway, Sir Charles Cotter said, regarding the disaster at Salisbury to the Plymouth express, resulting in the loss of over a score of lives, that the schedules allowed the trains to run through Salisbury well under 30 miles an hour, of which every engineer was aware. For some reason not ascertainable the engineer of the wrecked express ran his train at over 60 miles an hour, at which speed a disaster was inevitable.

Seaman Loses Arm and Leg

Newport, R. I., Aug. 3.—The board of inquiry appointed to investigate the collision of the battleships Illinois and Alabama last Monday night, southeast of Brenton's Reef lightship, is holding its sessions on board the Illinois. Ordinary Seaman Corbett, who was injured by the fall of a davit holding one of the boats on the Illinois, was more seriously hurt than was at first reported. One of his legs was amputated on the day following the collision, and yesterday it was found necessary to amputate an arm also.

Raid on Art Studios

New York, Aug. 3.—Upon a warrant sworn out by Anthony Comstock, secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, the studios of the Art Students' league were searched and the bookkeeper was placed under arrest. It was charged by agents of the society that the reproductions of figures in the nude, contained in the fall catalogue, which the league was about to issue, were of an immoral character. A patrol wagonload of the catalogues was seized as evidence.

Curtailment of Authority

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—The San Francisco Bulletin says that President Jordan of Leland Stanford Junior university will no longer be able to appoint and dismiss professors. The change was brought about through the passing by the board of trustees of a resolution under which Jordan resigns both his power of appointment and dismissal.

A BLUFF

[Original.]

Raymond Springer was well named. He was a sprightly young fellow, who did not propose to wait for affairs to take their natural course. He did propose to be up and doing, with a view to forcing circumstances to turn in his favor. Raymond's best girl was one of the same kind. She had taught school long enough to save a thousand dollars, and Raymond, who had risen from typesetter to reporter—if that is to be considered a rise—had as much more. They had many a sitting with their "heads together" and sometimes their lips, trying to figure out a plan to better themselves by using their capital jointly. They finally decided to be married, go west and start a paper.

The result of this union—of capital—was the Annunciator, a lively newspaper, in the town of Tuckerton, a growing place where there was but one other paper, the Wasp, owned by a man by the name of Snarley. It never stung any one. Indeed it better deserved the name of Drone, though the manager was as sour as a vinegar cruet.

Springer and his wife started in to compete with this drowsy sheet. Their paper was bound to distance the other in time, but it requires time and expenditure to start a paper, and the question of ultimate success hung on whether the funds would hold out. The Springers used every economy, the editor setting much of his type himself and breaking his wife in to do the same. New subscribers came steadily. Every one praised the sprightliness of the paper, and there were a few advertisements offered, though these must be accepted for little or nothing, because Snarley on the starting of the Annunciator had put his own prices to a point which was sure to kill competition and the rival paper.

Every one knows who knows anything about the newspaper business that it is the advertisements that pay. The Springers had everything else desirable for a newspaper. They were both good writers and Mrs. Springer introduced features that were especially captivating to women. But the cost of material, labor—including their own—and incidentals was an outgoing stream that was not sufficiently counteracted by the inflow. Consequently the pool was slowly drying up. Snarley kept himself posted as to the financial condition of the Annunciator by learning how long people found it necessary to wait for the payment of their bills. And as that time increased the sour expression on his face turned into a smile that children were afraid of.

Then Snarley heard that his competitors were trying to get in some capital. His paper immediately began to pour forth wails as to the unsatisfactory condition of business generally and the newspaper business in particular. In this way he headed off the Springers, who had very nearly secured what they required to set their paper on its feet and tide it over the shoals between them and success. But now they were checkmated. Their money was all gone, and if they continued the business they would be swamped.

They held a parley and decided to run the paper a week longer. The morning after this decision an item in an inconspicuous part of the editorial page gave a hint that there was a possibility of new blood being infused into the veins of the Annunciator. A few days later another brief item—the first in the column—stated that negotiations for new capital were in progress with great hopes of success. If a contract was made the Annunciator would appear in a new dress and add two more pages. Snarley read these announcements and was troubled. He poked his nose everywhere to smell out where the new capital was to come from, but failed to find any trace of it.

One morning the Annunciator announced that the financial suspense that had hovered over the paper so long like a buzzard over a dying lion was ended. The future of the paper was no longer problematical. Nor was it. The end was at hand.

At 10 o'clock Allan Lake, a nephew of Snarley, entered Springer's office and asked if the negotiations had gone so far as to prevent a plan to amalgamate the Wasp and the Annunciator. If not his uncle would turn over his interest to him, put in new capital and the united papers would be run by Springer and Lake jointly. Springer said the papers would not pass till 12 m. and till then he would consider a proposition, whereupon Lake pulled a written proposition from his pocket, which was accepted after consideration, and the Wasp and the Annunciator became one.

The night before Springer and his wife had been up till dawn getting out what they supposed to be the last issue of the paper. They had intended it for a bluff to give their enemy a scare, though hoping that it would frighten him into some proposition.

Lake had managed the Wasp for his uncle and had been often tempted to throw up his job and seek other employment. On the morning of Springer's bluff his uncle had come to him for the first time for counsel. Lake had told him that he was about to leave him, and Snarley knew that the rival paper would, with new capital, eventually run out the Wasp. The uncle gave in and sent the proposition which virtually took his competitors into partnership, giving them an associate whom they liked. Under the new management all concerned thrived. The Springers learned the importance of keeping up a bold front and pursued this policy in success as well as in adversity. They afterward moved the paper to a far larger field.

WAGING WAR ON MOTHS

What Is Being Done With Imported Parasites.

THOUSANDS FREED IN COLONIES

Agricultural Department Propagating Enemies of Brown Tail and Gypsy Pests—No Present Hope of Stopping Spread of Former Moths From New England to Rest of the Country, Says Dr. L. O. Howard.

That there is no present hope of preventing the spread of the brown tail moth from New England throughout the rest of the United States and only a chance of conquering the gypsy moth after years of work in propagating and disseminating the parasites which feed upon it is the opinion expressed by Dr. Leland O. Howard, entomologist of the agricultural department, who recently returned to Washington from an official investigation of the ravages of the moth in Massachusetts.

Dr. Howard traveled last year over the greater part of Europe and repeated the trip last spring to engage the assistance of foreign scientists in the effort to import into the United States thousands of parasites which would war upon the gypsy and brown tail moths. Before going abroad on March 15 he looked over the situation in New England, and then spent two months organizing his European correspondents for this summer's campaign against the pest. Regarding these efforts and the spread of the moths as just noted by him at Boston, he said to the New York Post's Washington correspondent:

During last winter and spring we imported through these European agents 180,000 winter nests of brown tail moths from all sections of Europe, from Transylvania on the southeast to Brittany on the northwest, and from Spain to Berlin. We got them from all elevations, from the Mediterranean sea level to the top of the Harz mountains, so as to meet all climatic conditions. From these we bred 60,000 parasites in the special laboratory established at Saugus, near Boston. They are of several different species, and have been found capable of attacking the gypsy as well as the brown tail moth. About 50,000 of the parasites have been liberated out of doors in colonies, especially chosen places being selected for them in woods where there is little danger of fire, and where no work is being done against insects.

"As a result, so far we find that the parasites placed in the field stung the brown tail moth caterpillars as they issued from the winter nests. The parasites have already undergone one complete generation in reproduction and are now stinging the nearly full grown caterpillars of the other kind, the gypsy moth, and the chrysalids of both species. In the meantime there have been coming over from Erope since May last caterpillars of both species of all stages of growth, but mainly of nearly full size. From these we have been breeding in the laboratory at Saugus a large number of parasites of various species, some of which have been liberated out of doors, while others have been colonized in tents built over trees and stocked with caterpillars. They all seem perfectly at home and breeding is going on. This is encouraging, but it is impossible to predict when they will begin to make any visible impression on the enormous armies of caterpillars which appear there every spring.

"What chance is there of preventing the spread to other sections?"

"It cannot be prevented," was the reply. "The brown tail moth flies readily and is carried by the wind great distances. It is now found as far west as Worcester, Mass.; some exist in Vermont. It reaches a good distance into New Hampshire and to a great distance up the Maine coast. The gypsy moth does not fly, but has been spread in Massachusetts by being carried in the caterpillar stage on electric cars and automobiles especially. It spins down from the trees in the caterpillar stage and drops on these passing vehicles. The gypsy moth covers eastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire, and is found at Providence, R. I., and Stonington, Conn., in isolated groups. An especial effort will be made to stamp out these two groups to prevent extending the general area of ravages."

"What remedial measures are contemplated?"

"We hope for good results from the work of the parasites in exterminating the gypsy moth, as they cannot fly away. We propose cleaning off the shade trees along the main roads out of the affected sections in Massachusetts, and thus reduce to a minimum the ever present chance of automobiles carrying them to other states. These motor cars travel such enormous distances in a single day that there is no telling how widely they may spread the moths in a single season.

"As for the brown tail moth, there is nothing on which to base the hope that it can be kept from spreading westward to New York and other sections of the country. As it flies readily, it can go anywhere. The most hopeful condition existing is that in New England the wind is usually from the southwest, and this has a tendency to carry it along the coast to Maine. Nothing is yet at hand to exterminate the moth and save other states from the loss experienced by Massachusetts."

Japan's Contribution to Mexico.

Railroad ties for one of the lines now building in Mexico are imported from Japan, says the Boston Transcript. They cost 56 cents apiece laid down at Guaymas.

In Two Collisions.

The steam trawler Spray, built at the Fore River, was in two collisions Thursday, while coming up Boston harbor, due to the heavy fog. She first ran into the Norwegian coal steamer, Tancread, when she lost her fore topmast and had several of her bow plates bent and the hawser pipe cracked. Later she collided with the U. S. Engineer's tug, Executive, which was damaged to the extent of $300.

—Thomas J. Lane, chairman of the bath commission, and one the most popular citizens of Fast Boston, is seriously ill at Weymouth Heights, where he and his family are spending the summer.

—Sixteen residents of Dedham, Needham and Boston appeared in the Dedham court before Judge Grover on Wednesday and paid fines of $10 each for working on the Lord's Day, July 29, the work not being a matter of necessity.

TO REPUBLICANS:

We are anxious to have every Republican in close touch, and working in harmony with the Republican National Congressional Committee in favor of the election of a Republican Congress.

The Congressional campaign must be based on the administrative and legislative record of the party, and, that being so, Theodore Roosevelt's personality must be a central figure and his achievements a central thought in the campaign.

We desire to maintain the work of this campaign with popular subscriptions of One Dollar each from Republicans. To each subscriber we will send the Republican National Campaign Text Book and all documents issued by the Committee.

Help us achieve a great victory.

RAINY DAY CLOTHES.

Be Prepared to Make a Good Appearance In Wet Weather.

By the kind of clothes she wears on a rainy day you shall know the mental habits of many a young woman. A girl may have just the nicest kind of garments for all other days in the week, but the day it pours rain is the day that tests the real stuff she is made of.

If she is a girl of forethought, of well balanced mind, she won't be at a loss when she wakes up in the morning to find weepy skies and muddy streets, for she has a neat short skirt, waterproof boots and a small hat for days like this, in which garb she feels as neatly and smartly dressed as when she wears her pretty linen frock and low ties under smiling skies.

But there's another kind of girl who never is prepared for rain and who is shaken into a state of mental confusion at the sound of raindrops pattering on her window of a morning. All her provisions are made for sunshiny days. Half hysterically she dresses in odds and ends of her wardrobe—an old skirt, too long and heavy and too shabby to be hurt; a soiled blouse, untidy shoes, to save her best ones, and probably her usually too big shade hat, decked with flowers and feathers.

You can always tell this girl when you meet her on a rainy day. You know just what a morning frenzy she experienced. And you wonder why it is she never learns that rainy days are as certain to come as clear ones and that it is the part of good sense to prepare for them.

It is surprising how little the weather affects one mentally, if one is dressed to meet it, whereas the girl who never looks out for rainy days is always disagreeably upset by them and considers them a nuisance quite unnecessary in the general scheme of things.

GOOD TEMPER.

A Balance Wheel That Regulates the Domestic Machinery.

Good temper serves as a sort of balance wheel to regulate the working of the domestic machinery, curbing the angry outbreak, checking the impatient response, adjusting differences and averting disagreements with a patient tact that will derive something of added power from the weight of authority behind it.

It will act as a sort of moral solvent, in which hardness of mind and even of disposition with time will disappear, removing sources of feeling that serve not to round and perfect, but to roughen and spoil, the character.

It will create an atmosphere, in short, which will be favorable to the growth of all good qualities and sentiments and in which noxious growths, if they unhappily should appear, finding nothing on which to feed, will wither quickly and die. And so powerful will be this influence for good that it even is conceivable that the atmosphere of such a home would be shown by chemical analysis to differ in its constituent elements from the atmosphere of a household presided over by a woman of a sour or violent temper. That it will affect even the casual visitor with a sense of physical well being as the other does with a sense of physical discomfort, however well ordered it apparently may be, is certain.

CULINARY CONCEITS.

Melted butter will not make good cake.

A few drops of lemon juice make cake frosting white.

If oatmeal is soaked overnight in water it requires only about one-half the time to cook.

If eggs are to be boiled hard, have the water boiling when the eggs are put in it. This will prevent the yolks turning dark.

Tomatoes and milk to be blended must be brought to the same temperature and beaten together vigorously. There is less liability of curdling.

Preparatory to frying liver or veal cover it for a minute or two with boiling water. Pat dry with a clean towel, roll in flour and fry (in a covered pan) until brown.

An appetizing breakfast dish is prepared in the following manner: Fry thin pieces of bacon a light brown, but not crisp. Place two strips of bacon on each slice of toast, lay in a pan, break over each slice of toast an egg and bake for a few minutes.

Working Gloves.

Keep the inside of the old gloves you wear around the house for the rough work clean. If they are allowed to become begrimed with the dust and dirt of the work, they are almost as hard on your hands as the work would be. Gasoline will clean almost any sort of glove, although with the heavy ones—the castoffs of the men of the family, which, being loose and strong, are the best to work in—the cleansing fluid sometimes seems to take out the natural oil, leaving them dry and harsh to the touch. When that occurs rub a little pure vaseline into them—just a little, so as not to make them greasy.

Test Your Washing Blue.

Many rust spots of seemingly unaccountable origin may be traced to the bluing used in washing. Prussian blue, the constituent of some of the bluings on the market, is a compound of iron, which, in the presence of an alkali, deposits the rust spot. If you suspect the bluing you use take a little of the compound in a vessel with soap, or, better, caustic potash, and bring to a boil. If iron separates, the compound is prussian blue, and you will have to be very careful in rinsing to get out all the soap.

Military List Numbers 2,937

Quincy's military list this year numbers 2,937. That is, there are that number of males between the ages of 18 and 45 years who are liable to be called upon for military duty. The number by wards and precincts is as follows:

Ward One, precinct one	270
Ward One, precinct two	282
Ward Two, precinct one	146
Ward Two, precinct two	249
Ward Three, precinct one	306
Ward Three, precinct two	265
Ward Four, precinct one	249
Ward Four, precinct two	261
Ward Five	487
Ward Six, precinct one	223
Ward Six, precinct two	203
	2,937

Ward Three has 571, the largest number, with Ward One second, and Ward Two the least.

New Law May Exempt $50,000

The Assessors have received a number of applications for exemption of taxes under the new Soldiers' Exemption law passed by the Legislature this year. Up to the present time, however, the applicants have been confined largely to poll tax payers. It is expected, however, that as soon as the property tax bills have been sent out there will be many more applications. Just how much it will be necessary to exempt is at present mere guess work but a rough estimate on the part of the Assessors puts it at $50,000.

The Assessors have not acted upon any of the applications as yet, as their plan is to act upon them all at one time. They have decided upon the Monday and Thursday mornings in September as the time when they will hear applicants.

Bricks Cheaper.

A New York item says the price of common brick has declined within the last few weeks from $14 a thousand to $5. Other materials, including cement, stone, lathe, and window glass have also declined, but not in the same proportion. The decline in the price of brick is due to the increased use of concrete for building purposes, as this is found to be cheaper than brick and possessing equal advantages as a structural material.

Lockjaw Cured

A Remarkable Achievement At the Quincy City Hospital

For the first time in its history of sixteen years, the Quincy hospital has cured a patient of tetanus (lock-jaw), and they are quite proud of the cure as the disease is usually fatal.

Willie Dodd, 11 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dodd of 16 Newbury street, Atlantic, while celebrating the Seventeenth of June, received a wound in the palm of his hand. Nothing was thought about it at the time but the foreign matter imbedded in the hand soon caused trouble.

The boy felt pains in his arm and it commenced to twitch. Dr. Kernan of Neponset attended him and on July 3d took him to the Quincy hospital where he grew rapidly worse.

Dr. John F. Welch, house physician for the month, took charge of the case, and liberal doses of anti-toxine were admininistered and opiates given to quiet the twitching muscles. It was a bad case from the start and doctor and nurses were not hopeful, but all worked hard to save the boy's life.

In tetanus the body becomes rigid and there are persistent spasms and incurvations of the body. The muscles are in a continual vibratory contraction. Willie Dodd's moans and cries sounded like a fretting baby and could be heard all over the hospital. The contraction of the muscles would throw his body into uncomfortable positions often with head out of bed. If the nurses moved him back on to the bed or touched him to feel his pulse, etc., he would go into convulsions, making the case a hard one to care for.

After nearly two weeks of persistent treatment, the body commenced to relax and the boy became conscious part of the time. Since then he has improved right along, being able to sit up in bed and look at books. On Sunday, the 29th, he was dressed and out doors, and has been able to go about since. He is now ready to return to his home after a month's treatment. It is expected his father will take him home Sunday. Willie is a bright little fellow and has made many friends while at the hospital.

A few weeks ago the City Hospital of Boston treated a little girl for tetanus and were proud of a cure. The Boston Transcript had in an article about the little girl and her restoration to health, but the case at the Quincy Hospital was more remarkable as the disease had progressed pretty far and the case seemed hopeless from the start.

Wisconsin's Fighting Senator

Personal Side of Robert M. La Follette, Champion of the People

Man of Iron Who Never Minces His Words and Is Not a Quitter—History May Yet Write Him Down as a Giant Among Pygmies. Orator Who Gets an Audience Going and Keeps It on the Move

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE'S most marked characteristics are pugnacity and persistence. He never quits fighting. It took him more than ten years to win out in Wisconsin, but if it had required twenty it would have been the same. He would have been there at the end, jabbing away with as much vigor and determination as at the beginning.

Not a Quitter.

When La Follette was told of the choice bunch of names that had been applied to him by his enemies he smiled and quizzically replied, "They did not call me a quitter, did they?" No. They did not. That was the trouble. It was the fact that he was not a quitter that made his foes adopt such reckless and burning adjectives when they spoke of him.

The Wisconsin fight was against tremendous obstacles. The Republican machine, the railroads and the corporations generally all had to be overcome. La Follette was equal to the task. Defeat only spurred him to harder fighting. Partial victory did not appease him. He was satisfied only with complete triumph, and complete triumph he won in the end. To reach it he had to disrupt his party, but he never wavered for that. The words conciliation and compromise are not in his vocabulary. Like Jackson, he believes in a clean victory or a clean defeat. Like Jackson also, he fought some of his greatest battles while suffering intense physical pain—pain that confined him to his bed a considerable portion of the time. Sickness could not daunt a will like that of La Follette—in fact, the man seems an incarnation of sheer will force.

SENATOR ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE.

Robert Marion La Follette he was christened by his parents, but Bob he is called by the world, for, iron though he is, in his personality rests the charm that makes others call him by his front name. One of his political opponents recently said of him: "La Follette's enemies have been made by his measures, not by his manners. It is possible to dislike Bob La Follette only at a distance."

Three Cardinal Issues.

What were these measures? Here are the three cardinal issues on which he made his fights in Wisconsin: Nomination of all candidates by district vote of the people, taxation of railways and other corporations at the same rate as that charged to others and the regulation of freight and other transportation charges.

What is there about these to make enemies? Out of their own mouths are his foes condemned. To admit that their only opposition to him is due to measures like these is to stamp themselves at once as friends of the trusts and foes of the people. La Follette has dared to stand for the truth that he saw, and the enemies of truth have hated him for its sake. The time has come to speak of these matters as they are.

This man has stood by his guns as has no other in the country. While other reformers have compromised and have accepted half a loaf, or none, he has been content with nothing less than the full measure of reform. He never minces his words. He calls Rockefeller "the greatest criminal of the age."

Breadwinner of the Family.

La Follette is fifty-one years of age and has many good fights in him yet. His father's early death and his mother's straitened circumstances left Bob the breadwinner of the family. Yet poverty did not deter him from taking a college course. The problem, however, was a most difficult one, for he had not only to pay his own way, but to keep the family as well. He accomplished both by buying the college paper and running it with such ability and energy that it netted him enough for his own and his family's need. The enterprise required not a little additional work, but La Follette never stopped in the face of work. He not only edited the paper, but solicited advertising and set type with his own hands. This did not prevent him from keeping abreast of the class leaders in his studies, nor did it keep him from taking the state and interstate prizes in an oratorical contest. The subject of his oration in both efforts was "Iago," and the light that he threw on that malign character is said to have aided Edwin Booth in his interpretation of the difficult role. Young Bob had no little histrionic ability himself and at one time contemplated going on the stage, but, fortunately for the country, changed his mind and studied law.

An Instance of His Determination.

It was not long after his admission to the bar that he was elected district attorney of his county. Four years later, at the age of twenty-nine, he entered congress, where he served for six years. During his last term he was a member of the important ways and means committee and framed the agricultural schedule of the McKinley bill. In 1890 he was defeated in the great Democratic landslide. Four years later he re-entered the political arena, this time as the opponent of the Republican machine. He was not fighting for himself, but for another, and made an unsuccessful attempt to secure the nomination of Nils Haugen for governor. One incident of this canvass reveals La Follette's nature in all its unconquerable strength. The machine had carried half of the primaries of La Follette's own county, and to control the delegation he had to carry all the remainder. His lieutenants were ready to give up in despair.

"Gentlemen," said La Follette, "you can do as you please, but I am going to carry all the remaining primaries in Dane county if I have to crawl to them on my knees."

He carried them.

Beginning of His Great Fight.

In 1896 La Follette himself was a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor and had a majority of the convention with him, but his enemies secured an adjournment and by purchase or otherwise won over enough of his delegates to defeat him. It was then that Robert M. La Follette began his great fight to have nominations made by the direct vote of the people.

Two years later he was once more defeated for the gubernatorial prize, but in 1900 he won out and was elected. But the victory was only partial, as he failed to have the legislature adopt his principles. In 1902 he was re-elected and succeeded in having part of his measures adopted. In 1904 he was a candidate for a third term and had a majority of the convention with him, but his opponents bolted and nominated another ticket. Both factions went before the Republican national committee, and the enemies of La Follette won. Nothing daunted, the governor carried the fight into the courts and was successful. In the ensuing election he beat both the bolters' candidate and the Democratic nominee by immense pluralities and carried the legislature by a sufficient majority to insure the adoption of all his principles and his own election to the United States senate. He did not immediately take his seat, however, but remained governor long enough to force through all the measures he advocated, even threatening to give up the senatorship if they were not enacted. When all his pet ideas were on the statute books and his twelve year state fight was completely won he turned to the larger field of the nation.

Found a Proposed Steal.

One of the unwritten laws of the United States senate is that a new member must sit on a back seat, look duly impressed and say nothing. There are but few of the senatorial "kids" who have the courage to run amuck of this law. La Follette is one of the few. Placed on one of the Indian committees, a body in which ordinarily there is nothing doing, he discovered a proposed steal of several millions—some say over a billion—that the railroads were attempting to perpetrate in the rental of coal lands. This was going through without opposition when La Follette began asking questions. The promoters of the job became frightened and changed the bill. Still La Follette asked questions and showed a disposition to fight. Score point No. 1 for the new senator from Wisconsin.

At a later date La Follette decided to make some remarks on the rate bill. Those remarks extended over three days. They constituted, so it is said, the most exhaustive and best informed speech on the railroad issue ever heard in the American congress. Yet few senators heard them. The highest, or lowest, legislative body in the land was engaged in the dignified occupation of "hazing" a new member. Whether it was because of the fact that he wanted to be a senator instead of a wall flower and wanted to be it right away, or whether it was because he held notions unfriendly to the corporations, the Republicans absented themselves almost to a man. Referring to this fact, La Follette said that those who were temporarily absent the people would cause to be absent permanently. At this the galleries applauded so vigorously that the customary threat to clear them was made. Applause is strictly forbidden in the senate. It seems an unnecessary restriction, as there is so little done there that anybody wants to applaud that it hardly seems the body would be unduly disturbed even if the people were allowed to cheer to their fill. But tradition and dignity must be preserved, even though there is little else left to preserve. This is on the same principle that people must keep up appearances who have nothing besides or those wear brilliant clothes who have no other sort of brilliancy.

La Follette did not mind the senatorial hazing except that it was an unpleasant breach of good manners. It may be that he is bigger than the whole bunch of them and that history will write him down a giant among pygmies. He is just one of the kind of men who immortalize themselves. He can afford small annoyances for the greater glory that awaits him as the servant of the common people—"God's patient poor," as he himself calls them.

Deals With Folks Where They Live.

As a speaker the Wisconsin senator is really an orator. He is not much of a twister of the eagle's tail and all that sort of thing, but he gets an audience going some and keeps it on the move. For one thing, he deals with folks where they live. If he is talking on the subject of freight rates to an audience of farmers, instead of making classical allusions and quoting poetry he asks them what they pay for shipping hogs and corn and shows them by figures how much less they ought to pay. That makes the farmer do a little hard thinking, and when you start a man thinking there is hope of him.

La Follette is a little chap with a big stock of energy. I do not remember the exact statistics on his altitude and avoirdupois and do not know as they much matter. This article is not a foot rule and a weighing machine, anyway. Suffice it to say that however much there is of him he is all there and is constantly on the job. He has a business face and an eye that sees things. His mouth, though firm, is mobile and attractive. The most notable thing about him is a pompadour that sticks straight up like a dog's bristles when he is going into a fight.

Altogether Robert Marion La Follette is a better man than his traducers. Most people are. The average traducer generally hates himself, for cause, and gets even by taking it out on other people.

La Follette fights for the people, and they will fight for him. He is a "comer," and if you are measuring the future don't leave him out, for he won't stay there even if you do.

In the coming battle for the people's rights keep your eye on the La Follette pompadour and you will know exactly where the thickest of the fight is raging.

REVOLTS FAILED

Armed Forces of the Czar as a Whole Are Loyal

A GENERAL STRIKE IS ON

Its Exact Status Will Not Be Known For a Few Days--Czar Considering Question of Dictatorship--Fortress In Which Mutineers Were Is Hard Hit

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—Neither the military revolts at Sveaborg and Cronstadt nor the naval mutiny on the Russian warships have fulfilled the expectations of the revolutionists. The failure of the outbreaks is not due to the fact that they were premature, but because the armed forces of the government are as a whole still loyal. In fact, there is no organized rebellion. The army and navy doubtless acted in collusion in the Sveaborg, Cronstadt and other Baltic mutinies, but each centre seems to have acted on local initiative, with lack of preparation and forethought.

The examples of past outbreaks, such as the first one at Cronstadt and the one at Sevastopol, show that the great bulk of the armed forces are not affected, and that mutinies have been practically suppressed. In the case of Sveaborg the mass of the Finnish population observed strict neutrality. At a sitting of the diet each of the chambers passed a resolution expressing sympathy with the Russian struggle for liberty, but declaring that the best form of assistance Finland could render would be strictly to observe her own laws, maintain order, and refrain from active participation in the conflict between the garrison and the authorities.

The expected mutiny at Cronstadt broke out, but proved a complete failure, because the garrison as a whole had not forgotten the bitter lessons of the October mutiny, and was not in favor of a mutiny at the present moment. Altogether the revolutionaries have displayed an astonishing lack of strategical and tactical capacity, and, as was the case last December, their attempts to orgnize an armed insurrection will probably have no other effect than to drive the government still further in the direction of reaction.

St. Petersburg was in darkness part of last night. The employes of the electric lighting plants ceased work during the afternoon in obedience to the call for a general strike. The electric light service was restored this morning by sailors of the technical corps. It will be impossible to predict the success of the universal political strike until Monday, as the workmen in St. Petersburg and the provinces have two holidays—Saturday, which is the fete day of the dowager empress, and a great religious feast, and their regular holiday of Sunday. Twenty thousand men went on strike yesterday.

In the meantime the fate of the Stolypin cabinet sways in the balance and Russia is upon the verge of disorders which may lead either to the reign of the military or the proletariat. It can be stated definitely that the first step toward a dictatorship may be taken Sunday or Monday by the nomination of Grand Duke Nicholas to the chief command of all the troops in Russia. This would virtually place him in control of all the disturbed districts of the empire where martial law has been proclaimed.

This matter was a subject of earnest discussion during the interview between the czar and Premier Stolypin yesterday, from which the premier returned in a greatly vexed state of mind. The revolutions at Sveaborg and Cronstadt and the mutiny on board the cruiser Pamyat Azova gave the tone of the conversation between the czar and the premier. These events, although they have all ended fortunately, apparently have left a strong impression upon the mind of the czar. The nomination of Grand Duke Nicholas to the post of commander-in-chief, if made, will be announced as "for the purpose of harmonizing the activity of all troops, without reference to political affairs," but Stolypin is scarcely disposed to regard the nomination in this high light.

How Finland Fortresses Look

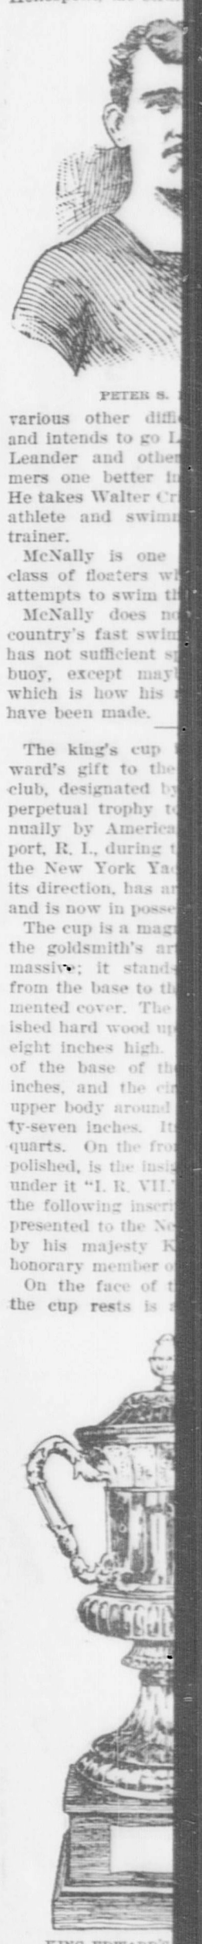

Helsingfors, Aug. 4.—The correspondent of the press was permitted to look over the fortress on the main island, as well as all the other fortifications overlooking the town, although the officials who complied with his request were careful not to allow him to see the guns.

The scenes proved the truth of the statements previously cabled that the mutineers had the upper hand in practically all the fortresses until the arrival of the warships.

Escorted by an officer, the correspondent was shown all the minor barracks and fortifications and the wharf and neighboring quays, which bristled with machine guns. Flagstaffs had been splintered as if the mutineers had tried to shoot away the Russian colors. The most severe fire from the fortress was directed on the headquarters of the commander, who, on the second day of the trouble, was forced to seek shelter in a better protected place.

The barracks in the vicinity showed plainly the effects of the fighting. They are today nothing more than tottering ruins, upheld by iron girders.

Results of the firing were seen on every hand, fragments of shrapnel, chainshot and shells littering all the walkways. The fortress itself bore

McNally Invades Europe

Famous Boston Swimmer to Try Crossing of Tiber, Hellespont, Etc.

King Edward VII.'s Cup For Annual American Yacht Race.

Peter S. McNally, the sensational Boston swimmer, has sailed from Charlestown, Mass., on the Arabic for Europe to establish, if he can, a greater reputation as a long distance and endurance swimmer.

McNally holds a number of records in America for freak swims and wants to do similar stunts abroad. His idea is to prove that modern athletes are superior in staying powers to the ancients, and for that reason he will try to excel some of the performances made in classic times.

He expects to swim the Tiber, the Hellespont, the strait of Gibraltar and various other difficult water passes and intends to go Lord Byron, Caesar, Leander and other renowned swimmers one better in the aquatic line. He takes Walter Critchell, a prominent athlete and swimmer, with him as trainer.

McNally is one of that numerous class of floaters who make periodical attempts to swim the English channel.

McNally does not rank with this country's fast swimmers. In fact, he has not sufficient speed to beat a bell buoy, except maybe with the tide, which is how his many freak swims have been made.

The king's cup is here. King Edward's gift to the New York Yacht club, designated by his majesty as a perpetual trophy to be sailed for annually by American yachts off Newport, R. I., during the annual cruise of the New York Yacht club and under its direction, has arrived in New York and is now in possession of the club.

The cup is a magnificent specimen of the goldsmith's art. It is large and massive; it stands thirty-one inches from the base to the apex of the ornamented cover. The block of highly polished hard wood upon which it rests is eight inches high. The circumference of the base of the cup is forty-one inches, and the circumference of the upper body around the handles is forty-seven inches. Its capacity is many quarts. On the front, which is highly polished, is the insignia of royalty and under it "I. R. VII." in monogram and the following inscription: "This cup is presented to the New York Yacht club by his majesty King Edward VII., honorary member of the club, 1906."

On the face of the block on which the cup rests is a gold plate, upon which will be inscribed the name of each yacht and the names of their owners that succeed in winning the races. Each winning yacht will also receive from the N. Y. Y. C. a suitable trophy to commemorate the victory.

In every respect it will rank in quality and finish with any yachting trophy ever seen in America. It is handsomely and profusely chased. In size, appearance and beauty it looks, indeed, a kingly gift and will be cherished with pride by yachtsmen generally.

CHARGE IS CHANGED

Streub Held In $2500 to Answer For Alleged Manslaughter

Great Barrington, Mass., Aug. 4.—After a hearing before Judge Sanford of the district court, lasting all day, Emil Streub, who was arraigned upon the charge of murdering his 12-year-old son, John, on July 10, was held for the grand jury in the sum of $2500, the charge against him being changed from that of murder to manslaughter.

The government attempted to show that the boughs with which the boy's body was covered when found in the woods were cut by a left-handed man, Streub being left-handed, but Medical Examiner Beebe testified that the blows that had been inflicted upon the body could have been struck by a right-handed man, thus throwing doubt upon the theory that a left-handed man had been implicated in the crime.

Fourteen witnesses in all were heard during the day. They testified as to the finding of the boy's body in the woods five days after the date upon which the lad was last seen about his home.

Girl Says Story Is True

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 4.—Mystery surrounds the case of 18-year-old Josie McTaggart, who insists, in spite of the police and physicians, that she was taken to Fort Hill park, drugged and then attacked by two men. The girl has been released from St. John"s hospital. The hospital doctors report that they found no indication to substantiate the story told by her. Still, just before leaving the hospital, the girl stuck to the story she first told. Meanwhile, the police released William Manchester, a young man who Miss McTaggart named in her story.

Prosperous Year For Railways

Hartford, Aug. 4.—The annual report of the board of railroad commissioners on the operation of the steam and electric railways of this state for the year ending June 30, 1905, shows that the gross earnings of the steam roads exceeded those of the previous year by over $1,000,000, while the gross earnings of the street railways exceeded those of the previous year by nearly $500,000.

Bull Badly Gores Veteran

Bristol, R. I., Aug. 4.—Philip M. Blanding, an aged Civil war veteran, after having been gored badly by a bull and crawling through the woods half a mile from here, reached the steps of the Soldiers' home, of which he is an inmate, and sank down exhausted and seriously wounded. Blanding had laid in a field all night unconscious. Physicians say there is little hope that he will recover.

Great Jump In Real Estate Valuation

Boston, Aug. 4.—An increase of some $20,000,000 in real estate valuations in the city of Boston is shown in findings of the principal and first assistant assessors. This increase, with a possible increase of several millions in personal valuations, will bring the city's total valuations for May 1 to upward of $1,280,000,000. In personal valuation it is certain that a large increase will be made.

The Strike at Adams

Adams, Mass., Aug. 4.—A meeting of the Adams Central Labor union was held last night to consider the strike situation at the Berkshire mills. Delegates from the striking weavers were heard. The proposition to call in a third party to adjust the trouble did not meet with favor and after two hours of discussion the meeting dissolved without reaching a decision.

Found Dead on Railroad Tracks

Kenyon, R. I., Aug. 4.—The body of a man, which, from papers found upon it, is believed to be that of Ross Kay of Middleboro, Mass., was found lying on the railroad tracks not far from the local depot. The body was badly mangled and the top of the head was torn off. The man was probably knocked from the car of a freight train by an overhead bridge.

Broker Charged With Larceny

Boston, Aug. 4.—Frederick K. Folsom, a stock broker, affiliated with no particular exchange, is under arrest, charged with the larceny of $1162 from a brokerage firm of Devonshire street. The trouble arose out of a stock transaction in which Folsom is alleged to have sold the brokerage firm alleged worthless stock.

Many Strikers' Places Filled

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 4.—At a meeting of the Carmen's union it was voted unanimously to reject President Crapo's offer that 80 men would be taken back by the company, that being the number of positions now vacant, the places of 120 of the strikers already having been filled.

Convention of Christian Alliance

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 4.—Rev. A. B. Simpson of New York, leader of the Christian Missionary Alliance, presided last night at the opening session of the alliance camp meeting. The convention will continue 10 days. Fourteen sessions will be held daily.

Formaldehyde In Witch Hazel

Boston, Aug. 4.—Roscoe A. Smith of 212 Columbus avenue, proprietor of the Dartmouth drug store, was found guilty of having adulterated witch hazel for sale. The state board of health agent testified that the preparation contained formaldehyde. The defendant was fined $25.

Carpet Mills Shut Down

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 4.—The Bigelow carpet mills in this city and Clinton shut down today until Aug. 20. Agent Fairbanks states that the suspension is due to the desire of many of the 4000 operatives to enjoy a vacation.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MISS KATE E. GRISWOLD.

The Efficient Editor and Publisher of Profitable Advertising.

The success and worldwide reputation which Miss Kate E. Griswold of Boston, editor and publisher of Profitable Advertising, has won for herself through courageous persistence and hard work ought to be an incentive to other young business women to forge ahead and reach the desired goal. Miss Griswold has had little help, and her attainment of an enviable position in the business world has been won solely through her own efforts.

West Hartford, Conn., was the place of her birth some thirty-five years ago. She was educated in the local schools and finished at Miss Haines' school in Hartford. Love of animals and out of door life have been elements of her success. The first led her to raise poultry when still in her teens, while the other has brought to her the health which has made her success possible.

Through her interest in poultry she became attached to the Poultry World in Hartford at the age of sixteen and soon was in full charge of the advertising end. Later it was the journal of the National Trotting association that benefited by her efforts, and so untiringly did she apply herself to business that her health failed and she was obliged to rest for a few years.

Miss Griswold re-entered the business world again as editor and manager of the Hartford City Mission Record and for five years kept that publication on a paying basis. Meanwhile the various competitions in designing advertisements tempted her to try her skill, with the result that she won several prizes.

Through these endeavors she became known to the C. F. David Advertising agency of Boston, which opened negotiations with her which resulted in Miss Griswold becoming an editor upon the staff of Profitable Advertising, its publication.

Two years later this journal was declared a failure and unloaded upon the shoulders of its present owner. It was in 1895, when Miss Griswold became its publisher, and it had few subscribers and fewer assets. With undeniable courage she set to work to build it up, with what success is proved by the fact that it is now the leading advertising journal of the world, with representatives in dozens of foreign countries.

The publication of November, 1895, the first under Miss Griswold's ownership, contained thirty-two pages; a recent publication boasts several hundred and represents many thousands of dollars' worth of cash advertising.

Miss Griswold, as shown by the above picture, is a sweet, womanly woman. She is broad minded, soft spoken, generous to a degree and ever ready to aid her sisters in any laudable undertaking.—Boston Traveler.

A Powerful Woman's Work.

The woman with the queerest occupation in New England is Mrs. Alma Veasey Williams, who lives in a little weather beaten, patched cottage far up among the lonesome hills of New Hampshire. Mrs. Williams, who is thirty-six, holds the unchallenged reputation of being the only professional female woodcutter in the New England woods if not in the whole of the United States. Here are some of her very remarkable feats and abilities: She can cut, split and set up a cord of wood each day as long as she chooses to work. She can cut down and trim a tree as large as a barrel quicker than any man in the neighborhood. She is the best ox driver in Meridith, where she lives. She can drive any horse. She cuts from eight to ten cords of wood for her own and her mother's use each winter, and then she goes into the woods and works wherever she can find employment as an expert woodsman. In the summer time she plows her own garden herself, driving the horses and holding the plow handles while the furrow is being turned. She shingled her own house all over once. A year ago at a country fair she performed with one of the striking machines, proving that she could strike a harder blow than any of the numerous farmers present.

Make the Baby Work.

The physician half closed his eyes and looked at the baby, who was troubled with indigestion, although he was a fat baby. Then he asked for the baby's bottle, looked at the nipple and grunted: "I thought so. You make eating too easy for the baby, like most foolish young mothers. You seem to think that it is doing him a kindness to make him a loafer about his milk. Now let me tell you that a baby is going to get every drop of milk in a bottle anyway, because he's hungry and wants it, and you won't starve him if you use a hard suction nipple. It's much better for him to work while he feeds, on the theory that man shall earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, and if the beads of perspiration stand out on his little brow and if he grunts and wiggles, all the better. Ten chances to one he is enjoying his milk twice as much as if the nipple was one of those easy things that fairly poured the fluid down his throat, and his digestion will be stronger."—New York Press.

Home Dressmaking.

The great fault to be found with home dressmaking is that in many cases the work has an amateurish appearance when finished. There are a few tricks of the trade, however, which are invaluable in making up and altering clothes and account for all the difference between a neat and trim garment and one which is ill fitting and ill finished. Always shrink a new braid before sewing to a skirt. In shortening a skirt pattern, too, always fold a plait across the middle of the pattern. Never shorten from the top or bottom of the skirt or the shape will be spoiled. A rolling pin, with a cloth around it, makes a good pressing board.

Her Complexion Secret.

A woman died the other day aged eighty-eight whose complexion was as pink and white as that of a girl of twenty. When asked what the secret of her lovely skin was she invariably answered, "Rochelle salts." It seemed that she took the salts every day, dissolving half a teaspoonful in a glass of water and drinking the solution, now a sip and then a swallow at intervals through the day. The effects upon her skin and blood were certainly most fortunate.—New York Tribune.

To Make Toilet Soap.

To make toilet soap dissolve one box of concentrated lye in half a gallon of rain water. Melt five pounds of clean lard or tallow. When about milk warm pour your cold lye in very slowly and stir it rapidly, says Woman's Life. Add one ounce of oil of sassafras or any other perfume you fancy. Pour into a box a foot square, cover air tight and let it remain three of four days, then cut into cakes, and it is ready for use as a toilet soap.

Kitchen Recipe Book.

The cleanest, neatest book in which a housekeeper can keep odd recipes is made by covering a thick blank book with white oilcloth. The trouble with cloth bound recipe books is that they get greasy and floury in a short time from being handled by the cook while she is mixing ingredients, and there is no way of cleaning them without injuring the cover. An oilcloth book can be wiped off every time it is used.

The Hands.

It is a most decided waste of time to try to make thin hands plump, for no amount of working over them will do any good. Slender hands are considered more beautiful anyhow, provided the knuckles are not too large, and no girl wants pudgy hands with fat fingers. Better spend time and energy keeping the nails in good condition and the hands white and soft rather than in trying to change their shape.

To Clean Ribbon.

An excellent way to clean ribbon is the following: Cover the ribbon with warm water, then spread it on a board or table and scrub it thoroughly with a brush that has been rubbed in soap. After a good lather has been formed and the ribbon looks clean, rinse it in clear warm water, lay it between folds of thin cheesecloth and press until dry.

Thick Lips.

Thick lips can be overcome to a certain extent by acquiring the habit of holding the lips close to the teeth and keeping the muscles about the mouth firm and tight. The woman who stands about with her mouth open permits the muscles to become large and relaxed, and the result is anything but conducive to fair looks.

Juvenile Laundry Lists.

Children may be taught to take care of their clothes and count the pieces for the laundry. Let each child have its own handkerchief bag and bags for other soiled clothes and keep its own laundry list, a little duty which most children like with a saving of care for mother.

Creased Rugs.

A rug sometimes becomes badly creased. To remedy this turn it upside down and wet the crease with a moistened broom until the rug is quite wet. Stretch the rug tight and let it remain overnight after tacking it with tinned tacks, which do not rust.

Paint stains on a floor may be scoured off by soaking them for a short time in benzine or turpentine and then rubbing them with emery paper or a little pulverized pumice stone applied with a damp cloth.

Ivory carvings that are discolored may be restored by a simple process. Paint them over with spirits of turpentine and expose them to the sunshine for two or three days.

Holland window shades that are soiled near the bottom can be advantageously turned. Tack the bottom of the shade to the roller.

If a drop of olive oil is rubbed on dinner knives before putting them away, they will keep their brightness.

To the Lover of Good Coffee

We have installed a new Royal Electric Coffee Mill which is equipped with cutters which cut the berry into uniform particles (instead of grinding it). Thus it is not crushed as by the old method, and the little oil cells remain unbroken. The essential oil (food product) cannot evaporate and is preserved indefinitely.

This is one reason why a pound of coffee cut in this mill will make from fifteen to twenty cups more of full strength coffee than will any coffee ground the old way. One feature about this mill is that you can have your coffee cut as fine as the finest sand, and it will still be free from that fine dust that is produced by the old method of grinding, therefore you will always have a clear cup of coffee, instead of the muddy effect which is the result of the old way of grinding.

When you see this mill in a dealer's store you can rest assured that he is trying to have you get the best results obtainable from your coffee.

Royal Cut Coffee is Especially Adaptable for Percolators or French Drip Coffee Pots.

Try a pound of our Coffee Cut on a Royal Mill and we know you will be pleased with the results.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Salem and Somerville have also reported their tax rate, and in both cities it is less than last year. In Salem a reduction from $17.80 to $17.50, and in Somerville from $18.30 to $17.40.

Quincy taxpayers should note that it was a reduction in city appropriations that made this possible. The Somerville Journal says editorially:

"Economy has been the watchword and it has brought good results. Never prodigal in the use of money all branches of the city government have last year and this year been unusually careful to keep expenses down without impairing the efficiency of the municipal service. The schools are kept to their high standard, the police and fire service is properly maintained, the streets are kept in repair, the public buildings are wisely cared for that there may be no deterioration of city property, and excessive salaries for city employes is a cry that cannot be truthfully raised in Somerville."

The Boston Herald comments in the same vein, when it says:

"The decrease in Somerville is due almost wholly to internal causes. The state, county, metropolitan, armory and bridge taxes are only $1474.41 more than last year, while the city tax is $47,265,58 less than it then was. It is due to the economy which has been exercised in the city affairs that the tax rate has gone down, for the increase in the valuation is comparatively small, only $1,129,060, not enough to have counterbalanced a city tax as large as that of last year. Then the city tax was $911,940.58. This year it is $864,675.

Later—Springfield also has a lower rate, and the lowest city rate reported this year, $15 per $1,000.

If Quincy desires a reduction in its high tax rate it must reduce current expenses—both appropriations and interest. Economy should be the watchword.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The old notion that "music hath charms to sooth the savage breast" was given a rude jolt in Boston, Tuesday evening. An open concert was in progress by a municipal band, when the players were attacked by hoodlums and driven off, some of the musicians receiving injuries. The concert was originally scheduled for one location, and then through the influence of a member of the city government transferred to another, with the riotous result mentioned. The police were unable to locate the disturbers. Band concerts in the evening are a pleasant diversion for the summer to those who enjoy and appreciate good music, but there is always an element present that is bent on mischief, and the pleasure and comfort of the majority of listeners is destroyed. The State concerts on the beach by daylight avoid these unpleasant conditions, and are highly appreciated by large audiences.—Lynn Item.

☞ Children's courts will soon be established in all the cities which are ruled by intelligence, common sense, and a decent regard for human welfare. That a boy or girl of tender years should be put in a prison cell or in a criminal dock with men and women of beastial natures and obscene speech is an outrage so gross that the wonder is that it was ever permitted. We must not make light of crime, and we must appeal to the sense of shame in dealing with youthful criminals; but any course of discipline which makes crime more familar to them than it was before is itself a criminal outrage which ought now to be outgrown and put aside. No Church ought to let another year pass without seeing to it that the outcast little ones of the community are not tempted and driven into a hell of crime from which they could be rescued if the Church would take heed.—Christian Register.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bartlett of Beach street, leave today for Maine, making the trip in their touring car. They will spend several weeks in camp on Pleasant Lake near Mt. Katahdin.

Conductor Donovan On Trial for Larceny

The two cases against James J. Donovan a conductor of the Old Colony street railway company for the larency of money less than $100 were heard before Judge Avery in the district court this morning. United States District Attorney, Asa P. French, represented the government and J. J. McAnarney the defendant

The principal witnesses were two police officers of the city of Lowell. Officer Moore testified to riding with Officer Kennedy on Donovan's car at different times. On June 12 he had the rear section of a car that left Neponset at 6 A. M. for the Fore River.

On this trip Donovan collected 27 fares on his section but did not ring up but 22.

On June 19 he boarded a car in City Square for East Milton at 5.35; Donovan was in charge. On his section Donovan collected 18 fares and rung in but 12 fares.

Officer Kennedy testified to the trip he made on Donovan's car and on two trips he failed to ring in all fares collected.

Mr. Cook, a starter at Lynn, testified to accompanying the officers on their various trips.

Starter Fisher of Campello also testified to being on the cars with the officers.

Cashier Childs of the Quincy division testified as to the day card made up by Donovan on the trips in which the alleged larcenys took place.

Donovan offered no testimony in his own behalf.

The court found him guilty on both complaints. A fine of $15 was imposed on the first complaint, and sentenced to thirty days in the house of correction on the other. An appeal was taken.

—The Marshfield Agricultural and Horticultural society has now formally accepted the recent offer of President Thomas W. Lawson to make extensive improvements on the grounds free of cost to the organization. The work will cost, it is estimated, around $5000. Mr. Lawson's workmen began work last week. Two bends in the race track will be raised and it is believed that this will enable horses which have formerly made the course in 2.15 to do it easily in 2.10.

—Charles Jenney of Belmont will be the new principal of the Hingham high school. He is a Harvard graduate.

Sumatra Wins

The Auk Of Quincy Was Third in Yesterday's Race

Only 17 seconds separated the first three yachts to finish in the Sonder class at the Corinthian open race at Marblehead yesterday, and the Auk from Quincy was in third place. First honors went to the Sumatra, and the Manchester was second, while the Sally VIII was No. 6.

The summary follows :

County Treasurer.

The County Commissioners' appointment of Mr. Cunningham of Quincy as county treasurer, to succeed the late Mr. Smith, is for the balance of the year. The county convention will make the nomination, the election to take place in November. It is expected that Mr. Cunningham will be a candidate for the nomination, and it is quite likely that other aspirants in the county will be on hand in the convention with their ballots. The Quincy papers give the strongest endorsement to the appointment of Mr. Cunningham, in view of his experience and ability, local pride adding a stimulant to the enthusiasm. — Hyde Park Gazette.

City of Presidents

Birthplace Of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

Birthplace two Presidents.
Burial place two Presidents.
Population, 28,076
Valuation, $26,786,885.00.
Tax levy, $516,714.06.
Renown for Quincy granite.
Twenty-five miles water front.
Battleships building.
Seven railroad stations.
Only Daily newspaper in county.

Some of the places of historical interest are named below:

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Small fee asked.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregional Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Owned by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M. until 4 P. M.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum story. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

Bellevue Park and Montclair.

The little daughter which Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laveroni welcomed to their home on Bowdoin street, passed away on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Whalen and family of Bowdoin street have moved to Milton, where they will reside with his uncle, Mr. Thomas Whalen. Mr. Whalen has let his house on Bowdoin street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCabe of Boston have moved into the house which they bought and which was recently vacated by Mrs. Annie Spencer and daughter Lillian.

Miss Helen Bachelder of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Charles E. Dutton of Broadway.

Railroad Notes.

George Smith, an engineer on the N. Y., N. H. & H. Ry., who formerly resided with his family in Plymouth, but who lately has been running a train out of New London, Ct., has resigned his position with the Consolidated road and is now an engineer on one of the Virginia railways, having headquarters in Richmond, Va.

The many friends of Henry McNaught, will be pleased to learn of his promotion to a conductor's berth. Mr. McNaught is an old and faithful employe of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co., is now running as conductor of one of the trains on Nantasket Beach. By his promotion Lawrence O. Jenne is advanced from brakeman to the baggage car.

Division Engineer George S. Morrill of the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad was in Rockland last week with Boston engineers making plans and surveys at the railroad yard for the building of the new $25,000 depot. Many improvements are to be made in that vicinity and as soon as the exact location of the grade has been staked off active work will begin.

During the past month the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad alone invested in 310,000 pounds of ice for coaches and 40,000 pounds for locomotives, for even the firemen and engineers are not overlooked in the provision for hot weather comfort. This includes only trains running from the South Terminal. The ice manufacturing plant installed through the suggestion of former President Charles P. Clark of the New York, New Haven and Hartford in the Terminal station is proving boom during this season of alleged ice scarcity and high prices. The railroad purchases directly from the Boston Terminal Company and the cost of delivery and melting en route is practically nothing.

Mr. G. C. Merrill, a trainman at work in the freight yard of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was instantly killed about 11.30 Wednesday evening while coupling cars. He was caught between two cars and terribly crushed. This was his first night in the South Braintree yard and he had been in the service of the company but a short time. His home was at 63 Lenox street, Boston. He was 26 years old and unmarried.

There came near being a serious accident on the Old Colony street railway Wednesday evening at South Weymouth when an electric heavily loaded left the rails on Pleasant street. There was considerable excitement among the many passengers and it took a good amount of quick and hard work to prevent a stampede among the women, many of whom stood up and were about to jump. Aside from a big fright and and severe shaking up only one passenger was hurt.

James J. Donovan was arrested by Officer Murray July 29th upon complaint of Supt. Conway of the Old Colony street railway for larceny. Donovan has been employed as a conductor, and it is alleged that he has not turned in all the fares collected. The case was continued until today, for a hearing. It is reported that several men have been dropped recently for failing to make proper returns.

The Launch Duet.

An investigation into the cause of the accident on the launch Duet of Herbert McClosky last Sunday off Paddock's islrnd shows it to have been due to the igniting of naptha that had leaked from the pipes, by the sparker.

—By thrusting a ten-foot rod down inside one of the foundation iron pillars of the collapsed Amsden building at Framingham, Town Engineer J. J. Van Valkenburgh disclosed ehe interesting fact that the water comes within two feet of the surface of the ground, and the board of survey appointed by the selectmen and Deputy Chief Joseph A. Moore are, as a result, of the opinion that this fact, and a bed of quicksand also discevered, are to a large extent contributory causses of the recent disaster.

BRAINTREE.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Braintree club Wednesday evening Harry S. Snow was elected to serve as president in place of Harry Thayer, who had resigned. James Cuff was elected vice president and Ward Walker has a place on the executive committee.

A postal, picturing a scene from the island St. Michael, one of the Azores group, was received by the editor Friday morning. The card was sent by our well known townsman and former tax collector, N. F. Hunt, who is traveling abroad.

S. of V., Auxiliary 16, hold their annual picnic at Marblehead, Wednesday, Aug. 8th. Members and friends leave South Braintree station at 7.53 A. M., thence by the narrow guage from Rowe's wharf to Lynn and then by trolley to Marblehead.

James Craig & Co. of Quincy have placed a very attractive sarcophagus monument in the Pond street cemetery in memory of the late Capt. Miller. It was cut out of extra dark blue Quincy granite, is five feet in height and has a base three by five feet.

Mr. Herbert Johnson of Crescent avenue, who has been employed in the stitching room of the Regal shoe factory at Whitman, has resigned his position and with his wife has moved to Gardiner, Maine., where he will be employed by the Snow, Hazard shoe company.

The parishioners of St. Francis church will hold their third annual field day and lawn party on French's common Saturday afternoon and evening Aug. 11. An attractive program with many novel features has been planned.

The Butcher Boy association has voted to attend the annual league muster that is to be held this year at Providence, R. I., August 16th.

Dr. E. Bent of Washington street met with difficulties, this week while in his auto that caused him to leave his machine at the beach and return on the cars.

The Thayer class of the First church enjoyed an outing at Lexington Park, Wednesday.

William Smith of New Bern, North Carolina, a veteran of the civil war, has been spending a few days with Dr. C. M. Marstin and family.

Miss Caroline F. Sawyer died in South Framingham Friday, July 27, at an advanced age. She lived in Braintree many years ago and was brought here for burial Sunday. Services were conducted in the First church cemetery by Rev. William O. Ayer of the Baptist church.

Rev. F. R. Griffin and Mr. G. H. Arnold of All Souls church attended the anniversary of the first church of Plymouth last Wednesday.

Miss Alice R. Pierce, teacher of English and French in the High school, has sent in her resignation the past week, and has accepted a similiar position in the High school at Springfield.

The Old Colony Street Railway Company are greatly improving Washington street in front of Dr. T. H. Dearing's by widening the thoroughfare a few feet.

Charles W. Hollis has removed a large maple tree from in front of his house and put in a long granolithic sidewalk, which greatly improves his property.

Mr. B. D. Litchfield of West street has improved his residence by laying a granolithic walk extending from the front door to the sidewalk.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Rowen of Quincy avenue entertained the Union church choir on Tuesday evening with a lawn fete. The grounds were bright and festive, with chinese lanterns. Music, wit and laughter filled the merry hours. Ices in variety and cakes, wafers were most refreshing and were enjoyed by all present. Thanking their host for his hospitality the guests left at a late hour.

Rev. W. H. Alexander, a former pastor, is expected to preach at the Union church on Sunday.

There will be a special "Old Home service" at Union church on Sunday afternoon at 4 P. M. Some of the former pastors will give addresses. All are welcome.

The Thayer Public Library will close Saturday, Aug. 11, to reopen Sept. 1. Books should be returned before August 11.

Dr. C. M. Marstin does get the full enjoyment from his automobile for he has mastered the mechanism of it. He covers about thirty miles a day locally and so far has not been fined for overspeeding. You are safe Doctor as long as you keep out of Hingham.

The new state law which exempts soldiers from paying a real estate tax if they are worth less than $5,000, removes $50,000 worth of property from taxation in the town of Braintree. It is right that we should aid those who so faithfully served during the Civil war.

The Braintree team meet their old rivals, the Merrymounts of Wollaston, on the common this afternoon and a good game will probably be seen as this team always have gilt-edge, silver polished line-ups. There will be one new face at Braintree and this is Harrington at second. He will be remembered by his clever work in that position here with the Hyde Park nine. The Merrymounts have played and won from Copeland club and have been defeated by the Deweys and Norfolks by the close scores of 3 to 2 and 2 to 1. Let us remember the score cards, for they are "the" tellers for the class of ball that we are to see in the future.

Every officer was present at the last meeting of Blue Hill lodge. No. 208, A. A. U. W., last Wednesday evening at G. A. R. hall. Walter M. Blanchard was elected and installed as O. W. by P. G. M. W. Warren B. Keith who has recently been given a deputy's commission by the grand lodge, as D. D. G. M. W. of Roxbury lodge of Boston. Several candidates are to be initiated during the next few weeks, and a short rehearsal was held at the last meeting.

Annual Outing

Granite Manufacturers' Association

A stormy day was the weather dealt out to the Granite Manufactures' Association for their annual outing today. The early morning hours gave promise of a pleasant day. At 9 o'clock the sun went behind a cloud and the rain fell in torrents. Half an hour later the sun came out again, but at 10 o'clock, the time for the party to start, it was raining again, and the indications were that it would shower all day.

This, however, did not seem in any way to keep the manufacturers at home and a large party was on hand to take the train.

Special cars were attached to the train due to leave Quincy at 9.58. The train also made a stop at Quincy Adams, where the balance of the party were taken.

Each of the party wore in the lapel of his coat a handsome dahlia presented by George Elcock of West Quincy, who raises the handsomest dahlias to be had.

Mr. Elcock picked 200 blossoms of different varieties for the occasion.

The program for the day includes a game of ball at noon and dinner at 2 o'clock at the Rockland house.

A Sailor on Sea Pictures.

"I'll take a sailor along with me the next time I buy a marine painting," said a millionaire. "I bought two marines last month, and yesterday my old friend Captain Salthorse had a look at them.

"Salthorse said:

"'In this first picture we've got a trading schooner in charge of a tug towing away from a rock bound coast through a fearful jumble of sea. The schooner's maintop mast is gone, and all sails are lowered except her staysail, which is kept hoisted, though she is towing head on to the gale. Why that hoisted staysail? All hands, I suppose, are drunk.

"'In the second picture,' continued Captain Salthorse, 'the principal boat, an eighteen footer, is racing, yet has no flag flying. That's as incorrect as it would be for you to go to a dinner party minus a shirt. The crew of this boat are getting in the spinnaker, and, if they lower away, both spinnaker and boom will be in the water, for they have neglected to let the boom go forward. But I know what the trouble is with them. They, too, are drunk.'"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

His Visits to the Earl.

There is a well known English bishop who writes a very bad hand. This bad hand caused a sad error to happen some years ago. A young clergyman had written to the bishop to inquire about a vacant curacy, and the reply that the young man got informed him that the salary was small and the work difficult. But there was one mitigating circumstance. The incumbent, among his other duties, would visit the earl every morning and spend two hours there. The curate would have rejected the post but for the daily visit to the earl. That attracted him. There would, no doubt, be told himself, be many fashionable dinners to which he would naturally be invited. He would make many friends among the rich and powerful. These friends would be able to help him in his career. The earl, perhaps, had daughters. One of them—who knows?—stranger things had happened. And so the curate accepted the difficult and poorly paid curacy to discover on his first visit to the town that he had misread the bishop's letter and that his daily two hours' visit was not to the earl, but to the jail.

The Fields of Peace.

It was the belief of the ancient Egyptians, according to a recent writer, that everything, material and immaterial, had its immortal double. Out of this grew the idea of a life in the future state of perfect happiness in the "fields of peace." For a long time the common people regarded these "fields of peace" not as a celestial place, but as situated in the fertile and well watered regions of the Nile delta in the northwest of Egypt, where the blessed ever breathed the cool north wind. Here they lived an ideal form of their life upon earth. They plowed their fields and grew the grain which supplied them with the "bread which grew not stale and beer that never became sour." Here was situated the duplicate of their earthly towns or villages.

Great Cost of Baseball

Public Pays Over $5,000,000 Annually In Support of Game.

Last Year 25,000,000 People, It Is Estimated, Saw Game.

One can say that hundreds of thousands of dollars are expended annually for baseball games and convey in a vague way what baseball expenditure means.

Presuming that 25,000,000 spectators witnessed baseball games in 1905, which is the estimate of one well known authority, it is fair to say that at least half of the 25,000,000 paid admission to the games. Suppose that each of this 12,500,000 paid 25 cents to witness his favorite sport. That would make a gross total of $3,125,000 at the gate in one season. That begins to sound more like figures.

Now add to that the car fare which was expended by each spectator where the games were played in large cities and the amount which was handed out to the peanut boy and the lemonade peddler, and an idea begins to form that baseball receipts accumulate quite a total even if it is the cheapest and most popular form of outdoor sport.

Nor is what the spectator pays to witness the games all that is expended during the year. Great factories work day and night to make baseballs, and men have acquired fortunes in placing their wares before the public. Hundreds of tailors are employed in making baseball uniforms, and scores of turners gain a livelihood turning out baseball bats, while the forests of the middle west have been ransacked to obtain the best timber to provide the players with sticks to suit them.

Put a million dollars more on top of the amount paid to see games and the mark has jumped over $4,000,000.

THIRD BASEMAN HARTZELL, ST. LOUIS AMERICANS.

[Roy A. Hartzell, the clever young third baseman of the St. Louis American league club, is a native of St. Louis, where he was born July 6, 1881. He started his professional career as a pitcher with the Logan club of the Utah league in 1902. He began the season of 1903 as outfielder and later as third baseman of the Peoria club and finished the season with the Denver club of the Western league. Last year he was considered the star infielder of the Western league and attracted national attention. After lively bidding by several major league clubs the St. Louis club last fall succeeded in purchasing Hartzell's release for $2,500.]

Even that doesn't tell the story. Clubs expend large sums in travel. The railroads and the hotels are benefited. Spectators frequently journey long distances to witness matches between famous nines. At the world's championship series last fall there were several spectators who traveled all the way from California to the Atlantic coast to see the New York Giants and Philadelphia Americans play for the championship.

The fact is that baseball costs the people of the United States more than $5,000,000 annually, and the bill is growing heavier every year, but so small is the per capita expenditure and so great the enjoyment which is derived from the game that it is contributed with less complaint and more open indication of real satisfaction than any "indirect tax" which is levied upon the community at large in behalf of a good time.

President Pulliam of the National Baseball league recently issued the following contracts and releases:

Contracts—With Cincinnati, Charles Hall, John W. Deal and Frank Jude; with St. Louis, F. L. Beebe and P. Noonan.

Releases—By New York to Providence (Eastern league), Offa Neal; by Brooklyn to Newark (Eastern league), Charles Malay; by St. Louis, unconditionally, Joseph H. McCarthy.

Another Able Wagner.

It is about time some major league team had a mortgage on Shortstop Wagner of the Newark (N. J.) Eastern league team; it looks as though he may duplicate his namesake in the Pittsburg Nationals.

Seymour Wants Slice of Money

New York, Aug. 4.—"Cy" Seymour, the centrefielder for whose release the New York National league club paid $10,000 recently to the Cincinnati club, and who has been playing with the local team for some time, refused to put on a uniform here in the game against St. Louis. Seymour claims that he is entitled to a share of the money paid by the New York management to Cincinnati for his release, and until he receives this he says he will not play.

New Method of Advertising

Washington, Aug. 4.—In the last session of congress there was some severe criticism of the methods of the navy in securing enlistments, it being asserted that the pictures of a warship at anchor and trim sailors about to go out to her in a launch fired the imagination of young men who found the reality quite a different thing. Now it is proposed at the navy department to encourage enlistments by the use of moving pictures of actual scenes aboard men-of-war or ships in action.

Chinese Smuggling at $20 a Head

Helena, Mont., Aug. 4.—David Hoover, collector of customs at Gateway, and Quon Lee, a Chinaman, were held to a federal grand jury in bonds of $3000 each to answer to a charge of conspiracy to smuggle Chinese into the United States. The evidence tended to show that Hoover was to receive $20 a head for passing Chinese through the port of entry.

Awful Plunge to Death

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—In one of the busiest places in Philadelphia's great city hall, William Stott, an elderly resident of West Philadelphia, threw himself over the railing on the fifth and plunged 129 feet to the first floor. Nearly every bone in his body was broken. No cause is known for the suicide.

Pennsylvania's Coal Output

Harrisburg, Aug. 4.—The annual report of Chief Roderick of the state department of mines for the year 1905 shows that the total output of coal of Pennsylvania for 1905 represents a value at the mines of about $350,000,000 and at the points of distribution of about $650,000,000.

Negro a Triple Murderer

Washington, Pa., Aug. 4.—An inquest held into the murder by Elmer Dempster, a negro, of Mrs. Samuel Pearce and two of her children was held by the coroner at Canonsburg and Dempster was found guilty. Pearce manifested no interest in the finding.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Friends and admirers of the late Rev. William H. H. Murray, the Boston clergyman and author, known from his stories of the north woods as "Adirondack Murray," have effected the preliminary organization of what will be the Adirondack Murray Memorial association.

The new commercial treaty between the United States and Spain probably will become effective Sept. 1. Spain enjoys benefits equal to those of the most favored nation.

PROMPT WORK GOOD WORK

A FLAT FAILURE

By Cecilia A. Loizeaux

Copyright, 1906, by M. M. Cunningham

Bang went a window in the right hand third story flat. From the left hand flat in the same story directly across the hall there came a crash, followed by the shiver of broken glass. An old gentleman stepped out into the hall and waited. In a moment a second old gentleman appeared at the open door of his flat, evidently intending to slam it shut with all the power that lay in his strong right arm. But he, too, stopped as he saw his neighbor and then gave a shamefaced laugh.

"Broke a window pane trying to keep out the noise. That girl's dancing a polka on her piano and she's been at it four mortal hours. It's a shame, and I won't stand it any longer. There's going to be a change here!"

"If change is what you want, come over to my side. There you can hear singing. The young wretch down there aspires to be a tenor. He has been singing for so long that if he should stop now I'd be lonesome, I guess."

The piano player stopped long enough to get a new piece of music, and in the interval of comparative quiet there floated through the hallways the wails of a stringy tenor voice reiterating with long drawn out sadness:

"Oh-h-h, I ha-ave sighed to re-est me!"

"Now, just listen to that, will you!" said one disgustedly.

Soon the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home," embellished with unheard of variations, drowned out the wails of the tenor.

"Yes, I'll listen. Don't see how I can help myself," said the other. "Come in here, Adams," and he led the way into his rooms and out to the piazza at the back. It was the least noisy place he could think of.

"Now, what are we going to do about this thing? We've signed leases for two years for these flats, and we'd only had four months before this chunk of Signor Squalli's conservatory of music came out here to stir up this peaceful neighborhood. I've questioned the parents of 'em, and they've signed for a year. Now, what'll we do?"

"I don't know," said Adams as he offered his neighbor a cigar and bit the tip from his own. "I went through more or less noise during the war, but this—I've got so I can't tell when they stop and when they begin now, the stuff rings in my ears so. My wife says I was urging 'em to run a race in my sleep the other night and putting all sorts of money on the tenor."

"If he'd use all that energy doing something he'd be rich some day!" growled Mr. Bolton, between puffs.

"Work? Oh, no!" blazed Mr. Adams suddenly.

There was a few moments' silence while they listened to the tenor, who was holding his own.

"Oh, I have si-ighed to re-est me-e De-ep in the si-ilent grave!"

"Huh!" groaned Adams. "I'd like to dig it for him. I think it would be deep. I'm not so sure about the silent. But, see here, we're not getting on any. What are we going to do?"

"I thought of a plan last night," said Adams slowly, "if we could only put it through. You know the girl isn't much stuck on the tenor just now, and he doesn't seem to hanker much after her society. Musicians are such a jealous set! You see, that girl has only her mother, and he has only his—or these flats would be too small. Now"—and he brought his feet down from the railing and chewed his cigar fiercely in his excitement—"now, why shouldn't we fix things to get those two married? It would be a shame to spoil two families with 'em!"

"And as it is they're breaking up our happy homes," agreed the other.

"Why, Bolton," said Adams earnestly, "I haven't had a decent night's sleep or day's rest in months. I can't stand it. I went to see the rascally agent who turned 'em loose on us, and he was sympathetic enough, but he said they paid the rent, and he didn't feel to blame because he couldn't see it on 'em when they signed."

He chewed the end from another cigar. Bolton was chuckling Adams went on:

"You see, there ain't any law about these things, though there ought to be, and all we can do is to fix up something ourselves and bear the consequences. My wife and I have done everything we could think of. We've been down to call, one on one side, the other on the other side, at the same time, thinking that while we were there they'd stop at any rate."

"I could have told you better than that," grinned Bolton. "Tried it myself. Both old women deaf too. Don't wonder either. They've stood this for some years now, they tell me. Stuck us out in that beastly middle room and pulled the curtains. No doors even. Went at it like Sam Hill and let us screech at the old women."

"Well, let's get 'em married," insisted Adams. "Why not? Then they can fight it out in piece or in pieces. They'll have to move, because this place won't hold both of the old women and them too. Just so they get out of this neighborhood I don't care where they go."

They smoked a minute and then Bolton said:

"How do you propose to get 'em married?"

"I don't propose to do it alone. I can tell you that. You've got to help me. If you do it's easy enough." He waved his cigar in the air while he mapped out his campaign.

"It'll take some time, of course. First we get so neighborly we won't know ourselves. We go down and ask 'em to perform for our especial benefit—yes, we do, Bolton," he insisted as the other showed signs of mutiny.

"Well, go on."

"We invite 'em both up here and tell each of 'em the nice things the other is supposed to have said. We let the old women brag and no kicks coming. Do you see?"

"Yes," said Bolton, "I see. I suppose I must sacrifice myself to the cause. So be it."

They set themselves to work, together with their wives. The two men became so engrossed in their efforts with the young people that they hardly paid any attention to the noise that still went on. They noticed, though, that after a time there were intervals of total silence. The two young people occasionally left the house together. On rare occasions the young man carried a box of flowers into the house, and the girl was heard to play over and over with much feeling the love song of Paderewski. At such times the two old gentlemen adjourned to the back piazza and regarded each other with a deep and solemn joy. They felt that their plans were succeeding, but how well neither of them guessed until the climax was suddenly upon them—the culmination of all their dreams.

One evening one of the old women tapped at the doors of both flats and invited the two families downstairs rather mysteriously. The girl was dressed in white and was blushing, and the tenor, visibly nervous, seemed to be waiting for the bell to ring.

When it did ring, in a few moments, he ushered in the minister of a nearby church, where he sang on Sundays. Then he and the girl stood up, and before the old gentlemen knew what was happening the two were one, a musical unity. The joy of the two old men was deep—very deep. They shook hands with every one and then with each other. And then—

"Where are you going to live?" inquired Mr. Adams. "You must let us make a little contribution toward your housekeeping."

"Oh, that's the best part of it!" cried bride, groom and both old women at once. "The agent is going to get the landlord to take out the partition between our flats and make one big one, and we are all going to live here, and we can have the same rooms for studios, so we can go right on with our work. Aren't you glad? It was you who brought us together, and now we can stay right here with you."

Somehow the two old gentlemen got up their own flight of stairs when the awful evening was done. Silently they stood in the hall and looked at each other while their wives laughed heartlessly. Then without one word they opened the doors and disappeared within their own apartments.

A Good Luck Stone.

All through the ages the ruby has been called the stone of good luck. According to the old stories, whoever owned a ruby would never fail in anything he undertook, for that beautiful jewel held in its glowing red heart a magic power which always brought success. No matter how dangerous the task, the ruby was sure to give courage and victory. In the days of ancient Greece when the rich man wished to express to a friend good wishes for wealth or honor he sent to him a ruby engraved with the figures of an orator. Today the ruby is considered the luckiest of stones, though the good fortune, as we see it, lies in the owning of anything so precious, for even the diamond is not so valuable a gem. The ruby is the stone of July, and the fire which abides in its red heart is truly typical of that burning month of summer. According to legend, however, this fire varied with the fortune of the owner. A popular superstition in regard to the ruby was the belief in its power to foretell danger or disaster by the changing of its color. It was a favorite talisman and love token in the time of the crusaders.—St. Nicholas.

Easy Come, Easy Go.

A Michigan man tells a grimly humorous story of a lumberman who, after a hard winter in the lumber camps, appeared in the streets of one of the larger towns ready and anxious "to have a good time." This lumberman had with him the sum of $500, the proceeds of his season's labor—a sum for which he had toiled and slaved and risked his life in the lumber jams, enduring the while all the discomforts and tribulations of the rigorous winter. With the $500 thus painfully amassed the lumberman sought the comparative civilization of a lumber town. He first purchased himself a big drink and an expensive cigar; then hied him to a faro joint, where he staked his entire fortune on a single play. In another moment he was penniless. Shifting the cigar from one corner of his mouth to the other, the lumberman cheerfully observed, "Oh, well; easy come, easy go!"

A Secret Standard.

A small boy and his smaller sister of a West Philadelphia family were being interviewed by an admiring visitor. She asked the boy how old he was, but he had an attack of shyness and could not tell. His sister, however, did better and announced that he was six years old. "Six years old!" exclaimed the visitor. "What a big boy! And how tall are you?" This stumped both the children. The visitor expressed surprise that a six-year-old boy could not tell his height, and even the little sister hung her head in shame. Then the visitor gave it up and talked of other things, but soon the little girl edged around to her and whispered, "You mustn't tell mamma," she said, "but Rob is just tall enough to reach the jam on the pantry shelf."—Philadelphia Record

MEMORY IS BLANK

Miss Norris Can Recall Only Recent Events

IDENTITY IS ESTABLISHED

Lowell Police and Hospital Authorities Had Long Search For Relatives of the "Woman of Mystery," a Former Teacher

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 4.—With over two score years of her life as blank as a sheet of foolscap, her understanding of her surroundings like that of a child, "the woman of mystery," was positively identified as Miss Susan Norris at the city hospital, where she is trying desperately to recall the past.

Miss Norris has been confined at the hospital since April 6, having been found in the Merrimac river, at the foot of Colonial avenue, in an unconscious condition. She gave her name as "Margaret Kelly" and "Sarah Wilson."

Since then the hospital and police authorities have tried in vain to establish her identity, and it was through a photograph in a newspaper that her brother, John Norris, of Norris Bros., butchers, identified the woman as his sister, whom he has not seen for several years. She was also identified by Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Parker of Centralville, with whom she boarded previous to her escapade, and her sister, Mrs. Annie Barr.

No cause is known for her condition and the fact that she recognizes no one with whom she was intimately acquainted previous to her being confined at the hospital, is one of the most mysterious phases of the case.

When her brother called at the hospital she looked upon him as a total stranger. When seen by Mr. and Mrs. Parker she maintained the same indifference, displaying no sign of recognition.

Miss Norris has a very acute memory of conversations and events which have occurred since she regained consciousness.

Some 10 years ago Miss Norris was a school teacher, but when there came a change in the system of teaching she left this position and since then has occupied herself in various places. She is well educated and talented.

On March 25 she left her boarding place and was next found in an unconscious condition on the steps of the normal school. After being treated at the police station she was released. On April 3 she left home, saying she was going to North Adams.

Lumber Workers In Slavery

Pensacola, Fla., Aug. 4.—An investigation of the alleged peonage at the Jackson Lumber company's camp at Lockhart, Ala., resulted in Superintendent Gallagher and two other employes of the company being held under heavy bonds for the United States court. Many witnesses testified that the men had been beaten and ill-treated at the camp. One testified he had been beaten with ships, struck in the face with fists and kicked in the abdomen.

Paper Trust Closing Up Business

Milwaukee, Aug. 4.—Directors of the General Paper company held a meeting behind closed doors here with a view to winding up its affairs as a corporation in compliance with the decision handed down by the United States circuit court. It was said that the company had ceased to exist, but that one or two more meetings would probably be held before the final details of dissolution were completed.

Suicide Carefully Planned

New York, Aug. 4.—Despondent because of losses through speculation, Joseph M. Goldbacher, a lawyer, 51 years of age, committed suicide in his office. Goldbacher wrote two letters, one to an undertaker and the other to the coroner and the police. He pinned the letters to the front of his coat. This done, he lay back in his chair so that his body could not slide to the floor and then shot himself in the head.

Pennsylvania Town Flooded

Reading, Pa., Aug. 4.—A terrific cloudburst struck Hamburg and a 10-foot flood swept through the main portion of the town, leaving in its wake ruin. There are washouts in the streets to the depth of 10 feet. Alfred J. Romig was drowned. Many persons escaped drowning by rushing to the upper floors of their residences.

A New Line of Thieving

Boston, Aug. 4.—Telephone pay stations along the line of the Boston Elevated railroad have been robbed of their money boxes, a jimmy being used to pry off the box. To stop the robberies the New England Telephone and Telegraph company is contemplating making a burglar alarm connection with each box.

Bondsman Not Forthcoming

Pittsburg, Aug. 4.—Clifford S. Hixton, the bookkeeper of the Union Trust company of this city, who is under arrest and is said to have confessed to peculations amounting to $125,000, is still locked up in jail, having failed to secure the $20,000 bail fixed in the case.

Willing to Run With Bryan

Jeffersonville, Ind., Aug. 4.—Congressman Charles A. Towne of New York, in an address at the Southern Indiana Chautauqua, lauded William J. Bryan and said that he would be pleased to take second place on the national ticket with Bryan.

many signs of the bombardment, great rents in the walls, holes in the roof and destroyed windows telling their own tales. The correspondent was not permitted to examine in detail the fortifications held by the rebels, as these form part of the national defense and are secret. There is no question that until the warships came up the government was powerless to adequately reply to the mutineers and was simply able to hold its positions. The commander had scarcely fled from his headquarters, leaving them a heap of fallen ruins, when the warships crept up the coast and opened fire. Taken unaware, without leaders and with but little food, the mutineers gave up.

It now transpires that there were two officers among the mutinous men, Lieutenant Kohonsky and Lieutenant Emiljanoff. The latter was wounded. Kohonsky gave himself up to the Bogatyr and asked pardon.

The casualities are not yet known, but 650 men are missing. It is impossible to say how many were wounded. As previously cabled in these dispatches, only five officers were killed.

Moscow Regiment Uneasy

St. Petersburg, Aug. 4.—It is circumstantially asserted that there is overt dissatisfaction among the members of the Moscow regiment of the guards quartered in St. Petersburg. The demands formulated by the men are both economic and political. Cossacks have been sent to the barracks of this regiment.

Dragoons Charged Peasants

Kursk, Aug. 4.—An encounter took place here between peasants and dragoons, during which six peasants were killed and three were wounded. Several shots were fired from the crowd, whereupon the dragoons answered with three volleys.

Battleships After Mutineers

Helsingfors, Aug. 4.—The armored cruiser Pamyat Azova, whose crew mutinied off the Esthonian coast, has headed for Reval. The battleships Slava and Czarevich were sent from here in pursuit of the Pamyat Azova.

Governor Killed by Bomb

Samara, Russia, Aug. 4.—The governor of this city was instantly killed by a bomb thrown by an assassin who was subsequently arrested. The governor's head and feet were torn off by the explosion.

Two Hundred Sailors Arrested

Helsingfors, Aug. 4.—An incipient mutiny broke out yesterday on board the Russian cruiser Bogatyr. It was immediately put down with the arrest of 200 of the sailors on board.

Thieving Mayor Sentenced

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 4.—William K. Belcher, who surrendered himself on Monday last, was sentenced by Judge Scott to 12 years' imprisonment in the state prison at Trenton at hard labor, on a charge of embezzlement. Belcher disappeared from this city about a year ago, while he was mayor. He was alleged to have embezzled $100,000 to $150,000 from personal friends and from the Manchester Building and Loan association, which was forced to suspend business.

Looking Into Food Complaints

New York, Aug. 4.—For the purpose of testing the reports regarding the quality of meat served to the enlisted men at the Brooklyn navy yard, Commandant Coghlan of the yard has appointed a board of inquiry. Admiral Coghlan expects that the report will be ready in a day or two. There have been rumors that there has been considerable trouble on board the receiving ship Hancock over the meat and vegetables supplied.

Killed Because He Would Not Wed

New York, Aug. 4.—Because he had refused to marry her, Marie Shabara, an Italian girl, 22 years old, shot and killed her cousin, Nicola Ferraro, 34 years old, in the presence of hundreds of their countrymen. The young woman made no attempt to escape. She said that Ferraro, though already married, had promised to make her his wife, and that when he refused to do so, she determined to kill him.

The Business Outlook

New York, Aug. 4.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that aside from the seasonable dullness in wholesale departments, commercial activity is well maintained, and early preparations are made for autumn and winter business. August opened with no adverse developments in the trade situation, while crop progress during July was most favorable.

Chance of Saving the Nero

Washington, Aug. 4.—A report has been received at the navy department from Admiral Evans that there are some chances of saving the collier Nero, which went aground on Block Island. This report was based upon information furnished by Lieutenant Gherardi.

Death of Admiral Train

Chefoo, Aug. 4.—Rear Admiral Charles J. Train, commander-in-chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, died this morning of uraemia. He was born in Boston 61 years ago and was appointed to the navy from Massachusetts in 1861.

Meat Must Be Guaranteed Sound

New York, Aug. 4.—The Italian government has told all customs districts of the kingdom to refuse admittance to any shipment of meat products coming from United States ports, unless accompanied by a certificate of soundness.

OUR HOSPITAL

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE

Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

TO REPUBLICANS:

We are anxious to have every Republican in close touch, and working in harmony with the Republican National Congressional Committee in favor of the election of a Republican Congress.

The Congressional campaign must be based on the administrative and legislative record of the party, and, that being so, Theodore Roosevelt's personality must be a central figure and his achievements a central thought in the campaign.

We desire to maintain the work of this campaign with popular subscriptions of One Dollar each from Republicans. To each subscriber we will send the Republican National Campaign Text Book and all documents issued by the Committee.

Help us achieve a great victory.

The Roundup By Willie West

Broadside of Sporting Hot Shot—Matters Pertinent and Personal.

A certain district attorney in an eastern state not long ago headed a movement to put a stop to trotting racing in his county. Shortly after having his picture printed in the newspapers and giving an interview on the pernicious effects and dastardly evils of betting he was found playing fifty cent jack pot at midnight in his home with some bosom friends.

I think if John L. Sullivan was asked to give his opinion of this sterling young official the answer would make mighty picturesque reading for the torrid silly season.

New England has put on the market several young fighters that have unusual names. Three that might be mentioned are Kid Pantz and the two Stinger brothers, Battler and Kid. The Battler was stung by Kid Stinger's stingers recently.

Then there's Honey Mellody, the welterweight. Sweet is melody, and sweeter yet would bee honey were it not for the stingers that usually surround it.

I see my old pal John D. Rockefeller has been playing golf over in France. Well, say, after those Chicago meat exposures John D. is surely taking chances by getting so close to the links.

Captain Jake Stahl of the Washington Americans says no one can learn to play ball by reading any of the books on the subject now in circulation. Guess Jake is sore because he's never been asked to write one.

Clark Griffith tells of a novel play that happened when he was playing in the Pacific Coast league. It appears from Grif's story that Seattle had a left fielder whose arm was deader than Rameses II. and nearly as dead as Rameses I. He couldn't even lob the ball back to the diamond.

In a close game one afternoon against Butte at Butte one of the Butte players hit a long foul fly to left field, and the dead arm man went in pursuit of it. The field was lined with carriages, and near the foul line stood a buckboard to which were hitched two wild mustangs. As the dead armed ball player came tearing along after the foul the mustangs got scared and started to run away.

The dead armed man caught the ball, and the runner on third base started home, loitering along, knowing the fellow couldn't throw him out. The dead armed man after his jumping catch kept right on, and before he could stop he collided with the runaway buckboard and fell clear over into it. The runaways dashed across the field. The base runner dodged to avoid them, and the dead armed man, leaping from the buckboard, tagged the runner on the line and completed the double play.

Grif also has a grizzly bear story, but that is too tall to tell. Somebody might doubt it.

Both the National and American leagues are going to quit business next year because the English people say the game is really too noisy, don'tcher know, ever to be popular over there in Britain. That criticism by the cricket loving Britishers is the worst blow struck at the great American pastime since the day Harry C. Pulliam was made president of the National league.

P. S.—According to a few Americans, cricket is played indoors under the name of chess.

Captain Jack Dunn of the Providence (R. I.) team of the Eastern league recently ran headlong into a flock of troubles. President Harry Taylor suspended him for nine days and fined him $100, and Umpire Moran beat a drummer's tattoo on his face with both fists. "All I did," avers Jack, "was to pull Moran's nose for giving the worst decision I ever saw." Poor, abused Jack! His friends hope President Taylor will soon be done doing Dunn as he has done, for Dunn is done doing Moran. The players aver that it was Moran and not Dunn that did the doing.

LABOR LAW IS VOID

Decision by New York Court of Special Sessions

INVOLVES TEN-HOUR DAY

Factory Women No More Subject to Legislative Interference Than Women Who Toil In Other Pursuits or Not at All

New York, Aug. 4.—The state law of New York, restricting the labor by women and children to 10 hours a day and 60 hours a week in a factory, was declared by Justice Olmstead, in a decision handed down in the court of special sessions, to be "an unwarranted invasion of constitutional rights." The ruling was concurred in by Justices McLean and Deuel.

David I. Williams, proprietor of a book-binding establishment, was arrested last January on a charge of violating the law in question. He filed a motion for an arrest of judgment, which was granted yesterday. The defendant was discharged from custody. Judge Olmstead declared that the law was class legislation. He said in his decision:

"To labor and employ labor are inherent and inalienable rights of our citizens and cannot be taken away in whole or in part unless upon the broad ground of public good, which must be apparent and cannot be predicated upon legislative dictum.

"In the case under consideration the right of the employed and the right of the employer are equally involved. Nothing to the contrary appearing, it must be assumed that the woman was a willing worker for a willing employer, and that the result was mutually satisfactory and profitable. No argument is needed to show that both the employer and the employed have been restricted in their rights by the law in question.

"The present Constitution of the State of New York was adopted in 1894 and became effective Jan. 1, 1895. All of the rights which adult women possessed at that time were confirmed by that document. One of those rights certainly was the right to contract for her labor and to work when and where she pleased without reference to the position of the hands upon the dial of the clock. It was not until four years after that the lawmaking power sought to place the limitation under consideration upon them.

"What was the legislative intention in doing this? The attorney general finds and urges no other reason than that the general welfare of the state demands that the progeny of women of the factories shall have mothers with healthy bodies to the end that the state may have sturdy citizens.

"Does the state look merely to the children of the factory women for its future good citizens? Why should not the housewife, the woman who toils at home, in mercantile houses, in offices, or she who toils not at all—the society woman—be exempt from legislative interference, injunctive or mandatory, for the same reason? Some of them may be mothers of future citizens, and it should be of as great interest to the state that they progeny should have proper birth and breeding to conserve its welfare. If this question of future citizenship is the only excuse for the assumption of police power, what becomes of the rights of the non-child-bearing woman, a considerable class?"

Attorney General Mayer announced last night that he would appeal from the decision of the court. "I will carry the case, if needs be," he said, "to the United States supreme court, so long as the question of constitutionality of the statute has been raised."

Lost Heavily at San Francisco

Hamburg, Aug. 4.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Hamburg-Bremen Fire Insurance company the directors informed the stockholders that the total losses of the company as a result of the San Francisco disaster amounted to $4,365,000. The reserve on hand amounted to $2,500,000 and it would therefore be necessary for the stockholders to pay 50 percent on the capital.

Candidates to Succeed Dowie

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Two candidates filed their certificates of nomination for the office of general overseer of the Christian Apostolic Catholic church in Zion in the United States district court here. The candidates are Wilbur G. Voliva and Alfred E. Bills. Bills is said to be a property owner in Zion City and has lived in that city for five years. Dowie will not be a candidate.

Railroads to Be Prosecuted

Washington, Aug. 4.—Attorney General Moody has directed further prosecutions of a number of railroads for violations of the federal safety appliance acts. The United States attorneys for the various districts wherein the violations were committed will be directed to file and vigorously prosecute suits for the recovery of the statutory penalty.

Simple Matter Precipitates Strike

Butte, Mont., Aug. 4.—The five mines of the Boston and Montana company have shut down, the men being informed that the properties will remain inactive until the strike of the smeltermen at one plant of the company has been settled. It is said that one man, who is in arrears on his union dues, is the whole cause of the trouble.

The South Quincys and Coplands play at South Quincy this afternoon.

Judge Avery of the district court returns to the bench Monday after a month's vacation.

The moonlight sail of the Wollaston Yacht club announced for last night was called off on account of the fog.

The next interclub yacht race will be sailed under the auspices of the Wollaston club next Saturday, starting at 2.30 P. M.

Elmer Dorety is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dorety of Beach street, Wollaston.

The alarm from Box 124 at 6.41 last night was a false alarm. The apparatus from the Central and Wollaston stations made remarkably quick runs.

Lieut. Corcoran of the Central Fire station and Driver Genero of the wollaston fire station begin their annual vacations Monday.

There will be a service at the Universalist church on Sunday afternoon, Rev. W. S. Perkins, D. D., taking as his subject, "The Beatitudes."

Some of Quincy's poll taxpayers have had a summons forwarded to their vacation addresses recently, and it rather marred their pleasures.

Gordon Rowe of Wollaston, who was run over by an automobile in Quincy last Thursday, is reported as quite comfortable this morning, having passed a restful night.

Mrs. A. H. Gilson of Linden place has been the guest of her cousins, Dr. P. P. Comey and family of Worcester, at their summer home at Clifton Heights.

Master Gordon Harley has returned to his home in Providence, R. I., after a three weeks' visit at the Beckford home on Washington street. Miss Esther Beckford accompanied him home.

Captain Charles P. Costa of the Central fire station returned this morning from a trip to New York. While in the Metropoliton city, he visited a number of the fire department houses.

Miss H. Berger and M. Quinn of the new firm of the Modern Home Furnishing Co. at Adams building, went for a two weeks' stay in New York to buy their fall stock of furniture, clothing and ladies' garments for the new concern.

The huge old elm tree that has stood for many years on the lot adjoining the estate of Mr. James E. Coll, on Arlington street, Wollaston, was cut down this week. It will be much missed by many of the older residents of the street.

The Deweys will journey to Brockton this afternoon to meet Manager Reardon's Walkovers at Walkover park. The result of this game will decide whether the locals are in the class with Walkovers and Stoughtons or not. The game will undoubtedly be a good one, as Cate is a troublesome pitcher against a good team.

☞Scores of base ball games played Saturday should reach the Daily Ledger office before 8 A. M. Monday.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The Zingari troupe, claimed to be the best mixed vocal organization in the varieties, will make their initial bow to Keith's audiences as the principal attraction of a capital variety program announced from that theatre for this week of Aug. 6. There are eight people in the act, five women and three men, all noted for the excellence of their vocalism, and they will present a unique novelty, entitled "Dyppy Life," with handsome scenic investiture and costuming. There will be but a single sketch in the surrounding program presented by Estelle Wordette and company, and entitled, "A Honeymoon in the Catskills," and it is said to be one of the most delightful short plays in the varieties. Included in the surrounding show will be several newcomers and others favorably known hereabouts. The Fadettes woman's orchestra will inaugurate the tenth week of their summer engagement.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

No operas are more popular than the good old operas of long ago. Of these one of the most familiar and best is "Martha," and it combines all the characteristics of grand and comic opera. Its music is brilliant and filled with a constant succession of beautiful melodies, and its plot and situations are alternately serious in their romance and rollickingly humorous in their comedy. "Martha" has never grown old, despite the fact that it has been sung ten thousand times to the audiences of this and preceding generations, and even in this modern day of novelty and twentieth century excitement, it is as much admired and applauded as at its first production. When "Martha" is produced at the Castle Square Theatre next week it will have every advantage of a cast that will introduce all the leading favorites of the summer opera company.

GREATER PARAGON PARK.

It is somewhat of a remarkable fact that the small admission price to Greater Paragon Park provides a whole day's entertainment with no need of making any further expenditure unless the visitor so desires. In other words the seeker of amusement at this beach resort of a million marvels at Nantasket, may enter the park at the opening time, 1 o'clock, and from that hour until 6.30, when the proper place to go is to the Palm Garden to dinner, there is continuous entertainment of some sort to take up every minute of the time without going into any of the attractions where an extra admission is charged

GRAND OPERA HOUSE OPENING.

A. H. Woods' new melodrama, "Bertha, the Sewing Machine Girl," will have its first presentation in Boston at the Grand Opera House Saturday evening, August 4, and continuing next week. The story takes place in New York City and extends over four acts and twelve scenes, among the more prominent being, The Grand Central Station; Central Park; The Tenement District; The "Sweat-Shop;" The Egyptian Chamber; The Motor Boat Chase on the Hudson; The Engine House; The Bertillion Room at the Tombs and the Court Room. Two carloads of special scenery and mechanical effects are carried, and the equipment includes; a real fire engine, two automobiles, a motor boat, a motor cycle and three horses. Several sewing machines will be given away during this engagement, of which full particulars will be given later.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquors seized from James McFarland at Quincy, were forfeited.

The continued cases of Charles Edwards, Edgar White, James Gillon, Thomas Bradley and John Gillon, for creating a disturbance on a street car at Quincy.

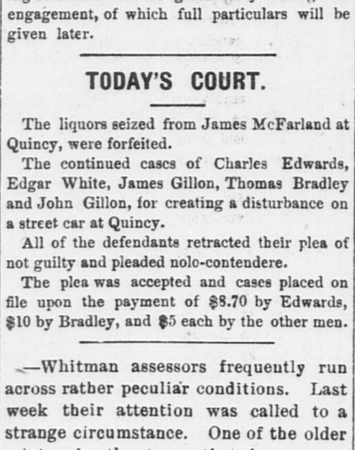

All of the defendants retracted their plea of not guilty and pleaded nolo-contendere.

The plea was accepted and cases placed on file upon the payment of $8.70 by Edwards, $10 by Bradley, and $5 each by the other men.

—Whitman assessors frequently run across rather peculiar conditions. Last week their attention was called to a strange circumstance. One of the older estates in the town that has not yet been settled, is assessed for an acre of land, valued at $10. The land has been assessed for years, and neither the assessors nor the representatives of the estate know where it is. They are trying to find out where the property is located.

The trip to old Plymouth by trolley seems to be about as popular a feature of street railroading as has ever been inaugurated in this section. Besides the scenic interest of the route, which lies through the most beautiful section of eastern Massachusetts, through green meadows and farmlands and beside cool streams and lakes, the trip is through a region replete with old-time associations and relics of the forefathers.—Boston Journal.

INTERVIEW IN THE AIR

Aeronaut 4,000 Feet Aloft Talks to American Correspondent.

"BALLOONS TO RIVAL MOTORS"

Prediction of Hon. C. S. Rolls as to Future of the Sport Made In First Aerial Interview High Above London—International Cup Favored. How the Novel Pastime Is Gaining Recruits.

The New York Herald recently published the following from its London correspondent:

To interview a man successfully in a balloon it is as well to get inside the nacelle at the very outset, before the ropes are cast off and the prodigious starting bound is made; otherwise megaphones and shouting instruments become imperative. I was seeking the Hon. C. S. Rolls to discuss the English aeronautical movement, and I caught him just as he was about to take a couple of friends from the Chelsea gas works for an evening spin in the balloon Venus, then rolling about in obedience to the strong air currents which came shooting through the railway arches and around the vast gas holders.

"If you want to talk," said Mr. Rolls, "you had better come along. We shall have plenty of time in the air."

I got into the basket, and the next minute the world seemed falling away from beneath us. The wind was blowing toward the northwest at about fifteen miles an hour, but just as we left the ground a counterpuff struck us and sent us spinning toward a huge reservoir on the right. It looked as though we should strike and perhaps rip the gas bag open, but the puff was only temporary, and just at the moment when the netting was on the point of catching in the iron stems it died away and we shot clear above London to a height of 2,000 feet and commenced to travel toward the wormwood scrubs and the open country beyond.

London viewed from a balloon is well worth seeing. Practically the entire metropolis lay stetched beneath us, and we could study the various buildings, parks and thoroughfares easily, as on a map. At 2,000 feet the houses looked like dog kennels and the palaces like huts. The cemetery, with its countless tombstones, appeared like a huge double six in a domino set. Hyde park looked like a cricket field and the Serpentine a drinking pond.

We continued to rise until a height of 4,000 feet was registered. We were now traveling over open country, and, with the exception of a slight haze to the north, we had an extensive range of vision.

"Can you imagine anything finer than this?" asked Mr. Rolls enthusiastically, as he threw out a shovelful of ballast. "Are you surprised that the sport is growing every day and that everybody is simply wild to go on a trip? During the last few months I have spent far more time up in the clouds, so to speak, than anywhere else. Each trip I make pleases me more than the last, and, as most of my excursions are undertaken with the object of converting prejudiced and nervous people— Hallo! What's that?"

While descanting on the pleasant theme Mr. Rolls had not been looking at the barometer, and when he did glance at it he saw we had fallen 1,000 feet or so and were still nearing the earth. Over went a bag of ballast, and that barely sufficing, another was scattered by degrees.

"That comes of being interviewed in a balloon," remarked Mr. Rolls. "If you want to show a decent line of flight at the end of the run you must keep your eye on the barometer. That drop will make the sailing chart look ugly."

But Mr. Rolls was induced to talk again.

"What do I think of the International Ballooning cup? Well, I believe it will ultimately assume an importance far greater than the automobile cup of the same name. Just look at the list of entries for the first year. Practically every civilized country is represented in the race. I believe this event will mark definitely the turning point in aeronautical sport. The forward movement set in, so far as England is concerned, a year ago. With the gigantic advertisement provided by this approaching contest the movement will become prodigious. Of this I am persuaded."

While we were talking we were drifting along over cornfields, pasture land and low chains of hills, where the trail rope scraped hedges and where the shadow of the huge envelope scared ducks and pigs into frenzy. We were nearing Aylesbury when a long dipping line toward the earth began. A great open field was chosen, and toward the middle of this we aimed.

We all had something to do. Mr. Rolls held the rip cord and valve, Mr. Moore other important tackle and Mr. Vincent some ballast, while I threw out the anchor. There was a slight bump as we struck. The bump was repeated half a dozen times before the great mass became stationary. There was no danger. The wind was so light that even the rip cord was unnecessary. The gas was allowed to escape by the valve.

Then villagers turned out in scores, and the good old rector hurried to offer all hospitality in his power, such as refreshments and a trap to the nearest station.

"Surely," said Mr. Rolls as we separated at Marylebone, "you have secured the first interview in a balloon. I doubt if any man ever talked for publication in such altitudes before."

FAMILY MEALS.

Don't Let Ceremony Crush Out Cheerfulness and Sociability.

A certain amount of ceremony should be observed even at the simplest family meal, but when this is carried too far it crushes sociability and cheerfulness.

One should be careful not to eat so rapidly that the food may not be properly masticated or that one will have finished while the others at the table are still eating. If it is necessary to ask for anything during a meal, one should take the opportunity of speaking quietly to the waitress when she is near or wait until it is possible to catch her eye.

When a meal is announced go to the table promptly. It is annoying to the housekeeper and cook to have the meals delayed. It often happens that a few minutes' waiting may spoil some dish, and in any case it causes a waste of precious time to the housekeeper and other members of the family. Some thoughtless people seem to think that it matters less that the whole family is kept waiting five minutes or more than that they should complete the work which they happen to have in hand. There are many jars and breaks in the household machinery from this cause alone.

In many households where there is a regular waitress there is a rule sometimes that nothing shall be handed by the members of the family.

In offering to serve any one at the table use one of these forms: "May I help you?" "May I offer [or send] you?" "Let me give you," etc. The form "Will you have?" is out of place save for a waitress, who is usually trained to wait on the table in silence.

CHILD TRAINING.

How One Father Manages Disputes Among the Youngsters.

A mothers' magazine calls attention to the fact that the old adage, "Children should be seen and not heard," has little place in the modern systems of child training and says it is quite right that it is so, especially in the case of the child with a grievance. Children, with all their chattering, are strongly inarticulate when it is a matter of explaining their feelings, and a child may suffer more than the adults around it ever dream over some injustice, real or fancied, which it would probably have difficulty in putting into words. If the parents are continually telling it to "Hush up!" and "Keep still, now!" there is every chance of developing a fairly sulky youngster in time.

In one New York home, where the father takes an active part in the training of the children, as few fathers do in this country, unfortunately, no dispute among the children and no grievance of any of them passes unnoticed, especially if the father is around. No matter what he may be doing, he drops it and instantly opens a kind of informal children's court, getting at the bottom of the trouble by the gentlest of questioning. This takes some of his time, of course, but to those children their father is the ideal of justice, a confidant who never fails them.—New York Tribune.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Remove warts by rubbing several times with onion dipped in salt.

Butter will take the soreness from a bruise and will often prevent discoloration.

When the gums are tender and bleeding, the mouth should be rinsed with warm water to which listerine has been added.

Grape fruit is said to have, in smaller degree, qualities similar to those of quinine and will allay inflammation and break up malarial disorders if taken in time.

Never neglect a sore throat. A good gargle can be made by mixing in equal quantities a teaspoonful of salt and carbonate of soda and dissolving these in half a tumbler of cold water.

A splendid laxative sirup may be made as follows: Put a half pound of raisins, prunes and figs to soak in three pints of cold water. Bottle the sirup after two days and take a tablespoonful night and morning.

Cloth Cold Without Ice.

In case of fever or weakness a cold cloth on the forehead or face or base of the brain is one of the most comforting things in the world. In the tropical hospitals and where ice is scarce all that is necessary is to wet a linen cloth, wave it to and fro in the air, fold it and place it on the patient. Have another cloth ready, waving it to and fro just before applying it. These cloths have a more grateful and lasting coolness than those made so by the extreme cold, sometimes called burning cold or ice.

For a Business Woman.

One good tailored suit, spring and fall; plain smart waists to wear with this to the office; a fancy waist to freshen it up for the theater and Sundays; a rainy day skirt and coat for bad weather; a trim, rather small and becoming hat; a comfortable house gown to slip on when she goes home at night.

The above may seem like a modest wardrobe, but for the woman who is in business to win and who hasn't much time to fool over clothes it may be taken as a safe guide.—Chicago News.

Salted Pecans.

Salted pecans are even more delicious than salted almonds. They are rarely prepared at home for the reason that the nuts are difficult to remove from the shells without breaking the meats. This difficulty is entirely overcome by pouring boiling water over the nuts, letting the water cool on them. Crack by striking small ends of nuts and salt as you would almonds.

Summer Outing

The Granite Manufacturers Enjoy a Day At Nantasket

The summer outing of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association on Saturday was very largely attended, about 300 participating in the trip to Nantasket. There were so many more than expected that the Rockland House was unable to serve a satisfactory dinner. This was a great disappointment to the committee, but so many purchased their tickets that morning that it upset all calculations.

However the day was one of enjoyment. It was high tide when the special train from Quincy pulled into the Nantasket station at 11 A. M., and a large excursion from Worcester and vicinity arrived by steamboat at the same hour.

Had the Quincy men not been decorated with badges, they would have been known as members of one party, for each wore a beautiful dahlia, the gift of George F. Elcock of West Quincy. The choice flowers attracted much attention and were prized by their wearers.

Several of the party enjoyed a dip in old ocean and found everything at the Metropolitan bathhouse scrupulously clean and inviting. Fully 500 were in the water at one time, and it was a sight to witness.

The granite men also enjoyed a very exciting ball game. Teams were chosen by Representative-to-be J. H. Elcock and ex-Representative Harry Nicoll, the former composed largely of West Quincy men were known as the Clams, while the South Quincy men were known as Lobsters. The teams:

THE CLAMS.		THE LOBSTERS.
L. Badger,	pitcher	W. Spargo.
E. Elcock,	catcher	J. Hector.
I. Badger,	1 B	S. Barnicoat.
W. Herbert,	2 B	J. Collins.
L. Tirrell,	3 B	J. McIntosh.
Parody,	S. S.	R. Craig.
Dr. Ash,	L. F.	B. Miller.
A. Kemp,	C. F.	T. Miller.
W. Burke,	R. F.	H. Lark.

The battery work was something wonderful on both sides, but the curves were so intricate that they got by the catchers. The fielding, however, was so perfect and the runners so tired, that only a few runs were scored.

Just how many depends on whose score one swears by, but the facts are that the game ended in a tie, if a score of 3 to 2 may be so considered, but which one was 3 and which one was 2 the Ledger will not say.

At the dinner there were no speeches, although several were credited by Boston papers with flowery remarks. President Miller and the committee did all the talking, and it was mostly directed to the proprietor of the house.

Paragon Park had attractions for most of the party, as everybody had free admission. Many made the rounds of the attractions, and stopped long after the illumination in the evening, rounding out a long day.

At the head table were:

Fore River Vs. The League

At the annual meeting of the Merrimac Valley football league on Sunday these offices were elected: President, J. M. Dunbar; Vice-president, Angus M. Cameron; treasurer, G. Wylie; auditors, J. Anderson and A. Gaudrodger; secretary, John Drinnan, 22 Cottage street, West Lynn.

It was voted to organize a second division, and applications have been received from the Everetts, Brocktons, Beverleys, and others.

In the first division are: Andover, Boston Rovers, Fore River, Merrimac, Quincy, Methuen, Lawrence, Lynn, Brighton and the Bostonians.

The challenge of the Fore River team of Quincy to play a picked team from all the other clubs was accepted, and the match will take place at Quincy Saturday, Aug. 25.

Mrs. E. W. Bowker of 313 Highland avenue won the ladies' prize, and I. Wendell Gammons of Braintree the gentlemen's prize, in this district in the Herald contest, the former being awarded a traveler's outfit valued at $125, and the latter a library valued at $150. The grand prize went to Benny Piscopo of Boston who polled 1,298,730 votes.

To the Lover of Good Coffee

We have installed a new Royal Electric Coffee Mill which is equipped with cutters which cut the berry into uniform particles (instead of grinding it). Thus it is not crushed as by the old method, and the little oil cells remain unbroken. The essential oil (food product) cannot evaporate and is preserved indefinitely.

This is one reason why a pound of coffee cut in this mill will make from fifteen to twenty cups more of full strength coffee than will any coffee ground the old way. One feature about this mill is that you can have your coffee cut as fine as the finest sand, and it will still be free from that fine dust that is produced by the old method of grinding, therefore you will always have a clear cup of coffee, instead of the muddy effect which is the result of the old way of grinding.

When you see this mill in a dealer's store you can rest assured that he is trying to have you get the best results obtainable from your coffee.

Royal Cut Coffee is Especially Adaptable for Percolators or French Drip Coffee Pots.

Try a pound of our Coffee Cut on a Royal Mill and we know you will be pleased with the results.

Yours very truly,

The Auk May Meet Germans

When interviewed on the respective merits of the Sonder Klasse yachts Sumner H. Foster, the Norfolk County Commissioner, said:

"You might as well cut out the two Herreshoff boats, the Skidoo and Chewink VI., also the Sumatra, Cod and the Alecto. They will not be among the three chosen to represent America." Mr. Foster thought the Manchester would be first and the Auk second. He was in doubt as to the third boat. He thinks the Sally VIII. is a good, all around boat, but doubts if she will be among those chosen.

The Herald adds: The opinion of Mr. Foster is held by many of the leading yachtsmen as to the two leaders.

In Saturday's race the wind was light and fluky. The Hayseed III took first place and the Auk of Quincy second. The summary follows:

Hottest Day Of the Season

Today is the first this year when the temperature at noon has reached the 90 degree point. There have been several days when the temperature at noon has registered 89 but never higher. Today it was 92 but a light southwesterly breeze made it a little more comfortable than some of the muggy days in the recent past.

Back From Nantucket.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Ela of Faxon avenue, who have been enjoying a week's outing at Nantucket, returned home Sunday evening, and have brought a good fish story with them. Saturday afternoon they drove over to Sesachacha pond with a couple of friends and made a record catch of white perch, in one and a half hours landing over two hundred handsome specimens.

Mr. and Mrs. Ela proved themselves expert anglers and beat their Nantucket friends by a large majority. Seasackacha pond is the largest body of fresh water on Nantucket island, being over one mile long and three-quarters of a mile wide. It is renowned for its famous perch fishing and although many large catches have been reported this season, that made by Mr. and Mrs. Ela on Saturday was the largest made in such a short time.

To Visit Quincy.

The Marblehead Historical society and their friends will make an excursion to Quincy on Tuesday, the fourteenth instant. Those leaving by train and electrics will meet at the Bostonian rooms in the Old State house at the head of State street, Boston, at about 11 o'clock, spend an hour examining the historical collection of the Bostonian society and at about 12.30 take the electrics for Quincy, where the Old Meeting house, the Quincy house and the Adams house with their historic collections will be visited.—Marblehead Messenger.

Dynamite in Bonfire.

Itzke Shread, aged 9 years, 347 Water street, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Sunday afternoon, by an explosion caused by his throwing a dynamite cap into a fire which the boys had built in a field off Water street. The boy had found the cap and at the suggestion of some of the others threw it into the fire to see a red and blue flame. The explosion which followed scattered the fire and peppered the boy's legs with small stones. His injuries were attended by Dr. McClauslin who said they were not serious.

A Conference.

Secretary Walsh of Quincy is taking a hand in the street railway trouble at New Bedford. A Boston paper of Saturday says: President Rose of Lynn and Secretary Walsh of Quincy came today to consult the international officers, and will have full charge of arranging the details of the conference.

Sneak Thief On Goffe Street

The following article was in type for publication in the Saturday issue of the Daily Ledger but was suppressed at the request of the police department that definite information might not meet the eye of the suspected party.

A sneak thief was about Quincy Friday afternoon and visited two houses, but was only successful in obtaining something of value from one, that of A. F. Schenkelberger.

The fellow visited the residence of John Shaw of Goffe street, but was unable to gain an entrance to the house.

He then went to the residence of Mr. Schenkelberger near by where he told the servant who answered the bell that he had some real estate business to transact with Mr. Schenkelberger, and that he would come in and wait his return.

How long he waited is not known, but sometime later he was missed. A German flute valued at $200 was also among the missing.

Saturday morning Lieut. McKay succeeded in finding the flute in a Boston pawnshop.

The thief had bargained to sell the flute to the pawnbroker for $30. He received $10 on account and was to come around Monday for the balance of his money. If he comes, as agreed, it will be all up with him for he will find an officer waiting for him.

Mr. Schenkelberger paid the $10 that had been advanced on the instrument by the pawnbroker to recover his property.

Atlantic Man Pleads Guilty

Deputy United States Marshall Bancroft had a hard time serving a warrant on J. A. Flanagan of Atlantic. The warrant against Flanagan was for sending defamatory postal cards through the mail to E. D. Blackwell.

A post office inspector was unable to interview Flanagan and a Deputy Marshall was sent after him. Flanagan lives at 68 Madison street and repeated rings of the door bell not meeting with response the door was broken in. It was some time before the man wanted was found. He was there hidden in a hole in the attic over which a board had been placed.

Flanagan was arraigned Saturday before United States Commissioner Hayes. He pleaded guilty and was held in $500 for the September session of the grand jury.

Mr. Hilay Berger of 98 Franklin street, has gone to New York and will return August 13th and will give prompt attention to his patrons. o 1w.

DEMAND FOR BRYAN

General Sentiment of Democrats of Massachusetts

QUINCY AS MOUTHPIECE

Says Nebraskan's Following Is Only Exceeded by That of Roosevelt--Not In Sympathy With Moran--Dewey's Ideas

Boston, Aug. 6.—The candidacy of William J. Bryan for the Democratic nomination for president was the subject of a statement given out by former Mayor Josiah Quincy, chairman of the Democratic state committee, who urges strongly the nomination of Bryan and at the same time dwells in a decisive manner upon the canvass for the Democratic nomination for governor of Massachusetts. Although Quincy does not mention the name of District Attorney Moran, it is well understood that Moran's candidacy is the one which the state leader deprecates as threatening to disrupt the party in this state.

Chairman Quincy will take an active part in the coming reception to Bryan at New York. After pointing out that he has named as the 10 members of the local committee of arrangements Democrats representing all elements of the party here, Quincy says:

"So far as I have been able to ascertain, the sentiment of those who now make up the membership of the state and local Democratic organization in this commonwealth is at the present time overwhelmingly in favor of the nomination of Mr. Bryan in 1908. I have no doubt that this feeling will find official expression at the proper time, perhaps very soon.

"The demand that has arisen spontaneously throughout the country for the renomination of a twice-defeated candidate is certainly a remarkable tribute to the personal and political character of Mr. Bryan. No public man in either party, with the single exception of Mr. Roosevelt, possesses such a large following among voters all over the country. * * * I am satisfied that Roosevelt's wise decision not to run again is irrevocable, and the Republican party cannot produce, I believe, any other candidate whose popularity or personality will match those of Bryan. He has many of the strong qualities, such as courage, independence and tenacity of purpose, which have given Roosevelt such a hold upon the people, with more poise, stability and responsibility in his character. * * * We have no man in public life in this country of more transparent sincerity and political honesty. While Bryan is undoubtedly to be classed as a radical in his political views, he has recently declared in a conspicuous manner his opposition to Socialism."

Coming down to another topic which is accepted as a comment upon Massachusetts conditions and the candidacy of Moran, Quincy declares that the chief menace to the candidacy of Bryan and to his success at the polls comes not from the so-called conservative wing of the party, but from the political activities of the extreme radical or Socialistic element of the party.

"The candidates fostered and promoted by theorists in several states," says Quincy, "seriously threaten to disrupt the Democratic party, because of their irregular and rule-or-ruin character. Regular Democrats have every right to resent any candidacy for their party nomination which is founded upon party disloyalty, openly announced in advance, and relied upon as a means of political coercion."

In announcing his intention to try for the Democratic nomination for governor, Moran, who is already the Prohibition nominee, recently issued a statement which was considered an expression of hostility to the so-called conservative wing of the party.

Another political statement issued is that from Judge Henry S. Dewey, the independent Republican candidate for mayor of Boston last year. Dewey declares himself a "stand-patter" on the tariff and expresses the opinion that Governor Guild should not be renominated because of the governor's views on the tariff. He suggests Lieutenant Governor Draper for the head of the ticket on a "stand-pat" policy.

Almost Plunged to Death

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Charles Walsh and his wife, with several women, were rescued from a disabled launch in the Niagara river just at the danger line as the craft was starting over the falls. The launch lost its propellor. Walsh tried to drop anchor, but it did not hold. They then shipped the oars and they snapped like pipestems in the attempt to drive the heavy launch against the rapid current. One of the women tied a skirt to a broken oar and the attention of people on shore was attracted. The party was rescued at the danger line.

Plan to Have Comstock Ousted

New York, Aug. 6.—If the Art Students' league has its way, Anthony Comstock will lose his job with the Society for the Suppression of Vice as a result of his raid at the league's headquarters last Thursday. Arthur N. Fuller, president of the league, held a long conference with the league's attorney. He took to the lawyer's office a handful of telegrams received from prominent artists and sculptors all over the country. All of them urged the league to fight Comstock and offered financial assistance.

Boy Crazed by Hunger

New York, Aug. 6.—While apparently crazed by hunger, John Carle, a homeless youth, crept behind William C. Pearson, a traveling salesman, who was walking through a street here, and plunged a long knife into his back. As Pearson fell Carle sprang upon him and began rifling his pockets, but ran away when a dozen passers-by rushed on him. Half a block away he was captured by a policeman. Pearson was probably fatally wounded.

Trolley Passenger Killed

Danville, Ills., Aug. 6.—A heavily loaded trolley car was overturned while rounding a sharp curve last night. One man was killed and 20 passengers were injured. The accident was caused by a drawbar pulling out of the front trucks. The car rolled down a 10-foot embankment.

ON A ROCKY LEDGE

Passenger Steamer Crashes While Running Full Speed

THE CAPTAIN TO BLAME

Awful Scene of Panic, In Which Many Were Trampled to Death --Bravery of Fishermen In the Vicinity Saved Many Lives

Cartagena, Spain, Aug. 6.—A terrible marine disaster occurred Saturday evening off Cape Palos, when the Italian steamship Sirio, from Genoa for Barcelona, Cadiz, Montevideo and Buenos Ayres, with about 800 persons on board, was wrecked off Hormigas island and over 300 emigrants, most of them Italians and Spaniards, were drowned. The captain of the steamer committed suicide.

The Sirio struck a rocky reef known as Bajos Hormigas and sank soon after, stern first. Hormigas island lies 2½ miles to the eastward of Cape Palos.

Before he committed suicide, the captain declared the steamer had 645 passengers on board and that her crew numbered 127 men. The Sirio had 570 passengers when leaving Genoa, but additional Spanish passengers were taken on board at Barcelona, where the vessel touched a few hours before the disaster.

The accident occurred at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The steamer was threading a difficult passage through the Hormigas group, where the Bajos Hormigas reef is a continual menace to navigation. The vessel began to settle rapidly immediately she had struck, and a terrible scene of confusion and panic ensued on board. The fishermen along the coast sought to render every assistance in their power, and sent out boats which brought many survivors ashore. Most of the officers and crew of the Sirio are among the saved.

The survivors have gone into camp on the main square of the town of Cape Palos. Here harrowing scenes are enacted as the stricken families anxiously seek beloved members among the rescued. A mother who lost her three children went insane. The doctor of the Sirio gave up his wife and child as lost, but they were finally brought in by one of the rescuing boats, and the scene as this family was reunited was most affecting. One of the boats sent out by the fishermen brought in 24 passengers.

The condition of the survivors is most deplorable. They have lost everything and are without money, food or clothing. The maritime authorities of Cartagena have dispatched a tug to the scene, carrying relief supplies. The buildings of a circus and the poorhouse are being used as temporary quarters for survivors.

An additional sadness is added to the catastrophe owing to the fact that a number of fishermen who were conducting rescuing operations were drowned in consequence of the overturning of a boat.

The captain of the Sirio, before he killed himself, attributed the wreck to his own imprudence. The Sirio left Genoa Aug. 2.

From the broken narratives of the terror-stricken survivors, it would appear that it was the intention of the captain of the Sirio, after leaving Barcelona, to call at Cadiz before proceeding to Brazil. The captain, in order to shorten the route and gain time, purposed to pass as close as possible to the dangerous rocky ledges surrounding the Hermigas islands. Without any warning, and while running at full speed, the Sirio crashed upon the rocks with terrific force. A few minutes later the stern of the vessel sank beneath the waves.

The passengers were in a state of terrified panic. Crowds rushed forward, pushing each other and fighting for places in the bow of the boat. Many fell and were trampled to death. Dozens of men and women threw themselves into the sea.

A fleet of rawlers providentially happened to be only about 100 yards away when the Sirio struck. Notwithstanding the great danger, the skippers of these boats came at once to the rescue. The survivors of the Sirio unite in praising the conduct of the captains of the trawlers Johan Miguel and Vicenta Llicano. The former steamed close to the side of the sinking ship and took off 300 persons. The crew of this trawler endeavored to sheer off, fearing that their boat would sink, whereupon the captain drew his revolver, levelled it at his men and shouted: "As long as it is possible to take off another passenger we will not move."

Dead Body's Queer Journey

New York, Aug. 6.—After being struck and killed by a subway express train last night, the body of Patrick Pallegrino, a track walker, was flung against a pillar, bounded on top of the train and, after rolling along the roofs of almost all of the cars, fell, striking the automatic safety brake on the last car, which brought the train to a sudden stop. The passengers were sent flying from their seats, but no damage was done.

Accountant an Easy Winner

New York, Aug. 6.—James B. Brady's Accountant, with 126 pounds up, easily won the $15,000 Brighton Derby, one mile and a half, at Brighton Beach. At no time of the journey was the colt in danger.

Cost of Paint

The difference between the cost of good paint and inferior paint is very little in comparison with the total outlay for painting a house.

The time and labor is the big item. Seems very foolish to spend a great deal of time and money putting on paint which will not last. It is much wiser to use old-fashioned "white lead and linseed oil.

NEW SUBWAY CAVES IN

Laborers Were at Dinner and Casualties Thus Averted

Boston, Aug. 6.—The lives of over half a hundred people were endangered when the new Washington street subway, at the dividing line of sections 9 and 10, located at the corner of Washington and Hanover streets, caved in with a crash that could be heard for blocks, causing all the buildings in the vicinity to vibrate.

A slight movement of the earth at 12:50, quickly followed by a second and more serious cavein- caused the underpinning to give way, and tons of debris fell into the excavation, where but a few minutes later 40 men would have been at work.

Several pedestrians had a narrow escape. But for the warning given by Manuel Corbona, an Italian laborer, who, upon hearing the rumbling beneath the boards, shouted to pedestrians to flee, dreadful loss of life might have resulted.

Engineers who viewed the scene after the accident say the cause of the cavein was probably due to the caving in of a sewer used for syphoning the old subway.

Contractor McGovern, who is building this section of the subway, says only the merest chance saved the workmen from being crushed beneath many tons of concrete and iron beams. Under his supervision props were immediately put up to prevent further trouble of a like nature, which seemed liable to occur at any moment.

As all the laborers, who are mostly Italians, live in the vicinity, they were at their homes for dinner and no one was injured.

"Simple Life" Wards Off Cancer

Chicago, Aug. 6.—That cancer can be warded off by the "simple life" is the opinion of Dr. Nicholas Senn, who has just returned to Chicago from an extended tour through the interior of Africa, where, he says, cancer is almost unknown among the natives, because of the simple habits of those people, while "civilized man is like a hothouse plant and cancer is due largely to over-nutrition and luxurious living."

Motormen Stuck to Their Posts

Allentown, Pa., Aug. 6.—Two cars of the Lehigh Valley Transit company, carrying nearly 100 passengers, collided head on at Hoffords Chapel, killing Motorman Esser and seriously injuring 19 other persons. Both motormen stuck to their posts and Esser still had his hand on the brake when released from the wreck. He died an hour later at a hospital.

Actress Sues For $100,000

New York, Aug. 6.—Miss Alfie Jones, an actress who appeared in "The Rollicking Girl," has sued Robert Tait, son of a rich resident of Bronxville, for $100,000 damages for alleged breach of promise. She charges that Tait took from her finger "a solitaire diamond ring and converted the same to his own use."

Vermonters at Camp Roosevelt

Mount Gretna, Pa., Aug. 6.—The Vermont regiment arrived at Camp Roosevelt yesterday. The soldiers were much fatigued by their long and hot horseback ride from New England. Beginning today the militia will begin a tour of inspection, which will test the qualifications of the soldiers.

Pleasure Seeker's Awful Death

New York, Aug. 6.—In full view of thousands of pleasure seekers at Fort George, Katherine Rosebroth, aged 19, was jolted out of a car on a lofty switchback railroad and, her dress catching on the back of the car, she was dragged to death up and down the steel inclines of the track.

A Chance For Recovery

Kingston, Mass., Aug. 6.—Physicians have removed the bullet which wounded Evalina Vezzani, who was shot Thursday night by her lover, Remido Zecchi, who afterward committed suicide. The young woman is now thought to have a chance of recovery.

Nabbed by President's Guard

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Karl Cook, who said that he was a lawyer from Washington, was arrested by secret service men while attempting to climb Sagamore Hill. He was sentenced to five days in jail on the charge of vagrancy.

Would Not Educate Negroes

New Orleans, Aug. 6.—An appeal by Governor Vardaman to white voters to select state legislators who will vote to stop granting appropriations for the education of negro children was made in an address at a farmers' meeting.

Russian Cruiser For Japs

Hakodate, Aug. 6.—The Russian cruiser Novok, which was sunk by two Japanese cruisers at Korsakovsk in August, 1904, after the sortie from Port Arthur, and which subsequently was floated, has arrived here.

Fatal Quarrel Over a Nickel

Evangeline, La., Aug. 6.—As the result of an altercation over 5 cents, H. C. Greggs was stabbed eight times with a carving knife and fatally wounded by W. W. Crouch.

Trying to Wipe Out One Another

Yelisavetpol, Aug. 6.—The race war between Tartars and Armenians at Shusha has recommenced with greater force and the fighting and massacreing continues.

70,000 MEN ARE OUT

Strike Is Practically Confined to to St Petersburg

RAILROAD MEN WORKING

Telegraphers Have Also Been Appealed to In Vain--Success of the Movement Appears to Be Somewhat Doubtful

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—The fate of the general strike, which, although it has affected close to 70,000 men in St. Petersburg, has met with only slight response in other sections of Russia, probably will be decided today with an adverse expression of public opinion. The lack of union among the leaders of the proletariat organizations is playing against the success of the movement.

The railroad men, upon whom the success of the movement depends, still are working full time. The leaders of the railroad organizations are hesitating about issuing a call for a tie-up. They fear being deserted and discredited by their materialistic followers, who are no more responsive to the avowed pretext of this strike, namely, sympathy with the mutineers of Sveaborg, Cronstadt and Reval, than they were to the similar reasons given for the abortive strike of last November. The railroad men have been intimidated by the recent making of strikes affecting communications a penal offense. The laws providing severe punishment were enacted with direct reference to general strikes.

The council of workmen's deputies, which met secretly at Terioki, Finland, continued its session till a late hour yesterday morning. The deputies were so incensed at the timidity displayed by the railroad men that they decided to resort, if necessary, to the blowing up of bridges and the destruction of the roadbeds, etc., to bring the transportation service to a standstill. Representatives of all the revolutionary parties and emissaries from Moscow, Kieff, Riga, Odessa and other cities, were present at the meeting. The telegraphers thus far have been appealed to in vain.

The first break in the ranks of the St. Petersburg strikers occurred yesterday, when the printers decided to return to work. The employes of several street car lines and river ferries have resumed work.

A steady downpour of rain all day long prevented the open-air gatherings scheduled for the day in St. Petersburg and the consequent possibility of collisions and disorders. The day was without incident except for the departure for Cronstadt of the Enghteenth naval equipage. There was a large number of drunken men among these sailors.

Telegrams from the interior throw little light on the manner in which the country may be expected to respond to today's call for a strike. There has been no cessation in the number of robberies and murders in the interior.

The government attaches much importance to the declaration of the Poles in the Minsk conference against the principle of expropriation and in favor of acquiescing in the dissolution of the lower house and preparing for new elections. This action is regarded in administrative circles as almost equivalent to the withdrawal of the propertied classes of Poland from the Russian revolutionary movement.

The Novoe Vremya, which is the only newspaper appearing except in dodger form, devoted a large portion of its space this morning to an article prophesying war between Japan and the United States, and predicting a sure and speedy Japanese victory, the seizure of the Philippines and Hawaii and the occupation by the Japanese of California.

Policeman Killed by Strikers

St. Petersburg, Aug. 6.—A collision between strikers and policemen occurred at the railroad station at Sestroretsk, a suburb of St. Petersburg. One policeman was killed. The garrison at Sestroretsk has been further increased.

Cossacks Shot Down Peasants

Voronezh, Aug. 6.—Peasants of Bolgusha, who had assembled for the village fair, attacked a passing patrol of Cossacks. The latter replied with two volleys. A number of peasants were killed or wounded.

Freight Traffic Held Up

Bromberg, Prussia, Aug. 6.—The German railroad authorities announce that they will not accept freight for points on the line of the Russian Vistula railroad, as the latter has refused to forward it.

Each Was a Dead Shot

Chadwick, Mo., Aug. 6.—Charles Freeman, a merchant, and Robert Keene, 18 years old, shot each other to death with revolvers on a street here. Keene had been charged with assaulting Freeman's daughter. When the men met on the street both drew revolvers and fired. Both men were dead when the spectators reached them.

Bumping of Passenger Trains

Akron, O., Aug. 6.—While taking a siding at Silver Lake, a passenger train was sideswiped by another passenger train. Nine people were injured. Two coaches of one train were hurled from the track and overturned.

TROLLEYS IN COLLISION

One Car Ordered to Proceed and Disaster Resulted

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 6.—A car east-bound and a car west-bound met in a head-on collision on the Worcester and Holden trolley line five miles from Worcester, and 17 people were injured.

The accident happened at State road crossing. Car No. 16 pulled up at a gravel bank siding and Conductor Holland went to the telephone box, called up James Gardner, barn foreman, and said: "We have 75 passengers aboard who desire to connect at Jefferson for the 10 o'clock train to Rutland. Can you hold the Worcester-bound car so we can proceed?"

Superintendent Douglass happened to be listening on the line and he broke into the conversation by saying that it would be all right for car No. 16 to proceed. He instructed the barn foreman to go out and hold up car No. 20. Gardner went outside only to discover that car No. 20 had gone past the barn on the way to Worcester.

The trolleys came together with a fearful crash. Doctors were rushed to the scene from Holden and the worst injured were taken to the Worcester city hospital.

Business Men Are Worrying

Adams, Mass., Aug. 6.—A report circulated among the striking weavers of the Berkshire Cotton Manufacturing company to the effect that the mill gates would be open today to admit all who desire to return to work drew a denial from Treasurer Plunkett of the mills. Among business men here the prospect of a long strike and lockout is regarded with much anxiety. There are 2500 operatives out. The discharge of one weaver was the original cause of the difficulty.

Strikers to Ask For Conference

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 6.—A determination on the part of the leaders of the trolley strike and other labor unionists of the city to appoint a committee to seek a conference with President Crapo of the trolley company, "for the purpose of seeing if he can be induced to change his views on the present situation," is the most interesting development in the strike. Cars manned by non-union men are being run on the usual schedule.

Death In Runaway Accident

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 6.—Edward Coles of Philadelphia, a summer resident of Bar Harbor, was driving a pair of horses when the pole strap broke and the horses escaped his control and ran the carriage against a telegraph pole. Coles was flung out and received injuries from which he died within an hour. His grandson, 5 years old, and the latter's nurse were also in the carriage, but they escaped injury.

Quarrymen In Fatal Fight

Branford, Conn., Aug. 6.—Augustus Nyburg, Matthew Metzon and Henry Hendrickson, all quarrymen, were taken to jail last night, where they are held by order of Coroner Mix, pending his investigation into the death of Charles Westlund, also a quarryman. Westlund is said to have drawn a knife on Nyburg, whereupon the latter struck him over the head with a piece of fence railing.

Demands of Goldbeaters

Boston, Aug. 6.—A strike of goldbeaters, involving about 200 men, is threatened, if certain demands are not granted by their employers. The demands are for the elimination of the open shop, that the foremen shall be members of the union, an advance in wages from 7 to 8 cents a book for piece workers, and from $18 to $21 a week for week workers.

Trawler and Tug Collided

Boston, Aug. 6.—The steam trawler Spray and the ocean tug Conestoga were in collision below Bug light during a dense fog. The Spray struck the tug well forward on the starboard side, cutting through her heavy guard and indenting two of her plates, while the Spray had her stern twisted and bow stove in. Neither vessel was at any time in danger.

Boy Killed by Lightning

Framingham, Mass., Aug. 6.—Lightning struck a tree under which William McMullen, 14, and Leo Brown, 13, were standing, killing the former and severely injuring the latter. Several hundred people who had been watching a ball game and who had sought shelter from the storm in a nearby shed were more or less stunned by the lightning bolt.

Struck and Killed by Car

Brunswick, Me., Aug. 6.—Ernest Gee of Sabattus, aged 30, was killed by an electric car last night while riding from Bath to Lewiston. The car on which he was riding had stopped when Gee accidentally dropped a package, and he stepped from the car to recover it. As he stooped to pick up the package he was struck by an east-bound car.

Farmers Out of Pocket

Providence, Aug. 6.—Reports received here indicate that the farmers and market gardeners of Rhode Island and southern Massachusetts have lost thousands of dollars by the continued wet weather. Seed merchants and those who deal in farming implements will also feel the results of the unfavorable weather.

Opening Up Maine Wilderness

Bangor, Me., Aug. 6.—The extension of the Somerset railroad through 50 miles of forest means much to Maine, as does the proposition to extend the Portland and Rumford Falls road from Lewiston to Portland. It is predicted that pulp and paper mills will be built in the forests thus opened.

Ostrich Farms In Arizona

IT is said that more than half the ostriches now in the United States are the progeny of a single pair owned in Arizona in 1891. From this fact one may judge how young the industry of raising these birds is in this country. There are now over 2,200 ostriches on farms in Arizona, California, Florida and Kansas. About three-quarters of them are in Arizona. There is a curious story connected with the breeding of many of these large feathered animals from one pair. It was in the year 1888 that Arizona first saw ostriches. A troop of thirteen were brought to the territory from California, and the number proved unlucky. The flock included two old birds and eleven young ones. The men who took them from the railroad station to the ranch which formed their destination knew nothing about ostriches, and their chief aim was to prevent them from escaping. To make sure they would not get away they not only put a canvas over the wagon, but hoods over the heads of the birds. It was a very hot day, and ten of the young birds died of suffocation before they had been taken five miles on their journey. To make the breeding project still more difficult of execution it happened that before the old pair could make their nest the female bird died from an accident. Then the flock was reduced to the old male bird and a young female. Ostriches are not like smaller birds. A single season does not suffice for their development. It takes about four years for the male bird to come to maturity and about three and a half years for the female. So it was not till 1891 that the first ostrich was hatched in Arizona. In the fifteen years intervening since that time over 1,000 birds have come from that single pair and their descendants. All lined up in a row or by companies they would make a formidable looking army, as an ostrich stands about eight feet high and sometimes attains a height of ten or eleven feet. There are now six ostrich farms in Arizona, while the industry of raising ostriches is becoming an important one in the four states already mentioned. As ostrich feathers sell for as high as $146 per pound, the pluckings from the big birds form a product of considerable value annually.

The ostrich is a very interesting creature, and its habits are often curious in the extreme. The ostrich nest is a round hole in the ground which the male scoops out with his feet. It may happen that his mate will not take to the nest at once, but will lay her first eggs on the ground. In that case Mr. Ostrich goes about collecting them and places them in the nest. After a few hints of this kind Mrs. Ostrich makes up her mind to lay in the home prepared for her occupation. In hatching the eggs the male plays an important part. He shares with his mate the duty of sitting on the eggs, and they work on night and day shifts, so to speak, Mr. Ostrich covering the eggs from about 5 o'clock in the evening to 8 or half past 8 in the morning. The female covers them during the day, but her turn is not so long as that of the male bird. Scientists explain this arrangement on the theory that the male, being black, is not so easily seen at night as the female, which is nearly the color of sand and therefore better adapted to sitting on the eggs during the daytime in the desert. Of course on a ranch the same reasons for day and night shifts do not exist, but the birds do not take this into consideration and follow the instincts of their race. On some ranches the birds are not allowed the privilege of hatching the eggs, the latter being placed in incubators and carefully attended until the artificial hatching takes place.

The plucking season is an interesting one on an ostrich farm. An ostrich is plucked the first time when six months old and every eight months thereafter, but only wing and tail feathers are removed. One row of the largest quill feathers in the wing is cut with pruning shears. When he is wanted for plucking the ostrich is driven into a pen about four feet high, open at one end and closed with a door at the other. A hood is placed over his head, and he stands facing the closed door. The plucker stands behind him to do his work and is perfectly secure from kicks, because the big bird always strikes in front and does not know how to hit any one who is behind him.

The Eye In the Wall

[Copyright, 1906, by I. D. Marshall.]

Privates Thomas and Williams of Company D, Third infantry, stationed at Fort Pinto, were the first to discover what was afterward called the eye in the wall. One day when off duty they went prospecting in the mountains to the west of the fort. In their rambles they entered a ravine or canyon and traversed it for half a mile before finding a chance to climb out.

A short while before climbing out they discovered a flaming eye in the rocky wall on their left and about forty feet above their heads. It glared and scintillated and flashed, and, though the men were laboring under considerable excitement over being lost, they marked the curious thing well and had much to say about it after reaching the post in safety.

During the next three months, when men were searching every day, some of them no doubt struck the right ravine and followed it up, but none caught sight of the eye in the wall. It was the only thing talked about in barracks. It was soon settled that it was a diamond, and a monstrous large one at that, and that the value could not be much less than half a million dollars. The talk and the hunt for it soon began to tell on discipline, and in a general order the commandant forbade any one to search further.

The discoverers of the eye in the wall had to abandon their search, but they did not cease to talk and plot and plan. A month later, as both were on sentry duty the same night, they deserted.

The colonel realized that they must be recaptured at once or their example would be followed by others, and a detail was sent out and put in a week's hard work. Then came news that the Indians were again on the warpath, and the detail was driven in. It brought in Williams, however. He had met with a fall and lain for three days with a broken leg, and it was only by chance that he had been discovered.

He said the pair of them had been exploring ravines for a week or more when Thomas began to act so strangely that his fellow deserter became afraid of him. He continually muttered and mumbled, thinking of the diamond, and at last declared that if the eye was found it should belong to him alone. Two or three times he seemed about to murder Williams, and at length the latter dodged him and was trying to make his way back to the fort when he met with his accident. He could give no further information about Thomas.

After three weeks of exploring Thomas found the eye in the wall. While it was only forty or fifty feet above his head, it might as well have been 400. The side of the canyon was solid and smooth and not to be climbed.

In this emergency Thomas attempted to shoot the eye out of its bed in the wall. His firing attracted the Indians to the spot. They could not make out what he was firing at, but the fact of his being alone in the mountains and of firing at all where he must know that there were hostile Indians about made them suspect that he was not right in his head.

His efforts to dislodge the stone were futile, and after having fired about a dozen bullets he walked a few steps up the canyon and sat down on a stone and held his face in his hands. It was midafternoon, and just where he sat the sun gave his watchers light enough to see everything that happened. They had their eyes on him when a grizzly bear came slouching down the canyon from some point where he had a den to investigate the firing. He stopped within ten feet of the deserter and sniffed at him and growled. When Thomas looked up and saw his visitor he did not seem in the least alarmed. On the contrary, he leaned his back to the wall, and the Indians heard him talking. By and by he got up and offered his hand to the bear, whereupon the grizzly growled menacingly and retreated a few feet.

Thomas sat down, looking down the canyon instead of at the bear, and the animal lay down for a period of ten or fifteen minutes. Then, as the man made no move, the grizzly advanced again and was presently so close that he seemed to put his nose on the man's shoulder. Then he turned about and started talking, and more than once they saw him extend his hand and pat the fierce beast on the back. There were five Indians watching, and they could have slain the bear with a volley, but the situation was such a strange one that they did not think of firing a shot.

The play between man and bear continued for a long quarter of an hour. So long as the soldier was quiet the bear did not seem inclined to harm him, but by and by Thomas rose up and began to speak in excited tones and to point fiercely down the canyon. At this the bear began to growl savagely, and five minutes later he struck out with his great paw and stretched the man dead and then turned and went back to its lair.

It was a year before peace came and the Indians related what they had seen. Then a searching party was sent out under their guidance, and the body of Thomas was found. It was in a good state of preservation, and nothing had meddled with it. High up on the wall were the scars of the bullets he had fired as he had sought to dislodge the eye, but the eye itself was invisible. The ten men looked and stared and peered, but nothing flashed, nothing scintillated, nothing sparkled up there against the wall built by the hands of nature thousands of years before.

The eye had closed forever.

The Merrymounts were defeated at Braintree on Saturday in a close game by a score of 3 to 2. Kolson pitched a fine game and but for loose fielding in the early part of the game would have shut out the home team.

Cameron for the Braintrees was rather wild, giving two passes and hitting two batsmen, but he had great speed and bothered the Merrymounts a whole lot.

Capt. Stevens had his eye on the ball, and connected safely three times including two doubles. Gram scored both of the visitor's runs, and in the second inning spoiled a would-be two-bagger by a clever running catch.

Woodman of Wollaston Park did the catching for Merrymount and made a very good impression.

Iroquois Win.

The Iroquois club defeated the Washington club at the Park on Saturday by the score of 10 to 4.

The features of the game were the pitching of Gavin, who fanned seven men and allowed only 4 hits. Also the batting of McIntosh; but this was offset by his two wild throws which proved very costly resulting in two runs.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, in buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. Portuguese Bullfights.

At Portuguese bullfights not only are the points of the bulls' horns sawed off, but the stumps that remain are carefully padded. The horses also are ridden with consummate skill, and every precaution is taken to prevent the bull touching them. Banderillas are used by the men on foot and on horseback and are planted in the neck of the bull, which irritates the bull, but cannot be described as torture. Just as much skill is shown as in a Spanish bullfight, and there may be just as beautiful a display of costumes, but there is no killing either of the bull or of the horses.

A Woman's Revenge.

It is perfectly incomprehensible how man can go on wearing the clothes he does—how he can balance on his head a huge black jam pot with a ledge to it, incase his limbs in long, tight sacks of dingy hue and wear round his manly throat something resembling a shining metal band. Every new fashion for man that comes out appears to me uglier than the last.—Spinster in M. A. P.

A Lofty Death.

Asama is a volcano in Japan. A young man of that country grew despondent the other day and threw himself into the crater, leaving this letter: "Suffering a feeling of despair impels me to throw myself into the crater of vehement Asama, thus winning a splendid death and ascending the mountain's smoke to a lofty life above the sky."

CIGARS LIKE LEAD PENCILS

Newest Style For Smokers Is Long and Thin.

"The latest fashion in cigars," said a dealer to a Detroit News-Tribune reporter, "is a shape that resembles a lead pencil in length and thickness. All the cigar manufacturers are getting them out, and the longer and thinner they are the more people like them. It seems as if the smokers were trying to get as little for their money as possible. There is a popular belief just now that the less tobacco there is in a cigar the better the tobacco must be in quality.

"There's no getting away from the fact that the new lead pencil cigars have a lot of style to them and are more attractive than the big kind that bulge out in the middle. I notice that most of the men who buy them are particular about their personal appearance and want everything they use to have character to it.

"Your middle aged man would never bother with such short smokes as these new fangled ones. One old chap came in the other day with a younger man who tried to get him to take one of the 'epicures,' as they call them. They are just as expensive as the big ones, by the way; sometimes more expensive.

"'Not on your life,' said the older man. 'I'd have to keep the band on that toothpick to show I wasn't smoking a Pittsburg stogie. When I smoke a cigar I want a man's size, not a cigarette made to bring up babies on.' And he picked out an imported cigar black as ebony.

"A lot of men who have stuck to one kind of cigar for years don't know that there are fashions in cigars, but the styles in them change just as the styles in shirts do."

CANNON TAKEN FOR TAFT.

Speaker of the House Hailed as the Stout Secretary at Coney Island.

Speaker Cannon, who was interviewed at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York, declined to discuss politics, statecraft or his recent visit to Coney Island.

"When there's nothing to say a man's a fool to talk," he said.

An amusing incident that occurred while Uncle Joe was at the famous resort was related by his secretary, Mr. Busby, says the New York Globe.

It seems that the news spread that a celebrity was "doing" the place, and a curious American citizen inquired who it was.

"Taft," said a wag, pointing to the slender figure of Uncle Joe.

"How do you do, Mr. Taft?" said the curious citizen, rushing up and wringing the speaker's hand. "I'm glad to see you!"

Uncle Joe did not lose countenance.

"I'm glad to meet you, sir," he said gravely, without denying the allegation that he was the man who weighed about 300 pounds.

New Game of "Eye Spy."

"I challenge you," says the Newport belle to her companion, "to tell me whose these are," and she thrusts an eye photograph within his line of vision. It is one of the summer fads to get your eyes photographed, says the New York Press. These pictures are exchanged, and often at luncheons and afternoon teas they are brought out and passed around among the guests, who are asked to pick out the originals. Some men say they prefer to stay out of these eye guessing contests, for one is sure to go into transports of delight over the wrong pair of eyes.

Missouri Walnut.

The walnut trees which have been landmarks in Missouri for generations have been ruthlessly sacrificed for commercial purposes, says the Columbia Herald. In Howard county a buyer for England has spent two years collecting walnut lumber for shipment abroad. He recently loaded on cars at Fayette logs for which he paid $18,000, which will be sent to Hamburg, Germany, for manufacture into furniture. For one Howard county tree $150 was paid.

Novelty In Horse Racing.

The Japanese have added a new feature to horse racing, says the New York Tribune. On May 21 a geisha girl rode a mare a mile in 1 minute and 50 seconds. The geisha girls are light in weight and, it is said, will make good horsewomen. Japanese men are such notoriously bad riders that the girls may displace the boys as jockeys.

National Department Store.

The national department store
Extends from sea to sea;
Of everything to eat and wear
It's full as it can be.
A list of all it has in stock
Would reach from Portland, Maine,
To Tampa, Florida, and back
To Portland once again.

There's cotton from the southern states
And watermelons fine
And luscious peaches, velvet pink,
And yellow Georgia pine,
New Jersey silk and Texas beef
And Minnesota flour
And cider from Vermont to drink,
With apples sweet and sour.

There's California apricots,
The best you ever ate,
And cranberries from old Cape Cod,
Like rubies in a crate,
And Louisiana sugar cane
And salmon from the lakes
And buckwheat from ten thousand fields
To furnish us with cakes.

There's silver, gold and copper ore,
The treasure of the soil,
And sapphires from Montana rocks
And Pennsylvania oil,
Fresh water pearls of luster fit
To decorate a queen
And from Alaska sealskin furs
Of rich and glossy sheen.

From every land across the deep
In crowds they come and buy,
For with the goods of Uncle Sam
No other shop can vie.
Beneath the same old starry sign
Our patriot fathers bore
The nation carries on today
A big department store.

Quincy Cup

Twice Successfully Defended by Quincy Yachts Twice Outsailed

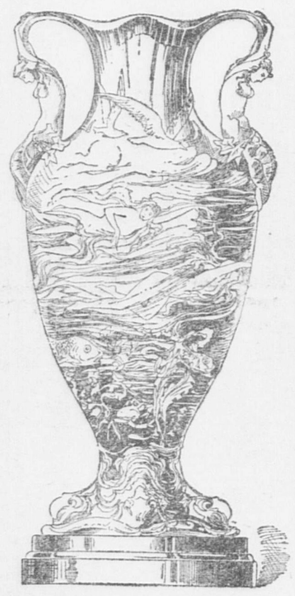

The dates for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup races are near at hand, beginning Wednesday, Aug. 22, at Manchester, and continuing daily.

The cup's record is:

CHALLENGING CLUB AND BOAT.
1898—Lynn, Duchess.
1899—Lynn, Heiress.
1900—Manchester, Lookout (won).
1902—Quincy, Flashlight.

DEFENDING CLUB AND BOAT.
1898—Quincy, Recruit (won).
1899—Quincy, Hostess (won).
1900—Quincy, Hostess.
1902—Manchester, Outlook (won).

So much time has passed since the Quincy cup was first offered, and since it was last raced for, that a review of its history is needed to freshen up our recollection of it.

The cup was offered in 1898 as a perpetual challenge trophy, open to all clubs, to be raced for by boats not exceeding 21 feet waterline. The only other restriction was that the crew weight shall not exceed 850 pounds.

Under these very liberal conditions, in a period when the chief ambition of designers was to turn out extreme boats the boats which raced for the cup soon developed into freaks.

It took but four years at the pace set in designing boats for the cup to wind up the racing, until something more wholesome could be accepted.

The last boats that raced for the cup, the Outlook and Flashlight, were the most extreme racing machines ever produced, in proportion to their waterline length. Although they had but 21 feet waterline, they carried about 2000 feet of sail, a terrific spread, when we think that 700 feet is a good amount for a normal 21-footer.

The Outlook kept the cup for Manchester by defeating a freak somewhat smaller than herself, the Flashlight being but 47 feet overall.

There will probably be but three boats in the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup races off Manchester this year. The defending yacht Manchester of the Manchester club, the Auk of the Quincy club which is the challenger, and a yacht of the Corinthian club of Marblehead.

There were two other challenges received, but they came after the time limit for challenging and the Manchester club refused to receive them.

—The fact that the government is trying to prosecute him in connection with the Standard Oil Company has not made J. D. Rockefeller less solicitous of his country's welfare. In a speech to the Sunday School of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, at Cleveland, O., of which he is Superintendent, Sunday morning, the oil king preached love of country.

For Thirty Years A News Dealer

Edward B. Souther, for thirty years a news dealer in City Square previous to 1899, died on Monday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Tilson A. Mead at Allston, with whom he has resided most of the time since he retired from business. About three weeks ago he was prostrated by heat, and did not recover.

Mr. Souther was born in Quincy in 1828, and was a member of a long-life Quincy family. With the exception of a couple of years in California in the days of the gold excitement in 1850 and 1851, up to 1899 when he retired from business, he was a resident of Quincy, and built an attractive home on Foster street.

His news store was at various locations in City Square, moving from one to another as his business increased. He sold out in 1899 to W. C. Hartwell, who was succeeded by Hartwell & Munroe and more recently by L. A. Chapin, who continues the business near the old stand.

Some years ago Mr. Souther was interested in a local lodge of the Knights of Pythias. On the reinstitution of Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows in 1884 he became a member, and also joined the encampment and the canton. He always kept up his interest in the order and at the time of his death was treasurer of Manet encampment, and a past grand of Mt. Wollaston lodge.

Mr. Souther was twice married and outlived both wives. He is survived by two sons, Edward W. and Henry L. Souther, and three daughters, Mrs. S. Addie, wife of Mr. Tilson A. Mead; Miss Elizabeth A., a teacher at the Quincy High school, and Miss Mary A. Souther.

Funeral services will be held at Allston on Wednesday. The interment will be at Mt. Wollaston cemetery at Quincy, and the Odd Fellows will probably escort the body to the grave.

They will participate in the races there on Wednesday and Thursday, and on Saturday will participate in the races at Annisquam.

Their yacLts will be unable to participate in the open race of the Wollaston club Saturday as they will not arrive home in time.

Lawn Party.

The lawn party under the auspices of Division 5, A. O. H., which was twice postponed on account of the stormy weather, was successfully carried out Monday. The party was held on the grounds of the George L. Baxter estate, near the corner of Franklin and Water streets.

Hundreds of Japanese lanterns with the bright moon made the grounds seem almost as light as day. Tables for the sale of various articles including ice cream, cake and cool drinks. An orchestra was present and furnished music for dancing.

Guests at Hotel Not Alarmed

There was quite a little excitement outside the Greenleaf block about 12.30 Sunday night, but none of the guests of the hotel were aware that anything unusual was happening. It was about 12.30 when Officer Goodhue discovered smoke coming through the grating of the Granite shoe store.

The proprietor of the hotel was aroused and Chief Litchfield summoned by telephone. Whatever it was that was burning was evidently in the shoe store and Mr. Zoller, the proprietor, was brought to the scene. Upon opening the store door a great volume of smoke poured out.

It was evident something was wrong. After the store had been cleared of smoke an investigation was made. It was discovered that a piece of metal on an electric light had become heated and this had burned the rubber insulation of the wires, causing the smoke.

The trouble was soon remedied and the Chief and Mr. Zolar went home to finish their sleep; while Officer Goodhue continued his rounds protecting our property.

Did Not Want to Walk Home.

A horse and buggy owned by Mr. Wainwright of Dorchester was stolen from in front of his residence Sunday evening. It was evidently taken by a Quincy party, for Officer Goodhue found the turnout tied to a pole on Washington street at 2 o'clock Monday morning. He put the team in a stable and notified the owner.

Rescued by Playmate.

Walter, the 7 year old son of Charles Johnson, had a narrow escape from death by drowning Monday afternoon. He with others was playing about Wilson's quarry off Center street, when he fell in. He had gone down the third time when he was rescued by Chester, the 10 year old son of John Moyle.

Swedish Campmeeting.

The 15th annual meeting of the Swedish Campmeeting Association was brought to a close Sunday at Asbury, after one of the most successful meetings they have ever held here. There has been a better attendance, a higher standard of preaching has been attained, and it is said the results have been made more satisfactory than at any of the former meetings.

Two Towns Sued.

Suits were filed with the Norfolk county clerk of courts on Monday against two towns. Braintree is sued for $4,000 by Mary L. Trufont for personal injuries sustained on Franklin street, and Randolph is sued by George Hunt of Holbrook for $2,000 for personal injuries sustained on Pond street.

—Miss Ethel Roosevelt has finished her sixteenth book of postal cards and is about to begin on a collection which has come from her big sister, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, who has sent souvenirs almost daily since she arrived on the other side. Cards piled in on Mrs. Roosevelt from friends abroad and even from the consuls and diplomatic officers. These treasures are divided between Miss Ethel and the two younger boys. She has beaten her brothers in the race of arranging books. She has several sets of war pictures from China and Japan and one hundred more cards showing types in the Orient and the South Pacific Archipelago.

Hot Wave

But Ninety Degree Temperature Was Unusually Late This Year

Monday was the hottest day Quincy has experienced this season. Everybody suffered more or less with the heat, but as far as can be learned there was no heat prostrations in this city. The temperature in City Square at noon was 93 and it varied but little from that all day.

A thunder shower threatened at 4.30 but it did not materialize. A little rain fell however, in Boston and vicinity; which cooled the air somewhat. At 8 o'clock the thermometer in front of Pettengill's registered 80 degrees. Had it not been for the little breeze the day would have been unbearable.

The heat during the middle of the day in the stone district was something terrific, and nearly all of the stone yards closed down at noon.

Work along the boulevard was also suspended during the day on account of the heat.

At the shipyard also many "knocked off."

In the afternoon the street car lines leading to Houghs Neck and other seashore resorts were well patronized by people who thought to find relief from the heat near the shore.

At the City bath house there was a large crowd and the water was thick with bathers.

It was the first day this year that the mercury had climbed to 90. It was unusually late in coming as will be seen by the summary below of first 90 degree days, but there is yet an opportunity to make up for lost time:

In 1897,	June 24
In 1898,	June 9
In 1899,	June 6
In 1900,	May 15
In 1901,	June 27
In 1902,	June 3
In 1903,	May 19
In 1904,	June 26
In 1905,	June 16
In 1906,	August 6

There were only nine days last year, with noon temperature at 90 or above which came on the following dates:

June 16 and 18.

July 9, 10, 12, 13, 14, 18 and 19.

It was a hot night and at 8 A. M. the mercury registered 80 degrees.

The highest temperature in August last year was 88 and in September 80.

The temperature at noon today was the same as Monday 93 degrees. There was better air, however, the breeze being from the northwest. The humidity was also lower than on Monday, making it more comfortable to be about. It is too hot however for most of the employes in the granite district and many of the yards are closed.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

"When it rains in August it rains honey and wine" is an old saying. We can dispense with any more this month.

It is some weeks since Quincy had a fire, for which we should be duly thankful.

Reports, so far fail to state how many of the Philippine islands were used in providing anchorage for the dry dock Dewey.

The anarchists insist that they took Gen. Kozlov for Gen. Trepoff and assassinated him. Still, all generals look alike to the Russians.

Col. Bryan intimates that the President stole his clothes. There is a suspicion that the Colonel wants to retaliate by stealing the President's shoes.

The dog-eating Igorrotes have returned to the Philippines, having found that they can never become accustomed to taking theirs in sausage form.

We are again reminded that people cannot be too careful in keeping strangers out of the house. If admitted on any excuse they should not be left alone.

The increase in valuation of the city concerns some taxpayers more than the tax rate. They doubt very much that there has been an increase of over a million in actual valuation the past year; over $2,700,000 in two years, and over $3,700,000 in three years.

Drift of Opinion.

☞When the weather was rainy, as it was on Saturday, hosts of people were complaining of the wet. On Sunday, when the sun came out warm, the same people were complaining of the heat. In the latter class we did not find the trolley people, nor the seaside restaurant keeper. If they were asked the dangerous question, "Is this hot enough for you?" the prompt answer was "No!" for although their facilities were pressed to the utmost they hated to see anybody go away, even with a nickel that they might have secured!—Lynn Item.

☞The Salem News is again out against the littering of streets with rejected handbills offered to passersby. It thinks the police ought to stop the nuisance. And yet we do not know that any citizen can be compelled to take a handbill, or to retain it firmly in his hand instead of dropping it when he has read it. He ought to put it in his pocket and drop it into a waste paper basket or barrel somewhere; but this is a hasty and impatient age, and people don't stop to think how much each could do to keep a city clean and orderly if he steadfastly declined to throw any waste paper or refuse into the public thoroughfares.—Brockton Enterprise.

Locals and City Brevities

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear is having a week's vacation.

Success of Russian Strike Depends on Railroad Men

ARE AS YET UNDECIDED

Moscow the Only Place Where Response Was Made to Call to Quit Work--Strike Organizers In Despair Over the Fiasco

St. Petersburg, Aug. 7.—In the light of yesterday's developments the general strike may almost be regarded as a fiasco. The summons to go out met some response in Moscow, where the printers and the street car men and part of the employes of the gas, water and electric light plants have quit work, but these are more than offset by the defections in St. Petersburg. An enthusiastic acceptance of the order to strike is nowhere recorded. Even in the Donetz mining district, where practically all the miners are out, the factory hands declined to strike.

The revolutionists may possibly yet be saved by the railroad men, but the central committees of the railroad men have not yet reached a final decision, and up to the present time, in spite of the frantic efforts of the agitators, not a single important line of the empire is affected.

Fifteen thousand employes of the government powder mills struck yesterday, but this was counter-balanced by the return of the men of the Westinghouse and other factories, who have notified their superintendents that they would begin work today.

It transpires that the printers of St. Petersburg, instead of abandoning the strike entirely, have decided to print only one liberal newspaper a day. This, however, really plays into the hands of the government, as The Novoe Vremya and The Svet, the two conservative journals, are wealthy enough to defy the union and resume publication in unabridged form. The compositors of The Official Messenger joined the strikers yesterday, but they were at once replaced by military printers.

The organizers of the strike are in despair over the prospects of failure. Some already counsel calling the strike off in an effort to save prestige, but the majority is waiting in the last hope for some action on the part of the railroad men.

Except for the dispersal of several minor gatherings by Cossacks, who used their whips, and mounted police, St. Petersburg yesterday was almost quieter than in ordinary times.

The prefect of police has issued a long proclamation, which was circulated among the lower classes, explaining the government's reasons for the dispersal of the lower house of parliament. This act, it is declared, does not signify the suppression of representative institutions, but is intended to give the people an opportunity conscientiously to choose deputies to the new parliament who will co-operate with the government in solving the problems upon which the welfare of the country depends.

Schoolship Had a Mutiny

Libau, Aug. 7.—On the arrival here of the schoolship Riga, which was in company with the mutinous cruiser Pamyat Azova, it was learned that a portion of the Riga's crew also participated in the mutiny. The commander of the Pamyat Azova quelled this mutiny by threatening to blow up the ship. Thirty-five of the mutineers have been delivered to the military authorities here.

Confidential Clerk Missing

New York, Aug. 7.—Matthew Brandon, 30 years old, a confidential clerk and messenger employed by Thomas Faulkner, agent for the combined railroad lines of the United States at Ellis island, has not been seen since last Thursday, when he left Ellis island to deposit $5000 in checks and $1100 in cash in a New York bank. Brandon failed to make the deposits.

Great Flood In Texas

Houston, Tex., Aug. 7.—Reports from Ballonger are to the effect that nine inches of rain fell during the past 24 hours over an area including several hundred square miles. Santa Fe railroad bridges are swept away and in places the track is under 20 feet of water. It is believed there have been heavy losses of livestock. Telegraph wires are down.

Insurance Rates Raised

Providence, Aug. 7.—At a meeting of the Insurance association here the local insurance rates were increased 15 percent on all property in the "conflagration district." Rates were advanced as a result of the losses which were sustained in consequence of the San Francisco fire.

Citizens Want Police Investigation

Central Falls, R. I., Aug. 7.—The board of aldermen adopted a resolution last night for an investigation of the police department, about which there has been much discussion among the citizens for some weeks. The action was taken on petition of citizens.

Schooner and Cargo Lost

Halifax, Aug. 7.—Fishing schooner Lena M. struck Roaming Bull ledge, off Canso, and sank. The members of the crew were saved. Her valuable cargo of fish was entirely lost. The schooner was owned at Port Hilford.

Asks $100,000 For Services

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 7.—Claiming that she has received no remuneration for her alleged service as companion and nurse, Miss Mary M. Thayer of Melrose has brought suit for $100,000 in Middlesex superior court against three persons connected with the estate of the late Augustus Rolland, a wealthy Boston oil merchant. Mrs. Thayer claims that she attended Rolland as companion and nurse for 10 years and that she was engaged to be married to him. Rolland lived at a leading hotel in the Back Bay, where he died.

Two Men Killed by Lightning

Harrisburg, Aug. 7.—A terrific wind and rainstorm struck Harrisburg, lightning instantly killing Charles M. Richwine and Chic Befrandi, a Japanese acrobat, and slightly injuring several employes of a wild west show. As the wind blew a hurricane and rain came in blinding sheets, the people on the seats began to stampede for shelter. Several were knocked down, a number fell from high seats in their efforts to get to the ground and others were badly squeezed in the crush, but nobody was seriously injured.

Motor Tricyclists Badly Hurt

Branford, Conn., Aug. 7.—Louis Charter had his skull fractured and Miss Stella Brooks was badly bruised by being thrown from a motor tricycle built for two, on which they were riding on the Indian Neck road when Charter lost control of the machine, after it had ploughed into a piece of sandy road. Both occupants were thrown over a small embankment, Charter landing on some rocks. His condition is serious.

Polar Expedition on Its Way

Portland, Or., Aug. 7.—By this time the English and American Polar expedition is well on the way in the Arctic seas. In a letter just received here, dated Port Clarence, July 20, Ejnor Mikkelsen, who has charge of the expedition, says the Duchess of Bedford, on which the expedition is traveling, would sail that night. It is probable that this will be the last message received by the explorers for two or three years.

Score of Deaths From Heat

New York, Aug. 7.—Upwards of 20 persons died in this city yesterday as a result of the heat. There were scores of prostrations and the suffering among the poor was intense. The weather bureau mercury shot up to 93 for its highest point, but it was much hotter on street levels, some thermometers showing 102.

NEWS IN BRIEF

P. H. Laufman of Pittsburg, a pioneer in the tin plate and sheet steel industry, died at his winter home in Southern Pines, N. C., aged 60.

Captain A. B. Drum, for the past 14 years superintendent of the Arlington National cemetery, died at Washington. He was 64 years old and served throughout the Civil war.

Mrs. Johanna Valliere, aged 88 years, was burned to death at her home at Cambridge, Mass. While lighting a fire with kerosene oil the woman ignited her clothing.

BANK DOORS SHUT

State Institution at Chicago Is a Heavy Loser

DEFICIT NEAR $1,000,000

Members of One Family Operated Popular Depository For Funds Saved by Working People--Two Officers Missing

Chicago, Aug. 7.—With a deficit in its accounts of close to $1,000,000 and with the whereabouts of two of its chief officers unknown to the authorities, the Milwaukee Avenue State bank, one of the larger outlying banks of Chicago, was closed by State Bank Examiner Jones. The bank had deposits amounting to about $4,000,000 and loans and credits to about the same amount.

The failure was responsible for the death of one of the depositors and led to the suicide of another man who, a month ago, had placed the earnings of a lifetime in the institution. In the excitement following the announcement of the failure, J. G. Visser, an officer of the Royal League, who had on deposit in the bank funds of that organization, fell dead. Henry Koepke, a grocer, on hearing that the bank had suspended payment, went to the rear of his store and shot himself. He died a few minutes later.

Riotous scenes attended the announcement of the failure, and a large force of policemen struggled all day to keep an excited crowd of depositors, nearly all of whom were foreigners and many of whom were women, from rushing the doors of the institution.

The fact that the bank was on the verge of failure was first revealed by the president of the institution, Paul O. Stensland, in a letter written from St. Paul to his son, Theodore, who is vice president of the bank. The letter was received last Saturday, and it started the investigation which brought about the suspension. Cashier Henry W. Herring disappeared and a warrant was issued for his arrest on a charge of embezzlement.

The first public intimation that the bank was in trouble was the posting of a notice at the beginning of banking hours by Bank Examiner Jones, stating that business had been suspended for the purpose of making an examination of the bank's affairs and that the institution was in the hands of the state auditor.

The news spread rapidly through the northwest side of the city, where the bank had been for years a popular depository for funds saved by working people.

Soon a clamorous crowd gathered before the doors and demanded admission. Anticipating trouble, a score of policemen were sent to the bank. The people were permitted to file past the doors bearing the posted notice and were compelled to keep moving. Only those having keys to safety deposit vaults were allowed to enter. Many burst into tears when they found that their savings were endangered.

An examination of the bank's affairs was begun quietly last Saturday after receipt of the letter from President Stensland. Acting on instructions contained therein, Vice President Stensland opened a deposit box and found proofs that the bank's funds were in bad shape. President Potter of the American Trust and Savings bank, which acted as clearing agent for the defunct institution, was called into consultation. The auditor was informed, and he sent Bank Examiner Jones to make a full investigation.

The shortage of between $750,000 and $1,000,000 is said to be due to speculation in real estate and in the security market. Members of the clearing house committee were told that most of this amount was unprotected by adequate collateral.

The Stensland family owned much of the bank stock and members of the family operated the bank. A statement made by Vice President Stensland yesterday showed $1,051,000 in cash on hand. He said that the bank carried deposits of $4,000,000 and had 22,000 depositors. The concern's New York correspondents are the Mercantile and the Chase National banks.

Demented Woman Started Fire

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 7.—As a result of a craving for fire, Mrs. H. E. Denslow, demented, was burned to death, Dr. H. E. Denslow and Mrs. Eugene Barker were probably fatally burned and Mrs. G. E. Hunt and child were seriously burned. Mrs. Denslow poured gasolene on the parlor carpet and applied a match. She was at once enveloped in flames. The others were burned while trying to rescue the burning woman.

Trolley Victim's Skull Fractured

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 7.—No death has resulted thus far from the trolley car collision on the Worcester and Holden line Sunday, by which 17 persons received injuries, but the condition of Mrs. Campello Presto of Boston, the most seriously injured of the victims, is very critical. She is suffering from a skull fracture.

Train Wreck Kills Two

Pittsburg, Aug. 7.—Two persons were killed in a wreck on the Pan-Handle road near this city last night. The wreck occurred at a switch, but until an investigation is made it cannot be learned whether the switch was open or there was some obstruction on the track.

THREE CHURCHES STRUCK

Many Dwellings Damaged and a Man Killed by Lightning

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 7.—A severe electrical storm passed over Worcester county yesterday afternoon and caused heavy damage in this city and vicinity. Lightning struck three Catholic churches, 19 dwellings and many trees in the city. No person was seriously injured, but in the town of Hardwick a farm laborer named Michael Zurinski was killed and another farmhand named Michael Matuck, who was working with Zurinski in a hayfield, was badly burned about the legs and feet.

The storm lasted less than half an hour, but before the weather cleared 1.34 inches of rain fell. For 15 minutes a high wind prevailed and hundreds of trees and numerous fences in this city and vicinity were damaged.

A bolt entered the dwelling of Bruno Twombly and went through all the rooms. Bruno Twombly, Jr., and Alice Foucher, a relative of the Twomblys, were knocked down and stunned. Both will recover. Mrs. Thomas G. Beach was slightly burned by a bolt which struck her dwelling and also the adjoining house.

Farmers report that hail which accompanied the storm broke down corn and other crops. In Grafton a large barn owned by John C. Worcester was burned by lightning. The loss is $5500. Lightning struck in several places at Milford, but no serious damage was done.

Many Prisoners on Probation

Boston, Aug. 7.—Another investigation by District Attorney Moran resulted in Charles street jail losing 72 of its "star boarders," who were placed on probation by Judge Harris at the district attorney's request. The extremely overcrowded condition at the institution, which was brought to Moran's attention, was the cause of the "wholesale delivery." As most of the prisoners were awaiting an appeal on their cases and because of the fact that many more will be sent there shortly, Moran decided to get rid of some of the less important cases at once. Many of the inmates were awaiting an appeal on simple drunk cases.

Saved Lives of Two Children

Providence, Aug. 7.—Frank P. Monahan, a local newspaper man, was passing a house when he discovered smoke issuing from the doors and windows, while at the top story window was William Tanner, aged 4, and his little sister. Rushing into the house through the smoke and flames, Monahan grabbed the children, who had fallen to the floor in the meantime, overcome by the smoke, and carried them out to safety.

Strikers Anxious to Return

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 7.—A committee of the Central Labor union will make an effort to bring about a settlement of the strike of trolleymen, notwithstanding that the first efforts of the committee, made yesterday in the course of an interview with President Crapo of the company, were not crowned with success. Some of the strikers have left town and a few have returned to work for the trolley company.

Won't Comply With Mayor's Request

Boston, Aug. 7.—The trustees of the pauper institute at Long Island have declined the request of Mayor Fitzgerald for a hearing in the case of Superintendent English, who is at the head of the institution. The trustees have given English until Friday next in which to resign. Fitzgerald took a hand in the matter and at a conference with the trustees urged that a hearing be given English.

Prolonged Strike Likely

Adams, Mass., Aug. 7.—The Central Labor union of this town last night voted to endorse the strike of weavers, which has led to the closing of the mills of the Berkshire Cotton Manufacturing company. This action is regarded as indicating a prolonged labor trouble, as the company has taken a pronounced stand against the reinstatement of a man whose discharge led to the strike.

Three-Year Hunt Ended

Danbury, Conn., Aug. 7.—Detective Steinhebel of Detroit came to this city last night from Hartford with requisition papers from Governor Roberts for Albert Pasint, who is wanted in Detroit for the "desertion of his wife and children." He was arrested by the local police and lodged in the lockup. The police of Detroit have been looking for him for three years.

Many Prostrations From Heat

Boston, Aug. 7.—More than a score of persons in Boston and vicinity were prostrated yesterday by the hot wave. Fred Wells of Mansfield, aged 60 years, was overcome and he died within a few minutes. The day was the hottest of the summer, thermometers showing temperatures of 95 and 96. The humidity stood at 80 percent.

Lost Life In Saving Another

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 7.—Nelson Kent, 15 years old, became entangled in eelgrass and was drowned while rescuing a companion, Edward Boyer, aged 13. Boyer, who could not swim, stumbled in the eelgrass and fell into a deep hole. Kent assisted him to a safe footing, but was pulled back by the clinging grass and was drowned.

Hearse Demolished by Automobile

Boston, Aug. 7.—An automobile driven by George C. Huntress of Winchester collided with and demolished a hearse owned by P. J. McArdle of Charlestown in the Dorchester district. Richard S. Goodkin, driver of the hearse, was severely injured and was carried to a hospital.

SAILED 225 MILES

Hazardous Journey In Air of Thomas and Knabenshue

STARTED FROM NEW YORK

Landed In Connecticut and Had Breakfast, Ascended Again, and Finally Brought Up Just In Time to Avoid Going to Sea

Brant Rock, Mass., Aug. 7.—Above the clouds and over 225 miles of land and water from New York city to the little seashore resort of Brant Rock, Mass., Dr. Julian P. Thomas of New York city and Roy Knabenshue, a professional aeronaut, made one of the most successful balloon trips yet undertaken in this country and made the hopes for successful aerial navigation seem more plausible.

The voyage was made with one stop, that a voluntary one at Noank, Conn., early yesterday morning, where, by the aid of a new guide rope, Thomas brought his big balloon to the earth for breakfast and water. The aeronauts landed at Brant Rock at 11:30 yesterday and as they left New York at midnight Sunday they were nearly 12 hours on their trip.

The trip was made for the purpose of testing two new appliances, a guide rope and water anchor, in which the former device worked with great success. The ascent at New York was made without mishap. The balloon rose high over New York city and, impelled by a gentle southwest wind, sailed off over Long Island sound. Within a few miles a thick fog swept in between the swaying car and the waters of the sound and to the dismay of the aeronauts they were unable to tell whither they were drifting. This was perhaps the most trying moment of the journey.

By the use of his guide rope Thomas brought the car nearer the earth and from the blasts of the fog horns beneath him knew he was still over the waters of the sound. Off Bridgeport, Conn., attracted by one of the whistling craft beneath him, Thomas brought his airship still closer to the water and the members of a yachting party were astonished at hearing a voice from the clouds inquire what place it was.

At about 5 o'clock the dark outlines of land could be made out through the fog and Thomas landed gently at Noank, in the yard of Tilton Eldridge. Accepting Eldridge's invitation, the voyagers had breakfast, and were so enthusiastic over the success of their trip, which at this point had been of about 140 miles, that they decided to continue on their way, although they at first had planned merely a moonlight excursion to experiment with the new devices.

At about 6 o'clock another start was made. The sun's action upon the balloon had made it still more buoyant and as soon as released from its anchorage the big bag shot up high in the air to a height not hitherto reached, despite the extra ballast added here, and far above the fog bank that still hung over the water. Gradually the sun's rays dispelled the thick mist and the entrancing picture of the sparkling waters on the one side and the fertile fields of Connecticut on the other was unfolded in all its glory to the travelers.

The wind still held to the southwest. Long Island sound was gradually left behind and the balloon soared over the hills and meadows of Rhode Island. Over Narragansett bay and into Massachusetts the balloon sailed. Hills, rivers and busy manufacturing cities stretched in one flat perspective underneath. Far ahead, however, but drawing rapidly near, the green land was seen to end. Beyond that was water, and on a most extensive horizon the glass failed to discover outlying land.

Preparations were at once made for a final descent. The extra ballast was thrown overboard, but the balloon was high in the air and travelling swiftly and the boundary between land and water was nearing with startling rapidity. All of the ballast was then thrown overboard and the final and crucial test of the guide rope was at hand.

The car dropped rapidly, but not violently until it struck meadowland at Brant Rock. The car, made unsteady by its lack of ballast, bounded along the ground for over 100 yards before its anchor brought it up with the open waters of Massachusetts bay scarcely 300 yards distant. Dr. Thomas and Knabenshue stepped out of the car, which was undamaged, and made it secure to a nearby fence. Knabenshue showed some signs of injuries received from the shaking up of the descent, but he had only a few cuts about the head.

Food Not Up to Standard

Washington, Aug. 7.—As a result of an investigation of the supply of meat and bread for the New York navy yard, a verbal report by the inspector has been made to Secretary Bonaparte and it shows a very unsatisfactory condition. When the formal report is made and additional facts are ascertained it is possible that the contracts for meat and bread will be cancelled.

Suicide of Army Paymaster

San Francisco, Aug. 7.—Major W. B. Scofield, paymaster in the regular army, son of the late Lieutenant General Scofield, U. S. A., retired, shot and killed himself here. He was on leave of absence on account of ill-health and in explanation of the suicide it is said that he feared an attack of locomotor ataxia.

Rheumatism Badly Cripples A Baldwinsville Farmer

URIC-O Quickly Cured Him.

Treated 2 Years With a High-Priced Physician With No Success.

Mr. Frank Howe, a prominent farmer in the town of Van Buren, says: "I visited the best Physician in Syracuse, who treated me for about two years for rheumatism. I spent in that time several hundred dollars and seemed to grow worse instead of better each day. Being on crutches and forced to drive to the train and hobbling to the doctor's office became very discouraging, let alone the sleepless nights and fearful hours of pain. I was advised to quit doctoring and try Smiths' Specific Uric-O. I purchased a seventy-five cent bottle, took it home and used it that day as directed.

"Those fearful sciatic pains left me, my blood seemed to let loose and flow freely. I felt different and knew the next morning I had found a cure, as I slept and rested well all that night, something I had not done before in two years. I used in all six bottles of Uric-O and have never felt a return of the disease, had no use for crutches or cane since the first day's treatment. I know that Uric-O does not contain Alcohol or opiates and that it works in a wonderful way on the blood, bladder, muscles and kidneys and is the only way on earth to cure rheumatism."

Frank Howe.

Baldwinsville, N. Y., R. F. D.

Uric-O is sold at seventy-five cents per bottle, is a liquid internal treatment good for rheumatism only, and will cure each and every case of rheumatism if properly used. Samples and circulars will be cheerfully sent free by addressing The Smith Drug Company, Syracuse, N. Y.

Uric-O is sold in Quincy by E. J. Murphy, who highly recommends the remedy.

Steamer Sirio Was Perhaps Engaged In Nefarious Work

Madrid, Aug. 7.—Espana Nueva publishes a dispatch from Barcelona containing a startling statement to account for the wreck of the Sirio. In this communication it is asserted that the Italian steamer was engaged in the clandestine embarkation of Spanish emigrants along the coast, and that large sums of money were paid for this work. This is said to explain why the vessel followed a course never taken by ships of equal draught.

Continuing, the paper says the conduct of the captain and the crew of the Sirio when the catastrophe occurred left much to be desired, and justifies belief in the reports that illicit traffic was going on. The public is greatly incensed against the captain and crew.

The captain of the Sirio, who did not commit suicide as previously reported, refuses to speak except to say that the vessel struck a reef not down on the charts.

Three Negroes Lynched

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 7.—A mob of 3000 determined men, shortly before 11 o'clock last night, forcibly entered Rowan county jail at Salisbury, removed therefrom three of the six negroes charged with the murder of the Lyerly family at Barber Junction, and lynched them. Nease and John Gillespie and Jack Dillingham, supposed to be the principals in that crime, were the victims of mob vengeance. The remaining three negroes were not molested, and at midnight officers took them to Greensboro.

Four Deaths May Result

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 7.—As the result of an explosion of gas in a shaft at Nanticoke, six men and a boy were injured or burned. Four of the injured are not expected to recover. The explosion was caused by a miner who, with a naked lamp, came in contact with a feeder of gas which he ignited while in the act of blasting. There were nearly 100 men in the main gangway at the time, but none was seriously injured aside from the seven who were near the point where the gas was set off.

Ferryboat Passengers In Panic

New York, Aug. 7.—Ferryboat Hackensack went ashore off the foot of East 133rd street last night, causing a panic among the passengers on board. Men and women rushed about the decks terror-stricken. After all the passengers had been safely transferred to the shore by a tug the ferryboat was pulled into deep water and proceeded under her own steam to her slip. Just what caused the accident could not be learned.

Longer Sentence Than Principals

Portland, Or., Aug. 7.—Charles Nickell, newspaper publisher and formerly United States commissioner at Medford, was sentenced by Judge Hunt to 13 months' imprisonment for conspiracy to suborn perjury in connection with the Miller and Kincart land fraud conspiracy. Miller and Kincart are now serving one year for the same offense. Pending an appeal, Nickell was released on $4000 bonds.

Jerome Will Prosecute Thaw

New York, Aug. 7.—District Attorney Jerome announces that he will personally conduct the prosecution of Harry K. Thaw, who is awaiting trial on a charge of having murdered Stanford White. When asked the date of the trial Jerome said that the case will not be called before it is ready and that Thaw must take his chances with the other prisoners accused of murder in the first degree.

Bandits Raid Town In Philippines

Manila, Aug. 7.—A band of Pulajanes made an attack on Abujago, Island of Leyte, at 2 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 5, killing the ex-president, three policemen and two other persons and burned the town hall. All the records were destroyed. A force of regulars and constabulary are in pursuit of the raiders.

Hike of Maine Troops

Iceboro, Me., Aug. 7.—After a seven-mile march from Bowdoinham in the heat and dust of country highways, the First regiment, Maine National Guard, went into camp here last night. Notwithstanding the severe temperature the men were reported to be all in good condition, though all were weary.

Bride Slain by Husband

Erie, Pa., Aug. 7.—Angered because his bride of three months announced that she would no longer live with him, Edward Culm, a gunsmith, aged 56, shot and killed her on the street and then turned the weapon upon himself. The bullet made a severe scalp wound, but Culm will recover.

Governor's Warning to Sheriff

Albany, Aug. 7.—Governor Higgins, in a communication to the sheriff of Saratoga county, warns that official that the anti-gambling laws must not be violated in that county and informs the sheriff that he will be held strictly accountable for their enforcement.

Will Shift Over to Bryan

Waterloo, Ia., Aug. 7.—The conservative element of the Democratic party in Iowa, which in the past opposed William J. Bryan, will be in control of the Iowa Democratic convention and will urge the nomination of Bryan for president as a conservative.

TO REPUBLICANS:

We are anxious to have every Republican in close touch, and working in harmony with the Republican National Congressional Committee in favor of the election of a Republican Congress.

The Congressional campaign must be based on the administrative and legislative record of the party, and, that being so, Theodore Roosevelt's personality must be a central figure and his achievements a central thought in the campaign.

We desire to maintain the work of this campaign with popular subscriptions of One Dollar each from Republicans. To each subscriber we will send the Republican National Campaign Text Book and all documents issued by the Committee.

Help us achieve a great victory.

TO BREAK INTO JAIL.

That Is Gourdain's Ambition—May Build His Own Prison.

Louis A. Gourdain, Chicago millionaire, is a man of one idea. His one idea is to break into jail as speedily as possible. He was in jail once, but a perfidious lawyer with a writ of supersedeas, against Gourdain's advice and consent, got him out again. Gourdain was getting too rich too quick, the United States courts thought. He was convicted of using the mails to defraud and sentenced to Joliet penitentiary for four years and six months. Hardly had he grown accustomed to his new home when the lawyer with his little writ snatched him from his cell. Gourdain returned to Joliet and knocked in vain on the prison gate. Then he went east to find a supreme court judge who would order him locked up. If he doesn't find one he will go back to Joliet and build a nice little jail of his own.

"My release from Joliet was against my wish," said Gourdain in New York, "and if I am not taken back I shall spend the next four years in a jail of my own, an exact replica of the penitentiary in miniature. I have already bought the land, next door to the Joliet pen. I shall have a cell built exactly like the one I occupied in prison. I will enter the cell every night, get up every morning when the penitentiary gong rings and eat prison fare in prison garb. I will be convict No. 9800. When my term is up I shall take all the Gourdains on my steam yacht, and we will sail away and never be heard of again."

TO DECAPITATE HIMSELF.

Ex-Governor Stone, His File and Pennsylvania's Bronze Doors.

Ex-Governor William A. Stone of Pennsylvania threatens to file his own head off. He is not, however, contemplating a new form of harakiri. The imperiled head is a bronze replica of the one he wears upon his shoulders and adorns a door of the new state capitol at Harrisburg.

There are two of these doors, and they have become a political issue. Upon them are twenty bronze heads of typical Americans. Among the types are the late Senator M. S. Quay, Boies Penrose, Governor Pennypacker, Israel

EX-GOVERNOR WILLIAM A. STONE AND GOLD KEY TO STATEHOUSE.

W. Durham, ex-boss of Philadelphia, and Senator William A. Clark. These men are not too popular with certain elements in the state, and ex-Governor Stone objects to appearing in their company; hence the file.

The architect of the capitol, Joseph M. Huston, has had his own head put on hinges so that it hangs down over the keyhole. When the new capitol is dedicated his head will be raised and a gold key weighing a pound will be inserted in the hole thus disclosed.

Love Plants of West Indies.

"Did you ever hear of the love plant?" asked a sea captain who was showing several visitors over his craft the other day. "I have several in the cabin."

He showed three small leaves attached to the ceiling by strings. They were without any soil or foundation, but were green, and from each there sprouted a dozen or more little leaves, greener and fresher than the main leaf itself.

"During our last cruise in the West Indies," the captain continued, "I visited a deserted English fortress, which was grown over with shrubbery. A native plucked several leaves from a vine and told me to hang them somewhere and write the name of my best girl on them. 'If they die,' he said, 'she does not love you. If they sprout, she does.' I put my wife's name on one and my two daughters' names on the others. You see, although they have been without nourishment for three months, all three are sprouting well and my family's affections seem assured."—Philadelphia Record.

Colors.

White is the emblem of light, religious purity, innocence, faith, joy and life. In the judge it indicates integrity; in the sick, humility; in the woman, chastity. Red, the ruby, signifies fire, divine love and royalty. White and red roses express love and wisdom. Blue, or the sapphire, expresses heaven, the firmament, truth, from a celestial origin, constancy and fidelity. Yellow or gold is the symbol of the sun, of marriage and faithfulness. Green, the emerald, is the color of spring, of hope—particularly of the hope of immortality and of victory, as the color of the laurel and palm. Violet, the amethyst, signifies love and truth or passion and suffering. Purple and scarlet signify things good and true from a celestial origin. Black corresponds to despair, darkness, earthliness, mourning, negation, wickedness and death.

A Rhapsody on a Mutton Chop.

When a primitive man wants breakfast he takes a sheep, kneels upon it, holds it between his legs and cuts its throat. He skins it, and, taking a slice out of it, fries it on the coals for breakfast. We also demand not less imperatively cutlets for our breakfast, but we manage it another way. We procure an individual some way off to kill the beast and another out of our sight to cook it. We have a paper frill put around the bone to disguise it, and set a pot of flowers straight before us to look at while we eat it; but, to the sheep—to the sheep—it can make little difference which way it is eaten. We still do our unclean work, but we do it by proxy. And it may be questioned whether what we gain in refinement we have not lost in sincerity.—Fortnightly Review.

The Mineral Jade.

Most people have probably seen jade ornaments without having a very clear idea of the material of which such things are composed. Jade is an exceedingly tough but beautiful mineral, much of which is found in China. It is of five colors, the most highly prized jade being the white, yellow and green varieties. The rarest of all is red jade, but this is so scarce that it has no place in market valuations. The mineral is frequently found in the beds of streams, and in searching for it Mohammedans are generally employed, as it is believed that people of this faith are sensitive to its presence, and, like the dowsers or water finders, are affected with shuddering fits when passing over a place where jade is to be found.

Animals Clever With Their Feet.

Goats are the most sure footed of our native animals. They can walk upright where the average human being would not crawl. Horses are the daintiest treaders, however, though they cannot climb. No horse will step on a man if it can possibly help it. It is a standing rule in cavalry regiments that if a trooper is dismounted he must remain perfectly still, when the whole column passes over him without injuring him. Camels are careless, on the other hand, and the man who came out unharmed from under the feet of a camel corps was not born to be run over by any beast or vehicle.

Aerated Water.

Artificially aerated drinking waters were the invention of the chemist Joseph Priestley, who in 1772 published his "Directions For Impregnating Water With Fixed Air In Order to Communicate to It the Peculiar Spirit and Virtues of Pyrmont Water and Other Mineral Waters of a Similar Nature." Some one has calculated the consumption of aerated waters in Great Britain and Ireland to amount to 200,000,000 gallons a year.—London Standard.

The Ruling Passion.

"Now I've queered myself for good with Miss Prettyface."

"What did you do?"

"I started to write a proposal to her, but I'm so used to writing business instead of love letters that I told her I wanted the refusal of her hand."—Baltimore American.

Order.

Order is the sanity of the mind, the health of the body, the peace of the city, the security of the state. As the beams to a house, as the bones to the microcosm of man, so is order to all things.

An Itching One.

Miss Country Maid—I understand that in some hotels one often sees palms about the dining rooms. What kind of palm is the most prominent? Mr. Dineout—The waiter's.

Society takes us away from ourselves.—De Lambert.

Buffalo Hunt and Sham Rush For Land Near Bliss, O. T.

FULL GROWN ANIMALS AS PREY

One to Be Killed by Indians and the Other by White Men on Range of the Miller Brothers—"Buffalo Jones" to Repeat Famous Ride on His Two Galloping Horses.

Another buffalo killing has been scheduled for the 101 ranch, near Bliss, O. T., according to a dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. J. C. Miller, president of the famous range, announces that he has concluded to repeat the great show given in June of last year, with a lot of new features.

The dates for this year's roundup are Sept. 15 and 16, the anniversary of the opening of the Cherokee strip. The run for that tract of 6,000,000 acres was made in 1893. Next to the killing of the buffaloes a sham repetition of that famous scramble for land will be the feature of the two days of wild west life.

Between 65,000 and 75,000 people were entertained last year at the ranch on June 11. This year the Millers are looking for a much bigger crowd. Arrangements have been made with the Santa Fe railway to run 100 extra chair cars to Bliss to carry the pilgrims.

"What are you going to call the show?" was asked of J. C. Miller.

"'Another Big Time at the 101 Ranch,'" was the answer.

"Will you kill any buffalo?"

"Yes, two. We have a herd of thirty-six on our ranch now. The ones killed will be big, full grown animals. One will be killed by the Indians and given them to eat, and the other will be killed by the white men and cut into the smallest possible pieces, so as to give every visitor a piece which he may carry away as a souvenir."

Mr. Miller would not tell the manner in which the animals will be killed. Last year he had a world of trouble over the slaughter of a pair of animals. Things got to such a stage that the state militia of Texas was ordered out and then President Roosevelt was asked to interfere. He instructed Oklahoma's governor to prevent the killing of the animals if it was to be done in a brutal manner. But the Indians got in their work with their arrows before the troops got on the ranch.

So this year Mr. Miller is decidedly wary about giving out the manner in which the old kings of the prairie are to meet their death. "Nothing will be said about that at all," he said. "The visitors who come will see it for themselves and will find out in that way. But the killing will take place—that is a certainty."

"How are you going to imitate the great run of 1893?" was asked.

"That can be arranged very nicely," he answered. "We expect to have about 10,000 Indians under old Chief Geronimo at the ranch. All of the white settlers in our neighborhood for miles about will be called upon to help us, especially those who participated in the actual run. They know just how it was done.

"Buffalo Jones will be with us and repeat his famous ride with two horses. Men familiar with that time will remember that he went in on two horses, riding one a part of the time and then jumping on to the other while at full speed. He beat all the others. He will duplicate that ride. The run will be a great feature. So nearly as possible, it will be a duplicate of the great race. There are a great many persons in Oklahoma who participated in it, and they will help to make it as nearly real as possible."

"Who will be the big guests?"

"We will send out a lot of invitations, but have not so far because we have just decided on having another buffalo killing. Last year we entertained 3,000 newspaper men. We want them all again this year, and more, and will give them everything they want in the way of comforts. They can come early and stay late. We will have some prominent men of the country in attendance. They like to see the fun as much as any one else."

Sept. 15 is Saturday. That day the Miller Bros.' 101 ranch show will reproduce the run to the Cherokee and at night the 10,000 Indians will give a war dance. Sunday morning John Eastman, a Sioux Indian Christian preacher, will deliver a sermon. In the afternoon the killing of the two buffaloes will take place and at night the great buffalo barbecue will wind up the festivities. This is just the rough sketch of the programme. Mr. Miller says that he will fill it out with a half dozen other attractions.

Forward, Oklahoma!

Hark forward, Oklahoma!
Child of the yesteryears,
Full grown now and corn and cotton crowned,
Proud of your red blood youth of states,
Tanned and ruby cheeked and spirit high
As when you rode some hundred thousand strong,
Free lance, free heart, free will,
And called "No Man's Land" your home.
Or when that later time, in '93,
The signal cannon boomed along the waiting line
Of thousands hungry for the tempting land,
Unleashed the thunder hoofs of horses
In ruddy race across the fenceless,
Trackless waste of verdant plain.
Lo, canvas cities blossomed in an hour,
And cornerstones were set for future farms!
At noon "The Strip" a virgin prairie rolled—
At night a people tented plain.
And now this pioneer of yesteryear,
This rugged infant of the western wild,
Is lifted to the glory and a place
Among the statehood constellation of the stars!

—John N. Edwards in St. Louis Republic.

HAVE A HAPPY HOME.

This Is Possible, No Matter How Humble the Surroundings.

It is possible to make the humblest home bright and happy. A hearty welcome to the guests, music, if possible; games and the happy knack of making the young feel that their opinions are worth listening to and that you are enjoying their company—that is the secret.

Mothers should remember that their daughters' matrimonial chances depend a good deal on the kind of homes they live in. When a man calls on a girl and finds her in a bright, attractive home, with everything happy and sweet about her, he naturally thinks: "This is the kind of home I want. There is love between the parents and children. Everything is comfortable and happy. It is the ideal home."

Of course the girls and boys have just as much to do with the home making. They must do their share toward the happy atmosphere. The girl must help to lift the burden of household care from the mother's tired shoulders, and the boy must be a companion to and help the father with the responsibilities of keeping the home.

When a mother and daughter stand on proper terms with each other there is a firm friendship underlying the natural love. The mother, with the memory of her own girlhood days in her mind, is not too severe on the faults and mistakes that the young daughter is sure to make. And the daughter, sure of a ready sympathy and comprehension, is not afraid to confide in her mother.

The same rule applies with father and son. Most fathers love their sons, but they forget that they were once boys themselves and that youth cannot be staid and wise and never kick over the traces. Perfect confidence between father and son is quite as important as it is between mother and daughter, and the experience of the parents can often save the young people from many mistakes.—New York American.

SOFA CUSHIONS.

A Novel Idea Is to Have Them Heart Shaped and Large.

New ideas in sofa cushions are always welcome, for the average household cannot own too many cushions to suit the feminine members, though there may be an occasional masculine protest against an excess in supply. The latest notion is to have one or two cushions of heart shape resting on top of the ordinary square pillows, and the result is very good, as the accompanying illustration shows. The cushion is of large size, somewhat solidly stuffed, six to eight inches thick. For the center the heart shape is cut out in a flat piece of silk, backed, if soft, with coarse linen or stiffer material and set with a wide gauging made to lie flat. Sometimes, as in the example here pictured, a touch of embroidery is added. In perfectly plain corded silk without adornment the heart cushion makes an admirable accessory to the sofa furnishing. Broderie anglaise on ivory lawn, lined with one of the colors dominant in the room, makes an excellent covering for such a cushion, the gauging being dispensed with in favor of a flat shaped border of the openwork.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Cooking by Steam.

Nearly all mixtures capable of being boiled can be steamed, but they will take nearly as long again to cook. Steaming, though a much slower method than boiling, renders food lighter and therefore more digestible. If a steamer is used, all that is needed is to fill the lower division with water, place the perforated upper vessel over this and when the water beneath boils put the pudding in the upper part, fixing on the lid tightly. If there is no steamer, use an ordinary saucepan large enough to easily hold the basin. Have in the saucepan enough boiling water to come just halfway up the basin, which, in this case, stands right in the water. A sensible suggestion is to tie some string round the basin so that it forms two long loops on either side, thus providing handles with which to raise the basin. They should be caught up by the lid to keep them out of the boiling water.

Don't Betray Confidences.

How few people there are who know how to keep a confidence made to them in the true sense of the word! They frequently forget the fundamental principle of the whole idea, which is this: Have no desire to tell it to another person. So much can be done to betray a confidence by a person dropping into hints and innuendoes without once deliberately breaking his compact to the letter, but only in the spirit, says Home Notes. What a valuable point to have in your reputation—that you are a perfectly safe person to whom to intrust a secret! Remember when you are inclined to pass a confidence to a bosom friend, however much she may want to hear it, she will remember the fact against you when she wants to confide in you that, as you are capable of breaking your bond with one friend, so you can do it with another, perhaps herself, next time.

UNSUSPECTED WORMS

are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When they are sick you rarely think their sickness is caused by worms. They are rarely treated for worms. Yet worms are the cause either directly or indirectly of over 75 per cent. of the ailments of children. They are also frequent cause of illness in adults. The familiar symptoms of worms are disturbed health, deranged stomach, furred tongue, variable appetite and bowels, increased thirst, itching of nostrils, indolence, malaria, irritability, distu bed sleep, grinding of teeth, slow fever and often in children, convulsions—

Ingersoll on Napoleon.

A little while ago I stood by the grave of the great Napoleon—a magnificent tomb of gilt and gold. I saw him take an empire by the force of his genius. I saw him upon the frightful field of Waterloo, when chance and fate combined to wreck the fortunes of the former king, and I saw him at St. Helena with his hands crossed behind him gazing out at the sad and solemn sea. I thought of the orphans and widows he had made, of the tears that had been shed for his glory, and of the only woman who had ever loved him pushed from his heart by the cruel hand of ambition, and I said I would rather have been a French peasant and worn wooden shoes. I would rather have been that poor peasant with my loving wife by my side, knitting as the day died out in the skies, with my children upon my knees and their arms about me. I would rather have been that man and gone down to the tongueless silence of the dreamless dust than to have been that impartial impersonation of force and murder known as Napoleon the Great.—Woman's Home Companion.

Blowing the Nose.

Medical experts are calling the attention of the public to the importance of performing the nose blowing operation in a scientific and hygienic manner. First one nostril and then the other should be blown without undue violence. Doctors state that the two nasal passages should never be closed at the same time. If they are obstructed, as in the case of a cold, the back of the throat is filled with compressed air, and this, together with the discharge and the microbes which it contains, may be driven through the eustachial tube into the middle ear and lead to serious results. A great authority on the subject used to forbid his patients to blow their noses when suffering from a cold. The course is hardly one which will commend itself to those in the habit of catching colds. The best advice would seem to be that when it is necessary to blow the nose the blowing should be done gently.—London Mail.

Too Lively.

He was a solemn Scotchman, with an equally solemn and somewhat downtrodden wife. The fact that they were receiving an excellent price for their "second pair front" from an American lodger did not blind them to her failings.

"Dear me, Mr. Macleod," said the lodger, one Sunday afternoon, when an errand took her to the parlor, where the family sat, "I should think you and your wife would be stifled sitting indoors this hot day with the windows shut. If you'd just open one and get some fresh air, I'm sure it would do Mrs. Macleod good; she looks pale."

Mr. Macleod looked at her with his usual stern and unbending gaze.

"We can hae fresh air ony day," he said calmly. "We've no need to hae it rushing aboot the house on the Sawbath."

Germany the Modern Rome.

Let the German people keep a lesson from antiquity before their eyes. Once before an England and a Germany of no less different character have confronted each other. They were Carthage and Rome. And old Rome with its policy of force and power finally conquered the cash politics of Carthage and raised itself to the position of the first power upon earth. We have historical example when we say that the German people must return from the imitation of the un-German Carthaginian-British finance policy and must go back to the Roman-German policy of power and might. In no other way can a really great Weltpolitik be promoted in the hope perhaps of making ourselves ultimately the leading people in the world.—Berlin Grenzboten.

Spanish Sheep.

There are said to be 10,000,000 migratory sheep in Spain, which travel on occasions as much as 200 miles from the plains to the mountains. They are known as transhumantes, and their march, resting places and behavior are governed by special regulations dating from the fourteenth century. At certain times no one may travel the same route as the sheep, which have the right to graze on all open and common land on the way.

Much Exaggerated.

"Tell me," said the inquisitive foreigner, "do American girls affect men's clothes?"

"No," replied the gallant native, "not to any extent."

"Well, well, is that really true?"

"Well, of course, a little rouge may stick to the shoulder of a fellow's coat occasionally, but then it's easily brushed off."—Philadelphia Press.

Chess and Intellect.

It is doubtful whether a great chess player is often, we are sure he is not of necessity, to be regarded as a man of powerful intellect. It has never been shown that the greatest masters of the game were men with big brains for anything but chess.—London Saturday Review.

Her Plea For Delay.

"Will you be my wife, Jane?"
"Will you ask me again, John?"
"Why?"
"Because I'd like to look round a little before I give you the direct answer."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

For Hygienic Reasons.

Mistress—Why have you not swept this morning? Servant—For hygienic reasons. Madame raises the dust sufficiently with the train of her skirt. We must give the microbes a little rest.—Paris Armales.

When men are friends there is no need of justice, but when they are just they still need friendship.—Aristotle.

Valuation On Jump

Quincy's Increase Larger Than Most of Cities Of the State

According to the Quincy Assessors the valuation of our city is increasing much more rapidly than many of the Massachusetts cities. Of the eleven which have reported for 1906 only three have shown a larger gain, and these were Springfield, Worcester and Salem, all large cities.

Although Somerville, Haverhill and Malden are larger in population, the valuation of these cities is not increasing as fast as Quincy.

The increase in assessed valuation, 1906 over 1905, is given below for the cities which have reported:

Quincy	$1,208,175
Melrose	148,185
Woburn	*56,610
Gloucester	308,000
Malden	663,950
Waltham	794,796
Somerville	1,129,060
Salem	1,279,000
Worcester	2,345,949
Springfield	6,000,000
Haverhill	nearly 500,000

*Loss.

Quincy has doubled in valuation in sixteen years, that is since 1890.

Quincy is now No. 21 in valuation in the State, there being 19 cities and one town with more assessed valuation. Our total is $26,786,885, a little over $900 per capita.

Quincy Word List.

Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston received this week the following endorsement of the spelling book of which Supt. Frank E. Parlin is the author.

Dear Mr. Tobey:

Referring to our conversation in regard to the "Quincy Word List," spelling book, of Mr. Parlin's, will say that we adopted that book in the common schools of Putnam two years ago. The condition of the schools at that time in relation to spelling was very unsatisfactory. The Board examined a large list of books, in fact, about all we could get hold of, and we decided that, for arrangement and daily, weekly and monthly work, this was the best thing in the market.

The book has won its way with pupils and teachers and we think it is an admirable book. The spelling in all grades has been toned up amazingly and I think it is safe to say that, certainly in the upper grades, more than 70 per cent. of the pupils the last six months have had an average of 60 or 70, and an unusually large number have gotten from 90 to 100 in spelling.

We particularly emphasize syllable spelling using that edition, and we are very sure that this has not only affected the distinct and clear pronunciation, but has sharpened the attention of the pupils generally and has been beneficial in improvement all along the line.

I ought to say that on account of added interest in spelling in the grammar school, our High school took up the subject and arranged for a public spelling match with selected pupils of our High school and the High school of Killingly, an adjoining town. These public spelling matches were attended by crowds of parents of the school. They proved unusually helpful.

Yours very truly,
Edgar M. Warner.

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 4, 1906.

Almost a riot.

The Young's Hotel team which played a memorable game at Brockton on Monday, was composed largely of Quincy players. The battery was Patterson and Drake, and in the team were also Burnie, Dunn, Donaher and Duffy. Montello was ahead 5 to 4 when game was called in the last of the eight because of darkness. This gave the game to Montello 4 to 3, and about caused a riot.

—George E. Gay, receetly superintendent of schools at Malden, has been elected to a similar position in Haverhill, at a salary of $2,300.

—The tax rate of Needham is $18.50; of Concord, $15.70; of Revere, $22.

—A three-way fire station is being built in Hyde Park at a cost of $25,000.

New R. R. Bridge Over the Neponset

The Quincy shore of the Neponset river is piled high with the timbers of the old railroad bridge and across are huge heaps of granite blocks and chips, and the offices of the contractors,—the Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins corporation of Boston. The two shores display in contrast the passing of the old and the coming of the new. Great wooden caissons are used instead of coffer dams to lay the foundations of the six stone piers, which with one abutment of stone on the Neponset side will constitute all the masonry to be employed.

The construction of the bridge, otherwise will be two-thirds of steel and the balance of trestle, or wooden piles, as before. The contractors will have completed their part of the work on or about December first next. The date is not likely to vary three weeks either way.

When the double-roller steel drawbridge similar to that between South Boston and the city, with its four tracks, will be at once placed and the bridge be rapidly completed as a whole. The result of this enterprise is looked upon to be of immense material benefit to Quincy and Braintree especially.

Abundant Supply Of Gas Now

Boston gas was turned into the new twelve-inch main that runs from the corner of Beale and Adams street, through Beal, Hancock, Washington and Canal streets on Tuesday.

During the past few weeks the Company has been busy laying mains in the Wollaston sections and several of these streets have already been piped and gas turned on.

The streets in Wollaston which have been piped up to date are: Farrington, Arlington, Fayette, Safford, Taylor, and Brook streets, Highland avenue, Elmwood avenue and North Central avenue. With Boston gas Quincy is sure of having an abundant supply.

Arrested by U. S. Marshal

United States Deputy Marshal Charles A. Barcroft came to Quincy Tuesday night armed with a warrant for the arrest of John H. Bent of Cottage avenue, for using the United States mails to defraud. The marshal was met by Lieut. McKay, and they went in search of Bent. They did not have to look far for they found him near Music hall.

It is claimed that Bent advertised a fancy line of eggs and delivered common every day store eggs. Bent, however, claims that he delivered the goods advertised.

The complaint against him was made by William E. Mack of West Woodstock, Vt. After his arrest he was taken to Boston.

A Joke That Was Carried Too Far

Henry Ramanen, aged 22 years, of Nilson street, is at the Eye and Ear Infirmary with a bad pair of eyes, the result of a prank it is alleged on the part of George Johnson, for whom a warrant has been issued.

Both men are employed at the quarry of J. S. Swingle. Last Friday, during the noon hour, Ramanen laid down to take a nap. Johnson thought the time very opportune to have a little fun. It is alleged that he took a handful of oil and grease from the engine room and rubbed it all over the sleeping man's face.

The joke took a serious turn however, and soon Ramanen's face began to swell, and his eyes to close up. Instead of getting better the boy's eyes grew worse, and Tuesday morning he was taken to the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary.

This morning the boy's uncle swore out a warrant against Johnson for assault.

Arawak Sails Against Manchester

The Quincy yacht Arawak sailed in the Manchester open race on Tuesday in the same class as the defender Manchester. The Marie E. was an easy winner, with the Manchester second and the Arawak fifth. The summary follows:

Name and owner,	Actual Time. h m s	Corrected Time. h m s
Marie L, George Lee	2 04 06	2 01 47
Manchester, J. L. Bremer	2 11 45	2 05 14
Nutmeg, A. C. Jones	2 10 43	2 08 24
Khalifa, W. A. Tucker	2 29 03	2 28 34
Arawak, H. C. Nickerson	2 32 30	2 30 47

These boats' times were not taken: Orestes, Aspinquid II, Marvel, Doreen, Quill, Tunipoo, Mirage II, Dorchen, Jap II, Caramba, Cheroot and Fritter.

The Arawak took a cash prize of $5.

New Stem for Spray.

The owners of the steam trawler Spray have called for bids for repairing the damage sustained by the vessel by collision with the ocean tug Conestoga, off Bug light early Sunday morning. The Spray has been surveyed by Capt. Young, and Lloyd's surveyor will also look her over. She will require an entire new stem and most of her bow plates on both the port and starboard sides will have to be removed and straightened. Other repairs about the bow will be necessary before the vessel is ready for sea.

Building A Wreck

No Prospects of High School Being Ready On September 10

People who have watched the progress on the addition to the High schoolhouse, are wondering when the building will be ready for occupancy. They are also wondering what will be done toward providing quarters when school opens in September.

It is certain that the building will be no where near ready for occupancy at that time. The building today is a wreck. It looks for all the world as though it had been struck by a cyclone. It is a wreck. Not only has the inside of the original building been torn out but the outside walls as well.

The southerly Hancock street front is the worst looking part. Here the front wall has been torn down nearly to the top of the doors that led into the old assembly hall. In fact almost the whole front has been torn out.

Further down on the Hancock street front one corner of the old roof has been ripped off. This leaves a large hole exposing a good part of that end to the weather. On the south end, the upper brick work has also been torn out to admit of the changes necessary.

The new part is still open to the weather, nothing having been done toward roofing it. The inside looks still worse, all semblance of school rooms having almost disappeared.

People go by and say to themselves that it would have been better to have placed dynamite under the old building and blown it up and commenced anew.

The fall term of the public schools will open Sept. 10, only four weeks from next Monday, and accommodations must be provided for 600 or more High school pupils.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The good old summer days like yesterday are preferable to today. Rainy weather has become too monotonous.

The Auk, the Quincy challenger for the Q. Y. C. cup is proving as great a sea bird as the species in the Arctics, and is counted upon to freeze out the Manchester. There is nothing Aukward about Charlie Adams' flyer.

One of the mistakes of Quincy and other small cities is their attempt to keep up to Boston and Metropolitan cities in the excellence of their schools, streets, police, fire and other departments. Bulletin 50 the National bureau of the Census, just issued, reports that Boston has the largest tax levy per capita of any city in the country. Newton, often held up as an example for Quincy, has the largest per capita net debt; New York being second and Boston third.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Attorney General Moody's opinion that the eight-hour law of the federal government does not apply to naval construction in the hands of contractors in private yards, for the reason that the vessels under process of construction do not become the property of the government until they are completed and accepted, opens up a considerable gap in the law and its application to government work, and will probably be the subject of much criticism. It will require the training of the legal mind which is accustomed to splitting hairs to discover the difference between a contract job on a ship and a contract job on any other piece of government work, however.—Haverhill Gazette.

RUSSIA'S VICTORY

Political Strike Against the Government a Failure

A NEW MOVE BY PREMIER

Landed Interests and Peasantry May Be Won Over by Granting Immediate Relief to the Latter--Disorders Continue

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—The revolutionary move, under the guise of a general strike, has come to naught and the Workingmen's council has decided to call it off. This applies only to St. Petersburg, but the capital's example is likely to be followed by the other sections of the country. Nowhere did the efforts of the radical leaders to precipitate trouble meet with a response sufficient to warrant further effort to force the fight against the government at this time. For the moment the government control of the situation is virtually absolute.

For this condition of affairs the country has to thank or blame, according to the point of view, the douma, whose blunders led to its suppression and indirectly were responsible for the mutinies at Sveaborg, Cronstadt and on the warships which the loyal forces suppressed. Now the failure of the general strike adds to the strength of the government's position.

The real intention of the government, as revealed by a member of the cabinet to the press, shows that Premier Stolypin at least intends to pursue an affirmative policy, amounting virtually to a determination on the part of the administration to settle the agrarian question according to its own lights and irrespective of parliament, and then go to the country upon this issue.

The government expects to rally not only the landed interests, but the mass of the peasantry to its side by actually giving the latter some immediate relief instead of merely holding out hopes of a more advantageous settlement in the indefinite future, which has been the stock in trade of many reformers.

Politically this move may prove very strong. The actual bestowal of land, even if in smaller quantities than was expected, and the divisions of communistic holdings will, it is believed, make the peasantry disinclined to vote for candidates to the lower house who might propose a totally different solution to the question. But above all, individual possession, the government calculates, will inculcate that very respect for property, the lack of which, under the system of communistic holdings, has made many peasants such easy converts to the theory of the nationalization of land.

The crux of the question is its financial aspect. It will be a Herculean operation to find the funds required to purchase private holdings, even though the owners, under the spell of the agrarian disorders, are ready to sell at most moderate prices. The character of these disorders has been shown again in the destruction of an estate at Poltava owned by Prince Kotchubsy, where a breeding stud of 250 horses and more than 600 sheep were locked in burning buildings and wantonly left to perish.

That there is continued preparation among the revolutionaries for an armed uprising in the south is believed to be indicated by the interception by the police of shipments of arms and ammunition, including rifles and sabres, at Poltava and Theodosia.

Dispatches received here from Yelisavetpol announce that another "perpetual peace" has been arranged between Tartars and Armenians at Shusha, but advices from Tiflis show that the situation is still critical, especially in the adjoining district of Sangesur. A deputation of Tartars called yesterday upon the viceroy at Tiflis and coolly demanded the removal of General Golochtkapoff, who interfered with Russian troops in the settlement of this interracial quarrel.

Made Sure of Governor's Death

Samara, Aug. 8.—The assassin of M. Block, the governor of Samara, who was killed here Aug. 3, is a youth named Froloff. When arrested he confessed the crime and said that accomplices armed with bombs had been posted on all the roads the governor might take that day in order to make sure of his death.

Wild Trip of Street Car

New York, Aug. 8.—A crowded Madison avenue surface car ran wild for 10 blocks down a steep incline, collided with a moving van, wrecked itself and the van, and at least 20 persons were injured, six so severely that they were taken to a hospital. Many of the passengers were hurt by jumping. The accident was due to a failure of the brakes to work.

Flood Stories Exaggerated

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 8.—Specials from San Angelo county show that first reports of flood damage were greatly exaggerated. The Colorado and Conche rivers are subsiding. Ranchmen have lost many head of cattle, horses and sheep and crops on lowlands have been ruined. No lives have been lost.

Umpire Upheld by Pulliam

New York, Aug. 8.—What is expected to prove the worst war the National league has had for a long time was started by McGraw's Giants, when they refused to allow Umpire Johnstone into the Polo grounds to referee the game scheduled between themselves and the Chicagos. Johnstone promptly forfeited the game to the Chicagos, while the Giants claimed the game, too, on the ground that the Chicagos refused to play after the Giants had named one of their own players as umpire. President Pulliam of the National league last night issued a statement in which he said he would stand by Johnstone's decision to the finish.

Manager and Umpire In Conflict

Boston, Aug. 8.—Following the National league baseball game here there was a serious personal encounter between Manager Tenney of the Boston team and Umpire Klem. Tenney accused Klem of neglecting to deliver over to him the balls used in the game, which are always considered the property of the local club. He then attempted forcibly to search the umpire's pockets. An exchange of blows followed and Klem, it is alleged, threw one of the balls at Tenney, hitting him in the face. Both men bore marks of the fray.

Coolness Might Have Averted Disaster

Barcelona, Aug. 8.—The Italian steamer Umbria has arrived here. Her captain declares that he passed the Hormigas island shortly after the wreck of the Sirio and remained in the vicinity for four hours without perceiving any survivors. He went on board the wreck and is of the opinion that the calamity would have been insignificant had everybody on board the Sirio remained cool.

Alicante, Spain, Aug. 8.—Survivors of the Sirio who have been landed here declare there were ample time to organize a system of rescue before the vessel sank, but that the officers and crew abandoned the ship, whereupon panic ensued.

Ice Famine In Baltimore

Baltimore, Aug. 8.—The supply of ice in this city is very short and many consumers cannot obtain any. The American Ice company is unable to meet all the demands made on it, while the Independent Ice company barely has one day's supply on hand. The Sumwalt Ice company is unable to do more than fill about half the demands on its resources.

Alleged $125,000 Thief Captured

TO TEST RATE LAW

Legal Advisors of Railroads In Conference at Washington

THREE LINES OF ATTACK

Responsibility of Initial Carrier Is Questioned--Alleged Interference With Private Contracts --Court Review Objected To

Washington, Aug. 8.—Representatives of the legal departments of railroads who are here in consultation with members of the interstate commerce commission say the railroad rate law will surely be tested in the courts. The leading attorney for a southern road is of the opinion that the first test will probably be to determine whether the initial carrier shall be held responsible to the shipper for damage or loss to property. The frequency of complaints arising from this source induced him to believe that this provision will be the basis for the first decisive battle.

This provision in the law was offered by Senator Carmack, at the request of the Memphis Freight bureau, and its object is to expedite the recovery of damages by shippers.

A second provision of the law which, it is asserted, will be attacked, is that providing that the commission may determine just and reasonable charges or allowances for services rendered by the owner of property transported or for any instrumentality furnished by the owner and used in the transportation. This provision, railroad attorneys say, interferes with private contracts, and will be attacked on that ground.

The court review provision, these railroad attorneys say, will be the object of the third line of attack. This provision is objected to on the ground that it precludes the introduction of testimony at the final hearing which had not been submitted at the first hearing of the complaint.

Within the last few days attorneys for several of the southern roads have been conferring here, and while it is evident that they have not mapped out a definite course of action, it is clear that they are laying the ground work for legal opposition to some of the provisions of the law. Some of these conferences of the legal representatives of roads have been held here, others in New York, and still others in Atlantic City.

It is understood that a definite line of action, in which nearly all the large systems will concur, will be agreed upon before the law goes into effect the 28th of this month.

Call For Meeting at Atlantic City

Nashville, Aug. 8.—Through the instrumentality of Edward Baxter of this city, counsel for all railroads of the south before the interstate commerce commission, a meeting of general counsel and highest traffic officials of southern roads will be held at Atlantic City Aug. 14. A thorough review of the railroad rate law is to be the object of the meeting. Counsel for all the New England trunk lines have been invited.

Green Paint and Feathers

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 8.—At East Syracuse last night, 50 men went to the house of Frank L. Rice, a railroad employe, and found Edward Connors, another railroad man, whose attentions to Mrs. Rice the villagers have objected to. Connors was stripped of his clothing and painted from head to foot with green paint in lieu of tar. A coat of feathers was then added. The crowd threatened the same punishment for Mrs. Rice, but she begged on her knees for mercy and promised to leave the village. After being released Connors returned to the Rice house and threatened to shoot anyone who approached.

Dubois Predicts Bryan's Election

Coeur D'Alene, Ida., Aug. 8.—After a two-days' convention the Democrats of Idaho placed in nomination a full state ticket, headed by C. O. Stockslager for governor. A platform was adopted in which anti-Mormonism is the keynote. Senator Dubois, who was renominated, in the course of a speech of acceptance, said: "Two years hence, when our peerless leader, W. J. Bryan, is elected president, we shall have an opportunity to apply all the Democratic principles for the welfare of our country."

Accidentally Killed by Son

Harrisburg, Aug. 8.—Joseph B. Hench of Juniata township was shot in the heart by his 8-year-old son last night. The boy had been shooting at a target with a rifle and tried to remove a cartridge which had become jammed in the gun. As he did so it exploded and the shot killed his father. Hench leaves a widow and six children.

Not Accustomed to Hot Weather

St. John, Aug. 8.—A sudden hot wave has struck this section, the temperature rising from a minimum of 56 to a mixmum of 82 degrees. This maximum is unusually high for St. John. The hot weather of the last few days in New England has had the effect of bringing great numbers of people to the provinces.

On the Lookout For Anarchists

Milan, Aug. 8.—The Italian police are observing carefully the arrivals at the frontier, it having been reported that a number of dangerous anarchists from the United States are about to enter Italy.

BREAK IN THEIR RANKS

New Bedford Strikers Reject Railway President's Offer

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 8.—The efforts of the special committee of the Central Labor union to bring about a settlement of the trolleymen's strike failed when the Carmen's union voted to decline the proposition made by President Crapo of the trolley company to take back all the men for whom he has places, probably about 50, "such men not to lose their rating as to years of service so to affect their wages, but otherwise to come back as new men and to rank below those men now in the employ of the street railway company."

This is regarded as probably a final effort to bring the company and the strikers to agreement. After the meeting of the Carmen's union 14 strikers were re-employed by the company, according to company officials, and 15 of them turned in their badges and other property of the company, indicating that they consider the strike as ended as far as they are concerned personally.

The company continues to run cars on the regular schedule on all its lines without any indication of disturbance. A mass meeting in support of the strike was held in city hall last night.

Winners of Astor Plate

Newport, R. I., Aug. 8.—The sloop Humma, owned by R. W. Emmons of Boston, and the schooner Elmina, belonging to F. F. Brewster of New Haven, won the Astor plate in the annual race over the Block Island course. Light, variable winds made the contest a slow and uncertain one. Twenty yachts started. The prizes this year are $1000 in silver plate for the Humma and $500 in plate for the Elmina.

Ocean Breeze Brings Relief

Boston, Aug. 8.—A cool breeze from the ocean brought relief last night to the people of this city, who for three days have suffered from oppressive heat. Yesterday was intensely hot, but a less than normal humidity made conditions more bearable. Two fatalities due to the heat were reported during the day, and 15 cases of heat prostration were treated at the hospitals.

New Haven Yardmen on Strike

New Haven, Aug. 8.—When the yardmen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, who went out on strike yesterday, adjourned after a session which lasted until nearly midnight, the situation remained practically the same as when the men walked out during the morning, alleging that some of their number had been unjustly discharged by the road.

Everybody Works but Filipinos

Hartford, Aug. 8.—James W. Beardsley, director of public works of the Philippine islands, who is on a visit here, declares that the greatest hindrance to progress in the Philippines is the native aversion to labor of any sort, and he is of the opinion that until this is overcome to a considerable degree the civil government will be more or less handicapped.

Will Probably Be Total Wreck

Chatham, Mass., Aug. 8.—Schooner George V. Jordan of New York went ashore on Pollock rip. She is full of water and has a ballast. The top of her deckhouse has been washed away and part of her cargo of coal has been washed out. Her captain and crew were brought ashore by the lifesavers, it being considered impossible to save the vessel.

To Wind Up Bank's Affairs

Boston, Aug. 8.—A merciless excoriation of the managing officials of the Central National bank, which failed in 1902, was delivered by Receiver Allen when he read his report at a meeting of the stockholders of the insolvent institution. Upon recommendation of the receiver, it was voted to wind up the affairs of the bank.

Spinners to Consider Strike

Boston, Aug. 8.—A call has been issued for a special meeting of the National Spinners' union in this city to consider the strike of spinners at the Edwards cotton mills in Augusta, Me. The strike, which was due to the discharge of a union official, resulted in the closing of the entire plant.

Jackies In Rowing Contests

Newport, R. I., Aug. 8.—Features of the carnival here were the races between crews from the battleships, the 12-oared cutter race being won by the Illinois and the Prince of Battenburg cup for 16-oared barges being won by the Missouri boat. Both events were over a straightaway two-mile course.

Lineman Killed by a Fall

Webster, Mass., Aug. 8.—Joseph Sweeney, 25 years old, a lineman, fell 30 feet from a pole at 10:20 o'clock last night, dying at 11:30 from a fractured skull. He had been married eight months. He was unconscious from the time he fell.

Insurance Rates Increased

Boston, Aug. 8.—Fire insurance rates on storage warehouses and piers will be advanced 15 percent, under a vote of the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters. The increase is especially effective along the waterfront.

Honeymoon Ended by Death

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 8.—Hiram B. Helmick and his bride of two weeks were killed beneath the wheels of an electric car which struck the carriage in which they were driving last night. Just before they reached the trolley crossing Helmick drew up his horse, which, however, plunged forward as the car bore down at the rate of 25 miles an hour. The colt broke from the shafts and left the wagon on the tracks.

Probable Whereabouts of Fugitive Bank Officials

AFFAIRS BADLY TANGLED

Vice President of Chicago Institution Charged With Violating Banking Laws--Safety Deposit Boxes Tampered With

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Theodore Stensland, vice president of the Milwaukee Avenue state bank, was arrested late yesterday on a charge of violating the banking laws of the state. Earlier in the day the institution was placed in the hands of a receiver and Paul O. Stensland, president of the bank, and father of the vice president, together with Cashier Hering, were officially declared fugitives from justice and their personal descriptions placed in the hands of the police throughout the country.

This action was taken by the authorities after developments had shown that the finances of the failed institution were in a deplorable condition and had been for a number of years. Besides the discovery of many irregularities in the management of the bank, it was found that even the safety deposit boxes owned and rented by the bank had been tampered with and rifled.

The specific charge on which Theodore Stensland was arrested was that of having accepted deposits at the bank when he knew the institution to be insolvent. The arrest was made in the office of Chief of Police Collins, where Stensland had gone to confer with the head of the police department.

The warrant was sworn out by J. P. Straub, a liquor dealer, who declared that last Saturday he deposited $350 in the bank and that Theodore Stensland, as one of the officers of the institution, had knowledge then that the bank was insolvent. Straub contends that the vice president should have notified the acting officers of the bank not to receive any deposits, but that this had not been done, and his money was taken in violation of the banking laws. Later in the day Jacob J. Kern signed bonds for $5000 for the release of Theodore Stensland.

The promises held out that the elder Stensland would appear in Chicago were not fulfilled, and it is the belief of the police, based upon dispatches from several northern cities, that he has fled into Canada. Cashier Hering, sought on a similar warrant, is thought to have reached Canada by another route.

Tuesday's developments were productive of the first ray of hope for the depositors who believed their savings of years swept away in the wreck. David R. Forgan, vice president of the First National bank, and such of those to whom the status of the defunct bank's affairs has been laid bare, declared that probably 70 cents on the dollar would be paid in the final adjustment.

The affairs of the bank are said to be in an almost hopeless tangle, and more irregularities are being disclosed as the examiners go deeper into the books. President Stensland loaned money to himself, it is alleged, by the subterfuge of having employes sign the notes. Specific instances have come to light of the looting of the safety deposit boxes.

The clearing house committee is sparing no effort to bring the missing president to justice. Handwriting experts, it is said, will be put to work at once upon the case to establish the evidence of forgery.

Iowa Democrats Endorse Bryan

Waterloo, Ia., Aug. 8.—The Democratic state convention nominated a full state ticket headed by Claude R. Porter for governor, adopted a platform and adjourned sine die last night. The platform favors a tariff for revenue only, the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, demands the enactment of such legislation as will effectually destroy all trusts, and calls on labor to assert its political rights at the ballot box. A resolution was adopted pledging to W. J. Bryan the support of Iowa Democrats for the presidency in 1908.

The Washington In Commission

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—The armored cruiser Washington was put in commission at the League Island navy yard. After the unfurling of the commission pennant and the union jack, Captain Adams, commander of the cruiser, briefly addressed his crew. As the captain finished his speech three tousing cheers for the Washington came from the Tennessee, lying 150 yards away, with its crew, clad in white, manning the rail. A luncheon followed the ceremony.

Arrest on Technical Charge

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—As a result of the investigation of the wreck of the Cincinnati and New York limited in this city Monday night, in which two firemen were killed, L. B. Jones, employed in a tower near where the wreck occurred, was arrested last night on the charge of being a witness to murder. The coroners on the case express the opinion that the wreck was caused by negligence.

Engines Wrecked In Collision

New York, Aug. 8.—A Patchogue express of the Long Island railroad ran into a freight train standing on the main track at Bayshore. Both engines were wrecked and seven passengers were hurt.

Why Run the Hazard of accepting personal security upon a bond, when corporate security is vastly superior?

The personal surety may be financially strong to-day and insolvent to-morrow; or he may die, and his estate be immediately distributed. In any event, recovery is dilatory and uncertain.

Because of its greater stability, the United States Government prefers Corporate Suretyship; and many firms require it of their bonded employees.

The American Surety Company, capitalized at $2,500,000, is the strongest Surety Company in existence, and the only one whose sole business is to furnish Suretyship Bonds. Apply to

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

KILLED BY AMERICANS

Japanese Violated Law by Fishing In Alaskan Waters

New York, Aug. 8.—A special to the New York Tribune from Washington says:

A report of the killing of five Japanese fishermen and the capture of 12 Japanese prisoners on Attu island, the westernmost of the Aleutian group, the prisoners having been taken by the revenue cutter McCulloch, commanded by Captain Cantwell, was made to the department of commerce and labor by Edwin W. Sime, solicitor for the department, who is in Alaska to enforce the new law prohibiting all persons not citizens of the United States from fishing in Alaskan waters. The Japanese killed were shot by Americans on Attu island before the McCulloch arrived.

Acting Secretary of Commerce and Labor Murray promptly turned the cable dispatch over to acting Secretary of State Bacon, who will immediately communicate the information he has received to the Japanese ambassador and express regret that the Japanese poachers were so summarily dealt with by the Americans on Attu island.

Because of the encroachment of Japanese fishermen and sealers in Alaskan waters congress was obliged during the session just ended to enact two laws calculated to encourage the fishing industry of Alaska among Americans and to prohibit Japanese and other aliens from engaging in it.

Mob Thwarted by Military

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 8.—Three companies of the North Carolina National Guard surround the jail at Salisbury, while sentries with loaded guns and orders to shoot to kill patrol the streets near the prison. George Hall, an ex-convict, who is supposed to have led the mob which lynched the three alleged negro murderers of the Lyerly family Monday night, is in jail, the plan to rescue him failing to materialize. Long before the sun rose curious persons went to the scene of the lynching and cut off the toes, fingers and ears of the persons lynched.

Shea Holds the Fort

Chicago, Aug. 8.—President Shea of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters scored a victory over his opponents in the first skirmish in his campaign to remain in control of the drivers' organization. The opposing factions, one headed by Shea and the other by his principal rival for the office of president, Albert Young, lined up on several factional issues and in each instance Shea was victorious.

Chinese Are Not Wanted

St. Johns, Aug. 8.—The measure adopted at the last session of the legislature requiring all Chinese entering the colony to pay a head tax of $300 each has been put into force by the colonial cabinet. The assent of the imperial ministry was secured before this step was taken. The proclamation comes just in time, it is said, to prevent a scheme for the importation of 500 coolies into the colony.

Many Will Seek New Homes

St. John, Aug. 8.—Thirty-five hundred maritime province and Newfoundland men will help harvest the big grain crop of the Canadian northwest. The first of the number left here last evening, when Canadian Pacific harvesters' excursions began. Some of those who go will come home when the harvesting is done, but many will remain to take up a new life in the west.

Danny Maher Has a Bad Fall

London, Aug. 8.—In the Brighton stakes, Hornhead, ridden by Danny Maher, the American jockey, fell. Maher was badly shaken up, but was able to walk to the paddock, about half a mile away. Maher now remembers nothing of this walk or of what happened after his horse fell. The jockey's shoulder is badly bruised, but he suffered no serious injury.

Fell Three Thousand Feet

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 8.—William Johnson, a balloonist, made an ascension in connection with a street fair in Little Falls. In coming down with a parachute the apparatus failed to work and Johnson fell upon the railroad tracks at the foot of the cliff east of the city. He cannot recover. It is estimated that Johnson was 3000 feet in the air when he left the balloon.

Lithographers Declare Open Shop

New York, Aug. 8.—The executive committee of the Employing Lithographers' association met here and declared an open shop in all branches of the industry. It is said that 30,000 men throughout the country are affected by this action. The open shop declaration affects stone grinders, feeders, artists and other workmen.

America a Good Pattern

Dublin, Aug. 8.—President Hyde of the Gaelic League, who recently lectured in the United States, in an address here said that during his American tour he had been deeply impressed with the fact that if they were to succeed in Ireland it would be necessary to some extent to blend Irish ideas with American ideas.

TO REPUBLICANS

We are anxious to have every Republican in close touch, and working in harmony with the Republican National Congressional Committee in favor of the election of a Republican Congress.

The Congressional campaign must be based on the administrative and legislative record of the party, and that being so, Theodore Roosevelt's personality must be a central figure and his achievements a central thought in the campaign.

We desire to maintain the work of this campaign with popular subscriptions of One Dollar each from Republicans. To each subscriber we will send the Republican National Campaign Text Book and all documents issued by the Committee.

Help us achieve a great victory.

BOSTON LETTER.

Democrats Confident Now of Defeating John B. Moran.

WHITNEY MAY BE CANDIDATE.

Conservatives Think He Can Defeat District Attorney.

The Democratic leaders in Massachusetts feel much more confident today of preventing the nomination of District Attorney Moran than they have at any other time since he announced his candidacy. The characteristic methods of the district attorney are not as pleasing today to the Democratic masses as they were a few weeks ago. Some of the people can see through a millstone when there is a hole in it, and some of them have evidently begun to see through the tactics of Mr. Moran. The conservative Democrats have all along declared that his chief stock-in-trade was hot air, and that if he were given sufficient time he would prove their statements to the satisfaction of everybody.

There were many Democrats who assumed that Mr. Moran had only one object in view, that being to enforce the law. Since he announced his candidacy for governor they have been wondering whether there was not after all an ulterior purpose in all the fuss and feathers he was making. The old line Democrats declared that he was a four-flusher, that he had not made good as district attorney, and that whatever he had done was only a hot-air performance.

In the last week or two Mr. Moran has put his foot in it very completely. One of his first great mistakes, according to the view of conservative people, was his appointment of Felix McGettrick to investigate the alleged bribery of the great and general court of 1906.

Another Error of Judgment.

He has just made another error in attacking the construction of the new normal school buildings in Boston, on the allegation that there was graft in connection with putting in the foundations.

When the charges were first made by Mr. Moran they caused a great sensation in the city. He alleged that the foundations were laid with much less than the necessary amount of cement mixed with sand and stone, and intimated that these foundations ought to be torn out and relaid. This was a very serious charge to make, and the schoolhouse commissioners immediately began an investigation of the matter. They appointed a commission of experts in that line of work, aided by architects of the highest standing, to look into the matter and report their findings. That report is a complete vindication of the work which has been done thus far upon the foundations of this group of buildings.

The conservative and careful Boston Transcript declares that rarely has a contracting company received a more complete vindication of its work than that given to the Worcester company, which is putting in the foundations for this group of buildings.

It is evident that Mr. Moran is not a sufficiently careful man to be governor of Massachusetts. He has neither the executive poise nor the executive care and discrimination. The collapse of his charges against the contractors at work on the normal school buildings may be prophetic of the collapse of the Moran boom for governor. Certainly the district attorney is not left in any enviable position. The commission which investigated his charges declare that the work on the new buildings is of excellent quality, and in every essential respect conforms to the specifications. The concrete construction is declared to have been thoroughly well executed in accordance with the terms of the contract and specifications, and is in every respect a proper and adequate foundation.

Has He Overreached Himself?

The Transcript declares that Mr. Moran has "recklessly over-reached himself in his part in the transaction. He put his ignorance of construction against the experience and knowledge of experts. He took testimony from irresponsible witnesses, and his detectives seemed as far astray in their conclusions as he was himself. When he discovered that puddingstone was being used instead of trap-rock, he felt that his position was impregnable, though the fact that this was with the knowledge and approval of the authorities should have indicated to him that there was good reason for the change."

In the opinion of men of good judgment, Mr. Moran was looking for trouble to strengthen his political capital. He thought he had discovered it in the construction of the new normal school buildings. Without waiting for a careful expert investigation, he rushed in where a more prudent man would have declined to tread. The result of his attempt to discredit the schoolhouse commission and the contractors engaged upon the normal school buildings illustrates, better than anything else which has gone before, the methods of the district attorney. He does not like the petty details and ordinary duties of his office. He desires to deal only with large and dramatic offenses which will entitle him to place in the newspaper headlines, and where he cannot discover actual graft he seems to have it imposed upon him by credulous friends who bring him only trouble.

Dewey is Discontented.

Former Judge Henry S. Dewey of Boston is out in what seems another attempt to divide the Republican party. Mr. Dewey was last fall a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination. He did not succeed in getting it, but Louis A. Frothingham of Boston did. Thereupon Mr. Dewey proceeded to run as an independent candidate and succeeded in defeating the election of a Republican mayor over John F. Fitzgerald.

To shine in the limelight seems to be one of his especial fads, and he sometimes takes sensational methods of compelling attention.

Mr. Dewey is not satisfied with the tariff views of Governor Guild, and thinks the governor should retire in favor of Lieutenant Governor Draper, because he believes that Mr. Draper is a "stand-patter," and that as such he best represents the rank and file of the Republican party.

However that may be, Governor Guild and Lieutenant Governor Draper both ran for office last fall on the same platform, which was for tariff revision immediately. The Republican delegation in congress from this state attempted to the best of its ability to secure tariff revision at the last session. They were, however, unable to convince a majority of Republican members in congress that immediate revision was advisable or necessary, and no action was had prior to adjournment. A great number of the western members of congress declared that while the country was so prosperous it would be folly to upset such prosperity by attempting to revise the tariff merely because Massachusetts demanded it.

The Boston Journal treats the position of Mr. Dewey as a huge joke not to be taken seriously by anybody, and as expressing merely an individual opinion which is by no means generally held. It makes fun of Dewey personally and of his position individually.

The Journal seems to believe that Dewey is angry because he was not appointed as head of the Boston police system rather than Stephen O'Meara.

Was Quincy For Bryan?

The troubles of the Democratic party are not yet ended. The plans for the Bryan reception are giving some of them no end of trouble, notably Chairman Josiah Quincy of the Democratic state committee, and Mr. George Frederick Williams, the sage of Dedham, who was once the party leader in this state. Mr. Williams is much disturbed because Mr. Quincy is so prominent in the plans for the Bryan reception. It is evident that Mr. Williams neither loves nor trusts Josiah. He has met him before and experience is a wise teacher. Mr. Williams evidently does not believe that Mr. Quincy voted for Bryan, holding to the opinion that he probably bolted him for a gold Democrat or McKinley. Now comes Mr. Quincy and makes a formal denial of bolting Bryan. He also declares that he did not oppose his election, taking no part whatever in the 1896 presidential campaign. In 1900, he adds that he came home from Europe and took the stump for Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Quincy then proceeds to state that the chief menace to the candidacy of Mr. Bryan and to his success at the polls in 1908 comes not from the so-called conservative wing of the party, but from the political activities of the extreme radical or socialistic element. He recognizes Bryan as a radical but as a conspicuous opponent of socialism.

Supplements to the Decalogue.

Our social organization has developed to a stage where the old righteousness is not enough. We need an annual supplement to the Decalogue. The growth of credit institutions, the spread of fiduciary relations, the enmeshing of industry in law, the interlacing of government and business, the multiplication of boards and inspectors, beneficent as they all are, they invite to sin. What gateways they open to greed! What fresh parasites they let in on us! How idle in our new situation to intone the old litanies! The reality of this close knit life is not to be seen and touched; it must be thought. The sins it opens the door to are to be discerned by knitting the brows rather than by opening the eyes. It takes imagination to see that bogus medical diploma, lying advertisement and fake testimonial are death dealing instruments. It takes imagination to see that savings bank wrecker, loan shark and investment swindler in taking livelihoods take lives. It takes imagination to see that the business of debauching voters, fixing juries, seducing lawmakers and corrupting public servants is like sawing through the props of a crowded grand stand.—E. A. Ross in Atlantic.

A Natural Laxative

Inward cleansing is as necessary as outward bathing. To keep the bowels free and regular is of even greater importance than to keep the skin-pores from becoming clogged. The neglect of either invites disease. Everyone needs a natural laxative occasionally, to free the bowels of accumulated impurities. For this purpose take the greatest boon ever offered to those who suffer from the ills that follow constipation. For over fifty years Beecham's Pills have been famous as a Stomach corrective, a Liver regulator and Bowel laxative. They never gripe nor cause pain. Powerful purgatives are dangerous. Avoid them. Use Beecham's Pills. They give relief without doing violence to any organ. Their action is in harmony with physical laws. Take them regularly and the necessity for their use becomes less frequent. They are a natural laxative and a positive cure for Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Sick Headache and Dyspepsia.

Some Theories And a Bear Trap

By C. B. LEWIS

Copyright, 1906, by M. M. Cunningham

Uncle Peter Scott, farmer on the outskirts of the village of Hillside, had lost his good wife, and his daughter Jennie kept house for him. He had got to be fifty years old and finicky, while she had got to be twenty and was called one of the nicest girls in Adams county.

Tom Barlow, the youngest of the village merchants, agreed with all others. He had driven out to see Jennie on half a dozen occasions on Sunday afternoons, and it was whispered around that a marriage would come of it. The father had scratched his head and said nothing, but in his own mind he had regarded it as a good match.

All was going well when an interruption suddenly occurred. Mr. Barlow dealt in hoes, rakes and shovels as well as in dry goods and groceries. Uncle Peter bought a hoe of him and started into the cornfield one morning to make the dirt fly. The hoe pleased him, the air was balmy and the corn was knee high and still growing. He was humming to himself and wondering how long before he would lose Jennie when he pulled over a sod with his hoe and caught sight of a big fat mole underneath.

The life or death of that mole had little to do with the future prosperity of Adams county, but Uncle Peter jumped in with intent to slaughter. He made three or four blows with the hoe and finally one tremendous blow. The mole was immolated, but at the same time the handle of the hoe was broken and the old man fell forward and plowed his nose into the ground. He got up mad. He was mad at the mole, the hoe and himself, and he jumped up and down and used cuss words.

One does not remain mad at himself very long. He finds some one else to blame for the whole thing. In this case Uncle Peter put the calamity on the shoulders of Mr. Barlow. He had sold him a hoe handle that was weak in the back—sold it with intent to defraud and deceive. Uncle Peter had sold short tons of hay more than once, but when any one cheated him he looked upon it as a wrong to all humanity. He was near the roadside fence when he massacred the mole, and he had just got the dirt out of his mouth after the fall when a man he knew came driving along in his buggy.

He naturally asked what was the matter, and the old man cut loose. He called the merchant a cheat, fraud and swindler and vowed by the whiskers of his ancestors that he would never, never buy aught more of him. He wanted his words repeated, and they were.

When the father went up to the house after another hoe and the daughter asked what was the matter he had more to say about the merchant and something particular to say to her. He made more fuss about that broken hoe handle than the county commissioners had in building a bridge over Goose creek, and he ended off with:

"Now, you gal, listen to me. If that swindler ever sets foot on my land ag'in I'll c-r-u-s-h him as I would a-a-a mouse!"

Jennie argued and protested and tried to soothe, but the father was obdurate. He told her of the message he had sent to town, and she wrote a few lines of excuse to Mr. Barlow and sent them by a passing boy. That afternoon several persons had several theories to advance to themselves.

Uncle Peter held to his anger. His theory was that Mr. Barlow would drive out in the evening and try to get speech with Jennie and seek to excuse his disgraceful conduct in selling for 25 cents a hoe not worth a dime.

Jennie's theory was that the merchant would drive out with half a dozen hoes in his buggy and tell her father to take them all, but she feared the result. The old man was mad all through, and it always took him at least a week to get over one of his fits. Old Mrs. Davis, who lived just across the road, heard something about the broken hoe, and her theory was that there would be a row of some sort and that she would be there to hear and to see.

The merchant didn't have any particular theory. He simply made up his mind to drive out to Uncle Peter's and tell him to come in and help himself to hoes, rakes and shovels without stint.

Nothing further of moment happened during the day. It was after supper when Uncle Peter was milking the brindle cow that he got another theory. It might have worked well had not his daughter observed him half an hour later oiling up the springs of a bear trap that had hung in the barn for the last twenty years. Then she got a new theory. Her father hoped and intended that some one should walk into that trap. It must be the man who sold him the deceptive hoe that he was laying for. Old Mrs. Davis kept her eye on the Scott homestead between sundown and dark, and, though no tragedy took place, she turned to her husband and said:

"And now, something is goin' to happen. I feel it in my bones. I've got a theory that there's goin' to be awful doin's across the road tonight."

Father and daughter sat on the porch till the clock struck 9, and then the girl arose and entered the house to go to bed. That was his chance. He jumped down on the grass and ran for his bear trap and set it just inside the gate and ten minutes later was winding up the clock with an innocent expression of countenance calculated to deceive the cat.

"Now, why did father linger behind?" asked Jennie of herself as she went upstairs, and, poking her head out of a front window, she saw him engaged in some nefarious business on the path—something that she investigated fifteen minutes later and dragged to one side on the lawn.

The merchant had been detained. He had also forgotten that farmers retired to their beds when the hens went to roost. It was 10 o'clock when he came driving out. Jennie heard him coming and walked down the road to meet him. Knowing her father as she did, she knew that a present of a dozen new hoes that night would not suffice to soothe his injured feelings. It would be best to notify Mr. Barlow of this fact and turn him back and say good night.

At about the hour mentioned above Uncle Peter roused up out of a doze with a new theory. It was to the effect that some lightning rod men might come along in the night and seek to arouse the house for lodgings and step into that waiting bear trap. He was about to get up when he remembered that a man of lightning had cheated him out of $10 five years before, and he therefore decided not to budge. He had just come to this decision when old Mrs. Davis said:

"Andrew, I'm goin' to get up and go over to Scott's."

"What fur?" he dreamily asked.

"I've got a theory that Uncle Peter has hung himself in the wood shed."

"Nonsense!"

"Don't say 'nonsense' to me. I never had a theory yet that didn't turn out right. I'm goin' right over there, and if you hear me yell out you'll know what has happened."

She partly dressed and left the house. Jennie and Mr. Barlow and the horse and buggy were not so far away that she could not have made them out had she been less occupied with her theory, but as it was they escaped her notice. The wood shed to every well regulated house is in the rear. It was so in the case of the Scott home. To reach it old Mrs. Davis had to leave the straight path, and she hadn't made above ten steps when there was a scream and a long drawn yell to freeze the blood of all hearers. Uncle Peter heard it as he was beginning to dream of broken hoe handles and fat moles, and he jumped out of bed.

Old Mr. Davis heard it as he dozed and wondered about theories, and out of bed he came with his hair trying to stand on end. Jennie and Mr. Barlow heard it and started forward with exclamations of alarm, and thus it happened that the four reached old Mrs. Davis at about the same time. She had been caught in the bear trap, of course. In leaving the path she had stepped fairly into it, and as the jaws came together she felt, as she said afterward, that the last day had come and she was ready to sail away.

There was an exciting time for the next ten minutes. The poor old woman was frightened half to death, and a good deal bruised by the teeth of the trap, and while she was being carried across the road her husband was announcing his determination to have satisfaction under the law. Uncle Peter realized that his theory had failed, and Jennie and Mr. Barlow had been discovered conspiring, as it were. It wasn't until the victim had been put to bed, her hurts attended to by a doctor and her husband calmed down by a promise that the right thing should be done that Uncle Peter turned on the young folks and demanded:

"Well, what you got to say about all this?"

"Nothing, father," answered Jennie.

"Nothing, Mr. Scott," added the merchant.

"Wall, I dunno as I have, either," observed the mole killer, as he jogged into the house and left the others at the gate to talk things over.

One of the Family.

"Are you the editor that takes in the society news?" inquired the caller, an undersized man, with a timid, appealing look on his face.

"Yes, sir," replied the young man at the desk. "I can take in any kind of news. What have you?"

"Why, it's this way," said the caller, lowering his voice: "My wife gave a swell party last night, and I'm willing to pay to have this report of the affair put in your paper."

"We don't charge anything for publishing society notes," observed the young man at the desk, taking the proffered manuscript and looking it over.

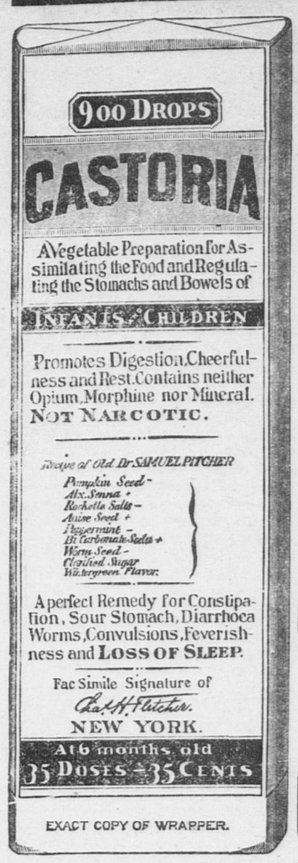

"That's all right," was the reply. "You don't understand. I wrote this up myself, and I put in a line or two that says, 'Mr. Halfstick assisted his distinguished wife in receiving the guests.' That's the way I want it to go in, and I don't care if it costs $5 a line. I want my friends to know, by George, that I still belong to the family!"

Not Soon Enough.

A man who is now one of the leading members of the Stock Exchange was rather wild in his youth, which is not an exclusive characteristic of this member of the Stock Exchange. But this man was a favorite with his mother and generally called on her to help him out of his scrapes, and she usually responded freely, even lavishly. On one occasion, however, when his demands had been especially frequent and extravagant, it was with considerable trepidation that, on discovering himself "the morning after" in a distant city and picked as clean as a new fledged sparrow, he penned the following heart moving appeal, to be sent C. O D.:

"Send $50 and save disgrace."

His worst fears were realized when, an hour later, he received the reply from his mother, "Too late."—New York Tribune.

Fined for False Alarm

Samuel W. O'Brien of Randolph went on a spree July 28 and in the course of his wanderings about the town came across fire alarm box 28.

The day of the month and the number of the box cast a spell over Samuel. In a second the box door was opened and the hook pulled.

The sound of the striking bells and whistles was like music in Samuel's ear and he sat by with a sweet smile to see what would happen.

Soon the sound of the approaching fire apparatus was heard and Samuel made his exit.

Chief Haney looked the ground over, and after a few words on the part of the firemen, which however would not look well in print, the apparatus returned to its quarters.

The detective scent of Chief Haney was keen, however, and this morning had Samuel in court.

When arraigned he said he was guilty and that Randolph rum was the primary cause.

Chief Haney said five horses and ten men were called out and Judge Avery said $15 would do for this time, and that Samuel might have two weeks to gather in that amount of wealth for the court.

Johnson Arrested For Assault

The condition of Henry Ramanen, whose face was besmeared with oil and grease, in the spirit of fun, is more serious than at first supposed. At the Eye and Ear Infirmary where the boy was taken, it was said this morning, that his eyes were in a very bad shape.

The doctor did not think that he would lose his eyesight, although it would be several weeks before he would be able to leave the infirmary.

George Johnson, the young man, who it is alleged, rubbed the oil on Ramanen's face, was arrested Wednesday upon a warrant charging him with assault. He was arraigned in court and the case continued for a week.

Odd Fellows Funeral.

The funeral of Edward B. Souther, the veteran newsdealer of Quincy, was held on Weduesday afternoon from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Tilson A. Mead at Allston. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery in this city, and delegations from Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows, Manet encampment and George L. Gill Rebekah lodge met the remains and escorted them to the cemetery, where the Odd Fellows ceremony was performed by Noble Grand John W. Nash and Chaplain James Moorhead, Jr. There were beautiful floral tributes from relatives and societies.

Suicide by Shooting.

Thomas H. Mann, aged 60 years, was found dead Wednesday with a bullet hole through his head, in a room at the residence of Lester Wilbur, with whom he boarded on Main street. Mann was a widower and has been despondent for some time, and it was probably a case of suicide.

McNary Suited.

John J. Curley, a brother of Alderman James M. Curley of Boston, has entered the field for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 10th district, but Congressman McNary says, "The situation as it is at present, suits me perfectly."

—Some of the nicest "rags," to do up sore fingers, are make by cutting the sewed edges from men's discarded linen collars, and washing and soaking the starch from the strips thus made. The last water should be a weak carbolic acid bath, and the pieces lightly wrung from this and dried in the oven. Keep in covered jar or wide-mouthed bottle till wanted.

☞Sir Wingrave Seton had every reason to hate Lord and Lady Barrington. It was their perjury which had sent him to prison for 15 years. He was immensely rich. He had them in his power. How did he gratify his revenge? The answer will be found in "The Malefactor," by E. Phillips Oppenheim, author of "A Maker of History" and "Anna, the Adventuress." It will begin in the Boston Daily Globe, Friday, Aug. 10.

Shore Resort For Endeavorers

The first general assembly of Christian Endeavorers at Sagamore beach, the C. E. reservation on Cape Cod, is to be held beginning Sept. 1, and representative Endeavorers from all parts of the country will be in attendance.

The big tract of land which the organization has secured on Cape Cod is beautifully situated and an ideal place for the meetings of the organizations. It is planned to make it a shore resort where dance halls, card playing, Sunday fishing, liquor selling, etc., shall be tabooed, but which shall be devoted to sane, wholesome pleasures, and for the rallying of Christian Endeavorers.

It is planned to build a large auditorium seating about 10,000 persons. It will be known as the Clark Coliseum, in honor of Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., founder of the Y. P. S. C. E.

Another feature will be a large athletic field for golf, tennis, croquet and picnics.

Union Services.

Owing to the repairs that are being made on the Washington Street Congregational church at the Point, that church is closed for the month of August and its members voted to unite with the members of the First Universalist church, corner Washington and Elm streets. Rev. W. S. Perkins, D. D., will preach and the service will be at the regular hour, 2.30 P. M.

Bent Arraigned.

John H. Bent was arraigned before the United States court in Boston on Wednesday for using the mails for a fraud scheme and was held in $2,000 until August 24.

The complainant in case is Postoffice Inspector Charles E. Jennings, who charges that Bent was a dealer in high grade eggs for breeding purposes; that he sent to poultrymen in New England for samples of eggs and then refused to pay for them, claiming they were not good.

Boston Regulates Ice Cream Business

The Boston Board of Health has promulgated an order regulating quite strictly the conditions of the manufacture, storage and sale of ice cream. The new regulation will especially interest restaurant keepers, but is likely to land hardest on the hokey-pokey men.

The first article declares that no ice cream shall be manufactured in any portion of a building which is used for stabling horses or any other animals. Nor shall any room used for domestic or sleeping purposes be used for an ice cream factory, unless the portion of the building used for making the delectable stuff is separated from the other parts of the structure to the satisfaction of the Board of Health.

Section 2 also provides that "the room or rooms aforesaid shall be equipped with appliances for sterilizing all utensils employed in mixing, freezing, storage, sale or distribution of ice cream and all such utensils after use shall be washed thoroughly with boiling water or sterilized by steam. Vessels used in the manufacture of ice cream shall not be used as containers for other substances than ice cream."

The second section of article 1 declares that all rooms in which ice cream is stored or made shall be provided with tight walls and floors and kept constantly clean. These walls and floors are to be of such material as to be easily and rapidly cleaned. Down in hokeypokeyville this is certain to cause consternation, for walls there are mostly papered.

A standard is needed in the opinion of Prof. Jordan, head of the state bureau of milk inspection, by which the percentage of butter fat in ice cream may be regulated. It is his belief that the existence of bactera is apt to make one ill, and that while the places of manufacture are being looked into and cleanly methods insisted upon, an incidental test should be made to see if the customers are getting the real thing. He says that if Massachusetts makes such a law the state will be at the head of it.

Rural Delivery At Braintree

A dispatch from Washington says that a rural free delivery route from the South Braintree station will be established Sept. 17. It will be 19 miles long and will accommodate 769 families.

Postmaster Hammond when seen this morning said the route would be known as Rural Free Delivery route No 1, and would be covered by a mounted carrier.

The territory to be covered includes Mayflower Park and the outskirts of South Braintree.

It will also include the outskirts of Holbrook and South Weymouth. These sections are at present outside the free delivery routes. They will have one collection and one delivery each day.

That part of South Braintree now covered from the Braintree office will come directly under the South Braintree office when the change goes into effect.

This latter change is one that the residents of South Braintree have long desired. The other changes will also be greatly appreciated by the residents of the outskirts of Holbrook, South Weymouth and South Braintree, as they are a long distance from the post offices.

Boys Enter School St. House

The residence of James H. Stetson, at 49 School street, was entered by burglars Wednesday afternoon. Parties saw some boys going away from the back of the house with a bag, and notified the police. Investigation showed that the boys had gained entrance through the stable. Just what was taken, if anything, will not be know until Mr. Stetson returns home.

The family is now at the Cape. The parties turned things in the kitchen upside down, and turned on the water at the sink, leaving it running. It filled the sink full and ran over onto the floor doing some damage.

MILTON

The Gain of 511 in Polls Indicates A Big Growth

The Assessors of 1906 report 9,239 poll tax-payers in Quincy, an increase of 511, in one year and 960 in two years. In five years the increase has been 2218, and in ten years 3,383. In seventeen years the number has more than doubled. Here are the figures by years:

In 1888,	4,096
In 1889,	4,500
In 1890,	4,763
In 1891,	5,160
In 1892,	5,351
In 1893,	5,533
In 1894,	5,920
In 1895,	5,833
In 1896,	5,856
In 1897,	6,031
In 1898,	6,126
In 1899,	6,502
In 1900,	6,337
In 1901,	7,021
In 1902,	7,554
In 1903,	8,120
In 1904,	8,297
In 1905,	8,728
In 1906,	9,239

A good estimate of the population of the city can be made, taking the polls as a basis. In 1905 the 8,728 polls were 31 per cent of the population by the census of that year. By the same percentage this year the population of Quincy is over 29,706. The growth is shown below:

Census.	Population.	Polls.	Per Cent.
1890	16,726	4,763	28
1895	20,712	5,833	23
1900	23,890	6,337	26
1905	28,076	8,728	31
1906	*29,706	9,239	*31

*Estimate on same percentage.

Quincy will have a population of about 35,000 at the census of 1910.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The fire loss in July in the United States and Canada was less than in any preceding month this year and also less than in July 1905. Will there be a reduction in insurance rates?

There was a total eclipse of the moon last Saturday night, and there will be a partial eclipse of the sun Aug. 19, both invisible in New England. Perhaps we will have better weather sometime.

Two more cities also announce a cut in tax rate; that of Newton being $16.40, against $18.00 last year; and that of Lynn being $17.00, against $18.40 last year. The increase in valuation in Newton was $1,331,670, and in Lynn, $6,602,179. Lower tax rates are the rule in cities this year.

Many will be surprised to learn that there are eighteen Metropolitan cities in the United States which have a larger area in Boston, but the census bulletin places them in this order: New York, New Orleans, Chicago, Philadelphia, Duluth, St. Louis, Washington, Denver, Des Moines, St. Paul, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Salt Lake city, Taunton, Sioux city, Los Angeles, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Boston, Springfield (Mass), Worcester, Superior, Portland (Oregon), San Antonio, Cleveland, Fall River, Wichita, Manchester and Haverhill. Six of the 29 are in Massachusetts.

Drift of Opinion.

☞New York land investment schemes are now coming into the market as bidders for small investors with get-rich-quick inducements. Marvelous accounts of great increases in land values in the suburbs of the metropolis are being related, and outlines are given of extravagant plans of development, the opportunity to profit by them being given to the wage-earner throughout the country. Bogus land schemes are as easily operated among the class of investors who are sought in these advertisements, in New York city, as in Cuba or South America. Either place is out of reach of the investor for personal inspection, and he is practically putting his money into a blind pool. There are scores of opportunities for investment, far safer, and paying a better return in the end, right at home, where the value for money paid can be seen and development watched, but distance usually lends the enchantment to a much less desirable view.—Haverhill Gazette.

Locals and City Brevities

Men are now at work grading the boulevard along Crescent street.

Miss Madeline Boyer of Malden is the guest of Miss Dorothy Hayden for a few days.

Capt. E. C. Sawin is cruising along the North shore in his yacht Winsome, and has for guests, Mrs. Sawin and Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Brown of Wollaston.

Councilman George Sawyer of Faxon road was unable to take a two week's cruise on his yacht "Eleanor" as he expected to do. He has returned home after a week's yachting which he found extremely pleasant.

It is a wonder the owners of automobiles in Atlantic don't club together and make a fuss over the roads in town. Outsiders find Atlantic in the poorest condition for "bubbling" of any suburb of Boston.

HITS EXTREMISTS

Peasant Member of Late Douma Facing Death Penalty

MINISTRY WIDE AWAKE

Food and Employment For Famine-Stricken People Will Aid In Its Efforts to Secure a More Tractable Parliament

St. Petersburg, Aug. 9.—M. Onipko, the peasant member of the late parliament who was captured redhanded at Cronstadt after the mutiny there, will be tried according to the rules for war for inciting and participating in an armed revolt, the penalty for which is death. The authorities are convinced that they have a good case against Onipko and hope it will involve several other prominent extremists in the late parliament to such an extent as to prevent their re-election to any future parliament.

The ministry already is beginning a far-reaching campaign preparatory to the election of a more tractable parliament in December. The ministers insist on a program that will consist of the promulgation of definite reforms and the nomination of candidates who will represent these instead of letting the elections go by default, as was the case in the defunct assembly. The ministers disclaim all intention of attempting to throttle public sentiment, but it is noticeable that their first step was taken through the police, who were asked to report of the possible governmental candidates for seats.

The session of the cabinet yesterday was devoted to measures of famine relief, which is recognized as one of the most urgent problems in the administration, as well as being an eloquent campaign argument. It was decided to recommend to the czar an additional credit of $25,500,000 in addition to the $7,500,000 voted by parliament for this use, $25,000,000 of which sum is to provide food and employment to keep the stricken population from starvation and the remainder for the purchase of seed grain.

Among the public works recommended are the construction of flood embankments, ports and other improvements on the Volga, on which the unskilled labor in the chief famine district could be employed and for which $550,000 were voted at the recommendation of Premier Stolypin. The cabinet also voted to extend the "state of extraordinary reinforced security" to all districts of the empire, where the semi-annual limit is about to expire.

The official telegraph agency reports the formation at Yekaterinoslav of a reactionary organization whose purpose is to exact a life for a life for every official killed by the revolutionists. The murder of ex-Deputy Hertzenstein is an example of this procedure. The agency also reports an encounter between police and workmen at Krostroma, during which Cossacks were summoned and dispersed the crowd with a volley. No mention of the casualties is made.

Armenian Pledges Worthless

Tiflis, Aug. 9.—Reports received here from General Goloschakoff, at Shusha, declare that in spite of the pledges of the belligerent races to observe a truce during the negotiations for peace, Armenians have set the torch to several Tartar houses and killed a number of nomad Mussulmans who came to the assistance of the Tartars. A renewal of the fighting in the region along the Turkish frontier is imminent. Nomad Kurds have attacked the village of Lysagossk, which was occupied by a detachment of the Russian frontier guard. This attack was repulsed, as was another by Armenians on the Tartar village of Nanebliktu.

Strikers and Troops In Collision

Uzovka, Aug. 9.—Another collision between strikers and troops occurred at the Alexieffskain mine, following the outbreak of fighting between two factions of workmen. Two men were killed and many were wounded. A number of the leading agitators were arrested.

Arms Captured at Moscow

Moscow, Aug. 9.—The police have captured a store of Mauser rifles and automatic pistols and a number of revolutionary proclamations and posters issued by the revolutionary fighting legion. Several members of a new revolutionary committee also were captured.

Wounded While Loading Bomb

Gomel, Aug. 9.—A second bomb explosion occurred here in the house of a Jewish mechanic who was engaged in loading the missile. The Jew was badly wounded. Five other bombs have been discovered here.

Peasants Killed Four Socialists

Warsaw, Aug. 9.—Peasants of the village of Tchemeerniki murdered four socialists upon their arrival in the village for the purpose of inciting the peasants against the landlords.

Merger of Street Railways

St. Louis, Aug. 9.—The proposal of the management of the United Railways company to merge the St. Louis and Suburban system, on the basis of an exchange of United Railways preferred stock for the stock of the St. Louis and Suburban company, has been ratified. This consolidation of two street railways of St. Louis involves $108,000,000.

Teamsters Not In Harmony

Chicago, Aug. 9.—A strong, but unsuccessful effort, was made last night to get the warring factions of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters in harmony for the election of officers. Several conferences between emissaries of both factions were held, but neither side was willing to yield, and unless President Shea or Albert Young, leader of the seceders, recedes from his present position, there may be two sets of officers elected.

Bank Failure Worries Norwegians

Christiana, Aug. 9.—The news of the failure of the Milwaukee Avenue state bank of Chicago and the flight of former President Stensland has created a most painful impression here, owing to the fact that Stensland was a native of Norway and prominent among Norwegians in the United States. Newspapers here express the hope that the incident has not injured the prestige of Norwegian-Americans.

Great Compliment to Milner

London, Aug. 9.—Lord Milner, the former high commissioner for South Africa, was presented with an address expressing appreciation of his services in South Africa, signed by 370,000 persons. He received also a similar address from Natal with 3000 signatures, while an address from Cape Colony with 20,000 signatures is now on its way to him.

Mortgagee's Sale.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS that by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed, given by ROBERT F. ROGERS to J. WALTER BEAN, dated the fourth day of May, 1906, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1,026, Page 325, for breach of condition of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction upon the premises on THURSDAY, the sixth day of September, 1906, at three o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular, the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely:

All that certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situated on the northerly side of Glover avenue, in that part of Quincy, in said Commonwealth, known as Norfolk Downs, shown on a plan by H C. Mildram, Surveyor, dated April 23, 1892, and being lot 14 on said plan. Said lot being more fully described as follows: Bounded southerly by Glover avenue, fifty-three and thirty-three hundredths (53.33) feet; easterly by lot 13 on said plan, one hundred forty-three and forty-one hundredths (143.41) feet; northerly by land owners unknown, fifty-three and thirty-five hundredths feet; and westerly by lot 15 and 17 on said plan, one hundred forty-four and ninety-two hundredths (144.92) feet; containing seven thousand six hundred eighty-eight (7,688) square feet. This conveyance is made subject to a mortgage of $3,000 to Mary P. Bailey, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1,023, Page 175, and being the same premises conveyed to me by deed of Henry J. Perkins, dated November 23, 1905, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1,014, Page 235.

This sale is made subject to said first mortgage and to any and all unpaid interest, taxes, assessments and liens of every description.

$200 dollars in cash will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale and the balance of the purchase money within seven days.

CHARLES H. CORLISS,
Assignee and present holder of said mortgage

Clash With Japanese Poachers Caused No Surprise

DEATH OF FIVE RAIDERS

Japan Not Entitled to Reparation or Apology--United States Agents and Indian Guards Bravely Repulsed Invaders

Washington, Aug. 9.—The government of the United States will take no further interest in the matter of the killing of the Japanese poachers, save that the 12 prisoners must be tried by United States authorities and according to United States law. It is not intended to send any more revenue cutters into Alaskan waters, as it is understood that the ships now there are sufficient to protect the interests of citizens of this government.

After discussing the matter with Assistant Secretary of State Bacon, Mr. Miyaoka, the Japanese charge, agreed that it was not a case to cause an international incident and that it was similar to other clashes that have occurred between citizens of one country with those of another on their own soil.

The dispatch of Edwin W. Sims, formerly solicitor for the department of commerce and labor, giving the full story of the killing, was made public at the state department and later was cabled in full to Ambassador Wright at Tokio. It is understood that the ambassador will be expected to represent to the Japanese government that the poachers were in the position of a burglar who enters a man's home.

In addition to transmitting the details of the killing, Sims asked for the service of an additional revenue cutter to protect the seal grounds. Sims also asks for special counsel from the department of justice to assist in the prosecution of the prisoners taken at the time of the killing. It is known that the government has expected that sooner or later there would be a clash with the poachers. The companies that have the sealing contracts with the United States have been making representations for a year that the poachers were constantly at work in a systematic manner.

The dispatch of Solicitor Sims, sent to the department of commerce and labor, said in part:

"The fur seal rookeries on St. Paul island were raided by the crews of Japanese schooners July 16 and 17. About 200 seals were killed, but the raiders were eventually repulsed as a result of the courageous action of Chief Agent Lembky and Assistant Agent Judge, at the head of a native guard. Five raiders were killed and 12 captured, two of the latter being badly wounded. Three boats and some small arms also were captured. The force protecting the rookeries suffered no casualties.

"Most of the seals killed on shore by raiders were pregnant females, with nursing young, a few days old, which died of starvation. A large portion of those killed in the water were also females in search of food for their young. During the time I was on the island schooners were frequently sighted less than three miles from shore. It is evident that at least eight or ten schooners believed to be Japanese are sailing in close proximity to the islands."

Japan has no treaty obligations which in any way require her to protect seals in the Bering sea. The United States, Great Britain and Russia are the only nations bound by treaty to offer protection to sealing in Bering waters, and these three countries must, according to the terms of the convention to which they have subscribed, exercise every possible precaution to prevent their subjects from poaching.

The agents of the United States in the conflict, which resulted in the killing and wounding of the Japanese poachers, are Walter L. Lembky and James Judge. Lembky is the chief agent at the fur seal fisheries of Alaska and Judge is one of his assistant agents. Both of them are located on St. Paul island of the Pribiloff group, the other two assistant agents, Clark and Chichester, being stationed on St. George island.

Lembky has been in the service in the islands about 15 years. He is about 40 years old and is held in high regard by the officials of the department of commerce and labor. He is said at the department to be able, conservative and thoroughly trustworthy. His business is to guard the seal rookeries, particularly during the breeding season.

The native guards are Indians who reside on the island. Congress makes an appropriation for their support and they practically are wards of the government. In protecting the seal rookeries from poachers, the Indians act under the direction of Lembky. The Indians eke out an existence by working for the North American Commercial company, skinning the seals which the company is permitted to take under its concession from the United States. As guards, 115 of them are used by Lembky on the St. Paul island and about 50 on the Island of St. George. Chief Lembky receives a salary of $3650 a year and Judge receives $2920.

TO TURN OVER $600,000

Vice President of Wrecked Bank Comes to Rescue of Depositors

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Theodore Stensland, vice president of the suspended Milwaukee Avenue bank, and son of the missing president of that institution, has come to the rescue of the 22,000 depositors, and it is the general belief of those who are endeavoring to straighten out the affairs of the bank that there is an excellent chance for all to receive almost dollar for dollar when a final settlement is made.

Vice President Stensland announces that he will, with full authority, turn over to Receiver Fetzer all the real estate and personal property of Paul O. Stensland, his father. The son places a valuation of $600,000 on this collateral.

President Stensland and Cashier Hering are still at large. While a thousand depositors shouted their protests yesterday afternoon, $300,000 was removed from the vaults of the failed institution to that of the National Bank of the Republic, where it will be held for safekeeping until next Tuesday, when, it is said, distribution to the depositors will be begun. The removal of the money put the crowd in an angry mood, and it took many policemen to keep the excited throng from upsetting the patrol wagons which were filled with bluecoats as a bodyguard of the treasure wagon.

Won't Hold Up Immigrants

Washington, Aug. 9.—By direction of President Roosevelt the United States Immigration station at Ellis Island will be open for the inspection of arriving immigrants hereafter on Sundays. Last Sunday the station was closed by order of the department of commerce and labor, in order that the employes might have a rest. The result was that many hundreds of immigrants arriving on Saturday night and Sunday morning were obliged to remain on board their ships until Monday morning.

To Fight For Insurance Money

San Francisco, Aug. 9.—The $565,000 deposited in New York by the Trans-Atlantic Fire Insurance company of Hamburg, which has disavowed liability for its losses, has been attached by the policy holders of San Francisco to prevent the German corporation from withdrawing the money from the United States. Trans-Atlantic policyholders have decided to form an organization to fight as a unit. It is intended to carry the case to the German courts.

Noted Scientist's Conclusions

London, Aug. 9.—Lord Kelvin has written a letter to The Times concerning recent discussions before the British Association for the Advancement of Science. He protests against the inference that helium may be produced from radium and the idea of the gradual evolution of one metal from the other. He also expresses himself as against the hypothesis that the heat of the sun or the earth is due to radium. He believes it to be mainly due to gravitation.

Indictment Against Standard Oil

Chicago, Aug. 9.—An indictment charging the Standard Oil company with receiving rebates in the form of non-payment of storage charges to certain railroad companies was returned by the federal grand jury before Judge Bethea. The Standard Oil company is the only defendant, no officials of the company and no railroad companies or officials being named. The bond of the defendant was fixed at $25,000.

Japan Has a Meat Scandal

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 9.—Steamer Tosa brought news of a Japanese canned meat scandal. As a result of an official investigation into the canned meat industry at Hiroshima, consequent on the agitation in the United States, it was found that cans labelled "boiled beef" contained horseflesh, which had been prepared so ingeniously that it could be identified only by careful analysis.

Santa Fe Buys New Road

Topeka, Aug. 9.—The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad has purchased the Arkansas Valley Railway company from the American Sugar Beet company. This line is surveyed 80 miles long. Forty miles of this road have been completed and the Santa Fe will at once finish the line. The purchase price is not published.

Supposed Spies Captured

Strasburg, Aug. 9.—Two brothers named Gilt, one a captain in the French army stationed at Nancy, the other a medical student from Lyons, both disguised as peasants, were arrested as spies during the military maneuvers at Fort Crown Prince, in Lorraine, where both the suspects have been imprisoned.

Poisoned by Canned Salmon

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 9.—Several members of the Grand Trunk Pacific railroad survey camp at Sandgreen were taken violently sick after eating canned salmon. Major Smith is dead and several others are critically ill. Smith served with distinction in the Boer war.

Picnic Party In Disaster

Pittsburg, Aug. 9.—While driving over a country road at Evergreen last night, a wagon containing 20 members of a picnic party of the Daughters of Liberty of Allegheny plunged over a 30-foot bank, all sustaining more or less injuries. None was fatally hurt.

MORAN'S NEW MOVE

Nol Prosse For Every Inmate of a Women's Home

THEY ARE ALL SET FREE

District Attorney Claims That Intemperate Women on Probation Were Compelled to Work Without Compensation

Boston, Aug. 9.—District Attorney Moran sent an officer to the Massachusetts home for intemperate women with orders to release every inmate. There were 30 women in the institution and the officer carried with him a nol prosse for every inmate.

Rev. James Reed of Boston is president of the home, and Mrs. Julia Ward Howe is the first vice president. The home was chartered in 1887 and its object, according to the by-laws, is "to maintain a home for the care and reformation of intemperate women, furnishing them with medical treatment and providing them with a temporary refuge until they can obtain employment and be restored to society as useful members." The home is situated in the Longwood district.

None of the inmates seemed to be in a hurry to leave the home after being released by Moran. Some of them voluntarily remained. Many of them were friendless and had no homes.

In a lengthy statement issued last night, the district attorney said that women who had been sentenced to the house of correction by the lower court were granted probation conditional upon their entering the home, and that when they once had entered the home they were confined there until their regular confinement in prison would have expired. The district attorney says that such confinement is illegal, inasmuch as no individual or corporation has the right to imprison any one whether or not convicted of crime. Continuing, Moran's statement says:

"I find that the real object of the home is not as set forth by the by-laws, but is a place of imprisonment, where the prisoners are compelled to work without compensation. I am informed that there are other homes to which prisoners are sent, and I will, within a short time, investigate each one of them and take such action as under the circumstances seems proper."

Mr. Moran says that during the year ending last March the home received $13,816 from the labor of the inmates and that none of the inmates received any compensation, the proceeds of their labor being taken care of by the officers of the institution.

Climbed to Top of Mount Baker

Bellingham, Wash., Aug. 9.—Six members of the Mazamas mountain climbing party reached the summit of Mount Baker after a perilous ascent. The party, by tunneling in places through ice and snow, got around what had seemed impassable barriers and reached the top. A new fissure of considerable size was discovered and steam arose from hundreds of small cracks near the crater. From many of these fissures boiling water bubbled forth.

Boundary Dispute Grows Acute

St. John, Aug. 9.—The Quebec government, which maintained a party of surveyors at Hamilton Inlet last winter surveying lumber areas, has seized 40,000 logs belonging to a lumber company operating there under leases from the Newfoundland government. The Quebec government claims the territory and Newfoundland contends the contrary. This brings about an acute phase of the boundary dispute between Canada and Newfoundland.

May Have Found Thieves' Fence

New York, Aug. 9.—Through the arrest of six men the police recovered $6000 worth of stolen goods and are led to think they have found a large thieves' fence here. The prisoners are Herman Goldstein, William Barnett, Adam Rausch, William Naight, Henry Pemeranz and Charles Lang. Goldstein is charged with receiving stolen goods.

Soldier Killed In Maneuvers

Austin, Tex., Aug. 9.—Another enlisted man in the regular army was shot and killed in the maneuver movements at Camp Mabry. Jesse Cantiss was the victim. Immediately following his death the maneuvers were called off. All the men were supposed to have had blank cartridges in their guns.

Almost Severed Wife's Head

Georgetown, O., Aug. 9.—A shocking tragedy occurred on the outskirts of this city when William Clark killed his wife by nearly severing her head from the body with a razor. The woman was 66 years old. Clark made his escape after the crime and is now at large. He is about 60 years old.

Five Children Burned to Death

Omaha, Aug. 9.—Five children of Thomas O'Daniels of Seymour Park, a suburb, perished last evening in a fire which destroyed the family residence. Mrs. O'Daniels was seriously burned and may not recover, and her husband was severely burned in an effort to save the family.

Flood Loss May Reach a Million

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 9.—Reports from the flood indicate that the damage will be great, conservative estimates placing the loss at $1,000,000, suffered mostly by the railroads.

STRIKE GROWS SERIOUS

Perishable Freight Is Piling Up In the New Haven Yards

New Haven, Aug. 9.—No definite result came from a long conference between the committee of the striking yardmen and General Manager Higgins of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. The exact wording of the report of the committee is not given out, but it is understood that Higgins absolutely refused to accede to the request of the strikers, which was that Yardmaster Blackall be suspended, pending a hearing on charges to be preferred against him by the union that he is arbitrary and abusive in his treatment of the men.

A number of men have been brought into the city to fill the places of the strikers. Some of these, it is understood, have declined to go to work. There has been no trouble in the freight yards and none is expected.

Inquiry made of the strikers as to whether the strike has been sanctioned by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen brought a refusal to give a direct answer. The strikers have appointed delegates to visit the different freight yards on the system. It is also stated that word has been received at the strikers' headquarters here that the men in the Harlem river freight yards have quit work.

Unless the strike is brought to a speedy ending the loss to the railroad company will be very heavy, as already there are several hundred cars in the various yards, many of which contain perishable goods. These cars are accumulating fast.

Freights Collided on Bridge

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 9.—Traffic on the eastern division of the Boston and Maine railroad was tied up here as the result of a rear-end collision of freight trains on the bridge that crosses the Merrimac river between this city and Salisbury, the lights of one train being obscured by a fog. Four freight cars were demolished and one of them caught fire. The burning car set fire to the bridge and it was necessary to send a hose wagon, a tugboat and a detachment of firemen from this city to put out the blaze. The Bar Harbor express from Boston was stalled here the greater part of the night. No one was injured.

Sloop Captures King's Cup

Newport, R. I., Aug. 9.—F. M. Smith's little sloop Effort won Wednesday's race for the King's cup. The new schooner Queen, owned by J. R. Maxwell, led the fleet at the finish, but lost the race by 9 seconds on time allowance. The race was sailed in a fine breeze from the east over a 37½-mile course. The Queen led nearly the entire distance, but the Effort reached for the finish very fast and just clinched the race.

Objection to "T" Rails

New Haven, Aug. 9.—The plan to give the cities of Hartford, Bristol and Waterbury an inter-urban trolley service has failed by reason of the opposition in Hartford to the laying of the "T" rail on streets named by the officials of the Consolidated Railway company. President Mellin says that a similar plan will be offered to the cities of New Haven, Middletown and Meriden.

Father Saved and Son Killed

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 9.—Two workmen employed on the railroad improvements near Meriden Junction were buried under 25 feet of sand as a result of a cavein, one being killed. The names of the men are not known, but they were father and son, the latter meeting instant death, while the former was dug out of the sandbank just in time to save his life.

Many Strikers May Leave Adams

Adams, Mass., Aug. 9.—The only new development in the strike of the weavers of the Berkshire mills is the fact that the men have communicated with the officers of the National Textile Workers' union, asking that a conference be held here. The strikers will receive the balance of their pay today, when it is expected that a number will leave town.

To Demand Advance In Wages

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 9.—The employes of the New England Cotton Yarn company's mill here have decided to present a demand for a 5 percent advance in wages. They say that the company has increased the pay in its New Bedford and Taunton mills, and maintain that a change should be made at the Globe yarn plant in this city.

Amalgamation of Gingham Mills

Clinton, Mass., Aug. 9.—The Parkhill Manufacturing company of Fitchburg will shortly assume control of the Lancaster mills here. Both corporations are engaged in the manufacture of ginghams. It is said that amalgamation will centralize the control of the gingham market in New England.

Instantly Killed by Train

Boston, Aug. 9.—Miss Daisy Langlois, 21 years old, a telephone operator in the Plymouth exchange, was struck and instantly killed by a train in Roslindale last night. She was on a vacation visit to her parents in the Roslindale district.

Strike Stalls Food Supplies

New York, Aug. 9.—New York city's supply of milk, fruits and vegetables, usually delivered on the North and East river waterfronts from the freight cars towed from Jersey railroad terminals, was held up this morning. The 450 deckhands of the tugboats which guard the car floats struck last night for an increase of pay. Unless the several companies grant the increase in wages hundreds of carloads of perishable fruit will be stalled.

LOVERS' LUCK

By Constance D'Arcy Mackay

Copyright, 1906, by C. H. Sutcliffe

On a bright May morning as Barry O'Gill was crossing the fields by a well worn footpath, balancing a bag of meal on his back, he caught sight of Moira Nolan washing linen in the little river that brawled its way through the village of Ballymoran. The brook gushed and sang over its pebbles, and Moira's young voice sang with it as her white arms flashed in the clear water. She was on her knees, straight and supple as a willow, her bare feet tucked under her with only the rosy heels showing. The wind caught a strand of her hair and whipped it out till it shone like beaten gold in the sun. Barry paused, dazzled, and gazed at her, his mouth agape, his sack of meal forgotten on his back. Presently the girl was aware of his presence and that he was watching her.

"What are ye gaping at at all?" she questioned.

"At the loveliest girl in all Ireland," said Barry, never taking his eyes from her.

"Sorrow be to ye if your mother knew it," laughed Moira, bending to her work again. "And angry she'd be to find ye here. Ye'd best go back to her."

Barry flushed till his cheeks were redder than his hair. "It's here that I'll sthop," he said decidedly, dumping down his sack and seating himself on the grass.

Moira's thrust had been a keen one, for all the village knew that he lived in fear of his mother's tongue. "Shure, it's the sting of a wasp she has entoirely," was the verdict of her neighbors, from whom the Widow O'Gill held somewhat aloof, though now and again she condescended to call on Mrs. Terhune for "a bit of gossip and a dish of tay."

Barry was Mrs. O'Gill's only child and the idol of her heart. Did he so much as look at a girl, Mrs. O'Gill was filled with alarm. So while the other lads lingered about the church steps after mass that they might see their sweethearts, Barry was hurried off homeward by his mother. Therefore it was with a sense of recklessness and novelty that he gave himself up to a talk with Moira. She bade him help her wring the clothes and then laughed at his awkwardness and splashed him with glittering drops. The time went quickly. It was noon before they knew it, and Barry sped home to his dinner and a scolding. Yet he hardly heard the words his mother heaped on him, so engrossed was he with the memory of Moira's gray eyes and the exquisite curve of her lips. Love comes swiftly when one is young in Ballymoran.

He and Moira met often after that, sometimes at the edge of the little river and sometimes on the roads by which the hawthorn hedges bloomed, a mass of pink and green. The more Barry thought of Moira the more he realized that his mother would never consent to his marriage. Moira's beauty was the only dowry the girl had. Of all the poor folk in Ballymoran she was by far the poorest.

Nor was Barry much richer. It was his mother who held the purse strings. Once, in desperation, he thought of giving up Moira, and for three whole days he did not see her. Then quite by accident he met her coming across a field. She was about to pass him with averted face.

"Moira!" he cried brokenly.

At that she turned. She was pale and there were deep shadows under her eyes. All that Barry had kept pent in his heart rushed to his lips, and Moira listened, looking down and plucking at a bit of hawthorn she held in her hand. A lark rose from the long meadow grass near by, and soaring into the air poured out a song that seemed but an echo of the ecstasy that was in their hearts. It was Moira who made the first return to earth.

"Does your mother know of it?" she questioned.

"Divvle a bit," said Barry cheerfully, "and where would be the good o' telling her? She'd niver consent to it in the wide worukd. 'Tis a runaway match we'll have to make, mavourneen. We'll be afther taking a thrip to the next parish and back some foine day."

"But where will we live at all, Barry, darlint?" cried Moira, still troubled.

"Rest aisy," said Barry; "I can make somewhat working in the bogs, and that will give us a bite and a sup. And there's owld McShane's cabin that's been desarted ever since he went to America. Troth, it's a ramshackle place, and there's no denying it! The roof lakes, but I can mend it with fresh turf. And though the room is as small as a nut, what a foine view we'll have from the doorway. And if the chimbley is owld and shmokey, after all, 'twill be our own. Arrah, trust to luck, Moira, achree! And lovers' luck, shure, it's the best of all!"

"True for ye, Barry," agreed Moira, and, happy and improvident, they drifted back into their lovers' paradise, and one morning before the first birds were astir and Ballymoran lay in the cool grayness of the dawn they slipped away to the next parish. By the middle of the afternoon they were back again, and all the village knew of their romance.

Mrs. Terhune hastened to bring the news to Mrs. O'Gill, but the latter, pushing forward a chair, did not wait for her to speak.

"Have ye seen aught of my boy Barry?" she demanded. "The lazy gossoon! Gone since morning, and not a bit of work has he done the day, bad cess to him!"

It was a fine opening for Mrs. Terhune, and, sitting on the opposite side of the hearth, she told her story, Mrs. O'Gill interrupting from time to time with passionate ejaculations. "The curse of all the crows upon him! And sorrow to me for having a bowld, deceitful son murthering my heart with his cruel actions! May he niver cross my threshold again! 'Tis a serpint's tooth he is, a serpint's tooth!"

Mrs. Terhune wagged her head wisely.

"He is so," she agreed, with relish, "he is so. The most good for nothing lad in the parish, and he marrying the poorest gurl of it! There's not a boy for miles around but what would have more sense! My children, now, they're foine, clever lads, and, och, woman, dear, it's often I've said to myself I pitied ye having such a great, awkward, shtupid galloot for a son!"

But Mrs. Terhune had ventured too far. While she was speaking Mrs. O'Gill's face had flushed and then paled again. After all, Barry was her own son, blood of her blood and flesh of her flesh, and the mother in her rose, armed. Eyes and voice ablaze, she turned on Mrs. Terhune.

"Spare your pity," she cried breathlessly, "spare your pity! My boy has married where his heart led him, and if the gurl is poor, so much the better. He is not like some I know, who spend their days hanging after the rich. Aye, ye may wince, Bridget Terhune, for ye know what I mean. Clever children, indaid! 'Tis myself that's thankful to heaven that my Barry is not like your jabbering, knockkneed omathons! 'Twas like ye to come here with your spiteful words, and now, if ye've had your say, ye may take yourself off!"

But Mrs. Terhune had already gathered herself together and was stumbling down the road, muttering as she went. On the way she passed Barry and his bride, walking hand in hand toward the forlorn, tumbledown cabin they meant to make their home. She went by them flapping like a wet hen, and they failed to recognize in her their saving angel. Instead, they looked fearfully ahead to where Barry saw a familiar figure approaching over the crest of the hill, a spare, keen eyed woman with a red shawl about her shoulders.

Mrs. O'Gill faced the culprits grimly. "'Tis a foine hour for ye to be coming home," she cried sharply. "The supper's been set for the both of ye this long time, and 'twill be ruined entoirely."

She gave Moira a piercing glance. The last light of the afterglow touched the girl's face with a pale glory. "'Tis a slim creature ye are," said Mrs. O'Gill, her voice softening. "When I was a gurl I had bright eyes, too, and the same color o' hair. Ah, heaven be with thim owld times! 'Tis long since I was young!" She turned from them abruptly and went on ahead, leading the way home.

The lovers followed in a happy daze, too overwhelmed to question how such fortune came about. "Did I not tell ye," said the rapturous Barry, "that lovers' luck is the greatest in the worruld?"

This Hat Always In Style.

Fashions in women's headgear come and go in regular cycles, but there is one class of women in this country who stick to one kind of hat through the summer season year after year, with never a thought to the prevailing fashions in other circles of society. These are the "canalers," who invariably are seen in the sunbonnets, no matter what part of the country their homes are afloat in. Considering that most of the time they live under the awnings suspended over their cabin homes, one would scarcely think all this shade was necessary. But they stick to their favorite hats, nevertheless. It is a curiosity of the taste in headgear of the women who spend their lives working as cooks on the vessels of the great lakes that one rarely sees a sunbonnet among them, and yet awnings on these craft are seldom used. But that is only another evidence of the fact of what variety there is among the eternal feminine.—New York Press.

A Legend of Agincourt.

For many centuries we English have plumed ourselves upon the victory of Agincourt. Indeed it is from King Henry V.'s address to his soldiers on that occasion, as given by Shakespeare, that the motto of this journal is taken, "Familiar in their mouths as household words." But the French have an account of the affair not so much to our credit. It was arranged, according to this fable, by the two leaders that only the nobles on each side were to fight. King Henry V. then artfully ennobled his whole army and hence got the best of the enemy. Shakespeare unwittingly gives a little countenance to the legend when he makes the king declare in the above mentioned address, "Be ye ne'er so vile, this day shall gentle your condition."—London Standard.

Getting Into His Place.

When Governor Head was in office in New Hampshire Colonel Barrett, an estimable member of the governor's staff, died, and there was an unseemly scramble of would be successors for the office, even while his body was awaiting burial with military honors. One candidate, somewhat bolder than the rest, ventured to call upon Governor Head, thinking to ascertain the bent of the governor's mind upon the important question.

"Governor," he asked, "not to speak in a manner too positive, do you think you would have any objections if I was to get into Colonel Barrett's place?"

The answer came promptly, "No, I don't think I should have any objections, if the undertaker is willing."

Canal Company Must Organize

Senator George H. Garfield, Col. John J. Whipple, E. B. Mellen, Herbert E. Guy and T. A. Norris, who constitute the committee appointed to consider the matter of filing the preliminary set of plans as required by the act authorizing the incorporation of the New York, Brockton and Boston Canal and Transportation Co., met Wednesday evening. The committee has received assurance from the harbor and lands commissioners, with which the plans are to be filed, that a copy of the survey made by the State will be accepted.

The committee will ascertain the cost of making a draft of these plans, which are about 120 feet long, and will decide upon the engineer to do this work.

Hon. Loyed E. Chamberlain the legal adviser, leans toward the belief that the company must be formally organized before the plans are filed, says the Enterprise.

"I should say that one of the first necessary steps will be the organization of the company," said he. "If the plans are to be filed, as required, it would seem that the company must first be organized. It is probable that some action will be taken regarding this and it is not unlikely that the canal company will be formally organized this month.

New Library Bulletin.

A new bulletin has just been issued by the Thomas Crane Public Library with a classified list of the books added during the year 1905, and may be had on application at the desk. It contains about 100 volumes of general works, 50 volumes of philosophy and religion, 40 volumes of sociology, 30 volumes of science, 20 volumes of useful arts, 13 volumes of fine arts, 50 volumes of language and literature, 80 volumes of description and travel, 30 volumes of history, 60 volumes of biography and over 160 volumes of fiction, a total of about 600 volumes.

Unslaked Lime.

Unslaked lime is useful in preventing rust because of its extraordinary capacity for absorbing moisture. Some careful workmen who take pains that their tools shall always be in the best condition make a practice of keeping a piece of lime in their tool boxes to absorb any moisture which might otherwise cause rust.

These are the Days.

These are the days when the word "Adirondacks" sounds good to everyone. Up there the sun is just as bright, but the days are never hot and enervating—the nights are always cool and the pine-laden air has that invigorating something in it that brings sleep, appetite, rest and new life to the jaded urbanite.

These are the days! The season is at its height. All the hotels are open and there is room enough for everyone. The Adirondack country is too vast ever to become crowded. From east, west, north or south you can reach the North Woods via the New York Central Lines, "America's Greatest Railroad."

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

SIMPLE SUNDIAL.

The Way to Make One and Set It Up In Proper Shape.

Although we all have clocks and watches by which to tell the time, the sundial will always retain a certain charm by reason of its antiquity, and any garden possessing one has a feature added to it that nothing else can supply. So come, boys, especially you handy ones, and make a dial and then plant at its base some quick growing vine and have a thing of beauty that is a joy forever.

One of the simplest sundials consists of a metal disk. You may make it any size you wish, dividing its circumfer-ence into twenty-four equal parts, numbered from 1 to 12, twice around, as shown in Fig. A. The best metal to use is zinc, as it does not rust and is easily marked and cut.

In the center of the disk is fixed a straight pin, called a style. It must be exactly perpendicular to the disk, as the accuracy of the dial depends on this, and also on its being placed exactly parallel with the earth's axis. This latter is effected in the following way:

Make a tiny hole in the metal disk, close to the style, and then on the first clear night place the disk on its support in such a position that by looking through the little hole you may bring the north star in line with the style. When you have obtained the right angle, fasten the disk in place, and your sundial is complete.

The shadow thrown by the style will point to the hour of the day, and of course you need hardly be hold that on cloudy days the dial will not work, as the sun is needed to cast the shadow.

Another way to find the angle or place in which the disk should rest is to cut a triangle out of pasteboard, as Fig. B designates, having the angle at C just equal to the latitude of the locality where the dial is to be used. You may easily do this by finding the latitude on a map and then drawing the angle with the aid of a piece of metal called a protractor, which is marked off in degrees and which may be bought of any dealer in drawing materials.

Fix this triangle, with the aid of a compass, so that the angle B points due north and the base BC is horizontal. Then place the dial so that the style points along the line AC, with the free end toward A. When so placed the figure 12 in the dial must be directly below the style, as the picture shows.—New York Herald.

March Winds and April Showers.

Perhaps you do not know that the old saying, "When March comes in like a lion it will go out like a lamb," is founded on a scientific principle. If it comes in with high, blustering winds, there is an unusual degree of evaporation, caused by these winds, and hence an unusual amount of water vapor in the air. This results in constant showers during the latter part of March and in April, and these showers break the violence of the winds and give us the proverbial lamblike behavior.

The weather of March and April is of special benefit to the earth. The high winds of March are needed to dry the soil and thus keep the seeds from rotting soon after the planting, and the April showers supply the principal nourishment on which the seeds depend for development.

Conundrums.

Why is "o" the noisest of all the vowels? Because you can't make a horrid, loud noise without it, while all the others are inaudible.

Why can you never expect a fishmonger to be generous? Because his business makes him sell fish.

Why would an owl be offended at your calling him a pheasant? Because you would be making game of him.

What is that which is black, white and red all over, which shows some people to be green and makes others look black and blue? A newspaper.

Who Is She?

There is a little maiden—
Who is she—do you know?—
Who always has a welcome
Wherever she may go.

Each spot she makes the brighter
As if it were the sun,
And she is sought and cherished
And loved by every one.

You surely must have met her;
You certainly can guess—
What! Must I introduce her?
Her name is Cheerfulness.

ARMY UNIFORM CHANGES

English Tailor's Suggestions For "Smarter" Dress Adopted.

BETTER COATS AND TROUSERS

Hip Pockets Eliminated and Overcoats Can Be Turned Into Comfortable Sleeping Blankets—Trousers to Have a Very Swagger Appearance. No Change In Uniforms of Officers.

Changes in the uniforms of enlisted men of the United States army have been ordered by the war department as the direct result of suggestions made by G. B. Winter, a military tailor of London, who came to the United States several weeks ago at the request of Quartermaster General Humphrey, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Herald. These changes will not affect the material or general character of uniforms, but will make those now worn better fitting and smarter in appearance.

General Humphrey appointed these officers of the quartermaster's department a board to consider the subject: Colonel George E. Pond, Majors J. B. Bellinger, J. B. Aleshire, John T. Knight and T. H. Slavins and Captain L. Hardman. Mr. Winter made patterns embodying his suggestions which were submitted to the board.

One of Mr. Winter's patterns for an overcoat has been adopted. It is modeled on the olive drab overcoat now used, but made much more full in the back by means of a plait. The additional fullness is an advantage over the present overcoat in that when the wearer is mounted if the back of the coat catches on the saddle there is sufficient material in the skirt to prevent it from being pulled away from the knees. The increased fullness also has an advantage in affording more cover when the overcoat is used for a sleeping blanket.

The board recommended and the quartermaster general has approved improvements in the present olive drab service coat to the extent of putting two slits in the back skirt, two V's at the collar and two darts in front and adding plaited patch pockets. This garment will also have wider shoulders and a closer waist. The collar will be a standing turnover, just wide enough for the largest insignia. The khaki service coat is to be cut on the same pattern as the olive drab service coat.

The American soldier has had difficulty for years in obtaining well fitting trousers, especially for wear when mounted. The quartermaster general has approved Mr. Winter's suggestion that the olive drab service breeches should be cut with more length in the back breadth. They will have a very swagger appearance, comparing favorably with officers' trousers, and will be tight from the knee down, laced through eyelets which are faced with leather near the knee. Mr. Winter recommended removing hip pockets.

At present the breeches are so tight as to be uncomfortable in mounting. The khaki breeches for mounted wear will be practically the same as the olive drab service breeches.

The olive drab and khaki foot trousers will be cut full on the thigh to below the knee, with a seam just below the knee, and tight from there down and laced the same as cavalry breeches. The hip pocket will be eliminated.

Mr. Winter informed the board that in workmanship and material the American uniforms could not be improved upon, but that they could be distinctly improved as to style.

Although they have no wish to make him a military dude, it is the belief of the prominent officers that the American soldier feels a great deal more respect for himself and is much more comfortable if he knows that his clothes fit well and are handsome in appearance.

General Humphrey received scores of letters criticising his action in getting an English tailor to make these suggestions, but he has also received letters from many persons congratulating him upon the step.

There has been no effort to do anything with the uniforms of officers, which were improved three years ago. The various government clothing factories are being provided with patterns for the improved garments, and in a few weeks all the new clothing will be manufactured after these patterns.

Students on Long Tramp.

Albert Kamboltz and Louis B. Cohn, students at New York university and Columbia respectively, passed through Rutland, Vt., recently on a 1,500 mile vacation tramp through New England, Canada and the Adirondacks, says the New York World. They carry a shelter tent, blankets and a soldier's cooking kit, about thirty pounds each. Although very brown from exposure, they showed no signs of fatigue. They left New York on July 3 and walked through the Connecticut valley, averaging eighteen miles a day. They will walk to Montreal and Quebec and home via the Adirondacks and the valley of the Hudson. Each night they pitch their tent, usually near a farm house, and buy provisions when needed. They expect to reach home in time for the opening of college.

Boston Hot Weather Advice.

Off with your coat, man! What if it's a week day and you're riding to your office? You owe it to yourself and your job to conserve what energies these detestable days have left in you, says the Boston Transcript. If you're bound to make yourself wretched, do it on the seventh day, when you don't have to work, not on the six melting days, when you've got to!

Man of Mystery

Arrested for Passing Worthless Checks on Several Merchants

Louis W. Sinclair, whom the police call a man of mystery, was arrested Thursday afternoon at Wollaston by Lieut. McKay, for passing a worthless check on T. L. Williams.

The fellow visited Mr. Williams' store several times. He purchased a silver watch giving in part payment for it a check for $7.50. The check was drawn on the Mt. Wollaston bank and was made payable to the Johnson Lumber Co. Sinclair crossed out the Johnson Lumber Co., and placed Mr. Williams' name in place of it.

The next day he came in with a woman, who he said was a relative, to whom he wanted to sell a graphophone. They picked out a $45 machine and were to pay $10 down. He also brought in a ring to have made smaller. All of these transaction seemed queer to Mr. Williams, and he made up his mind that things were not right. A few minutes use of the telephone convinced him that he was right, and the police were notified.

Lieut McKay was not long in learning some peculiar facts about the man. He learned that he had visited the store of George W. Jones and purchased a bill of goods, offering a check in payment, which was refused. Mr. Jones was then requested to send the goods to the New Adams House on Washington street. This Mr. Jones did only to learn that Sinclair had left the place.

A bill of goods was also purchased of the Johnson Lumber Co., but when the driver attempted to deliver the lumber their was no Sinclair.

Brown's stable was also visited where he wanted to hire a team for a month offering to pay for it in advance. A check was given in payment which turned out to be no good.

Lieut. McKay chased about the city on the man's track nearly all day, and finally located him at the Wollaston Hotel, just as he and a woman who is said to be his wife were about to light out for Providence.

Some additional facts about the man have come to light. The ring left at Mr. Williams' store to be made smaller it is alleged was stolen from George Raymond at the New Adams House. Two fountain pens are also missing from the hotel, which it is thought Sinclair may have some knowledge of.

It is also said that a check for $10 was worked off on the Hub Piano Co. as a payment on a $200 piano, and that Henry E. Emerson and Henry L. Kincaide & Co. have some of the paper.

A cashier's check for $14 was worked off on the Quincy Department store some weeks ago. The check proved to be worthless. While Mr. Fitzpatrick is not certain that Sinclair is the party he says that he resembles him.

Sinclair from all that can be learned came to Quincy several days ago. He was familiar with the city, having sold typewriter ribbons at a number of places.

The first heard of him was when he called upon Cashier Claflin of the Granite bank and wanted to open an account.

To Mr. Claflin he said he represented a typewriter supply company of Boston and gave the names of a representative of the Daily Ledger and a clerk of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company as reference. From the typewriter supply company Mr. Claflin learned that while Sinclair was at one time employed by them, he was not at the present time.

The other two parties knew nothing of the man, and Mr. Claflin promptly turned him down.

Mr. Claflin then gave the officials at the Mt. Wollaston bank a tip to look out for the fellow. It was but a few minutes after receiving this tip that Sinclair wanted to open an account with that bank and was again turned down.

The next notice of him was when Mr. Williams notified the police of having received a worthless check.

According to Lieut McKay, Sinclair was sentenced at Cambridge in 1897 to six years inprisonment for forgery,

Sinclair was arraigned in court for uttering a forged check and was held in $500 until Saturday.

Lieut. McKay will probably take out the other warrants against the man.

No Familiar Spots In High School

Since the Daily Ledger called attention to the wreck at the High school building, many have visited the premises and gazed with astonishment at the building. Since the publication of the article the whole front of the south end of the building has been torn out. This front had to be changed to correspond with the front of the new part.

So many changes were necessary that it was found to be much cheaper to tear out the whole front and build a new one than to make the alterations.

One of the arguments in favor of the plans by which the addition is being built was that there would be but little tearing out of the original building. Those people who made that argument should look at it now.

The changes have been so many that Head Master Harper even would have hard work picking out any familiar spot in the building.

On Large Scale

How J. H. Bent Is Alleged To Have Operated Egg Scheme

John H. Bent of Cottage avenue has been doing a more extensive business in eggs than was generally supposed. The Herald publishes the following:

Postoffice inspectors who have been looking into the business methods of John H. Bent, the Quincy egg dealer, who, for the lack of the $2000 bail in which he was held on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud, is in the Charles street jail, have found enough to satisfy themselves that Bent operated on a large scale a scheme by which he got hundreds of dozens of eggs at no more cost to him than the express. He had a large retail trade, and, in addition, supplied bakers and other large users of eggs.

As Bent had his eggs shipped to him in the care of a number of express companies, Inspector Charles E. Jennings, who is working up the case, has not been able to learn the extent of the business he carried on. Poultrymen and country merchants in all the New England states are believed to have shipped eggs to Bent on the strength of his promise to pay better prices than the local markets afforded and Bent had correspondence with poultrymen as far west as Indiana and Michigan.

Bent has been doing business since early last year. He would get the names of country storekeepers and farmers who raise a large number of eggs and offer to buy their eggs at prices at least a cent a dozen above the local market price. In the cases on which the arrest was made 30 dozen eggs were shipped by each of the complainants. So far the inspectors have not learned of any case in which Bent made a payment for the eggs received.

They say his game was to work his victims for as many cases of eggs as he thought they would ship and then leave them to whistle for their pay. In his inquiries Bent used printed envelopes addressed "John H. Bent, Assistant Treasurer, Quincy Club, Quincy, Mass." Some of his alleged victims in their complaints to the postal authorities claim that they thought he was assistant treasurer of the town. Inspector Jennings says that the Quincy Club passed away seven or eight years ago.

Bent was once a postal clerk employed at the Roxbury Crossing postal station, but was removed from the service on account of alleged irregularities. He is 39, unmarried, and lives with his mother on Cottage avenue, Quincy. It was learned yesterday that he had routes in Dorchester and Roxbury, where he is supposed to have disposed of a good many dozen eggs every week. How he could have disposed of the eggs that he bought puzzled the inspectors until yesterday, when they learned that he had shipments made to several expresses. The eggs he received at Quincy were comparatively few in number.

Bent comes up for a hearing Aug. 24. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner Bradlee. W. E. Mark of Woodstock, Vt., and F. G. Shapleigh of Rochester, N. H., are among those who are said to have sold him eggs for which they received no pay. They will be summoned as witnesses.

Prominent Among German Americans

The funeral of Erdmann Sonnenbrodt, held at Milton on Thursday, was largely attended by Germans. The services were conducted by Rev. Theodore I. Reece.

A delegation was present from the Prince Henry German Veteran's association and three of this number acted as pallbearers, with three inspectors of the custom house.

Mr. Sonnenbrodt was employed at the custom house for twelve years as an inspector. He was born in Germany, March 30, 1842. He fought in many of the principal engagements in the Franco-Prussian war. His father was conspicuous during the siege and acted as paymaster.

Mr. Sonnenbrodt came to Boston about 1872, and engaged in the stained glass business. He settled in the West, and at the out-break of the Indian war served with much distinction, being associated with Col. Willian F. Cody ("Buffalo Bill"). He was severely injured, and as a token of his bravery was awarded several medals by Congress. At the time of Grover Cleveland's administration he was appointed a custom house inspector.

The interment was in the Milton cemetery.

Over the Road From Buffalo

The Kansas City Motor Car Company has just completed for Abbott & Miller's Quincy & Boston express, one 2-ton truck. It is the intention of this company to establish a world's record for trucks, and this particular truck will be shipped by the company from Kansas City to Buffalo and unloaded, and there with representatives of the press and the American Automobile Association, Geo. K. Wheeler, the general manager, and John C. Caps, with two chauffeurs start from Buffalo with this truck, and in addition with a 50 H. P. tourabout, for New York city, and from New York to Boston, leaving Buffalo it is expected on the 15th, and arriving in Boston on or before the 21st. This will be the longest distance that a truck has ever been started, and it hopes to set a high mark.

Conductor Convicted.

Edward J. Kennedy of Melrose, a conductor on the Boston & Northern street railway, was found guilty at Malden on Thursday of alleged larceny of fares and was sentenced to 30 days in the Cambridge jail. He appealed and furnished surety.

During the trial his lawyer referred to one of the railway witnesses as a "spotter." Asa P. French for the company objected to the epithet and said the supreme court had defined that term. He said the company's witnesses were not "spotters" and were employed by the road as police officers, having formerly served as conductors. These men, he said, were assigned to prevent the "knocking down" of fares.

Quincy Everett

A Pretty Race In Valuation Tax Rate and In Population

The rapidly growing city of Everett which passed Quincy in population between the census of 1895 and 1905, has also passed us in tax rate, reporting a rate of $19.30 this year, which is $1.50 more than last year, and $1.10 over 1904. The increase in valuation in Everett was $886,000 against $1,208,175 in Quincy. These figures may be of interest:

		Quincy.	Everett.
Valuation,	1905	$25,578,710	$22,191,900
Valuation,	1906	$26,786,885	$23,077,900
Increase valuation,		$1,208,175	$886,000
Real estate,	1906	$21,430,500	$20,591,300
Personal,	1906	5,356,385	2,486,600
Population,	1895	20,712	18,573
Population,	1900	23,899	24,336
Population,	1905	28,076	29,111
Tax rate,	1904	$18.00	$18.20
Tax rate,	1905	$18.30	$17.80
Tax rate,	1906	$18.60	$19.30

There was as increase of $43,412 this year in the city appropriations of Everett, which were $326,404 in 1905 and $369,866 this year. The city appropriations of Quincy, including maturing debt and interest, which figures in Assessors' returns, were $424,107.21.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The experience of San Francisco with foreign insurance companies is a lesson to property holders to place their risk with home companies.—Lynn Item.

☞ Horseless carriages, wireless telegraphy and pitless plums are all well enough, and betoken the advance of civilization. But when it comes to creamless ice cream, it is quite another story, and the line must be drawn at the hither side. So our ice cream is to be tested for butter fat. We are to have no more emaciate ice cream. Frozen puddings that show signs of going into a decline is to be barred. Frozen skimmed milk may not, henceforth, be padded out with cornstarch. It is welcome news. Nothing is too good for the sunmer girl. But why stop with the ice cream? Make all the dainties live up to their names. There is the chewsome marshmallow. Who knows if it ever saw a marsh? And are the chocolate drops really dropped or are they merely bunched up? Do we get properly sterilized water in our watermelons? Are our Welsh rabbits really imported or are they just common, lop-eared bunnies? This is an age of investigation, and it grows harder each day to fool the great public. We must know what we eat.—Boston Advertiser.

Locals and City Brevities

The Iroquois club holds its first summer outing party tonight.

Miss Lois Davidson is spending several weeks in Milford, N. H.

Edward L. Mitchell, Jr., of Wollaston is spending an indefinite time near Mt. Washington, N. H.

Miss Chrissie Maver of Bennington street has returned from a few weeks' visit in New York and Newark.

The open and interclub race under the auspices of the Wollaston Yacht club will be held Saturday afternoon. Unfortunately many of the Quincy boats are at Gloucester.

The Makarias of Bethany church will play the Galahad's of Christ church at Merrymount Park Lower Field, at 3.30 Saturday. As there is great rivalry between the two teams, a hot game is anticipated.

The members of the Odd Fellows encampment of Quincy, Brockton and East Weymouth, with their ladies, are to hold their annual outing at Nantasket Point on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 18. A good list of sports with a ball game is expected to make it lively for those who go.

The Merrymounts will go to Nightingale field, Dorchester, on Saturday, for the second game with the strong Neponset-Dorchester team. The first game played about a month ago was one of the most exciting games witnessed on the field and was won by the Neponsets in the twelfth inning, and the fans expect to see the locals reverse the result this week.

TO GO ON PATROL

Cutter Will Guard Seal Herd Off Pribyloff Islands

PELAGIC ROBBERS' WORK

Number of Animals Reduced From 2,000,000 In 1885 to 200,000 in 1895--Fifty Per cent of Seals Killed at Sea Sink

Washington, Aug. 10.—The department of justice has received a telegram from District Attorney Harlan at Fairbanks, Alaska, regarding the killing and capture of Japanese poachers at St. Paul island. Harlan asked for information, which will be sent him in the course of time, but not until additional information has been received.

President Roosevelt has ordered that the revenue cutter McCulloch, which has been doing patrol duty in the vicinity of the Pribyloff islands in Alaskan waters, be directed to resume that duty. The assignment of revenue cutters to such special duty can be done, under the law, only by the president. He telegraphed that the McCulloch should be sent immediately to the islands and orders have gone forward to that effect to the commander of the vessel. She is now in Alaska, where she conveyed Solicitor Sims of the department of commerce and labor and the Japanese prisoners captured on St. Paul island. The McCulloch will resume patrol duty under the instructions she had on the same duty before.

With the practical exhaustion of the Russian seal herds by the Japanese poachers last year, it was expected by American officials that the Japanese vessels engaged in that industry would turn to the protected herds in American waters, and it was freely predicted by Special Agent Lembkey in Washington last winter that trouble would ensue. Many officials favored the proposition to kill all the seals, as a humane measure, rather than let them suffer extermination by pelagic robbers. The gravity of the condition of the American herd was set before congress by Secretary Metcalf in his last report as follows:

"The decrease in seal life on the Pribyloff islands is directly attributable to pelagic sealing, and a strong effort should be made to secure international regulations that will stop it. The special fatality involved in this practice consists in the killing of mother seals at sea. Those killed in Bering sea, in addition to being pregnant, have also a nursing pup on shore, which on the death of its mother dies from starvation. In addition to this, 50 percent of all seals killed at sea sink and are not recoverable. For these reasons the skin of every mother seal secured by the pelagic sealers represents the destruction of at least four lives from the herd.

"Due largely to this wanton destruction of seal life the herd on the Pribyloff islands has been reduced from approximately 2,000,000 animals in 1885 to about 200,000 in 1905. The government's financial interest in this matter lies in the fact that each sealskin taken on these islands produced a revenue of $10.22½. The ravages of the pelagic sealers have reduced the number of skins taken from 100,000 in 1885 to 14,368 during the present season."

While the reports for the present year are incomplete and will doubtless be augmented by later returns, they are sufficient to give an approximatae idea of the extent of the operations of the pelagic sealers. These incomplete returns show that during the season of 1905 the British Columbian sealing fleet took 2779 seals from the Pribyloff herd, on the northwest coast, and 8634 in Bering sea. The coast catch from the same herd by British Columbian Indians amounted to 792.

A vessel under Mexican registry, called the Acapulco, spent the summer in taking seals from waters in close proximity to the Pribyloff islands. It is reported that the master and owners of this craft are citizens of the United States.

With the exception of one vessel, which took 390 seals on the northwest coast of America, the Japanese appear to have confined their operations in 1905 to the Russian Commander herd. A Japanese fleet consisting of 30 vessels took 11,007 seals and 172 sea otter. The Canadian fleet took 1972 seals from the same herd.

Chauffeurs Killed In Test of Car

New York, Aug. 10.—Two chauffeurs were killed, two injured and two escaped unhurt, when a new racing car plunged into a loaded farm wagon in Queensborough last nigght. The car is said to have been traveling not less than 50 miles an hour. Two other persons who were in the machine escaped injury. The driver of the farmer's wagon was also unhurt. He leaped before the crash. The men killed are William Waller and Harry Woodcock. The men injured and in a hospital are Frederick Wressenburg and William Brown. The car was a new one, which was taken out by Brown to try. It was in racing trim. The other five went along to witness the test.

May Have Committed Suicide

Washington, Aug. 10.—Army officers stationed in this city are much concerned regarding the whereabouts of Lieutenant Hamilton, Twelfth infantry. Under date of Aug. 2, Hamilton addressed a letter to the chief of staff, notifying him that he intended to commit suicide, but requesting that when his body was found it should be buried beside that of his father in Arlington cemetery. The letter came from Chicago, and since that time no trace of the officer has been obtained. Hamilton's mother lives here.

The Santa Fe Rebate Case

Washington, Aug. 10.—In a statement issued by the interstate commerce commission regarding the conviction of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad company for violating the law with respect to the giving of rebates, the commission says that "the avowed purpose of the practice tends to support the view" that there was no criminal intent on the part of Paul Morton, former head of the traffic department of the Santa Fe, and the other railroad officials involved.

Jockey Attacked by Horse

Brighton, Eng., Aug. 10.—Marigold IV, ridden by Jockey Brady, reared up and knocked Jockey Madden, who was riding Centre, out of the saddle, and then went on his knees, got hold of Madden's throat and shook him like a rat, despite the efforts of Brady, who belabored the horse over the head. Eventually the enraged animal was beaten off. Madden's throat was badly lacerated and he was bleeding freely when released.

35,000 In Sham Battle

London, Aug. 10.—The battle of Aldetam, "without its mistakes," was refought on the banks of the Avon, as part of the maneuvers of the British army, and was won by sheer force of numbers by the side representing the northern army. No larger force ever has been assembled on Salisbury plain than appeared for this sham battle, in which 35,000 troops, composed of regulars and volunteers, were engaged.

OUSTED BY MAYOR

Hub Pauper Trustees Lacked "Harmony" In Office

SIX DECLINED TO RESIGN

Had Refused to Respect Mayor's Wishes and Retain Superintendent of Almshouse and Hospital--Clash Comes to a Head

Boston, Aug. 10.—"Penal Commissioner John B. Martin is making a thorough investigation of the charges against Superintendent English, and Mr. Martin has been instructed to report to me as soon as possible. Meanwhile, Mr. English is to remain as superintendent of the Long Island almshouse, but the removal of the board of trustees by me does not indicate that Mr. English is to be retained permanently as superintendent of the almshouse."

This statement, made by Mayor Fitzgerald last night, gives in brief the situation regarding the row, which led yesterday to the removal of the board of pauper institutions trustees by the mayor, after all but one had refused to resign.

Mayor Fitzgerald, upon being asked in what respect the charges applied to English, said that he was not prepared at this time to give details, but that the report of the penal commissioner would reveal the truth of falsity of the charge that the expenses for the first six months of this year compared unfavorably with the first six months of last year, as well as the truth or falsity of the charges of incompetency and untruthfulness.

"I removed the trustees because of their utter lack of harmony and co-operation in the supervision of the Long Island institution," said the mayor. "Three times the request of the mayor for a conference was refused, and the board acted upon the case of English without giving him a hearing. That is all there is to say."

Yesterday the members of the board of trustees were called to the mayor's office and given one hour in which to pass in their resignations. After half an hour's conference, which is said to have been very spicy, the members of the board left city hall, went into executive session and voted to refuse the demand of the mayor.

Shortly before 12 o'clock the mayor received the resignation of Trustee Sullivan. Just as the clock struck the noon hour the mayor rang for his stenographer and dictated to Chairman Parker of the board of trustees the order which removed the members of the board from office.

Meantime the six members of the board who had been removed had been busy, and at 2:30 they issued a voluminous document setting forth their position in the matter.

While it is claimed by English's friends that he was denied a hearing, which, it is claimed, was due him, Chairman Parker declared that he had not been denied a hearing, and that, while the members of the board were perfectly willing to give him a hearing and so prove the charges which had been made against him, he had never even requested such hearing.

The mayor has in his possession petitions signed by 33 of the officers of the institution and 92 of the inmates in which they place confidence in the integrity of English. These in themselves are especially interesting, as there are 124 employes at the island and hundreds of inmates of both sexes.

Volcanic Island Makes Its Appearance

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 10.—Captain Truebridge of the steamship Northwestern has a photograph, taken by an officer of the revenue cutter Perry, of a newly formed island lying 50 miles west of Dutch Harbor, directly between the Bogoslof islands commonly known as Castle and Fire islands. The new island made its first appearance during June and is now 900 feet high. The length could not be ascertained. Clouds of steam rise from its summit, and it is surrounded by boiling water.

Two Men Killed In Cell

Lufkin, Tex., Aug. 10.—H. H. Trawyck and Samuel Chandler, prisoners in the Anglina county jail here, were found dead in their cell with their skulls crushed, and John Wilson, who was confined on a minor charge in the same cell, is charged with having murdered his cellmates. Wilson has made a number of conflicting statements concerning the tragedy. It is believed the men were killed while they slept.

Shea's Opponents Bolt Convention

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Cornelius P. Shea was re-elected president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. The vote for president stood 158 for Shea and 15 for John White. The entire ticket approved by Shea went through without any opposition. The victory won by Shea is marred by the withdrawal of nearly 50 delegates and the launching of a movement to organize a rival Teamsters' union.

Mayor an Alleged "Rustler"

Williston, N. D., Aug. 10.—W. M. Denny, banker and mayor of Williston, was last night found guilty of receiving stolen property. It was charged that Denny was the head of a band of horse and cattle "rustlers" and that he disposed of the booty surreptitiously acquired by the gang. Sentence has not yet been imposed. Denny is out on $2500 bail and it is said that an appeal will be taken.

Newspaper Editor Made Helpless

URIC-O CURED HIM.

Rheumatism Tortured and Crippled Mr. Theo. D. Hadley of Kennett Square, Pa.

Dear Friend:

You will remember of my writing you some time ago regarding Uric-O for rheumatism. I took your advice and purchased three bottles from my local druggist and began its use at once. Favorable effects were experienced and day by day I improved. I have used the three bottles and can truthfully state that I am a well man.

Uric-O has cured in me as bad a case of rheumatism as ever existed. My suffering for months was intense, some nights not able to get one moment's sleep, could not raise my right hand to my head—had to do all with my left. I could not even dress myself for over three months. My trouble being inflammatory rheumatism had settled in my right arm and shoulder, crippling, as I thought, permanently. This is the third letter I have written, a thing I hardly expected to be able to do again, as I did not think I could possibly recover from the terrible effects of the disease, as you know I am past the four score year on the way to the "New Jerusalem." I am happy to state that after suffering so long with the most painful forms of rheumatism, that Uric-O has cured me and nearly normal conditions exist. My former strength is improving, and yet for all I am 85 years old, sleep well again, eat well and as hale and hearty as a man at the age of fifty. I thank you again most heartily for recommending Uric-O to me. I can now recommend it to my friends.

Theo. H. Hadley, Kennett Square, Pa.

This marvelous specific is sold at 75 cents a bottle, two weeks' treatment, a blood cure for all forms of rheumatism, acting alone on the blood, muscles and kidneys. Uric-O is a liquid taken in spoonful doses three times daily and must be used for rheumatism only. Ask your druggist for samples and circulars explaining the treatment.

The store of E. J. Murphy is the Uric-O store in Quincy.

FEARED IMPRISONMENT

Sensational Escape of Boy Immigrant From Detention Pen

Boston, Aug. 10.—Pietro Leoni, an Italian, aged 15 years, made a sensational escape from the immigration detention pen at Long wharf by jumping from the roof garden of the pen into the harbor. He then swam down the slip to T wharf, reached a fleet of dories belonging to Italian fishermen, made his way up T wharf and disappeared among the teams crowding Atlantic avenue.

Many persons, held by the immigration officials, have attempted to escape from the pen during the past three years, but it is said that Leoni alone has succeeded. He arrived in Boston on the Canopic last Monday and was held pending the arrival of a brother. As some immigrants have been detained here for several months, Leoni imagined that he was a prisoner. He determined to escape and try his own fortunes in the city, so when the guard's back was turned Pietro climbed the fence surrounding the roof garden and jumped to the water, 50 feet below. Search is being made for the boy.

Cotton Mills Strike Still On

Augusta, Me., Aug. 10.—At a final meeting last evening between Agent Pratt of the Edwards Cotton Mills company and President Golden of the United Textile Workers of America Pratt stated that the firm had rejected the proposition of the mule spinners to settle the trouble by arbitration. The grievance of the ring-spinners was settled by the agreement of the agent to pay them the same wages as are paid for the same class of work in the Fall River mills.

Hot Race For Governorship

Concord, N. H., Aug. 10.—The Republicans of New Hampshire will settle the contest for the gubernatorial nomination on Sept. 18. At a meeting of the state committee here it was decided to hold the state convention in Concord on that day. Four of the candidates for governor opened headquarters here last night. The fifth candidate, Winston Churchill, addressed a rally at Peterboro last evening.

Switchmen Return to Work

New Haven, Aug. 10.—Beyond the return to work last evening of the 64 switchmen employed in the Bridgeport yards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, who went out yesterday in sympathy with the striking yardmen here, there is practically no change in the situation. No disorder has been reported here and no walkouts occurred at other freight yards of the system.

Baseball Player Badly Hurt

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 10.—Thomas F. Burke, aged 26, left fielder of the Lynn baseball team, was very seriously, and possibly fatally, injured by a pitched ball in the game with Fall River. Burke was at the bat when a ball delivered by Yeager, the Fall River pitcher, hit him in the temple. Burke was removed from the field in an unconscious condition and taken to the Lynn hospital.

Labor Demand Greatly Reduced

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 10.—At a meeting last night of 275 strikers employes of the Waltham bleachery it was voted to accept an offer from the corporation to advance wages 5 percent, and to return to work next Monday, provided the agent agreed to reinstate all of the men. The strikers, who have been idle 10 weeks, demanded originally an increase of 12½ percent.

Charge Against a Judge

Williamstown, Vt., Aug. 10.—After a hearing before a trial justice and a jury of six men, C. U. Lathrop, assistant judge of the Orange county court, was acquitted of a charge of cruelty to animals. When the warrant was served upon Lathrop he demanded the privilege of a jury trial, and after listening to the testimony the jury decided that the evidence was insufficient.

Icemen Have Been Cheating

Boston, Aug. 10.—An examination of scales used by ice companies in this city shows that 68 of these were false and inaccurate. The authorities ordered 58 of them to be corrected and the others discarded. The instructions to the department of weights and measures is that fair weight must be given and the public is urged to aid in the general probe.

An Unusual Case of Contempt

New York, Aug. 10.—Justice Fitzgerald of the court of special sessions was adjudged guilty of contempt of court by Justice Dickey in the supreme court, Brooklyn. Fitzgerald had been ordered to appear in court to submit to an examination in supplementary proceedings in connection with a judgment of $2000 against him, but did not do so, an attorney explaining that he was busy in his own court. Fitzgerald will be required to give an explanation

Capture of Mountain Desperado

Middlesboro, Ky., Aug. 10.—Frank Ball, the mountain desperado, who recently escaped from jail at Richmond, where he was held for murder, was captured by Sheriff Johnson and a posse after a battle of an hour. Ball was located in a cabin near Rose Hill, Va. He refused to surrender and fire was opened on the cabin by the sheriff's forces. After one of Ball's men had been killed, Ball surrendered.

May Inspect Packing Houses

Washington, Aug. 10.—Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department has left Washington, presumably on a tour of inspection of meat packing houses. The secretary left instructions that no information was to be made public concerning his trip. It is not known when he may return.

IS REFUSED BAIL

Cashier Hering of Wrecked Bank Is Arrested

DID NOT TRY TO ESCAPE

Declares That He Is Innocent of Complicity In Wrongdoing of President of Milwaukee Avenue Institution of Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 10.—Henry W. Hering, cashier of the Milwaukee Avenue state bank, which closed its doors three days ago, was arrested in Chicago. He will be refused bail until his connection with the disappearance of nearly $1,000,000 of the bank's funds is cleared up. Paul O. Stensland, president of the defunct institution, is still a fugitive, though nearly 100 detectives are searching for him.

Hering was arrested two hours later than the time he had announced for giving himself up. He was taken to the offices of Chief of Police Collins and put through an examination as to his knowledge of President Stensland's alleged mismanagement of the institution. Hering declared he did not know where Stensland was and that he had had no communication with Stensland for more than a week.

Hering strenuously denied any responsibility for the failure of the bank and maintained that if he was guilty of breaking the banking laws of Illinois President Stensland was responsible. Hering declared he never had benefited a single dollar by President Stensland's system of banking.

State Bank Examiner Jones and Assistant State Attorney Olson were present during the examination. Neither they nor the police were satisfied with the explanation given of Hering's connection with the collapse of the bank, and it was decided to refuse bail to Hering until the failure had been further investigated.

For two hours previous to Hering's arrest a reporter and the cashier sat on a bench in one of the city's parks. In these two hours Hering told the story of his connection with the bank from the time of his employment, 17 years ago, until he closed his safe last Saturday.

The cashier does not think he can be correctly described as a fugitive from justice. It has been stated that he ran away from town last Saturday and various surmises as to his whereabouts have been put forward by the police.

As a matter of fact, when Hering left the city on Saturday he simply went to the lake for a day's rest. He reached Chicago Monday morning, got on a car and rode straight to the bank. When the car stopped on the corner he jumped off, carrying his grip. Just as he reached the edge of the sidewalk he saw a man pasting the notice of the closing of the bank on its doors. Instead of ascending the steps, he backtracked and headed down town.

The pasting of the notice on the window proved the culmination of suspicions aroused in his mind six or eight weeks ago that things in the bank were not right.

This suspicion was intensified by the unexplained prolongation of the 10 days' absence that President Stensland said he was going to take when he left three weeks ago last Sunday. And suspicion became a certainty when he saw the mob of frenzied depositors around the bank's door. Hering thought he would like a few hours to think affairs over before he jumped into the financial wreck and he went to the home of a friend.

Mr. Hering is insistent in his statement that he had absolutely nothing whatever to do with any peculation of the bank's funds. He swears he has not profited one penny by the irregularities brought to light. He asserts that although cashier of the bank he was merely a clerk for Stensland; that all he did was to carry out Stensland's orders.

He declares that Stensland's instructions were such that there was no way on their face of determining that any crooked business was going on; it was only the culmination of a number of suspicious incidents and the piling of note upon note to carry on Stensland's real estate operations that finally made him morally certain that thievery was rampant in the institution.

Tax Displeasing to Foreigners

Berlin, Aug. 10.—The Confectionair complains that the new automobile tax seriously affects warehouses and hotels near the German-French frontier, as foreigners, in order to express their dissatisfaction at the tax and avoid its payment, will not bring their automobiles into Germany. The tax amounts to $3.75 for a sojourn up to five days, and $10 for a 30 days' stay in Germany.

Roosevelt Home Club a Failure

New York, Aug. 10.—The Roosevelt Home club, which was organized to acquire possession of the Roosevelt homestead where the president was born and to maintain it as a landmark in the city of New York, has decided that it is not in a position to fulfill its mission. The project was discouraged by the president and from that time the proposition became a failure.

Flood Disables Mines

McAlester, I. T., Aug. 10.—Coal mines No. 9 and No. 10 at Coalgate were flooded last night by a creek backing up, the result of the recent heavy rains. Property valued at $2,000,000 is badly damaged and 600 men are out of employment.

SILVER BIDS IN ORDER

Government In Need of the Metal For Coinage Purposes

Washington, Aug. 10.—For the first time in 13 years the government announces its purpose to purchase silver for coinage purposes. Tenders are invited at the office of the director of the mint in this city on Aug. 15 and every Wednesday thereafter, until further notice.

It is understood that, anticipating that its reappearance as a purchaser might temporarily disturb the market unduly, the treasury has obtained considerable amounts for future delivery, so that it is in a position to drop out of the market for several months if desirable. The average requirements for treasury throughout the year will probably not exceed 100,000 ounces a week.

The last purchase under the act of 1890, made on Oct. 30, 1893, was at 72 cents an ounce. From that date until the present the government has been out of the market, except as the agent of the Philippine government in the purchase of a little over 13,500 ounces, costing $7,376,995.

"Grave Mismanagement"

London, Aug. 10.—The war office has issued the report of the royal commission which was appointed to investigate the South African war stores scandals. While the report acquits the British commissioned officers concerned from the worst charges of corruption, it finds that the losses, equalling about $5,000,000, were due rather to grave mismanagement and incompetence than to fraud. The commission criticises severely several officers and public servants and charges a number of non-commissioned officers with receiving bribes.

Thaw Need Not Go Hungry

New York, Aug. 10.—Harry K. Thaw, who is in the Tombs awaiting trial for having killed Stanford White, was suddenly an object of general and large generosity. Chicken, roast beef, stews, ragouts, soups, fish, vegetables, pies, puddings and coffee poured into the prison directed to him. The incident was due to an erroneous report that Thaw had quarreled with the prison caterer and that in consequence he had breakfasted on ordinary prison fare.

Wanted to See Locomotive Jump

Rochester, Aug. 10.—Two Italian boys, aged about 14, were arrested last night, charged with attempting to wreck the Black Diamond express near Geneva. The engineer noticed by the jar of the engine that something was on the track. He stopped the train and found several pieces of iron had been placed on the rails. One of the boys made a confession in which he said the iron was put on the track to see the locomotive jump.

Victory For Harriman Administration

New York, Aug. 10.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of Wells, Fargo & Co. in this city the ticket of 13 directors headed by E. H. Harriman, composed of members of the present board, was elected over a ticket named by counsel for Walter C. Stokes, who has been leading an "opposition" movement among the stockholders. The final vote for the Harriman ticket was 47,568, to 26,216 for the Stokes representatives.

New Brunswick Crops Suffer

Moncton, N. B., Aug. 10.—Excessive heat and lack of rain has caused much injury to growing crops throughout all the section about Moncton. Only a very light crop of hay has been harvested, and the fields are red from the drought. Unless rain comes soon, it is feared the potato, beet and other root crops will be a total failure. Wells and springs are drying up, making it necessary to haul water from rivers for the cattle.

The Damage to the Illinois

Washington, Aug. 10.—The navy department reports that it will take 25 days to repair the Illinois, which was damaged in a recent collision with the Alabama. The Alabama, which was less seriously injured, accompanied Admiral Evans to Rockport, Me., from Newport, but it is expected that she will be sent to the Boston yard soon for such repairs as are necessary.

Serious Clash Not Unlikely

Salisbury, N. C., Aug. 10.—While there are no visible signs of trouble, there are persistent rumors of the organization of a strong party to liberate from Salisbury jail the lynchers of the three negro murderers of the Lyerly family. Gatling guns will be used by the military if an attempt to enter the jail is made. Governor Glenn is on the way here.

O'Day In Good Standing

New York, Aug. 10.—President Pulliam of the National league announces that Umpire O'Day, who was fined $50 for not preventing the fight between Players McGinnity of New York and Peitz of Pittsburg on the grounds of the latter club recently, has been restored to good standing on the staff of umpires.

Banks Owned by Outsiders

St. John, Aug. 10.—A Fredericton dispatch says that arrangements are about perfected for the purchase of the People's bank of that city by the Bank of Montreal. This absorption of the People's bank will leave but two purely local banks in this province—the Bank of New Brunswick and the St. Stephens bank.

Six Pounds of Dynamite to a Bomb

St. Petersburg, Aug. 10.—Some bombs seized in a suburb of St. Petersburg were each found to be charged with six pounds of dynamite. Arrests are being made in ever-increasing numbers. It is said that the principal members of all the trades unions are now in custody.

LUXURIES FOR ESTATES

Value of Angora Goats In Destroying Noxious Growths.

THRIVE ON POISON IVY LEAVES

Ex-Congressman Scudder to Rid His Country Seat on Long Island of a Pest by Using a Herd of the Long Haired Animals, Which Are Fine Foragers—Strong Fence Needed to Keep Them Within Bounds.

Ex-Congressman Townsend Scudder, who has a fine country seat between Roslyn and Sea Cliff, on Long Island, is not going to be troubled about doctor's remedies for poison ivy, for he has had seventy Angora goats sent from Maine, and the goats are warranted to exterminate poison ivy along with all other troublesome growths, says a special dispatch from Roslyn to the Brooklyn Eagle.

It has been generally known that goats and ostriches can live and thrive on nine-tenths of rejected food supplies, but it is not generally known that the best way of dealing with poison ivy is at the fountain head, and Angora goats are being extensively used on large estates for this purpose.

Mr. Scudder has long stretches of meadow and woodland, with intersecting lanes and roads leading to the Glen Cove road and the Shore road to Sea Cliff. The luxuriance of every green and growing thing requires scavengers of the goat order, and when the little army of Angoras have foraged for a few weeks the thickets will be cleared, fences denuded of their poisonous draperies and an Eden will take the place of wilderness.

An amusing incident of preliminaries regarding the sending of the goats to Mr. Scudder's farm was the mailing of samples of the long silken hair to prove the breed, but the Angoras arrived all shorn for duty in the scrubby growth they were to forage in.

The attention of farmers all over the country was some time ago attracted by a pamphlet sent out by the bureau of agriculture in which the value of the fleece was stated to be in some instances $5 a pound, although $1.50 a pound is an average price.

Raising Angoras for profit is, however, a business requiring certain conditions and special intelligence as well as capital, but whatever may be said of them in other ways they are certainly an acquisition to an estate whose owner has objectionable growths, such as the prolific and tenacious poison ivy, which seems to be ordinary and wholesome diet for these handsome foragers. They will eat anything they can reach standing on their hind legs as well as on all fours, and they thrive on ranges where sheep would starve.

They have better natures and manners than the common goat and are beloved by children, and the disagreeable odor of the ordinary kind is also lacking. The fleece is so long and so silken one hesitates to believe that they can be put to any task like clearing scrubby growths, but they open a safe passage, assisted by their omnivorous appetites.

A New Hampshire man is said to have had 200 acres cleared by his Angoras in four years. When the choice between using manual labor with the noise of cutting for the disposition of refuse and the silent, ceaseless clearing of these beautiful creatures is considered one wonders why there is not a herd of them on all the big estates which have had such vast amounts of clearance, necessitating the employment of an army of men.

Fencing is, however, a most important preliminary, since one unsuccessful man who wanted a herd for the profit in the fleece said that "they ate clean a valuable rose garden belonging to a neighbor," and their conduct in his own vegetable garden entitled him to relief. It is evident that barriers between cleared and uncleared land must be well and strongly built of stout material.

The same man complains, vide McClure's Farming, in a letter to the president, in which he reproaches the bureau of agriculture for "idealizing the Angora business." He said of his fencing: "The goats began by thrusting their heads through the upper part of the fence, where they hung by the horns. When tired of this they went through, under and over the fence." Evidently there are fences and fences.

To keep Mr. Scudder's herd of Angoras within bounds he is having a 10,000 foot inclosure built. Already they have five openings in the dense undergrowth, and incidentally they destroy all poisonous vines, for they eat everything in their way and so close that once cleared there is small chance, with a herd of Angoras ready for future emergencies, of further trouble.

Angoras will therefore go on the list of modern luxuries for large estates in the United States.

Light Cure For Gray Hair.

Professor Bouchard at a meeting of the Academy of Science the other day announced that Roentgen rays annihilated white hairs, says the Pall Mall Gazette. There is little doubt about it. Some doctors employed in giving X rays to patients suffering from lupus and other complaints found their own hair reverting to its natural color and that of the sufferer as well. It was first noticed in the case of a patient whose mustache had turned white. The part brought directly under the influence of the rays resumed its original golden hue. The question was whether his sensational discovery had a real practical application. Professor Bouchard says, "Yes; undoubtedly, only the rays must be given by experienced practitioners."

NURSE'S STRIKING OFFER.

Ready to Care For Outcast Leper In West Virginia Mountains.

Charles Cosman, a nurse at the Montefiore Home For Chronic Invalids, in New York, was interviewed by a New York Herald reporter recently in connection with the present isolation of George Rossett, the Syrian leper, in the mountains of West Virginia. Cosman has had a great deal of experience in nursing, and he spoke in bitter terms about what he called the inhumanity of American civilization. He is a Hollander and speaks several languages with fluency. He said:

"What is this civilization that we speak of that allows a man to live like a snake in the brush? That allows him perhaps to die of madness from isolation? Has the government, having allowed this Syrian to enter the country four years ago, the right to permit this man to be segregated like a human viper because, through no fault of his own, he has contracted a contagious disease? Do you think it is just? Is this what has been accomplished by civilization when a human being is goaded into the naked mountains to sleep in the grass like a toad?

"There is another feature to the case also. What about the mountain streams at which this man drinks and washes? Does not this same stream supply the water for perhaps a settlement farther down the current? Maybe the man will take off a wornout shoe or a hat or any other garment and leave it by the roadside. Suppose, then, that some traveler in some manner comes in contact with this apparel. Suppose that the traveler even lies down and touches the spot where the leper has been, will he not carry the disease into the settlement? Do these civilized people think that by scourging the man into the wilderness they have rid themselves of the possibilities of contagion? Hardly.

"I am now willing to do this if I can find some one to guarantee all my expenses. I am tired of the existence of everyday routine and stand ready to go at any moment and care for the unfortunate man until the end. In order to do this I will myself be segregated from all the world. My friends will receive no word from me. I will simply live in the forest with this leper, taking care of him after the manner of a professional nurse, wearing rubber gloves, devoting my life to him until his death occurs. Then I will return to what you call civilization. All I ask is that my expenses during the time be guaranteed."

THEORY ON CANCER.

Dr. Nicholas Senn Holds the Disease Due to Civilization.

Dr. Nicholas Senn of Chicago has returned from an extended exploration in the heart of Africa and has brought back with him the results of discoveries which it is expected will throw light on the treatment of cancer, says a Chicago dispatch.

"After closely observing the condition of health in Africa and comparing the conditions found with those I had observed while on my polar expedition with Peary I am convinced that cancer is purely a disease of civilization," said Dr. Senn.

"There is absolutely no cancer among the natives, which are animals pure and simple. From that I am led to assume that if we in America had natural mothers and were allowed to be brought up simply and on the plainest food the spread of cancer among Americans would be quickly checked. My investigations showed me that cancer is not a parasitic disease, but is merely erratic tissue growth, and when we have found a method to ripen the undeveloped tissue, which is a cancer, the cure will be sure and absolute."

Dr. Senn spent three months in the heart of Africa. The conclusion of his travels and studies from an ethnological standpoint is that the African is nearly an unmixed hamitic race. He is purely animal and subject to none of the diseases of civilization except pneumonia. The pygmies, he believes, are genuine aborigines, who through centuries of oppression have lost their speaking tongue and express themselves in the "Click" language, which is understood by the monkeys among which they live.

Louisiana Hunting Immigrants.

"Louisiana is the first state of the Union, so far as I know, that has ever appropriated money to send a commission to Europe for the purpose of encouraging immigration to that state," said Francis Dodge of Baton Rouge, La., to a correspondent of the Milwaukee Sentinel. "This was done by the last state legislature, and much good is expected of it. Charles Schuler, commissioner of agriculture and immigration, will make a tour of Europe and will show the advantages that Louisiana offers to the foreigners who desire to make a home in the new world. He will visit Ireland, Germany, Italy and Austria. Other southern and western states are expected to follow in the lead of Louisiana, and in a short time perhaps states will be offering special prizes to the foreigners who settle within their boundaries."

A Church For Children.

The Rev. Harry A. King, pastor of the Oakley Methodist Episcopal church of Kansas City, Mo., intends to start a church for children, with children on the official board, a child organist, child officers, deacons, ushers and congregation, says a Kansas City dispatch. He intends to have the children's church organized on the forms and discipline laid down by the general conference for the churches formed by adults. He hopes to have the new church ready to be opened this fall. Services would be held weekly. He believes the project will greatly attract the children of the neighborhood.

The Latest Local Brevities

John G. Thomas is slating a house on Whitwell street for H. M. Faxon.

Charles H. Brooks advertises the "best of everything" at his market.

Alterations and improvements are being made at the rooms of the Wollaston Co-operative bank.

Conductor George Satchel of the Houghs Neck line fell off his car on Coddington street Thursday afternoon and was severely bruised.

At the West Quincy M. E. church on Sunday morning a deaconess will tell of the work that is so nobly done by that organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy O'Connell of Summer street, are the recipients of many presents and congratulations on the anniversary of their fifth wedding anniversary.

Wollaston people are warned against a man who claims to be sent out by the Gas company, as an inspector of fixtures etc. The company has not sent out any such person.

Robert T. Johnson has sold to the Quincy Savings Bank a fifteen foot strip of land abutting the whole length of their lot in City Square, and the market building will be moved near Maple street by P. J. Williams. The building will then be enlarged.

Officer as Defendant.

The hearing before Judge Avery, on the complaint of the wife of Officer Boutin, for non-support, occupied the greater part of Wednesday afternoon. The case was originally called several weeks ago and has been continued from time to time.

Officer Boutin admitted that he had given her no money since Sept. 21, 1905. He was willing to support her if she would live with him, and he had requested her to do so, but she persistently refused.

The officer said that he had left home owing to insinuations which she had made about him, which were untrue.

The court continued the case until next Wednesday.

Work of Boys.

The police have succeeded in locating the parties who broke into the residence of James H. Stetson on School street early this week. They were four boys whose ages range from 7 to 9 years. They will be summoned into court later.

Granite Manufacturer Dead.

Martin H. Cook, a long resident of Quincy, and at one time a member of the well known granite firm of McDonnell & Cook, died at his residence, 100 Brackett street this morning. Mr. Cook was about 45 years of age and has been sick some weeks.

No Race.

None of the 52 yachts entered in the open race at Gloucester on Thursday were able to finish in the time limit of three and one-half hours. The Sumatra was the only Sonder Klasse boat to start. Several Quincy yachts were in the Cape class.

TODAY'S COURT.

Louis W. Stanley was arraigned for uttering a forged check in Quincy, and was held in $500 until Saturday.

Stefano Petrina was fined $15 for assault on Orlow Holbrook.

Boston Children Guests of W. G. Shaw

Eighty women and children from the Dennison House, Boston, had their hearts made glad on Thursday when they were the guests for the day of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Shaw. The bright spots in the lives of the party were few and far between, and Thursday will long be treasured by them in pleasant memory.

The party arrived in Quincy in the morning by a special electric car which left them at Merrymount park. A better spot for a day's outing could hardly be selected, and there was not a dull moment from the time of their arrival until they departed for home, tired but with hearts light and gay.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw had their pony cart at the park and all of the children were given a ride. Then there was a series of sports, during all of which they were filling their lungs with the invigorating salt water air. The wants of the inner being were also well looked after, as an appetizing lunch was served.

During the day Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. F. W. Crane, Miss Lillian Pratt, Miss Addie J. Parks, Miss Ella F. Parker and Miss Mary Sampson.

Poll Taxes Should Be Collected

Principal Assessor Charles H. Johnson was one of those who attended the hearing given on Thursday by the recess Committee on Taxation of the Legislature to the assessors of cities and towns. The Boston, Melrose, Revere and Brookline boards were also represented.

Mr. Johnson spoke principally relative to the collection of poll taxes. He argued in favor of shortening the time in which these taxes must be paid. Of late Quincy had collected a better percentage of polls than some years ago, but there was a chance for improvement if the law was changed. Every man should willingly contribute $2 toward the expenses of the city, county and state.

It was with some surprise that a Brookline assessor, Charles H. Stearns, complained of tax dodgers. He said they are the greatest evil his town has to contend with, and thought the law should be amended to specifically declare what shall be a man's legal residence.

He was asked what percentage of the personal property tax is collected in his town each year, and he said he should think the town probably receives 75 per cent of what it should.

Mr. Johnson took exceptions to the remarks of E. B. Darby of Boston that suburban assessors favored tax dodgers.

There were complaints against the injustice of the corporation tax.

Rebekah Outing

The annual outing of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge was held Thursday at Nantasket Point. The weather was ideal and the large party in attendance had a great time. The arrangements were in charge of Past Grand Arthur W. Stetson and Miss M. Lizzie Furnald.

There was a series of sports under the direction of Albert Clark, Mrs. J. S. Baker, Miss Jennie Crowell and James Moorhead, Jr. Mrs. A. E. Sawyer, Deputy Grand Master and suite were the guests of the party.

G. A. R. Fair.

Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., has already selected dates for its annual fair for the benefit of its charity fund, and appointed a committee. It will be held at the Coliseum during the whole week of Oct. 1. The committee are: J. D. Williams, George L. Phillips, Charles Newcomb, A. W. Gardner, Franklin Curtis, C. H. F. Stoddard and I. M. Holt.

To Draft Plans For the Canal

The committee appointed to consider the matter of filing the preliminary set of plans for the New York, Brockton and Boston Canal and Transportation company, have authorized Col. John J. Whipple and Senator George H. Garfield to take immediate charge of the matter.

By an agreement with the Harbor and Public Land commission all that will be required before the act of incorporation goes to the people for judgment this fall will be a copy of the plan prepared by the State two years ago.

The engineering firm of E. B. and C. L. Hayward will make the draft of these plans. The canal plans to be filed number 24 maps, each about 30 by 52 inches, embodying a survey of the proposed inland waterway. Work upon the draft of these will begin at once.

Because the majority of the promoters are Brockton men, the meeting to organize will be held in that city and the headquarters of the canal company will be in Brockton. The probability, it is stated by men interested, is the retention of Col. John J. Whipple as president and the other officers who have been acting temporarily.

There has been no action regarding the financing of the project as yet.

Music and Sail And Dancing

Dunbar's Brass Band of Brockton has been engaged for the afternoon and Dunbar's orchestra for the evening, for the Ladies' day festivities of the Squantum Yacht club on Saturday. There will be a concert at the clubhouse from 2 until 5.

The review will take place about 4 o'clock and will be followed by a sail in Quincy bay. Returning to the clubhouse refreshments will be served.

In the evening there will be more dancing and more refreshments. Hon. Charles M. Bryant, the commodore, is chairman of the committee on Ladies' day.

Pleased with Quincy Work.

Chief Constructor Capps of the navy who was recently in Quincy, reports on his return to Washington that work is progressing in a very satisfactory condition at the Fore River shipyard on the battleship Vermont, the scouts Burmingham and Salem, and the torpedo boats.

—Ice cream purchased from a street cart poisoned the family of John Sayward at Newburyport on Wednesday. Unclean freezers are blamed by the physician.

TO AID CONVICTS' FAMILIES

Bill to Be Drawn After Outline of Missouri's Governor.

Charles Parsons of St. Joseph, Mo., representing the Missouri Society For the Friendless, addressed a large open air meeting on the courthouse lawn at Macon, Mo., the other evening, says the Kansas City Star. Mr. Parsons has made a special study of criminology the last seventeen or eighteen years and is confident that much good can be done for the fallen and especially those who have made their first misstep by the direction of systematic effort in their behalf. One of the main objects of the society is to find employment for the men who are discharged with the brand of penitentiary upon their shoulders. He says that in this state work has been obtained for 350 of such and that only twelve of that number have returned to evil ways.

"Your governor, Mr. Folk, has asked our superintendent at Topeka, the Rev. E. A. Fredenhagen, to prepare an important bill relating to convicts for submission to the next legislature," he said. "This bill is to provide for the convict's family receiving an appreciable percentage of his earnings, as outlined in a speech by Governor Folk some months ago. As every one knows, the greatest sufferers by the sudden removal of the head of the family are the wife and children. Almost as if by the visitation of death they are thrown upon the charity of the world. If a portion of the wages of the husband can be turned over to the family it will prove a blessing in many ways. It will make the convict feel that he is working for something in which he is personally interested, and it will have a strong tendency to draw him closer to the ones outside who love him, whether he loves them or not. If there is any good in him at all he will take pleasure in the thought that those dependent upon him are not entirely at the mercy of circumstances, and for this he will be grateful to the state which has enacted such a beneficial law in his behalf and less likely to go wrong when restored to liberty."

BASEBALL WITH CARDS.

Kansas City Firemen Play New Game While Waiting For Alarms.

Baseball played with cards. This is the new game that Kansas City firemen are using to pass the time at headquarters while waiting for something to do, says the Kansas City Star.

A traveling salesman from St. Louis introduced the game a few days ago, and for the time being dominos, crokinole and tiddle-de-winks have been neglected. Four people can play the game. Singles, two baggers, home runs and errors can be made just as in the national game of baseball. A two hour contest the other afternoon resulted in a score of 3 to 2. But the games do not always run so nearly even. A game a few days ago resulted in a score of 15 to 0.

"It all depends on the pitcher and catcher and how the man who is playing the cards keeps his head," one of the players said.

Workers Wanted.

California wants 40,000 men for the rebuilding of San Francisco, for the building extensions in Los Angeles, for railway work and for a hundred other lines of pressing work in the state, says the New York Sun. Kansas wants 25,000 to 30,000 men to work in its harvest fields and manufacturing industries. The south wants men to work in its cotton mills, sugar mills, iron works, mines, fields, on roads and on railroad extensions.

On the Road to Mandalay.

[Kipling up to date.]

[A motorist has arrived at Mandalay, Burma, having covered 4,914 miles in India and Burma in an automobile. He reports the roads very muddy and rough, except in the cities.—Daily Paper.]

In an old Moulmein pagoda, lookin' east-'ard to the sea,
There's a Burma girl a-settin'; she's a-waitin' there for me.
She's forgotten Tommy Atkins an' 'is thin red 'ero line,
For she's dippy now on motors, an' sweet Suplawlat's mine.

On the road to Mandalay,
Where the bike cops don't get gay,
Where there ain't no speedin' limit—
You can't speed in Mandalay.

Oh, her petticoat's still yeller, but it's spattered now with mud.
Every rickshaw cooly shudders, an' he swears by Great Gawd Budd
That the juggernaut's a plaything when compared with Supy's car,
Supy's "Mandalay Man Eater," with its nickeled steering bar.

When the mist is on the rice fields an' the sun is droppin' slow
She don't take her little banjo; she just climbs in the tonneau.
From in front I catch the flavor of her whackin' white cheroot,
But there ain't no time for kissin'—you should see us shoot the chute!

What's the use o' wastin' tires on a gritty asphalt street?
Why not mote to where the Irawadi ripples in the heat;
Where there ain't no Ten Commandments an' there ain't but one garage?
So don't break down north of Rangun in your benzine equipage.

Oh, the Bandar Log is shrieking in his clash-transmission style,
An' the temple bells is ringin', crost the river, 'bout a mile,
An' I feels for Tommy Atkins in 'is little barrack hall
While we're toolin' the Man Eater, Supy's motor, down the mall.

An' when that's all shoved behind me, far away an' long ago,
An' no tourin' car can struggle through the Irawadi's dough,
Wrap me with my chauffeur's goggles in a Brahman overcoat
And let Supy softly gurgle as she hustles out to mote.

On the road to Mandalay,
Where the bike cops don't get gay,
Where there ain't no speedin' limit—
You can't speed in Mandalay.

Romantic Elopement At West Quincy

The elopement of Guisseppino Sachetti a pretty Italian girl with a unknown man was reported to the police yesterday. The elopement was a romantic one, and is somewhat shrouded in mystery. The girl lived with her sister, Mrs. Gerardo Capo Bianchi, at the West Quincy house, and as far as the family knew she had no gentleman friend in this country.

It was known however that she had some correspondence with some one in the old country.

It was somewhere in the vicinity of 2.30 o'clock Friday morning, when people on Copeland street near the West Quincy house, heard loud talking. Those of an inquisitive nature, who poked their heads from the window, saw a hack standing in front of the hotel.

While they looked they saw a white robed figure come from the house and enter the hack which drove rapidly away.

Hardly had it disappeared around the corner of Willard street when the remainder of the family who had been aroused from their slumber rushed after the hack. They were too late, however, for the hack was fast disappearing from view.

It later developed that the elopement had been planned for earlier in the evening. Officer Goodhue held up a hack in City Square about 2 o'clock Friday morning. In the hack was a young Italian faultlessly attired. The driver said that the man could not speak a word of English. The driver said that he had been hired at the Crawford House, Boston.

Through misunderstanding, he said, he had driven to West Lynn instead of West Quincy. Returning from Lynn he had changed his horses and driven to Quincy.

Officer Goodhue directed the driver to West Quincy and sent a boy up with them. When the West Quincy depot was reached the Italian in the hack seemed to know where he was, for he shouted and the girl appeared.

Sinclair On Trial

Held for the Grand Jury On Two Cases For Larceny

The cases of Louis W. Sinclair, whose exploits about Quincy during the past few days are now well known, took up the greater part of the time of the district court this morning.

There were three cases in all against Sinclair, whose real name is said to be L. Walter DeMaranda.

Sinclair was arrested for uttering a forged check which he gave to T. L. Williams in lieu of a watch valued at $7 which Sinclair took out to sell. When this case was heard the court decided that there was no evidence that he had forged the signature to the check.

The check was made payable to the Johnson Lumber Co., and was signed "the Very Best Typewriter Co. by L. W. S." There was no endorsement on the back of the check.

It was then decided to make a new complaint against Sinclair for the larceny of a watch valued at $7 from T. L. Williams.

While this warrant was being made out Sinclair was arraigned under the name of DeMaranda for the larceny of a ring from George J. Raymond. The ring in question was taken to Mr. William's store to be made smaller.

Sinclair questioned the several witnesses sharply, showing that he was no novice in the business.

In his own behalf he said he bought the ring from a boy who had found it, for ten cents.

On this complaint he was sentenced to six months in the house of correction. He appealed and was held in $500 for the grand jury.

Sinclair was then arraigned under the name of DeMaranda for the larceny of a watch from T. L. Williams.

Upon this complaint he was held in $300 for the grand jury.

The complaint for uttering a forged check was dismissed for want of prosecution.

In default of bail he was committed to jail.

Henry L. Kincaide & Co. were not victims of Sinclair as reported. At two different times this man visited their store, made purchases and tendered checks for amounts larger than the purchases but was told the checks would be taken for collection only, and if paid the excess amount refunded. In both cases he left their store saying he would get the check cashed and return, which he failed to do.

ANTI-TRUST WAR VETERAN

Character Sketch of Lewis Emery, Jr., the Tireless Foe of the Standard Oil Company

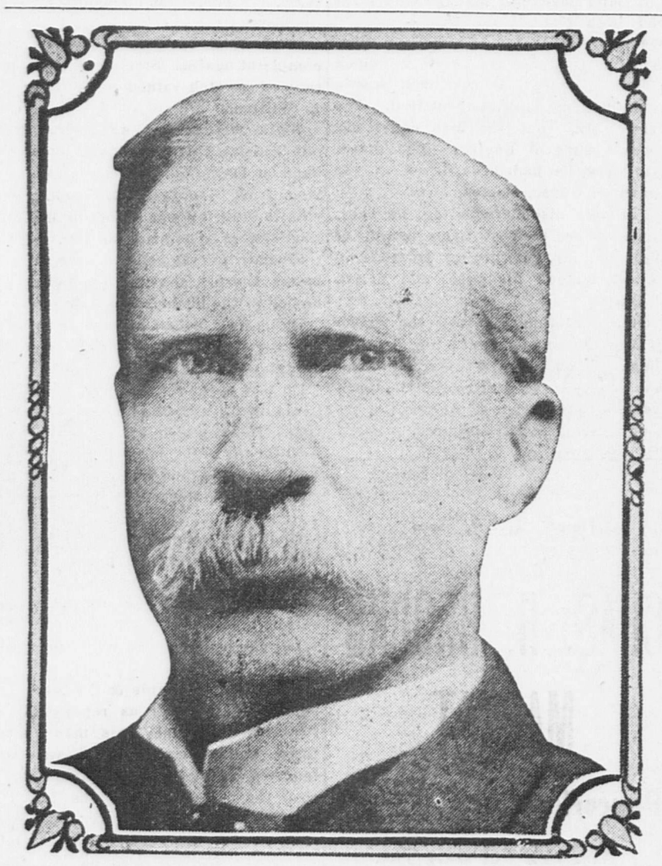

Fearless Fighter Whose Courage Is Not Lessened Even by a Crushing Blow---Physically and Intellectually In His Prime, He Stands Both For Manhood and Principle and Is the Real Goods

FOR more than thirty-five years Lewis Emery has fought the Standard Oil company. He is practically the only conspicuous "independent" who has won out in that sort of a battle. Many times during the long struggle he has been defeated and forced to the wall, but there are some men who are stimulated more by the bitter cup of defeat than others are by wine, and Emery belongs to this class. He is a natural fighter and is never more pugnacious than after receiving a crushing blow. In the panic of 1873 he failed and went $100,000 to the bad, but paid it all back, regained his footing and won his way again to fortune.

Now, at the age of sixty-seven, this veteran in the antitrust war is the reform candidate for governor of Pennsylvania. If he should win, as his followers enthusiastically assert that he will, the honor, they say, would be a fitting reward for a long service in behalf of the people.

Independent In Business and Politics.

"I believe in honesty in office and government by law—one law for all," is Emery's motto. He has ever stood against graft and corporation domination in politics. He opposed the Pennsylvania railroad when it meant political death to do so. He opposed John D. Rockefeller when it practically meant financial death to do so. He fought the Cameron machine, the Quay machine and now is fighting the Penrose machine. Though a lifelong Republican, he has never hesitated to support a bolting movement if he believed it right. He helped to defeat J. Donald Cameron for senator and Beavers and Delamater for governor, and he stumped the state for Berry, who was elected state treasurer by the reform movement last fall. He has been an independent, not only in business, but in politics, and now that the independent uprising is coming throughout the nation, perhaps his day of complete triumph is at hand.

Lewis Emery, Jr., was born in the state of New York and reared in the state of Michigan. For a time he was apprenticed in a woolen mill and at nineteen became a country school teacher. When of age he joined his father in the manufacture of flour, but four years later struck out for himself and established a sawmill and general merchandise store in Illinois. Because of conditions at the close of the war this venture turned out badly. Emery then went to Pennsylvania at the beginning of the oil excitement. Several more years of hardship and ill luck followed, but afterward the young man struck it rich in the famous Bradford field and was soon not only wealthy but one of the foremost operators in the state.

It was at this time that the real fight of his life began. The Standard Oil company was beginning its encroachments, and Emery became a member of the Oil Producers' association, which waged war on the Rockefeller interests. Had he chosen to ally himself with the Standard people he might have become one of the great oil kings, have amassed millions and have lived in comparative ease and comfort. He chose to oppose what he deemed an unjust combination and to retain his own self respect and the well wishes of mankind.

Father of Interstate Commerce Act.

As the head of the Oil Producers' association Mr. Emery was practically the father of the interstate commerce act. He began the fight for this measure in 1872, when he was the moving spirit of a committee which drafted an antidiscrimination bill and had it introduced in congress. It was defeated, but was reintroduced at successive sessions until finally enacted into law. Thus thirty-four years ago Lew Emery began the struggle against railroad rebates, which has now become the foremost issue before the American people.

Another fight made by Emery was for an independent pipe line to the seaboard. He started to build such a line, but had to carry it under a bridge owned by the Erie railroad. All the railroads were in league with the Standard, and the Erie enjoined him from crossing under its right of way, although to do so would in nowise have interfered with its business. The case was carried into the courts, and Emery was defeated. He then tried another route, but this time had to cross under the Pennsylvania tracks, and was again enjoined, with a similar result. At last, after years of effort and intervening legislation which he himself framed and forced through, he reached seaboard and gained an access to the markets for himself and other independent producers.

In 1878 Mr. Emery was elected to the legislature and helped to defeat the Pittsburg riot bill, which was designed to give the Pennsylvania railroad and others $4,000,000 for the property destroyed in the strike of 1877.

During the fight on this measure State Treasurer Kemble and others offered bribes amounting to $1,000 for a vote and $1,500 for a vote and speech in favor of the riot bill. An investigation was ordered, and Emery was one of the chief witnesses. He had overheard Kemble make a direct offer to a member and had papers and documents to prove his case, all of which he brought before the committee. The friends of Kemble were exceedingly anxious to secure those papers. One of them offered an insult to Emery, who was then on the witness stand with the papers in his hand. That combative gentleman at once proceeded to protect his honor, a free fight started, the lights were turned out, the combatants were forced out of the room and the door was locked. Getting a plank, Emery climbed to one of the windows of the house, forced it open, entered the room and secured his papers where they had been scattered about the floor. He pressed the investigation and secured the conviction of Kemble and others.

A Fearless Fighter.

In 1880 the fearless fighter was elected to the state senate, where he continued his fight against the grafters and corporations. It was here that he helped defeat Senator Cameron, then the head of the state machine, and brought about the long deadlock that resulted in the election of John I. Mitchell to the senate. Following that session, in 1882, Emery stumped the state for an independent Republican candidate for governor. During the session of 1883 he made his famous fight for the free pipe line bill and in winning it made it possible for independent oil producers to have their own pipe lines despite the railroad-Standard Oil opposition. In this same session he also led the fight for the Humes antidiscrimination bill.

Probably the most famous legislative battle conducted by Senator Emery, however, was for what was known as the Billingsley bill, which was designed to regulate the Standard Oil company. In the beginning Senator Delamater, Matthew Stanley Quay and McManes, Republican boss of Philadelphia, were for the measure out of a spirit of revenge. It passed second and third reading, when the Standard Oil company got into the game. McManes and Delamater owned a gas plant in the western part of the state and the Standard bought this for $600,000. As a result McManes and Delamater ceased their support of the Billingsley bill, and the measure died. So bitter was Emery over this action that he openly charged perfidy and dishonesty on the floor of the senate and said that he understood Delamater was to be a candidate for governor. Then he dramatically added, "I will be against him and do my utmost to bring about his defeat."

Delamater was a candidate for governor. Emery stumped the state against him, and he was overwhelmingly defeated by Robert E. Pattison.

Old War Horse of Bradford, Pa.

After the session of 1885 Mr. Emery withdrew from the state senate and in a way from politics, yet has remained the antimonopoly leader of the state. Though he has been out of public office for over twenty years, the people have not forgotten him, and when the Lincoln Republicans arose to overthrow boss rule it was to the old war horse of Bradford that they looked for leadership. So popular was he with the Democrats that they overthrew the state leadership of Colonel James M. Guffey in order that they might indorse the candidacy of Emery for governor.

Although nearly threescore and ten, this man is at the height of his powers. He approaches the fight of his life fully equipped and equal to the occasion. He is in his prime physically and intellectually. Age has broadened and deepened him, but has not impaired his vigor or curbed his spirit. Science and correct living are now setting the old age line back anyway, and in a few years we may expect to see men active and forceful until well in the eighties. Oslerism never had less of an excuse for existence than today.

It has been said that the pioneer may never expect the reward for his effort; that the agitator can never become the leader; that the John the Baptist must look for nothing more than to be beheaded and forgotten. While rebelling against the injustice of this dictum men generally have admitted it to be true. Here is one that combats it. There is no reason why the man who stands in the vanguard for truth should not be rewarded when her cause is triumphant. Nobody but selfish camp followers ever denied him such reward. Who is better entitled to be the leader of a movement than the man who has created that movement? Of late the word reform is somewhat in disrepute, not because of real reformers, but of spurious ones. Yet it is a good word and the fact that there are counterfeit men who use it does not detract from its worth. A genuine twenty dollar gold piece is none the less desirable because imitation ones are in circulation. We only need to learn discrimination, so that we can detect the false from the true. A self seeker always lands himself and his followers in the ditch, but the work of a man who forgets self and seeks to serve truth grows in reputation with the years. Lew Emery is the real goods. If he had been a self seeker there are a hundred places in his career that would have been different, points at which he could have secured wealth and position by turning from his principles.

It has been said that words are cheap, but they are so only in the mouth of a cheap man. Words always reflect the character of the one speaking. One who can read between the lines has no difficulty in determining the caliber and sincerity of the one penning the lines. It is a matter of discrimination again. By any test whatsoever the following utterance of Lewis Emery rings true:

"If I take the governor's chair, as sure as there is a God who takes account of the actions of men, so help me God, the statute laws of this commonwealth shall be enforced and the eighth commandment shall be obeyed in every department of the public service."

Here is another of the same sort:

"I trust that I am neither a demagogue nor an anarchist. I have never truckled to power in order to curry favor nor pandered to the vicious in order to gain votes, but for more than a quarter of a century I have labored to establish a reign of law. I have fought for popular rights, honest government and equality of opportunity under the law. That is all I now seek."

Here is one more that packs it all into a few words:

"The square deal means equal and exact justice for all."

That is it; no discrimination, no favoritism, no partiality; equal treatment, fair play, no stacking of the cards, play the game on the level. That is all the people demand, and that Lew Emery is determined they shall have.

A man with such ideals voiced in such direct English and backed by a life of such deeds can be trusted.

J. A. EDGERTON.

Blanche Walsh's Chance

Will Win Lasting Fame if She Scores as Lady Macbeth.

Her Managers Announce Production For Coming Season—Jimmy Powers.

Wagenhals & Kemper have announced that Blanche Walsh will be seen during the coming season as Lady Macbeth in an elaborate production of Shakespeare's tragedy at the new Astor theater, New York.

Although this production has been under way for three years, a series of peculiar incidents has delayed it

BLANCHE WALSH.

The announcement was only made after an extended consultation between Miss Walsh and her manager and after she had signed a contract to continue under their direction for a term of years.

Now that a large force is at work on the production and it is an assured fact Miss Walsh is enthusiastic. She looks confidently forward to the fulfillment of a prophecy made by Barton Hill in the early years of her professional career:

"If you will play Lady Macbeth," said he, "you will be a worthy rival of the great Sarah Siddons."

Miss Walsh's conception of the character, formed after years of study, is entirely at variance with generally accepted and traditional views. In her hands Lady Macbeth becomes a keenly intellectual force, swayed by a mentality that dominates every act of her life.

Miss Walsh's managers assure her that nothing will deter them from the production now—this, too, in face of the fact that she is compelled to appear in a new play now being written for her by Clyde Fitch and the additional fact that she will be seen in that rugged, forceful page of life, "The Kreutzer Sonata," by the great Yiddish dramatist, Jacob Gordin.

James T. Powers, the comic opera star, who is to play under the direction of the Messrs. Shubert in the big London musical extravaganza, "The Blue Moon," during the coming season in America, is engaged at present in writing in laughs for himself in that play. No one understands Powers' comedy peculiarities better than he himself. He never played a part which he did not first build up with his own pen. That some of his lines are to be used in "The Blue Moon" is one of the most certain indications of the interest the piece will contain on its comic side.

Mr. Powers is spending the summer with Edmund Stanley, the tenor of "Mexicana," at Stanley's summer home at Arena, N. Y., in the Adirondacks.

DRIVEN TO DEATH

Teller of Wrecked Bank Could Not Stand Criticism

NO TRACE OF STENSLAND

Forged Notes Amounting to More Than $500,000 Already Found--President's Defalcation Perhaps Two Millions

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Frank Kowalski, for five years paying teller of the Milwaukee Avenue state bank, which failed last Monday, shot and killed himself last night in his home, 340 North Carpenter street. Criticism by neighbors and friends, who accused him of a share in the downfall of the bank, it is believed, drove Kowalski to suicide.

The acme of his trouble was reached Thursday night, when a woman he had known for years accosted him on the street and accused him of being responsible for the failure of the bank. Speaking of the incident later in the evening, Kowalski complained bitterly of the suspicions of his friends and declared that unless his character was speedily cleared he would take his own life.

Kowalski's relatives assert their firm belief that he was innocent of any knowledge as to the mismanagement of the bank by President Stensland. When the bank failed Kowalski had $700 of his own money on deposit in the institution and his immediate relatives had in the bank nearly $50,000. Kowalski, who was 30 years old, had been with the bank for 13 years, beginning as an office boy.

While the search for Paul O. Stensland, the missing president of the failed bank, is extending to all parts of the country, Cashier Hering, who was arrested Thursday, spent yesterday with the state attorneys examining the bank's collateral in an effort to determine the shortage in accounts.

After an all-day search, forged notes aggregating more than $500,000 were found and are now in the possession of the state attorney, who will use them in the prosecution of persons responsible for their utterance. From statements made by Hering regarding loans made by Stensland to himself, and the shortages found by previous investigations, it is asserted that when a final adjustment of the affairs of the bank is made it will be found that President Stensland's alleged defalcation will aggregate nearly $2,000,000.

So gigantic was the total of frauds unearthed that the inquisitors are said to have come to the conclusion that the whole matter ought to be taken out of the justice courts at once and carried into a court of record. With this end in view, it is reported that steps have been taken to secure bench warrants for the arrest of Hering and Theodore Stensland.

The possibility of a special grand jury to take up the affairs has been discussed and the opinion expressed that State Attorney Healy ought to summon such a jury as soon as possible.

Judge Denounced From Gallows

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 11.—Earl Fletcher, a negro, who was hanged here for the murder of Bob Payne, a fellow-convict at Flat Top mines, created a scene by denouncing Judge Weaver from the scaffold just before the drop fell. Fletcher declared that the judge had granted a habeas corpus to John Williams, a white man, and saved Williams' neck, but when it came to his (Fletcher's) case, the court "went fishing" as an excuse for the judge to leave town to avoid giving a habeas corpus.

Rich Man's Son Goes Free

Washington, Aug. 11.—George B. Rafferty, son of Gilbert T. Rafferty, a Pittsburg coke magnate, who was arrested here on the charge of passing worthless checks, was not compelled to stand trial. A representative of the young man's father gave assurance that the amount of the false checks would be made up to the complainants. District Attorney Baker had the charges nolle prossed and Rafferty was released.

Switchmen's Strike Near End

New Haven, Aug. 11.—An end of the switchmen's strike in the local yards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company is expected today. This statement was made by an officer of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who was in conference with General Manager Higgins, and who has made the additional statement that the strike was entirely unauthorized.

Condition of Trade

New York, Aug. 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that in some sections the intense heat facilitated retail trade in summer goods, but the most important development in the business world was the increase in the activity of jobbing and wholesale departments in preparing for autumn and winter requirements. Crop reports are all that could be desired.

Brokerage Concerns Raided

New York, Aug. 11.—Four stock brokerage establishments were raided by the police here and four men arrested on a charge of failure to register a co-partnership. All of the places bear the name on the door John A. Boardman & Co., whose main offices are in Philadelphia. The four men arrested were held in $2500 bail for examination.

TO INSTITUTE REFORMS

National Assembly Will Be Granted People of Persia

Washington, Aug. 11.—For the first time in her history Persia is to have a national assembly. This information was conveyed to the Persian minister here in a cablegram from the recently appointed grand vizier and minister for foreign affairs, who stated that, in view of the desire of the shah for the extension of national tranquility and for the welfare of Persia and all its inhabitants, and in order to fortify the government, it had been decreed necessary to give certain reforms and a constitution durable for the country and for the administration. The immediate organization of a national assembly for the realization of the reforms accordingly was ordered.

According to the dispatch, the assembly will be composed of equal parties, namely: Princes of the blood, clergy, chief of the reigning dynasty, cadjar, high dignitaries and personages, merchants and representatives of corporations. The assembly will meet at Teheran, and it is provided that all civil and constitutional laws shall originate in the assembly and after the signature of the shah will become effective. The cablegram concludes as follows:

"In order to thank his imperial majesty for this happy initiation, the people were authorized to celebrate this happy event by rejoicing and this day was declared a national holiday for the people."

Auto Crash With Fatal Result

New York, Aug. 11.—When an automobile owned and driven by Stewart Elliott ran into a mounted policeman in the Bronx, Mrs. Howard of Baltimore, one of the occupants of the car, was thrown out and so severely injured that she died last night. Miss Margaret Evans, also of the party, is seriously hurt. Elliott and a policeman were slightly injured. The mounted officer was riding after the automobile in an attempt to arrest the driver for an alleged violation of the speed laws.

Struck Electric Light Circuit

New York, Aug. 11.—Dettmar Barrett, 16 years old, was killed by electricity at New Rochelle while constructing a toy telegraph line. Some boys had been interested in telegraphy and had connected their homes by wires. They sought to own a more substantial line and Barrett, with one end of a coil of wire in his hand, started up a telegraph pole in front of his home. The wire came in contact with the electric light circuit.

Has Bad Wound In Skull

Boston, Aug. 11.—Louis Lovely of Dedham, aged 45, was found on Washington street, this city, last night in a wounded condition. He was taken to a hospital and placed on the dangerous list. There was an ugly wound at the base of the skull and he was bleeding profusely at the mouth. Lovely is said to have been in the company of a notorious character. Lovely is married and is the father of 12 children.

Probable Murder For Money

New York, Aug. 11.—In a squalid tenement in the Italian section of the city, Marie Bacora, aged 29, was found murdered. The tumbled condition of the room gave evidence of the struggle which had preceded the crime. The woman is said to have had several hundred dollars in savings in her room and a quantity of tawdry jewelry, which is missing. An arrest has been made on suspicion.

A Damper on Lynching

Salisbury, N. C., Aug. 11.—What is said to be the first instance of the conviction of a lyncher in the history of the state was furnished here last night when George Hall, a white ex-convict, who was one of the party that lynched three negroes here, was found guilty of conspiracy in connection with that crime. Judge Long sentenced Hall to 15 years in the penitentiary.

Boundary Wrangle Going to Court

St. Johns, Aug. 11.—The Quebec government has begun proceedings at Ottawa to press for an adjustment of the Labrador boundary dispute. The Newfoundland government has been officially busy for months acquiring data to assist in establishing this colony's claim to the disputed territory.

Over Two Score Injured

Bowie, Tex., Aug. 11.—More than 40 passengers were injured, none fatally, but several severely, when a passenger train was wrecked a few miles south of Fruitland. A sleeping car and a chair car rolled down an embankment. The wreck, it is said, was caused by a defective track.

Anti-Shea Men Form New Union

Chicago, Aug. 11.—A new teamsters' union, to be known as "The United Teamsters of America," was formally launched as the rival of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. The anti-Shea meeting was attended by 120 teamsters who claim to represent 43 unions.

Prison and Whip For Preacher

Durban, Natal, Aug. 11.—An Ethiopian preacher has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment and to receive 25 lashes for alleged sedition. He offered up prayers in a native kraal at Harding, asking that natives be given strength to drive the whites across the sea.

The Weather Forecast

He Defends "Outlaw" Baseball

Noted Minneapolis Diamond Critic Also Criticises Big Leagues.

Says Members of National Commission Must Surely Be Self Interested.

"The organized baseball of today is nothing more or less than a clever plan by which the players are held in a semi-bondage, sold, bought, traded and trafficked about like a lot of prize steers at a country fair," says "Dutch Uncle," the celebrated Minneapolis baseball authority. "The player is subjected to all sorts of rules, regulations and creeds, but has little or nothing to say about his own affairs. He is sold out of minor into major leagues or from major to minor and has nothing to say. He can pack his grip and go or get out of organized baseball.

"Every agreement has its foundation or should have its basis in equity. There is about as much equity in the average baseball contract as in the proceeding wherein the strong arm in the alley gets the watch of the wayfaring citizen. The 'cit' gives up the watch or gets a clout in the head. The ball player gets up and does as his master demands or he gets out of organized baseball.

"The high court of baseball rests in the national commission. This is made up of league presidents and club owners—interested parties to almost every dispute that comes up. These men may try as best they can to be fair in settling all disputes between clubs and players, but self interest or the interests of league or friends must have some influence in their decisions. The men would not be human did they not waver toward the side in which their interests and friendsships are vested.

"The only way to overcome this condition of affairs is the appointment of a national commission, the members of which have nothing to do in baseball, no financial interests at stake, and let them decide cases purely upon their merits.

"The howling of 'outlaw' at the Tri-state league is like the barking of a rat terrier at a mastiff. This league goes ahead, attends to its business and pays its players good salaries. Because the club owners do not care to come in under the rule of the national commission and sign the national agreement the self appointed press agents in the 'organized' settlements pour hot shot into the league, its officers and players.

"The outlaw league is a good thing for baseball players. It keeps the organized forces from ruling the game with a sway as arbitrary as that of a czar. It affords players a place to go when they get tired of being traded around like cattle. The league pays good salaries. It looks as solid financially as the others. Its sportsmanship is just as high, if not higher.

"Baseball has become more or less of a competitive business proposition, and under this rule the 'outlaws,' so called, have just as much right to do business as the 'organized' forces. They furnish a market where players may sell their services at a high price. It makes competition for men and keeps the salary cutting ax suspended, in a great many cases, without a heavy fall.

"The backers of the 'outlaw' clubs are not 'perverted sportsmen,' and the players are not all disgruntled ones. This designation by the 'organized' organs is another case of the wish fathering the thought. While they may not blow about it from the housetops, the 'outlaw' league has the friendship and moral support of eight out of every ten of the players now with the 'organized' clubs."

"Outlaw" Ball Players.

Baseball clubs under the national agreement will have nothing to do with outlaw players unless considered the property by reserve of some club in the organization.

Explosion on Torpedo Boat

Norfolk, Aug. 11.—Six men were burned by an explosion in the paint locker in the tropedo boat destroyer Worden at the navy yard here. While driving rivets in the paint locker on the Worden one of the hot pieces of steel fell into a quantity of varnish, causing it to explode. The force of the explosion was so great that two men who were driving the rivets were blown through the opening leading into the paint locker and landed on deck. Immediately after the explosion the boat caught fire, but the flames were extinguished without material damage.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Sort of a bargain sale—the Boston Americans have won 29 games, the Washingtons 39, and the Detroits 49. The Philadelphia who lead have won 59.

Our residences are looking very attractive with their grounds adorned with bright asters, gay dahlias, brilliant hollyhocks and yellow California sunflowers.

When it comes to percentages, the city of Quincy made a larger gain in valuation than Brookline. Where the increase in valuation of Brookline this year was a little over two per cent; the increase in Quincy was nearly five per cent; or to be exact four and 72-100th.

When we are inclined to doubt the rapid increase of the city in valuation, we overlook the fact that the number of houses have doubled in 17 years, and also the number of polls. That by the census our population has doubled inside of 20 years. It is natural then that the valuation should double in 17 years, from $12,319,245 in 1889 to $26,786,885 in 1906.

New England has just given National government officials the surprise of their lives, and those gentlemen are busily engaged in pinching themselves and wandering whether a civic millienium has come to pass in the land of the Pilgrim Fathers, as they ponder over the new thing, which Biblical advice to the contrary, has come to pass. The pleasurable state of excitement is due to the fact that when the officials of the supervising architect's office opened bids for a site of the proposed postoffice at North Adams, Mass., they found among them a letter from one of that city's residents, offering to the government a site valued at $50,000 as a free gift, without money and without price. As Uncle Sam as a general thing has to pay, and pay well, for everything he gets, the official who read the letter naturally rubbed his eyes as he scanned it, and at first could not be persuaded that neither his sight nor his mind was failing. The manifestation of civic virtue and desire to cooperate with the government will probably stand long as a record in Washington.

The report which has just appeared from the Census Bureau dealing with insanity and feeble-mindedness, gives some interesting but rather startling figures on the growth of the number of insane persons in this country in the last twenty-five years. The number of insane hospitals increased from 81 per 100,000 persons in 1880 to 186 in 1905—a sufficient indication, were any wanting, of the strain which Americans of the present day put on their brains. During the single year of 1904 more than 49,000 insane persons were admitted to hospitals; how many there may have been who were unable to secure treatment the report does not state. Foreigners contribute largely to the insane class; negroes hardly at all, and while there is a stronger tendency to insanity among men than among women, the latter, when they do become insane, live longer. While it might be expected that insanity would be found chiefly among professional men and brain workers, the reverse is true, for laborers and servants are in the majority. Insanity is evidently a disease of age, and feeble-mindedness of youth, for while the hospitals contain no insane under 12 years of age, 58 percent of the feeble minded are under twenty, and 85 percent under thirty.

Harry Stiegman, aged 18 years, of 333 Water street is reported missing since last Tuesday. Three valuable rings of Mrs. Reuben Grossman, a sister with whom he lived, are also missing. The rings and Stiegman are supposed to have left at the same time.

One of the rings was a diamond solitaire, Tiffany setting, valued at $90, with two small rubies and two small diamonds valued at $50, and one with a blue stone encircled with pearls valued at $50.

Stiegman's home is said to be at 363 East 10th street, New York.

Quincy Yachts At Gloucester

Four Quincy Yachts constituted Class D. in the open race at Gloucester yesterday and again the Arawak won. The summary follows:

CLASS D.

Arawak, H. C. Nickerson	2 39 32	2 35 03
Marvel, I. M. Whittemore	2 44 08	2 38 51
Iris, F. F. Crane,	2 47 36	2 45 45
Hustler, H. W. Robbins	2 53 18	2 46 41

None of the Sonder Klasse boats entered. In other classes the first boats were the Tyro, Dorchen, Teaser and Early Dawn.

Scholarships.

The State Board of Education has awarded half scholarship in the Institute of Techology to Charles L. Campbell of Wollaston and Harold G. Faxon of the First Norfolk district, and Eugene L. Connolly of Bellingham and Charles F. Robinson of Brookline in the Second Norfolk district.

Half scholarships in the Worcester Polytechmic Institute went to Leon W. Hitchcock of West Medway and George S. Meikle, Waldo J. Guild of Walpole and Jarvis Williams, Jr. of Foxboro.

—A piscatorial yarn that outrivals any fish story in Maine this season was corroborated this week by five witnesses who solemnly swear that they witnessed Dr. H. L. Waterman of Brattleboro, Vt., a summer resident, catch a fish which when opened was found to contain a watch bearing his initials. Dr. Waterman states that he dropped the watch overboard while fishing at the Pines, over five miles from where he caught the fish. If it had been one of Brother Waterman's stories, of the Athol Chronicle, we should not doubt the truth of it for a moment.

—With the support of the sovereign lodge law, passed in 1895, but which never has been enforced, Wesley B. Stout, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of New Jersey, has opened war upon saloon keepers, bartenders and gamblers in an effort to drive them out of the lodges. It will mean the expulsion of about 3500 members.

—Commander George Innis in charge of the Boston Grand Army Club to attend the Minneapolis encampment, is at the home of his son in Mattapan suffering nervous prostration. He will be unable to go to the encampment. Colonel Geo. A. Hosley and G. W. Masters are now in charge of the Massaachusetts party.

—The County Commissioners have decided not to fill the vacancy on the board caused by the death of Hon. James Hewins.

Quincy Point Express Raided

Chief Burrell and a squad of officers raided two express offices on East Howard street at Quincy Neck this noon, being successful at two places.

From the Austin & Winslow-Gallagher Company they seized whiskey, and from the Riverside express they made a big haul of several kinds of liquors.

New Schemes Hatched Every Day

Quincy seems to have become the stamping ground of late for sneak thieves, check passers and bogus inspecters. There has been all kinds but a new scheme was worked on Dr. Jones on Thursday. That afternoon a fellow come into his yard and informed the servant that his automobile had broken down and he wanted to take some tools to repair it.

The servant was suspicious of the man and told him to wait until she informed the doctor, who was in his office. The doctor happened to be busy at that minute, and the servant tried to keep an eye on the fellow. He was too smart for her, however, and when the doctor came out he found that the fellow had helped himself to a revolver, a wrench and some other tools and had disappeared.

BRAINTREE.

Mrs. F. M. Buzzell and daughter Sadie E. returned Sunday from a month's visit with her mother Mrs. E. H. Bryant of North Hanson.

Mrs. Annie J. Brett, accompanied by her mother Mrs. Mary Cuming, are spending a couple of weeks with relatives in Pepperell.

Members of Amana Rebekah Lodge will go to Squantum on a picnic Thursday, August 16th leaving South Braintree at 9.10 A. M.

Dr. F. W. Brett of Summer street and Mr. F. A. Bates of Union street left Thursday for Damariscotta, Maine, where they will visit Leo Brett who is in camp there. Dr. Brett will return on Saturday, August eighteenth.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dickinson and son Walter R. of Academy street left this morning for Mercer, Maine, to visit Mrs. Dickinson's parents. Mr. Dickinson and family formerly lived in Mercer and it is now several years since he has visited his old home.

Amoung the new subcribers to the New England telephone are Mr. E. S. Grover of Tremont street and Dr. B. C. Shanks of Washington street.

Willie H. Shaw and son John of Maple street are spending three weeks at Marblehead and Gloucester.

John E. Arnold leaves today for Goffstown, N. H., to spend a week with his wife who is summering there.

Wallace Wilson returns today from East Hebron, N. H., where he has had recreation with rod and reel for a week or more. He was accompanied by Mr. DeNormandie of Wollaston.

Miss Hannah C. Whelan of Weymouth a teacher at the Union school in this town and Miss Ida M. Callahan of Weymouth are spending their vacation at Cape Elizabeth, Maine.

One of O. F. Metcalf's friends arose one morning this week at 4.30 to watch him go by in his new auto when to his great surprise he found that it was a large mowing machine that was passing.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Arnold returned to day from Old Orchard, Maine, where they have been enjoying a vacation of ten days.

We notice in the Boston Herald that Col. Drinkwater is to head the Bay State delegation which will welcome William J. Bryon. He was ever an advocate of the Nebraskan orator. The Colonel left on Thursday morning for New York.

Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Gage of Commonwealth avenue, Boston, were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Young of Hollis avenue over Sunday.

Mrs. George F. Hussey leaves tomorrow for Minneapolis, Minn., where she goes on a visit to her sister. Mr. Hussey will go later and return home with her by the way of Canada.

Walter Thompson of Commercial street was away on a business trip this week. Mrs. Thompson with her son Porter spent a portion of the week with her mother, Mrs. Porter of Front street, Weymouth.

The Union Veteran firemen are to attend the New England league muster at Providence, R. I., next Thursday. This will be the first league muster the Union has ever attended.

John Wilder of Allen street has built a catboat. He calls it "a racer." The youth has done well. This is his first experience and all his knowledge of tools and the art of handling them he gained when a student at the Jonas Perkins school in the sloyd department. Constant employment of mind and skill of hand come by endeavor and how much better to use one's talents and capabilities than to loaf about the streets.

The first of the week Mr. A. R. Hobart of Commercial street and Benjamin Saulpaugh, accompanied by C. Frank White of Prescott lane and J. Murray Knights of Allen street, went down the harbor in their new motor boat. They fished off Harding's ledge, below Boston light, and pulled in 275 fish—flounders, deep sea cod and crumers. Their friends were remembered and feasted on the fresh appetizing ocean fish.

From Geneve, Italy, comes a souvenir postal card from our friend Nathaniel F. Hunt. The picture is of a fort, pyramid and armory. "Roma—La piramide di C. Cestio e la Porta Ostiense."

Julius Heurlin and Albert L. Forbush of West street are each applying for telephones. We hope they succeed in signing contract. It is quite an expense to the company for poles and wire.

The coming of the stork brought to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daley of Dyer Hill a little daughter, who is fortunate in having a great grandfather and a great grandmother to welcome her advent.

It is with deep sorrow that we announce the death of Elizabeth H. Buckley, youngest daughter of George and Dinah Buckley of Oak street, East Braintree, at the age of 13. The deceased resided with her parents until her demise on Monday last.

An Open Letter From Sinclair

Editors ot the Daily Ledger:

I crave a few inches of space in your really enterprising daily, to place myself and others in our proper light. I am well known to most of your leading citizens, and between Boston and Brockton, which was my territory while with the Kee Lox Mfg. Co. of Rochester, N. Y., with Boston office in Weld building, Federal street. I was employed by this firm for nearly two years and was their highest salaried salesman, receiving $32.50 per week and expenses while on road. My hours of employment were from 9 to 12 and 2 to 5, consequently I venture to claim that few of these cheap would-be reporters and obnoxious braggarts will turn their sarcastic faces to the wall on reading the above.

The first of June was taken home sick from worry and overwork, domestic difficulties being no small factor in the former. On June 6th, I was admitted to the hospital and on 9th, had brain fever. Was discharged the 25th at my own request, although far from well. I had some difficulty shortly afterward in Roxbury and paid a fine of $10 for administering a sound drubbing to a big, strapping negro of Roxbury. This was not accomplished by my natural weapon alone, but with the aid of a stove lifter as the negro weighed 225 to my 125 at that time. I have since then lost several pounds.

The unwelcome newspaper notoriety caused by my two escapades, unprovoked and unavoidable decided me to return and open up a small branch here and we were just getting headway when a certain jeweller on Hancock street, who should certainly return to Business college for a course in banking, misunderstood the drawing of a cheque I made.

As my place is still here and my business going on from where I am, I do not care, as I propose to make this said jeweller pay me more than a fair salary per day for the time I am losing. Nor shall I make the very least endeavor to secure my release, for I am being treated with exceeding kindness and respect by the entire Quincy Police department, some of whom I have known for over a year.

I shall say more of this much maligned department of your city anon, as I am in a position (from experience) to flatly refute many malicious statements. I have recently read in some sensational monger sheets of the yellow type.

I do not sign my name for various reasons, but anyone to whom I owe one dollar may call at this station house and receive the same in good hard coin of the realm of Uncle Samuel.

Trusting that you will publish this and that our business relation may not be upset through the petty jealousness and ignorance as shown by some block heads. I beg to remain,

Very respectfully yours,

L. W. de M.

Vacation Schools.

Joseph T. F. Burrell and William A. Reed, formerly of Quincy have achieved success this summer as principals of summer schools in Boston. Thursday was closing day and the Transcript comments in part as follows:

Another very interesting school which closed yesterday was that in the Hancock, at the North End, in charge of William A. Reed. Special pride is taken by the principal in the results accomplished here and the discipline maintained with a gathering of nearly a thousand children, mostly Jewish and Italian. The teachers, none of whom hold regular positions in the Boston schools, have shown remarkable enthusiasm and esprit de corps in the difficult undertaking they had in charge. Most of them are Normal school students, a few not yet graduated, and the results accomplished in all departments was very creditable, especially in view of the fact that the appropriation this year has been reduced and it has been necessary to omit the manual training and iron work. Instruction has been given in basketry, raffia work, cane seating, elementary and advanced card-pasting of pictures, and in the school yard the children have enjoyed the sand garden and other opportunities for play.

Over 7,000 Tons.

Returns from the two shipping terminals for the month of July show that considerable more rough and finished granite was shipped that month than in June. The total for July was 14,803,312 pounds against 13,207,717 pounds for June. Of the July shipments 7,484,012 pounds was forwarded from West Quincy and 7,319,300 pounds from South Quincy.

—Six members of the Mazamas mountain climbing party reached the summit of Mt. Baker, in Washington, Tuesday afternoon, after a perilous ascent. The party, starting at daybreak from the temporary camp of the Mazamus, by tunneling in places through ice and snow, got around what had seemed impassable barriers and reached the top.

CHINAMEN WANTED

Contract Labor to Be Tried on the Isthmian Canal

WILL START WITH 2500

Commission to Be Relieved of All Detail Work and Responsibility--Jamaican Labor Has Proved to Be Unsatisfactory

Washington, Aug. 11.—Chinese labor will be given a thorough test on the Panama canal. Contracts calling for 2500 Chinamen for canal work have been prepared and advertisements will be issued by the isthmian canal commission in a few days asking for proposals from labor agents.

If the initial 2500 Chinamen prove a success it is likely that many more will be employed to do the work that is too hard for the Jamaicans now employed there in large numbers.

Organized labor has offered much opposition to the use of contract Chinese labor, but the Jamaican workmen have proved inadequate, sufficient Spaniards cannot be had immediately to push the work, and the Chinese are the last hope of the commission.

President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft, Chairman Shonts of the isthmian canal commission and other men prominently identified with the canal work are known to have delayed employing Chinese until it became evident that the other help available was not equal to the demands. The administration has taken the position that the canal must be dug at any cost and, although the president urged that there be no haste in employing Chinese, he did not stand permanently in the way of the plan to try the coolies.

It is the intention of the commission to ask for bids from labor agencies who will arrange with the Chinese government for the exportation of labor, transport the Chinese to the isthmus under contract to work for a fixed wage, and ship them back to China, thus relieving the commission of all detail work and all responsibility. A bond will be required of all contractors for a satisfactory fulfillment of any contract they may enter into with the commission.

There is said to be about 30 labor agencies which supply Chinese to contractors in all parts of the world. These agents are familiar with all the Chinese labor, stand ready to pay money to the families of men who are going into their service, and are ready, at short notice, to meet demands for an unlimited number of coolies.

Leroy Park, a labor agent in the employ of the commission, is still in Spain negotiating with the Spanish government for the employment of large numbers of peninsular Spaniards on the isthmus. His efforts promise to be successful and the commission expects to recruit many high-grade workingmen from Spain.

It is the desire of Chief Engineer Stevens to have several kinds of labor on the isthmus. The employment of the Chinese will not displace the Jamaicans who are already there, but it is not likely that many more West Indian negroes will be hired if the Chinese prove a success.

The Jamaicans are paid 80 cents a day, against $1.60 to the Spaniards. It is believed that the daily wage of the coolies will be less than that of the Jamaicans.

All Will Get a "Square Deal"

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Cattle raisers of the west met Secretary of Agriculture Wilson here and asked for a "square deal." Wilson assured them, as well as the representatives of Chicago packers who came into the conference, that a "square deal" was exactly what the government intended to give every branch of the meat industry in this country and at the conclusion of the meeting expressions of the utmost satisfaction were voiced by all interests concerned.

Made Insane by Heat

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 11.—J. H. Phillips, aged 32, a resident of Wilmington, was discovered by his father, James D. Phillips, in the state insane asylum at Westboro, Mass. He was so seriously affected by the heat in Boston last week that he lost his reason. He was taken in charge by the police of that city and committed to the asylum. When his letters ceased the father went to Boston and after a two days' search succeeded in finding him.

The Lackawanna's New Departure

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 11.—The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad will, at an early date, dispense with the services of all telegraphers on its system and will control the movement of trains with the automatic block signal system and the additional telephone facilities.

Pulajanes Kill Five Americans

Manila, Aug. 11.—First Lieutenant James and two privates of the Eighth infantry, with Surgeon Snyder and Internal Revenue Collector Williams, were killed in a hand-to-hand fight with a force of Pulajanes at Julita, Island of Leyte.

Revolt of Brazilian Police

Rio De Janeiro, Aug. 11.—According to advices from the state of Sergipe, the police of Aracaju, capital of that state, have revolted and attacked the governer's palace. The government has sent two battalions of troops to subdue the mutinous policemen.

The Eel Editor Gives New Hints

How to Unhook a Wily Wriggler Without Tangling the Line.

It isn't so hard to catch an eel. Not infrequently you will land one when you are fishing for something else.

But getting him off the hook without having your line tangled and tied into innumerable hard knots—aye, that's the rub!

When Izaak Walton wrote his treatise on the gentle art of angling he overlooked the eel. Yet the possibilities of this squirming fish in developing patience in the fisherman are infinite.

The average angler when he has hooked one can do nothing more than rub his hand in the dirt till it is rough with grime, seize the eel by the neck and club him to death.

Meanwhile his line is all snarls and tangles.

But an ingenious angler, with the nervous system of the eel in mind, has discovered a better way.

The eel, properly handled, may be soothed and put into an immediate state of calm simply by rubbing him gently on the spinal column with a match or small stick.

The accompanying illustration, which is genuine, shows how it is done and should carry conviction to the most skeptical mind.

Indeed, no one who has hypnotized a crab by rubbing it between the eyes will doubt for a moment that the eel may somewhat similarly be put to sleep.

It is the only effective way to detach an eel from the hook. Try it.

All fishermen should hail this new discovery with loud acclaim, for Mr. Eel has long been a figurative thorn in their sides.

The eel's meat is so sweet and nourishing that he is always in demand, but the obstacles met in removing him from the hook have caused most anglers to look on him in the light of an intolerable nuisance.

As a matter of fact the writer has met some anglers—and they were not women, either—who would invariably cut their lines and cast hook and fish overboard when the fish proved to be one of the eel family.

Surely a monument or some other token of gratitude should be erected in honor of the discoverer of the new process of unhooking the wriggling delicacies.

One veteran eel catcher says it is a big help to use a fairly large hook when fishing for eels. He says the eel is unable to swallow the large hook, which, as a result, catches in his mouth and can be easily removed.

"Most of the trouble," he says, "comes from using a small hook. Then

Mr. Eel swallows it entirely and it catches far down in his throat or in his stomach. The difficulties are thus multiplied."

Of course the man who spears eels or catches them in nets or weirs avoids practically all the trouble met by the hook and line users.

PROMPT WORK GOOD WORK

EL TERREMOTO

By HONORE WILLSIE

Copyright, 1906, by P. C. Eastment

For three months now Eleanor had been on the desert edge fighting for her brother's health. At first the desperation of the struggle had kept her thoughts from straying eastward; had crammed with anxiety each moment that otherwise would have been wretched with homesickness.

But now, with the leisure that came with Jack's returning health, homesickness was beginning its inroads upon her. This made doubly hard to bear the fact that Jack was developing the fractiousness of the convalescent and that an ordinary pacific disposition was becoming so irritable that it taxed even the devotion of this most devoted sister. On this particular afternoon he had expressed an inordinate desire for a certain brand of cigars.

"But, Jack dear," objected Eleanor, "the doctor says that you must not smoke."

"Who says I want to smoke?" growled Jack. "I just want to look at them and sniff of them and feel them. And I want them today."

Eleanor sighed patiently. "It's five miles to town, Jacky. And though it's 4 o'clock, it's frightfully hot. Don't you want to wait until tomorrow?"

"Oh, of course, if you don't want to do the favor for me," replied the invalid, walking feebly across the tent to pick up a fan.

"Why, certainly I'm going, Jacky," she cried. "The heat won't last much longer," and she disappeared toward her own tent, leaving her brother looking a bit sheepish.

So now Eleanor was riding slowly along the blistering trail toward the sleepy little adobe village which boasted a single Yankee store, at which she thought she could get the cigars. She was a beautiful girl, slender of body and lovely of face, with the refinement of good blood through many generations showing in every lineament. Her dark blue eyes, shadowed by the heavy lashes, looked tired, and her figure drooped a little as if in utter weariness.

"It's getting pretty hard," she thought. "It's spring up there, with the snow melting into little rivulets, and the pussy willows out, and the wind flowers coming. Only the thought of Jack's getting well keeps me from going mad."

She started a little as a cheery halloo greeted her, and she saw riding down the trail toward her a broad shouldered, jolly chap in cowboy attire. He wheeled his mustang and rode beside her.

"I was taking a jaunt out to tell you that I have almost finished my work and must fly eastward again."

"Oh, that is too bad!" cried Eleanor.

The man's fine brown eyes beamed. "I've only known you a week," he answered, "but it's been a mighty pleasant week."

"Jack will miss you," said the girl.

The man eyed her silently. "She's wearing herself out," he thought. "I wish I could take her away from here. Burwell's nearly strong enough to go it alone now. Gads! She's a beauty!"

Eleanor wiped the alkali dust from her face and told him the reason for her trip to town.

"Rather hard on you," commented Hartley.

Eleanor smiled, but said nothing, and they rode for some distance in silence, Hartley's gaze scarcely leaving for an instant the drooping profile beside him.

"I wonder," he thought, "if she realizes that she's never told me a word of herself, who she is or—by the Lord Harry, if she'd have me I'd marry her tomorrow even if they both came from a foundling asylum."

By this time they were riding up the street of the dirty little Mexican village, whose inhabitants were too absorbed in the sight of the Americanos to move from beneath the horses' feet until urged to do so by Hartley in a patois that made up in vigor what it lacked in lucidity.

The Yankee store was the only frame building for miles around. It was owned by an enterprising Vermonter, who was making a small fortune in the lazy little town, where money went faster than it came.

Hartley tied the horses and they entered the store. Just as they stepped within the door it slammed shut violently behind them and the tremor of its impact shook the entire building. The storekeeper, the only other person in the dusky room, looked up in surprise that quickly changed to alarm. The tremor instead of ceasing increased.

"What's the matter?" he cried, running to the front of the store.

"I don't know," replied Hartley. "If I were up north I'd think it was a dynamite blast, but"—

Here the crockery in the window clattered and a roll of turkey red fell to the floor.

"It's an earthquake!" cried the Vermonter. "Come on, get out of here quick," and he made a dash for the knob. But the door was fast and immediately the floor was rocking so violently that the whole room seemed filled with flying articles from the store shelves. Hartley suddenly pulled Eleanor toward him, as if trying to shield her with his body. Then a great rumble, with continuous shocks like explosions, a fearful crash and darkness!

It had all happened in so short a space of time that Eleanor had scarcely realized that she was actually encountering an earthquake. She had been thrown violently to the ground, as the final shock came, and now she felt out in the darkness and encountered Hartley's quiet form. Almost hysterical with fright, she called to him and chafed his hands feverishly. Then came the voice of the storekeeper:

"Hello, you two in there!"

"Yes," called Eleanor weakly. "I'm all right, but Mr. Hartley seems badly hurt."

"The whole dinged front of the store has fallen in," called the Vermonter, "but I got out through a hole. Can you stay still till I get help?"

"Yes," answered Eleanor, and again she fell to chafing Hartley's hands.

It was a long and arduous task to remove the debris without injury to the prisoners beneath. The work was doubly long, owing to the fact that what few natives had not fled to the desert were hovering over their ruined adobes with wails of "El terremoto! El terremoto!" so that the storekeeper did most of the work himself.

Long before their rescue Hartley had recovered his senses and by combining their two handkerchiefs Eleanor had bound the wound in his head that seemed to be his only injury. It was twilight when they reached the street, a quiet, southern twilight, with just the edge of a great full moon coming up over the edge of the desert.

As soon as it was possible Eleanor with Hartley on guard set out for camp. She was greatly disturbed over her brother, though the natives assured her that the shock was not serious where there were no buildings.

Hartley, looking like a picturesque bandit with his bandaged forehead, was in great spirits despite his aching head. He said little until they were well out on the trail. Then he rode close up to Eleanor's pony.

"Miss Burwell," he said, "an accident like this makes us friends of about ten years' standing, doesn't it?"

"It surely does," cried Eleanor.

"Then," he went on eagerly, "don't you think that two such old friends could safely care for each other and—and perhaps marry each other?"

Eleanor did not seem so much astonished as the short acquaintanceship might warrant. But she blushed deeply in the moonlight.

"But you don't know me and I don't know you," she said.

"Well, I'm an architect," he answered, "and I live in Chicago and"—

"Not the 'John Hartley, architect,' that all the world knows!" cried Eleanor.

"I'm afraid so," he replied, a little sheepishly.

Eleanor gasped. "My little name sinks into insignificance," she said.

Hartley looked at her suspiciously.

"You aren't E. Burwell, the illustrator!" he exclaimed.

"I'm afraid so," she mocked.

Hartley stopped the ponies and drew her close in his arms. "Whatever the names," he whispered, "we belong to one another, anyhow."

A Bible Courtship.

A young gentleman at church conceived a most sudden and violent passion for a young lady in the next pew and felt desirous of entering into a courtship on the spot, but, the place not suiting a formal declaration, the exigency suggested the following plan: He politely handed his fair neighbor a Bible, open, with a pin stuck in the following text, second epistle of John, verse 5: "And now I beseech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another." She returned it with the following, second chapter of Ruth, verse 10: "Then she fell on her face and bowed herself to the ground and said unto him, Why have I found grace in thine eyes, that thou shouldst take notice of me, seeing I am a stranger?" He returned the book, pointing to verse 12 of the third epistle of John, "Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink, but I trust to come unto you and speak face to face." From the above interview the marriage took place the following week.—Scottish American.

The Geese Won.

An English gentleman once laid a wager with George IV. that geese would beat turkeys in a race. The king, thinking that such a wager was already as good as won, willingly made the bet, and the gentleman was left to choose time and place and distance. Being well acquainted with the habits of the birds he accordingly chose for the time the evening, just before sunset, and for the place the road outside the city walls and a mile for the distance. The time came and each appeared with his flock of birds and the race began. Long ere the end came the sunset and immediately, true to their instincts, as soon as the sun had quite disappeared all the turkeys flew up into the nearest tree to roost, and no persuasion could induce them to budge an inch farther, and the geese, which had been slowly toddling on behind, quietly cackled in—the winners.

Moving the Well.

A New England woman once had in her employ a rosy cheeked Irish maid of all work, whose blunders afforded them amusement to compensate for any trouble she might entail. One day the owner of the place stated in the girl's hearing that he intended to have a wood house built on a piece of ground which at that time inclosed a well.

"Shure, sor," said the inquiring Margaret, "will you be movin' the well to a more convenient spot whin the wood house is builded?"

As a smile crossed the face of her employer Margaret at once perceived she had made a mistake of some sort.

"It's a fool I am, shure," she added hastily, bound to retrieve herself. "Of coorse whin the well was moved ivery drop of wather would run out of it!"

IS AGAIN INDICTED

Federal Grand Jury Returns Bill Against Standard Oil

VACUUM ALSO INCLUDED

Alleged to Have Accepted Rebates From the Pennsylvania Railroad--Conviction on All Counts Will Mean Penalties Amounting to $1,400,000

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 11.—The federal grand jury for the western district of New York reported indictments against the Standard Oil company of New York, the Pennsylvania railroad and the Vacuum Oil company, which has refineries at Olean and Rochester.

One indictment is found against each of the defendants and in all there are 22 counts. The indictments against the Pennsylvania charges that it granted rebates on oil shipments to the Standard Oil company and the indictment against the Standard charges that it accepted rebates from the Pennsylvania.

The evidence showed that the Vacuum Oil company made shipments over the Pennsylvania and that the Standard paid the freight bills, and charges specifically that it shipped oil from Olean to Rutland, Vt., at a tariff rate lower than any published by the Pennsylvania railroad or on file with the interstate commerce commission.

One of the counts in the indictments charges that the Pennsylvania railroad did not file with the interstate commerce commission a tariff showing its rates and charges for the transportation of oil.

The indictments were sworn under the direction of Special United States Attorney General Pagin. If the defendants should be convicted on all of the counts the penalties would amount to $1,400,000.

The substance of the charges is that in 1904 the Pennsylvania railroad made to the Standard Oil company a rate of 16.1 cents on 100 pounds of oil from Olean to Rutland, Vt., when the published rate at that time was 19 cents. The testimony was that shipments were often made over other routes than the published schedule. Substantially the same charge is made against the Standard Oil company and the Vacuum Oil company, the indictment reading that these concerns accepted the rebate.

The route mentioned in the indictments from Olean to Rutland, Vt., is: The Rochester division of the Pennsylvania; the West Shore railroad (operated as a part of the New York Central); the Fitchburg division of the Boston and Maine railroad, and the Rutland railroad (also operated as a part of the New York Central).

The indictments specify that the shipments were made under a common agreement between the Pennsylvania, the New York Central and the Rutland Railroad companies, with stop or interruption for the purpose of unloading or trans-shipping orders, and transfer slips directed that the oil was to be delivered to the Rutland railroad.

In presenting the indictments to the court United States District Attorney Brown said the grand jury desired more time to investigate some of the subjects under its consideration, and for that reason asked for a recess. This the court granted and fixed the date of Aug. 24 for reconvening of the court for a continuance of the investigation. The inquiry has been on one month.

Not only officials of the Pennsylvania railroad were called, but freight traffic officials of the New York Central testified, as did some former freight traffic officials of the Rutland railroad. Bail was fixed at $20,000 for each of the defendants.

Tells of Direct Rebates

Chicago, Aug. 11.—Direct rebate arrangements alleged to exist between the Standard Oil company and certain railroads were presented to the federal grand jury by Horace Tucker, chairman of the Chicago and St. Louis Traffic association. If this inquiry is carried to a conclusion it is declared that a number of railroads centering in Chicago, as well as the Standard Oil company, will be included in an indictment under the Elkins law.

Strike Threatened at Washington

Washington, Aug. 11.—A general sympathetic strike in the building trades in Washington is predicted by union labor leaders as the result of action taken by the Bricklayers' union in adopting a resolution binding its members not to work on a building where non-union plumbers are employed. If painters, plasterers and other classes of the building trades follow the action of the bricklayers the situation will become extremely serious.

Little One Buried In Cave-In

New York, Aug. 11.—Five children playing in an excavation in Harlem were caught by a cavein and one of them, Joseph Eitelberg, 2 years old, was dead when taken out. All but two of the children managed to free themselves, but Eitelberg was completely buried, while Harry Kendler, 11 years old, was buried up to the neck.

Rockefeller Funds In Africa

London, Aug. 11.—The Times says it learns from a reliable authority that John D. Rockefeller has furnished funds for railroad development in Tanganyika, Africa. This led to the recent rise in Tanganyika shares and Rhodesians generally.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE

Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

NINE-YEAR SENTENCE

Promoter Dickinson Renews His Fight and Gets a Stay

Boston, Aug. 11.—Nine years in the Norfolk county jail at Dedham was the sentence imposed on John W. Dickinson, a promoter, in the United States district court for aiding in the misapplication of funds of the South Danvers National bank of Peabody, which went to the wall Sept. 19, 1900.

Dickinson, who was found guilty with the cashier of the bank, George M. Foster, on March 20, 1903, after a prolonged and sensational trial, has been fighting imprisonment ever since, and intends to keep up the legal battle, having had his counsel file exceptions immediately after sentence was imposed by the court yesterday.

The bill of exceptions, containing 52 counts, was allowed. They related to the admissibility of certain evidence and the legality of the verdict of the jury on which there were only 10 men, two having been excused through illness.

The case now goes to the appellate court. Pending a decision, Dickinson was released on $15,000 bail, in which he had previously been held.

Mistaken For a Bear

Lancaster, N. H., Aug. 11.—Mistaken by a hunter for a bear, Samuel Mansfield of East Stewartstown was shot and instantly killed late yesterday by John Gilbert, a laborer employed on a nearby farm. Mansfield was repairing a fence on his farm and was in a stooping posture among some bushes which form a fringe along the fence. In the twilight, Gilbert saw him indistinctly and, mistaking him for a bear, raised his rifle to his shoulder and fired. Mansfield was shot through the head and died instantly. Gilbert was not arrested, the authorities deciding that the shooting was purely accidental.

Girl and Would-Be Rescuer Perish

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 11.—Joseph Shaw, 25 years old, and Mary E. Hickey, 14, were drowned at Salisbury beach. The Hickey girl was but a few yards from the shore when she was swept off her feet and carried rapidly toward the sea. Shaw immediately struck out after her. He reached her side, but when he tried to swim back he found the current setting too strong against him. Without relinquishing his hold upon the girl, the undertow swept him gradually into deeper water, where they drowned.

Railway Officials Criticised

Providence, Aug. 11.—As a result of a report made by Coroner Lincoln, who has been investigating the death of John Kenny, who was struck and killed by an electric car, Harry C. Mahood, motorman of the car, is charged with manslaughter. The coroner arraigns the company for what he terms placing responsibility in the hands of "ignorant, incompetent and irresponsible persons."

Merriment Turned to Grief

Boston, Aug. 11.—Katherine Goldberg, aged 18 years, daughter of Morris Goldberg, a North End merchant, fell from a four-story window at 7 Stillman street last night and sustained fatal injuries. The Goldberg family were in the parlor of their home entertaining a guest. Katherine was seated on the window sill and in a moment of laughter lost her balance and fell to the street below.

Called a Common Scold

Gardner, Mass., Aug. 11.—A charge of being a common scold has been made against Mrs. Bridget Goulding of Templeton, who is under arrest. It is the first time since old colonial days that a woman has been arrested in this part of Massachusetts on such a charge. Mrs. Goulding's two sons, Louis and Edward, were arrested with her, the charge against them being assault.

Wanted to Die at Husband's Home

Wellesley, Mass., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Maud Henry, aged 23, wife of Dr. Edward E. Henry, drank chloroform while riding in a carriage last night and is in a serious condition. Mrs. Henry and her husband have not been living together for some time. After taking the poison Mrs. Henry told the coachman to drive to her husband's house that she might die there.

Holy Ghost Craft at Boston

Boston, Aug. 11.—The barkentine Rebecca Crowell, belonging to the Holy Ghost and Us society, under orders of Rev. Frank W. Sandford of Shiloh, Me., is at anchor in this port, and the utmost secrecy is maintained concerning the object of the cruise or her ultimate destination. She has on board a company of 60 men, women and children besides her crew.

No Hopes For Burke's Recovery

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 11.—Thomas F. Burke left fielder for the Lynn baseball team of the New England league, who received a probable fracture of the skull by being hit by a pitched ball in a game Thursday, is reported as being still unconscious. The hospital authorities have no hopes for his recovery.

Strikers Adhere to Grievances

Adams, Mass., Aug. 11.—After hearing a report from a committee which had a conference with Treasurer Plunkett of the Berkshire Manufacturing company, the striking weavers voted not to recede from the position they have taken in regard to their alleged grievances.

Relic of Old Cemetery

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 11.—Workmen excavating at a city sand pile in North Parish discovered a skeleton in the bank and a murder scare was created until it was learned that the sandbank was part of a cemetery half a century ago.

City of Presidents

Birthplace of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

Some of the places of historical interest are named below:

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Small fee asked.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregional Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

DOROTHY Q. HOUSE.

Hancock street, corner Butler road, Quincy. Old Quincy homestead in which Dorothy Q was born. Owned by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames. Has quaint old paper on parlor put on for wedding of John Hancock and Dorothy Quincy; also secret chamber and other interesting features. Open free to the public on Saturdays, from 11 A. M. until 4 P. M.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

HANCOCK CEMETERY.

Hancock street, across from First Church. Many old stones, among the oldest that of Rev. John Hancock, father of the Patriot, who died May 7, 1744. Was fifth minister of First Church.

PRESIDENTS ADAMS MANSION.

Adams street, corner Newport avenue, Quincy. Residence of President John Adams and contains many family relics. Occupied by descendants. Not open to public.

PRESIDENTS LANE.

Now Goffe street, leading from Adams street, near Mansion. Opened by John Adams to drive his cows to pasture.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum stiory. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

Why Larks Are Easily Caught.

No bird is so easily netted as the lark; he generally starts from the ground just before the lower edge of the net touches him and invariably mounts perpendicularly. This characteristic propensity to ascend at once may be observed by any person who "treads up" a lark in a field and satisfactorily illustrated by releasing, at the same moment, a newly captured lark and a sparrow from a cage or hat within the precincts of a room. While the sparrow will fly off horizontally, dash himself against the window and lie almost stunned from the shock, the lark will almost always mount upward to the ceiling and flutter there for a time in vain efforts to reach the sky before he attempts any other mode of exit; but this habit is fatal to him in the netting season. He would generally be able to escape, as indeed the bunting or clod bird, the sparrow and the linnet constantly do, by flying straight forward; but ascending, as he does, directly from the ground the moment his wings have touched the upper part of the net it is suffered to drop suddenly, and his capture is rendered inevitable.—London Standard.

An Incident of Life In New York.

The street beggar with pockets lined with money is a fairly familiar figure of city life, but one of the free dispensaries reports an instance of an attempt to get free medicine on the plea of poverty that deserves a place in the catalogue of good stories of graft. A middle aged woman appeared the other day and got a prescription, after which she took her place in the line of persons waiting to have their medicine made up by the apothecary. This particular woman, it should be said, had given satisfactory answers to all the questions put to her designed to show whether she was a proper subject for charity. Suddenly there was a cry: "I'm robbed! I'm robbed!" The victim was this woman, who so far forgot her previous professions as to assert that her pocket had been picked and that the thief had got away with $90. Then she lost the opportunity to get free medicine, thus adding, in her view, insult to injury.—New York Post.

Acute Laryngitis.

George Washington died of a disease that was then called a quinsy, but which is now known as acute laryngitis. His physicians treated him according to their best light and knowledge, but such treatment now would be little short of criminal. An eminent authority says that if medical men had known as much then as they do now the distinguished patient would probably have been cured in a week. As it was, he slowly strangled to death by the closing of his throat. At the present time physicians treat a case of this kind by tracheotomy—that is, by making an opening into the windpipe, through which the patient may breathe. They also diagnose a case by using the laryngoscope, which enables them to look into the throat and see exactly what the trouble is.

Hairs of Caterpillars.

Several kinds of hairy caterpillars are known to have a poisonous effect on the human skin, notably the caterpillar of the processionary moth, so called because the caterpillars march in procession after their food. The scientist Reaumur found that this caterpillar's hairs caused him considerable suffering in the hands for some days and that when he rubbed his eyes his eyelids, too, were inflamed. Even approaching too near the nests of these caterpillars has caused painful swellings on the necks of certain persons from the caterpillar hairs floated by the winds.

Are Pie Eaters Hypocrites?

Why do people who eat pie in secret and in the open, people who when they order pie cast about them furtive glances and people who do not care who sees them engaged on pie one and all talk and behave as if the consumption of pie constituted an unpardonable sin whenever the subject is broached? Why in polite circles composed of those whose ancestors were brought up on pie, even pie for breakfast, is pie hailed with mirthful tittering?—Providence Journal.

Be Gentle With Bitter People.

How often we come across people in life so disagreeable and bitter, rejecting all overtures of kindness we make toward them, that we feel quite disheartened. And yet if we only knew their life's history how much we should perhaps find to forgive and pity, so let us keep on with our good work until we have thawed the icicles of their hearts with the warmth of our own.

A Special Case.

"If Mr. Winslow calls tonight, mamma, what shall I say?"

"Say whatever your heart tells you to say, my dear."

"But this isn't one of those cases, mamma. There is nothing to Mr. Winslow except his money."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Convinced.

Mr. Spongely (slightly related)—Splendid! Magnificent! Do you know, Uncle Eli, I believe I shall never get tired of seeing the sun set behind that hill! Uncle Eli—That's what me an' mother's beginnin' to think.—Puck.

A Common Mistake.

Many a man has become possessed of the idea that he is a humorist merely because other people think he is funny. —Chicago Record-Herald.

I know no manner of speaking so offensive as that of giving praise and closing it with an exception.—Steele.

DUDES OF OTHER TIMES.

Dress of a Dandy of the Early Nineteenth Century.

A cure for the confirmed railer against modern dress might be a course of inspection through a file of old fashion magazines or the perusal of such accounts as are given by the author of "Sketches of Lynn." The description is that of a suit worn in the first part of the nineteenth century.

The boots were an important article of dress. The toes were made as broad as the ball of the foot, with the corners well rounded, giving the shoe the resemblance to the snout of a shovel nosed shark. They were very snug and required strong straps. In order to get into a fashionable pair the heel of the stocking was well soaped and some pulverized soap sprinkled into the boot. The length of time it took to get one on depended on the strength of the owner and the strap.

The stylish overcoat displayed five capes, one above the other. The trousers were expected to fit as tight as the skin. Just how they were put on is a mystery. The coat was especially snug under the sleeves, and the velvet collar scraped up the back of the head. The camlet overcoats after a little wear, became as stiff as birch bark.

The thing worn about the neck was called a stock. This name was appropriate in its suggestion of an instrument of punishment. The stock was from three to six inches high, and was made stiff. A man was forced to look straight ahead. Only by careful management could he see a little on either side. About halfway between his eyes and ears two little points of collar stuck up like toothpicks.

Ruffled bosoms and wristbands finished the costume, with the addition of a tall silk hat. When inclosed in this manner, with a dash of attar of roses on his handkerchief, the man of the period was considered irresistible.

TOO HUMBLE A HUSBAND.

Position of Prince Albert, Royal Consort of Queen Victoria.

A woman looked up with a laugh from a heavy volume she was reading.

"Now I know," she said, "why Queen Victoria was so fond of the prince consort. This husband did not merely regard his wife as his equal; he regarded her as immeasurably his superior, saying that it was his duty to sink his own individual existence in her. Listen to this letter that Prince Albert wrote to the Duke of Wellington. Here is a champion of woman's rights indeed. Don't you think, though, it is going too far for a man to humble himself so low as this?"

She then read from her book in a sarcastic voice:

My Dear Duke—In the question whether it is advisable that I should take the command of the army I have come to the conclusion that my decision ought entirely to be guided by the consideration whether it would interfere with or assist my position of consort to the sovereign. This position is a most peculiar and delicate one. While a female sovereign has a great many disadvantages in comparison with a king, yet if she is married and her husband understands and does his duty her position, on the other hand, has many compensatory advantages and in the long run will be found to be stronger even than that of the male sovereign. But this requires that the husband should entirely sink his own individual existence in that of his wife and that he should aim at no power by himself or for himself, being content to be the husband of the queen, the private secretary of the sovereign and the tutor of the royal children.

Reading on a Train.

If you travel back and forth into town every day you no doubt read your paper or a magazine on the train. While this is not, indeed, the best practice for the eyes, it seems a pity to waste so much time which might be turned to good account. Much of the annoyance which comes from train reading is due to the jolting of the cars, which continually knocks the printed line out of focus with the eye. This can be in some degree obviated by laying a card or some other object below the line to be read and moving it steadily downward while reading. This acts as a guide to the eye and helps to keep the sight fixed. Those who have tried it say that it wonderfully assists to decrease the difficulty of reading while in motion.

Trade Emblems on Tombstones.

In Scotland it was for a long time usual to place on a man's tombstone the symbols of his trade. Especially was this the case at Dunblane, where, in the burial ground of the abbey, it has been found that of those tombstones which are from 100 to 200 years old about one-fourth are thus marked, the symbols being in low relief. A sugar cane may be seen as showing the grave of a grocer; an ax and saw, with hammer and nails, occur on the grave of a carpenter; an awl and a hammer on that of a shoemaker. There are many other graves similarly marked.—London Answers.

Cutting Eyelashes.

An eyelash is pointed. A cut lash is blunt. A lash once cut never again becomes pointed. Every lash lives a variable time and then falls out to be replaced by a fresh one. When a cut lash so falls the newcomer is pointed. So any mischief resulting from cutting the lashes will be remedied by time. Opinions differ as to whether lash cutting promotes growth. That it renders the lashes unsightly is very certain.

A Lengthy Drop.

Mrs. Portly-Puffington (proudly)—We can trace our ancestry back to one of the Saxon kings.

Visitor—Indeed?

Mrs. Portly-Puffington—Oh, dear, yes! We have been descending for generations.—Puck.

I don't want to brag, but I've got my health and my friends, so what on earth more do I want?—Deland.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

GREATER PARAGON PARK.

"Teddy," the almost human chimpanzee, is now doing his daily afternoon and evening stunts in the Bostock Animal Arena at Paragon Park. No greater single attraction has been offered in this ideal electric city by the sea. His exhibitions of how a well trained and educated chimpanzee should appear when on its good behavior is nothing short of marvelous. There is a particularly strong program in the free open air circus this week, which delights the crowds mightily. In addition to Will Hill with his wonderful performance on the high wire and La Belle Blanche who does her terrific slide for life from the top of the electric tower at the height of 125 feet down to the Palm Garden plaza, there are Prof. Darling's trained horse and dogs.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The featured attraction of an excellent program announced for Keith's the week of Aug. 13 will be the Williams and Walker Glee Club, seventeen colored vocalists, who scored such a tremendous hit with Williams and Walker's "In Dahomey" two seasons ago. It is generally admitted that the negro can sing and the glee club is undoubtedly the most proficient in that line of any of the colored organizations. They will not only present the plantation and folk songs for which their race is noted, but also music of a classic order. The Fadette's woman's orchestra will have the usual new program of selections and an entire new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinetograph.

Highland Park.

Six especially strong vaudeville acts are scheduled at the theatre at Highland Park for every afternoon and evening of next week. Heading the list of high priced acts are the Four Flying La Pearls, marvellous high air gymnasts in a series of startling feats. Monday afternoon as usual the ladies and children will be admitted free to the matinee performance. Thursday evening there will be a band concert. The band concert Sunday afternoons and the moving pictures every Sunday evening are drawing thousands to the park and proving very popular this year.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE OPENING.

Next week's attraction at the Grand Opera House will be Mr. Howard Hall in his latest success, "The Millionaire Detective." The story unfolded is that of a wealthy New York broker, who voluntarily assumes the duties of a detective, and in novel guise, succeeds in bringing to justice several daring and unscrupulous criminals, whose deeds have hitherto been hidden by their respectable figuring as "Frenzied Financiers." Mr. Hall is supported by Miss Lorna Elliott, and considering the general excellence of both company and play, next week should be one of the banner ones in the history of that popular playhouse. Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Wonderland's Popularity.

The multitude of people at Wonderland this week has proven beyond question the extraordinary hold which it has upon the people of Boston and of New England. With the clear skies and hot weather, there has come to Revere Beach such an extraordinary patronage as to smash all records there and make Wonderland appear to be a veritable Mecca for all classes of pleasure seekers. On Monday last came Miss Annie Shaffer of Texas, better known as the "queen of the cow girls," a title which she has fairly won by her intrepid feats of equestrianism. A few hours after Miss Shaffer's arrival a carload of wild bronchos from Oklahoma put in an appearance there, and on Monday afternoon several of them felt saddle and bridle for the first time when the "queen of the cow girls" placed her foot in the stirrup and gave the first of her marvelous performances in the Wild West show at Revere.

—Archie Roosevelt left the torpedo station at Newport, R. I., Thursday for Oyster Bay, after a busy three days. He is constantly attended by Seaman Obey, of the President's yacht Sylph, and one of his chief pleasures seems to be swimming every morning before breakfast.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Republicans and Democrats.

The old Republican party, founded by Thomas Jefferson, had its most vigorous life during the twenty-four years while Jefferson, Madison and Monroe were in the White House. During these years it completely annihilated its opponent, the old Federalist party, which was the predecessor of the present Republican party. John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, who had a leaning to Federalism, was elected by the house of representatives (none of the candidates having a majority of the electoral vote) as a national Republican, and when Jackson came in four years later it was as a Democratic Republican. It was during his time that the latter half of the name was dropped, and the party of Jefferson took the name of the Democratic party. It was not until 1854 that the present Republican party assumed the name which the party of Jefferson and Jackson had dropped a quarter of a century before.—St. Louis Republican.

To Conciliate the Gods.

Just at night, if you happen to be within the gates of Canton, you will witness one of the little performances that are supposed to deceive the prowling spirits of the night bent upon evil intent, the while conciliating them should they penetrate the deception. Each little and big shop possesses a miniature fireplace built into the side of the entrance. Prayers printed on rice paper form the fuel with which to offer up incense to the "bogy man," who is supposed to make the nocturnal visits. Beholding the smoke, he is supposed to assume that no one lives within, and therefore passes by; but should he catch on and stop to investigate he finds that the prayer papers on the altar bear inscriptions attributing to him such virtues and magnanimity that his wrath is appeased and he turns from his evil intent.—Edwin Wildman in Chautauquan.

Dose—One Dimeful.

"How big a dose do I need?" asked the customer of the old fashioned druggist

"Oh, I guess a heaping dimeful will be about right," was the reply.

"A dimeful?" echoed the customer. "You mean a dime's worth, don't you?"

"No, I don't," said the druggist. "A dime's worth would be two ounces, and you'd never survive such a quantity as that. I mean for you to take a dime and pile on it as much of this powder as will stick. Then you have the proper dose. Measuring medicine on a dime is a method as old as United States currency and almost as reliable. There are certain powders that can be measured more accurately that way than any other, and among us old timers who have been used to meeting emergencies 'a dimeful' is a common direction."

Different Meanings.

Some words in our language have several meanings, each different from the others, so that it is not always possible to know at first just what thought the speaker wishes to express. There is the word "humanitarian," for instance. If you will turn to your Webster you will find that it means, first, one who denies the divinity of Christ and believes him to have been merely human; second, one who limits the sphere of duties to human relations and affections to the exclusion of the religious or spiritual; third, one who is actively concerned in promoting the welfare of his kind, a philanthropist. The third sense is the one in which the word is now most frequently used, and Webster marks this definition as "recent."

The Size of Canada.

Canada is larger than the United States by a quarter of a million square miles. Canada contains one-third of the area of the British empire. Canada extends over 20 degrees of latitude—from Rome to north pole. Canada is as large as thirty United Kingdoms, eighteen Germanys, thirty-three Italys. Canada is larger than Australasia and twice the size of British India. Canada has a boundary line of 3,000 miles between it and the United States. Canada's seacoast equals half the earth's circumference. Canada is 3,500 miles wide and 1,400 from north to south.

Impure Candy.

Beware of impure candy. Sugar in candy quickly ferments after eating, and if too much is eaten serious troubles often result. Pure sugar dissolves quickly in water and leaves a clear liquid, affording an easy way of testing its purity. Drop a small piece of candy in a glass, and over it pour boiling water. Let it stand twenty-four hours. If there is any foreign substance in the candy a sediment will be found in the bottom of the glass.—New York Post.

After.

He (five years after)—All this gush about love is extremely foolish. Wherever did this stupid book come from? I must say the person who selected it showed a very insipid taste. She (quietly)—It's the book you gave me during our honeymoon, John. We read it eleven times the first week we had it.

Mutual Disgust.

"Look here," complained the victim, "you said the house was only five minutes' walk from the station. To say the least, I'm disappointed in you."

"No more than I'm disappointed in you," retorted the agent. "I thought you were a good fast walker."—Philadelphia Press.

Ladies' Day

The Squantum Yacht Club Entertain Many Guests

Ideal weather greeted the Squantum Yacht club Saturday afternoon, when the annual ladies' day was observed. A cool southwest breeze made it delightful sailing and many ladies availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy the hospitality of the club.

Owing to many of the club yachts taking part in the open race of the Wollaston club, there was not as large a fleet to take out sailing parties as usual. Several yachts however took out parties after the race.

There was an entire lack of formality and the parties came and went as they pleased, so that the sailing in the bay continued all the afternoon.

Those that from preference chose to enjoy the scene from the club piazzas, were entertained with a concert by Dunbar's band, which played all the popular airs.

After the sail, refreshments were served. In the evening the clubhouse was brightly illuminated and there was a very enjoyable dancing party.

The yachts and their parties are given below:

Flagship Eleanor, Vice Commodore George F. Sawyer, Jr.,—Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Fianders, Miss Coles, Miss Grace Coles, George Snow, Mrs. C. E. Gill, Miss Gardner, Miss Fisher, G. H. Fisher, C. M. Brown, W. L. Jefferson.

Was It a Spook?

A young man named Dodd while passing through Elm street in an automobile at 8.30 Sunday evening reports that he saw a nude man running through the street near the corner of South street. Mr. Dodd telephoned the police from the residence of Paul R. Blackmur. The patrol wagon with a squad of officers was quickly dispatched to the scene but when they arrived the man had disappeared and no trace of him could be found.

Trial Races Begin Today

The seventeen Sonder Klasse boats have been officially measured and found to comply with the requirements. Today the first of the trial races to select three Americans yachts to meet the three Germans is being held off Marblehead. The Auk of the Quincy club is expected to make a good showing.

Beginning on Wednesday of next week four of these same yachts representing the Quincy, Manchester, Boston and Corinthian yacht clubs will race for the Quincy challenge cup now held by the Manchester club.

Reporter Attacked.

Walter H. Cobb the well known local Herald correspondent had quite an experience Saturday night with a vicious dog near the Wollaston yacht club house. He was coming through Vassall street when a savage dog ran out for him. Walter saw the dog coming and tried to get out of his way by running. He was unable to run fast enough however, and the dog was upon him.

The dog made a jump for Walter grabbing him by the trousers leg, which were ripped up. He was also knocked down. While down the dog was on top tearing away at his clothing. Walter succeeded in fighting the dog off, however, before he had an opportunity to bite him. Besides having his clothing badly torn he had his legs and hand badly scraped.

Boys Enter Store.

The store of John H. Gillis, at 57 Franklin street was entered Sunday afternoon and $1.62 in change taken from the money drawer. Acting upon information received, the police apprehended two boys, aged 8 and 6 years.

The boys said that they got into the building by crawling through the bars on a back window. One boy took an officer to a vacant lot and showed him where $1.19 in coppers were hidden in the grass. An officer accompanied the other boy to a house on Water street where he had left 44 cents for safe keeping.

First Prizes to Violet, Marguerite, Wawenoc, Stranger, Too Whoo, Goblin

The annual open and interclub race under the auspices of the Wollaston Yacht club was held Saturday afternoon. The race was scheduled to start at 2.30 the wind at that time was light from the southwest, and as it was seen that many of the yachts would not arrive on time the start was postponed half an hour.

The wind had freshened a little then, and after the boats got away they had a snappy wholesail breeze that sent them over the course in good time.

There were seven classes to start, and there were 44 sail boats and four power boats entered.

It was a very pretty sight to watch the fleet as the yachts sped away toward Nut island. It was, however, impossible to follow them closely without the aid of glasses.

Class C was the first to get away. There were three starters, the Violet leading the way. She held her lead throughout the race and won by a good margin.

Vice Commodore Sawyer of the Squantum club, in the Eleanor, was the first to cross in Class A, and he held the lead throughout. The Eleanor sailed a pretty race and finished with a lead of nearly four minutes actual time. Corrected time, however, forced her into second position.

The IXL got the best of the start in the special class, but was soon overhauled by the Wawenoc of Vice-Commodore Dawes, who finished first and won the race.

Vice-Commodore Dawes Stranger also won the race in Class D, although on actual time she was third in finishing.

The Class B interclub class had a large list of entries, thirteen boats starting. The Comet was the first to cross, but she held her lead only a short time, and when the final result was figured out she was in third position.

The fleet of the Hingham one-design boats had a hot start. The Ratskin sailed by Jared Blodgett, a thirteen-year-old boy, stole a march on the older skippers and got across first. She lost ground afterward, however, and the Too Whoo won the race.

The power boat class had four starters. They had a course of five miles. A peculiar thing about this class was that the working out of the allowance table placed the first launch to finish in the last position.

The prizes were $8, $5, $3 and $2 in the Cape cat class; two cups, $8 and $2 in the one design boat class; $7, $5 and $3 in Class C; $7, $5 and $3 in Class A; $7, $5 and $3 in Class B; $7, $5 and $3 in the special class; and $5, $3 and $2 in the power boat class.

Fire Exhibition By Hose 4

A large crowd gathered near Hose 4 at Quincy Point on Saturday evening to witness the exhibition drill of the company. The company showed up well and were remarkably quick in making a hitch and getting out of the house.

The men worked well together and the exhibition received well merited praise.

Among the dignities to witness the performance were Chief Litchfield, Assistant Chiefs Nyhan and O'Brien, President Piper of the City Council, Councilman Stone, Chairman of the Committee on Fire Department, Capt. Rhodes of Wollaston, Capt. Gallagher of Atlantic, and Capt. Hayes of West Quincy.

The first trial was in making a hitch, —running to Curtis street, laying a line of hose and getting water on the Washington school building. In 14 seconds from the sound of the gong the hitch had been made and the hose wagon crossed the threshold. In 1 minute and 10 seconds from the gong, a run had been made to Curtis street, a line of hose laid and water was being played on the school building, and in 2.12 a second line of hose had been laid and water was going through it.

After the exhibition a lunch was served at the Hose house and there was speechmaking. Driver Mead was toastmaster and brief remarks of a congratulatory nature were made by the Chief and Assistant Chiefs, President Piper and Councilman Stone.

Store Entered.

The store of George Mitchell on Vassall street, near the run leading to the yacht club house, was entered sometime during Saturday night. The parties were evidently on a foraging expedition, for they carried off a cooked ham, several loaves of bread and some cigars and tobacco.

In Board of Metropolitan Park Commissioners, August 2, 1906.

VOTED: That on and after August 15, 1906, Rules 1, 2 and 3 of rules and regulations governing the use of automobiles and vehicles propelled by other than animal power passed by this Board on September 18, 1905, be repealed and that the following rules be enacted in their stead, to take effect on said August 15, 1906.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Metropolitan Park Commission.

RULES AND REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE USE OF AUTOMOBILES AND VEHICLES PROPELLED BY OTHER THAN ANIMAL POWER.

Rule 1. No automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall be allowed within any reservation except upon town or county roads therein and upon Hillside Street in Blue Hills Reservation, Turtle Pond Road and Bold Knob Road in Stony Brook Reservation, Charles River Road in Watertown in Charles River Reservation, the border road in Middlesex Fells Reservation extending from Highland Avenue to Summer Street in Malden, the driveway of Lynn Shore Reservation, the driveway of Winthrop Shore Reservation, and the driveway of Revere Beach Reservation from Lynnway to Revere Street; and upon the driveway of Revere Beach Reservation from Revere Street to its intersection with Revere Beach Parkway during the period extending from September 15th to June 15th inclusive in each year and from and after eleven o'clock P. M. to eleven o'clock A. M. on the day following during the period extending from June 16th to September 14th inclusive in each year.

Rule 2. No automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall be allowed within any parkway except Middlesex Fells Parkway, Revere Beach Parkway, Mystic Valley Parkway, Fresh Pond Parkway, Blue Hills Parkway, Neponset River Parkway, Nahant Beach Parkway and Lynnway, provided, also, that no automobile or vehicle propelled as aforesaid shall be allowed on any driveway in any of said parkways that has not been fully completed and open to public use.

Rule 3. No person shall drive an automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power on Middlesex Fells Parkway, Revere Beach Parkway, Mystic Valley Parkway, Fresh Pond Parkway, Blue Hills Parkway, Neponset River Parkway, Charles River Road in Watertown, Lynnway or Revere Beach Reservation from Lynnway to Revere Street, at a rate of speed exceeding fifteen miles an hour, or on any other road or parkway where the same is allowed at a rate of speed exceeding ten miles an hour. Upon approaching a crossing of intersecting ways, also in traversing a crossing or intersection, and in going around a corner or a curve in a reservation or parkway every person operating an automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall run it at a rate of speed less than that hereinbefore specified, and in no event at a rate exceeding eight miles an hour.

Any person violating any of the above rules shall for each offence be punished by a fine of not more than twenty dollars. [Revised Laws, Chap. 28, Section 30.]

[NOTE.—The new rules change [illegible] only in increasing the speed limit [illegible] Lynnway and that portion of the driveway [illegible] of Revere Beach Reservation between Lynnway and Revere Street, and in extending the hours within which automobiles are allowed on Revere Beach Reservation between Revere Street and Eliot Circle.]

Drift of Opinion.

☞ A London newspaper advises the eating of wood for nourishment. It has been suspected for some time that the breakfast foods are working around to sawdust and shavings.

☞ Army regulations prescribe in detail what honors shall be paid to the flag, and these regulations are implicitly and gladly observed. No matter how little one may relish the duty of showing the respect due to some military superior, he is always ready and glad to do honor to his flag. Whenever anyone in the military service of the United States passes near the unfurled colors or whenever the flag passes before him, he is required to remove his cap in salute, and if sitting is he is required to rise and stand at "attention" until the flag has passed.—St Nicholas.

☞ To understand how to rest is of more importance than to know how to work. The latter can be learned if one will give one's mind to it, but the former is an act some people acquire. Rest necessitates change of scene and activities. Lounging is very often tiring, sleeping is not always restful, and sitting down with nothing to do is simply to invoke weariness. A change is needed to bring into play a different set of faculties and to direct the thoughts into a new channel. The man or woman who is weary with care finds relief in active employment with freedom from responsibility. The brain worker generally finds the best rest in playing hard. It is quite a mistake always to expect to find it in idleness.—Washington Star.

Secretary Taft Has Power to Prevent Discrimination by Unscrupulous Contractors, as Restrictions Are Very Strong

Washington, Aug. 13.—Care will be taken by the United States government to prevent contractors from doing injustice to the Chinese laborers employed for work on the Panama canal. The specifications advertising for proposals to supply 2500 Chinese to the canal commission will stipulate that the secretary of war shall have the privilege of passing on contracts which labor agents make with Chinese who are to be sent to the isthmus.

This provision will make it possible for Secretary Taft to prevent discrimination against the coolies by unscrupulous contractors. Under this arrangement the United States will know exactly what the Chinese are paid by the labor agents and the Chinese government will be able to afford its subjects protection on the isthmus because of the ease with which this government will be able to regulate the relations between the Chinese laborers and the contractors.

Many contractors are seeking to supply the first 2500 Chinese for the canal work. Until the specifications for the contracts are published contractors will not be able to give any idea as to the wage they must have for Chinese laborers on the canal zone. Some labor agents believe that with the many restructions the canal commission purposes placing upon contractors it will not be possible to supply the Chinamen at less than $1 a day. Other agents are of the opinion that the coolies can be supplied for 50 or 60 cents a day with a fair margin of profit to the contractors.

In Jamaica, West Indians are employed under long time contracts at prices ranging from 25 cents a day and rations, which cost about only a few cents to 50 cents a day. The restrictions and safeguards thrown about these laborers, however, are very slight as compared with the restrictions the United States will place upon the Chinese to be employed for canal work.

People Want to Regulate Fares

New York, Aug. 13.—Scenes of disorder were witnessed on a number of the trolley and elevated roads leading to Coney Island yesterday when passengers, guided by an opinion handed down by Supreme Court Justice Gaynor, refused to pay a second fare. At one period the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company refused to convey its passengers beyond their second fare boundary, so long as any of the passengers refused to pay the additional 5 cents. The result was a block of trains a mile long. Great crowds of ejected passengers held indignation meetings and promised to bring many suits for damages against the company.

Autoists In Bad Smashup

Chicago, Aug. 13.—Mrs. Elizabeth Slaughter was instantly killed, another woman was probably fatally injured and two other persons were slightly hurt last night when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by an electric car in Evanston, a suburb. The automobile was slowly crossing the track when the heavy electric car darted out behind some freight cars, throwing the automobile and its occupants 40 feet against a telegraph pole.

Trolley Car Kills Bank Cashiers

Tamaqua, Pa., Aug. 13.—Milton Whitestone, cashier of the Citizens' National bank of Lansford, was instantly killed, and Daniel McGeehan, assistant cashier of the same institution, was fatally injured by their carriage being struck by a trolley car. The men attempted to cross the tracks of a street railway while a car was approaching. Both men were thrown under the car.

Dozen Persons Almost Drowned

Cleveland, Aug. 13.—A trolley car containing 50 persons jumped the track near Chardon, injuring eight and nearly drowning a dozen others in a large stagnant pool into which the car plunged. The passengers and crew of a car following went quickly to the rescue and saved a dozen or more from death. The escape of some of those in the submerged car was thrilling.

Disastrous Result of Crap Game

Canton, Ills., Aug. 13.—An affray in which three men were probably fatally shot and a fourth man was wounded by a negro occurred here. The dead are Wiley B. White and two negro coal miners. The shooting started in a quarrel over a crap game. The negro charged with the shooting fled.

Children Witnessed Parents' Killing

Sberman, Tex., Aug. 13.—J. W. C. Wilder, a farmer, beat his wife's brains out with a flatiron and shot himself fatally with a shotgun. Three small children witnessed the crime of their father. No motive for the crime is assigned.

Charged With Stealing Crown

Lisbon, Aug. 13.—A Brazilian named Guerreiro has been arrested here, charged with the theft of the crown of the Brazilian emperors, which is formed of precious stones and valued at $500,000.

Hungary Dickering For Steamers

London, Aug. 13.—The Standard states that the directors of the Cunard line received a deputation from the Hungarian government offering terms to the company for the acquisition of the emigrant trade between Fiume and New York. The proposals involve the purchase of three Cunard steamships for over $2,500,000 and the payment of an indemnity for the annulment of the contract between the Cunard line and the Hungarian government, which still has seven years to run. The directors of the Cunard line agreed to negotiate and will probably offer alternative terms embodying the acceptance of shares in the new company which Hungary is aiding the Hungarian syndicate to form.

"John the Orangeman" Dead

Boston, Aug. 13.—John Lovett, known to every Harvard man and throughout the college world generally as "John the Orangeman," died at the Massachusetts general hospital yesterday. He suffered from an intestinal obstruction and an operation was performed, which resulted in his death. He was 74 years of age. He came to this country from Ireland when a lad and a few years later became a pedlar of fruit among the Harvard students. He began with a basket, but in latter years peddled his wares from a donkey cart. For years he has been Harvard's favorite "mascot" at intercollegiate athletic events.

Train Load of Rum For Japan

Boston, Aug. 13.—Thirteen carloads of rum, or enough to give half a million men a good sized drink, is awaiting transportation at the Boylston street yards of the Boston and Albany railroad. It is New England rum and was distilled and sold by a local firm. The load, which consists of nearly 1000 barrels, is on its way to Japan by way of Seattle, Wash. The cars were labelled with large white signs, and attracted no little attention from the local temperance people.

Quarreled Over Railroad Accident

Natitoches, La., Aug. 13.—While J. M. Burford, an engineer, was running a train belonging to a lumber company he failed to stop when a car became derailed. Conductor Reid accused the engineer of intentionally wrecking the car by failure to stop sooner. Both men drew revolvers and Burford fired and killed Reid. Burford is in jail.

CREATED A SCENE

"Miss Esac" Was Determined to Speak to Roosevelt.

MIND PROBABLY UPSET

Church Usher and Secret Service Men Compelled to Use Force to Calm Woman Who Was to Have Been "Married In the White House"

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Miss Asi L. Esac, who is summering in Oyster Bay for the purpose of interviewing President or Mrs. Roosevelt on what she declares is "a matter of life and death," created a scene during the service in Christ's Episcopal church.

Miss Esac, or Miss Case, as her name is supposed to be, has attended every church service at which the president has been present since his arrival here in July. She has climbed Sagamore Hill on foot several times, only to be turned away by the secret service men. She presented herself early at the church yesterday and took a seat directly behind the pew usually occupied by the Roosevelt family. When Usher Duffy requested her to relinquish this seat she refused. Duffy forcibly removed her to the rear of the church, and Miss Esac says he tore her gown in so doing. For this act she later applied for a warrant for Duffy, but was refused.

In the rear of the church Miss Esac refused to sit down. A secret service agent stood beside her and, during the services, she made no less than a dozen attempts to get past him. As the president was leaving the church three secret service men surrounded Miss Esac, but she shouted: "Mr. President, Mr. President, President Roosevelt, won't you speak to me a moment?"

The president turned his head as he passed, but did not pause. Miss Esac says her watch chain was broken in this scrimmage with the secret service men and her watch fell to the floor.

The president was accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, their son, Quentin, and Representative and Mrs. Longworth. Miss Esac has stated to acquaintances here that she was to have been married in the White House at the time Miss Alice Roosevelt became Mrs. Longworth; that she was to have married a high government official, and that it is this wrong she seeks to redress.

When the president's carriage had departed Miss Esac was allowed to go. It was then she sought a warrant for Usher Duffy. She says she will stay in Oyster Bay until she accomplishes her purpose.

Innocent Persons Wounded

Forth Worth, Tex., Aug. 13.—Three persons were wounded last night on a crowded electric car bound to a suburban summer resort. Sheriff Dinwoodie of Red River county requested a negro to relinquish his heat to a white woman and, when the negro refused, Dinwoodie drew a pistol. In striking the negro on the head the weapon was discharged. A bullet passed through a woman's left shoulder and wounded a man in the left arm. Another woman was hurt by the pistol flying out of the hands of the sheriff and striking her in the face. Dinwoodie was arrested.

Shortage May Reach a Million

Chicago, Aug. 13.—State Bank Examiner Jones has completed his inspection of the affairs of the defunct Milwaukee Avenue state bank. The examiner intimates that the total shortage is between $800,000 and $1,000,000. The bank's bookkeeper is positive that President Stensland's son was cognizant of the shaky condition of the bank before July 14, the date on which young Stensland says he first suspected irregularities on the part of his father. Other employes tell of midnight trips to the bank by President Stensland and Cashier Hering.

Two Drowning Accidents

New Haven, Aug. 13.—John Cull, 35, and Andrew Rego, 20 years old, were drowned while bathing, the former at Roton point, South Norwalk, and the latter in Stamford harbor. Cull's drowning was reported by his 10-year-old son, who had gone into the water with him. Rego was just completing a half-mile swim when he sank and did not reappear.

Sultan's Health a Sacred Subject

Constantinople, Aug. 13.—The officials inform callers at the palace that the sultan was suffering from the effects of a chill during the past week, but that he has now recovered. His physicians, however, advised him not to risk exposure to the open air. The local press is forbidden to publish anything concerning the state of the sultan's health.

Aeronauts Burned and Bruised

New York, Aug. 13.—William Einquist, a professional balloonist, and his assistant, Joseph Morse, made a balloon ascension near Bergen beach, Brooklyn. When they had reached an altitude of about 150 feet the balloon took fire from some unknown cause and collapsed. Einquist and Morse were severely burned and bruised by their fall.

Bryan Returns at Month's End

Paris, Aug. 13.—William J. Bryan has fixed the date for his arrival in New York as Aug. 30. He will visit New Haven and Bridgeport Aug. 31, Jersey City Sept. 1, Chicago Sept. 4, Lincoln Sept. 5, St. Louis Sept. 11, Louisville Sept. 12 and Cincinnati Sept. 13.

Paint Adds Value to Property

For every dollar's worth of paint—good paint—you put on your house, you add several dollars to its value, for the difference in price which property in good repair will bring over a shabby building is by no means measured by the actual cost of the improvement.

In this calculation we have not included the insurance feature—the saving of the property from decay.

Good paint looks well, protects well, lasts well.

There are many imitations of paint which do none of these things, yet cost as much or more than straight white lead and linseed oil, the best paint.

SKELETON IN A BROOK

Indications of Murder or Suicide of Five Years Ago

Northampton, Mass., Aug. 13.—An examination of a skeleton of a man found in a brook in Hadley showed that the skeleton had apparently been in the brook about five years, as a tree root an inch in diameter had entwined itself about the bones. A Bible, a lead pencil and 41 cents were found in pockets of the clothing, but there was nothing to indicate the identity of the man. Medical Examiner Branch thinks the man was about 35 years old and 5 feet 10 inches tall. A heavy overcoat, besides an undercoat, were found with the skeleton.

The discovery of the skeleton was made by Earle Goodenough, a boy who was gathering ferns along the bank of the brook. Goodenough bent over the water to drink and was confronted with a skull lying in the bed of the brook. A hundred yards up-stream he found the rest of the skeleton.

The medical examiner was unable to tell from his examination whether it was a case of murder or suicide. The residents remember that several years ago the body of a man was found in the same locality, with bullet wounds in the head. The man was never identified.

Whitney as Moran's Opponent

Boston, Aug. 13.—Henry M. Whitney has yielded to the solicitations of the "old line" leaders of the Democracy and is ready to be their candidate against Moran for the gubernatorial nomination. From an interview with Whitney it is evident that he realizes that a contest with the district attorney will be no child's play. Whitney believes that the issues put forward by him last year—reciprocity and tariff revision—are still the most popular that could be presented to the voters of Massachusetts. He says the election of a Democratic governor would be a walkover if the party were united, but says the prospects of success are bright in any case.

Attempted to End Life With Fire

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 13.—Joseph Butler, a jewelry salesman, nearly burned himself to death in his home. He had been despondent on account of worry. His wife found him lying on the floor of the attic near an open gas jet, surrounded by flames from kerosene, with which he had sprinkled the floor and stairway. She called in a policeman, who stamped out the fire and carried Butler, who was unconscious, out of the attic. After he had recovered at a hospital from the effects of the gas fumes he had inhaled he was arrested.

Must Not Have Unfair List

Brockton, Mass., Aug. 13.—A decision handed down by the superior court declares that the action of the Brockton Central Labor union in placing the name of Benjamin S. Atwood, a box manufacturer of Whitman, on the unfair list, constituted malicious interference with the business of Atwood. The court issued a decree restraining the Central Labor union and its agent and servants from interfering with the business of Atwood.

Holy Ghost Ship Leaves Boston

Boston, Aug. 13.—The barkentine Rebecca Crowell, the vessel of the Holy Ghost and Us society of Shiloh, Me., which has been at anchor in the outer harbor for the past two days, sailed yesterday for parts unknown. The utmost secrecy as to her destination has been maintained. As she did not have foreign clearing papers, it is presumed that her sailing will be coastwise.

Socialists to Put Out a Ticket

Boston, Aug. 13.—After several hours' debate the annual conference of the Socialists' clubs of Massachusetts, in session here, voted to recommend a state ticket to the convention of the party to be held this fall. The conference was attended by 138 delegates. The ticket recommended was headed by James F. Carey of Haverhill for governor.

Victim of Masked Robbers

Farmington, N. H., Aug. 13.—Deputy Sheriff Waldron has investigated the burglary at the home of James Lord, when Mrs. Lord was bound and gagged and carried to a summer house on the farm by two masked men while the house was ransacked, but he admits that he has discovered nothing to elucidate the mystery.

Thieves Wrecked Postoffice Safe

Boston, Aug. 13.—The safe of the Ponkapoag postoffice in Canton was blown open and about $150 and some notes and bonds stolen. The safe was completely wrecked, but the police have been unable to find anyone who heard the explosion. The postoffice is located in a grocery.

Live Wire Killed Policeman

Newton, Mass., Aug. 13.—Henry Furdon, a member of the Newton police force, was instantly killed last night on Washington street when he stumbled over a telephone wire which had fallen across an electric light wire. He was 24 years old and unmarried.

Collier Nero In Port

New London, Conn., Aug. 13.—The United States collier Nero, which went ashore on Block Island on what is known as Devil's ditch last Wednesday, arrived in this port last night in tow of a wrecking tug. Repairs will be completed here.

Anarchists a Source of Peril to All Eminent Men

STRONGER LAWS NEEDED

Seekers of Human Life Should Have Fear of Physical Pain and Death Constantly Before Them--Subject Is Discussed by Secretary of Navy Bonaparte

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 13.—Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte delivered an address last evening at the Allegheny Chautauqua, near Cumberland, before a large gathering, his subject being "Anarchy and its Remedy." He was introduced by Congressman Pearce of Maryland.

Mr. Bonaparte referred to the assassination of President McKinley and said that Czolgocz was at once recognized to be probably no worse than some thousands of men and women in our midst, and many more scattered throughout the civilized world; men and women who accept the name and share the opinions he avowed. "So far as could be seen," said Bonaparte, "Czolgocz's reasons for killing President McKinley would lead any one of them to kill President Roosevelt should opportunity offer; and, with this practical application of their theories, their existence became a source of real peril, not only to presidents, but to all public officers and to all eminent men.

"Most of the plans put forward to rid the world in general and the United States in particular of anarchists and anarchism were soon shown by the discussion they provoked to be either wholly or in greater part useless, mischievous or impracticable, and the measures finally adopted were plainly mere palliatives."

Mr. Bonaparte took up the suggestion of a "concert of powers" which would recognize anarchistic crimes as extraditable. This, he said, would not destroy anarchism nor would the one to prevent dissemination of anarchistic literature. As to the proposition to forbid harsh criticism of any president the secretary said that to even forbid a free expression of public opinion as to public men would certainly not destroy or even check anarchism.

"The unlawful acts prompted by anarchism should be made crimes, insofar as they are not, strictly speaking, crimes already, and, as crimes, they should be visited with such penalties as are particularly effective deterrents to crime. In dealing with a convicted anarchist two facts may well be remembered—the chances of his real reformation are so small that they may be safely neglected and we can appeal, for practical purposes, to but one motive on his part to discourage a repetition of his offense, namely, the fear of physical pain and death. To keep him for years in a penitentiary merely burdens the community with the support of an irreconcilable enemy, with the constant risk of his escape or pardon, and the certainty that whenever he leaves, he will be, if possible, a worse man than when he entered.

"On anarchists the death penalty should be unequivocally imposed by law and inflexibly executed whenever the prisoner has sought, directly or indirectly, to take life. For offenses of less gravity, I advise a comparatively brief, but very rigorous, imprisonment, characterized by complete seclusion, deprivation of all comfort and denial of any form of distraction, and which could be, to my mind, advantageously supplemented by a severe, but not a public whipping. The lash, of all punishments, most clearly shows the culprit that he suffers for what his fellowmen hold odious and disgraceful and not merely for reasons of public policy.

"Any abridgement from fear of the anarchists of that freedom of speech and of the press guaranteed us by our state and federal constitutions would be neither a wise nor a worthy policy, but these privileges in no wise shield counselors of crime or instigators of crime or rebellion.

"Any changes, however sweeping, in our laws and government, may be urged, and any arguments, however wild or grotesque, advanced to justify them, provided the method of change be orderly and lawful, but a published writing recommending the murder of the chief magistrate and the violent overthrow of the government is a seditious libel at common law, and there is no good reason why public utterance of spoken words of the same purport should not be made the like offense by statute. It is already a crime to advise a felony or grave misdemeanor if the advice leads to the crime suggested, and there is again no good reason why this should not become a substantive offense without regard to its consequences, as is a criminal conspiracy.

"The final and most truly vital condition of success in ridding our country of anarchism in practice is that American public opinion should recognize the utter emptiness, the inherent folly of its theory and of all the kindred ready-made, furnished-while-you-wait schemes for the social regeneration of mankind."

CZAR'S HEIR TO THRONE

Reaches Second Birthday, but Russians Do Not Rejoice

St. Petersburg, Aug. 13.—Yesterday, the second birthday of the czarevitch, was observed with the usual display of flags and illuminations, but there was no enthusiasm in the celebration. In fact, few persons seemed even to know what was the occasion of the decorations.

The day was quiet in the capital. The activity of the terrorists in the provinces included, besides the usual harvest of assassinations in Warsaw, an attempt on the life of General Karateleff, chief of the gendarmerie of Samara province, and the wounding of Captain of Police Ivanoff of Libau by a youth who fired thrice at him in the street. The assailant of Karateleff mounted the stairs of the general's chancellory and threw a bomb at random. The missile failed to explode and the miscreant escaped.

General Strijoff, acting governor general of Warsaw city and province, has been relieved of his office and will be succeeded by General Von Larsky. The change is probably due to Strijoff's order with reference to the responsibility of towns, which General Skallon, before his transfer to Helsingfors as governor general of Finland, was obliged to cancel.

Civil Courts' Powers Curtailed

Kiev, Aug. 13.—The governor general has transferred from the jurisdiction of the civil courts all offenses in connection with the promulgation or publication of false reports with reference to the government, its officials or troops, or news tending to excite hostile sentiment against them, or to cause general alarm, which hereafter shall be judged and punished by administrative order. The same treatment is to be accorded to speakers exciting one class of the population against another.

Grand Duke Won't Take Chances

St. Petersburg, Aug. 13.—Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch has declined to accept the post of commander-in-chief of all the troops of the empire "where martial law exists," which was tendered to him Aug. 4. Whether this was decided before or after the attempt on the life of the grand duke at Krasnoye-Selo on Aug. 10 is not known, but the ostensible reason is that he believes such a post should be given to a purely military man.

Death For Russian Mutineers

Helsingfors, Aug. 13.—The trial by court martial of the Sveaborg mutineers has commenced. Lieutenants Kochanovsky and Emilianoff and five soldiers were at the first sitting found guilty and condemned to death and all were shot and buried in a common grave without ceremony. Kochanovsky's father is a colonel of the guards at St. Petersburg.

Cousins In Fatal Shooting

Anderson, N. C., Aug. 13.—T. F. Drake, a farmer, was shot and instantly killed about midnight by J. A. Emerson, a cousin, the tragedy occurring in the bedroom of Drake's daughter. Emerson, who surrendered, said that Drake, entering the room at a late hour and finding him there, had opened fire and that he in self-defense shot Drake. Drake was 59 years of age and was prosperous and retired. Emerson, who is 35 years old, held a minor county position. The daughter has disappeared.

Cordial Relations Will Continue

Tokio, Aug. 13.—Despite alarmist reports, there is no danger of the killing of Japanese seal poachers on St. Paul island, Alaska, assuming a state of international gravity. The American ambassador here assured Japan that his government will investigate the matter carefully and equitably and said he hoped that Japan would not allow the cordial relations existing between the two countries to be interfered with by so trivial an affray.

Driven to Suicide by Gout

Sydney, N. S., Aug. 13.—Horace D. Mayhew, aged 32, son of the president of the Cape Breton Iron and Railway company, committed suicide by cutting his throat before a looking glass at his apartments in Mira while temporarily insane as a result of suffering from rheumatic gout. Mayhew was in this region looking after the mining interests of his father, who lives in England.

A Quintuple Drowning

Davenport, Wash., Aug. 13.—Five persons prominent in the social life of Davenport, who had been enjoying an outing on the banks of the Spokane river, were drowned yesterday. Four of the drowned heroically sacrificed their lives in an attempt to save others. One after another they plunged into the river, only to be seized by the undercurrent and drawn down.

Mad Mullah on the Rampage

London, Aug. 13.—The correspondent at Aden of The Daily Mail reports that the Mad Mullah has raided the Somaliland border and killed over 1000 of the Rareharon tribe dwelling in the Ogaden region and captured 10,000 camels. Haji Mohammed Abdullah for years has been a thorn in the side of the British.

Doctor Kills Fellow Professional

Maysville, I. T., Aug. 13.—Dr. Patterson shot and instantly killed Dr. Herrod in the main street here. The killing resulted from business difficulties. Patterson sold his practice to Herrod and later came back to town and re-entered the practice of his profession.

Raids on Booze Sellers

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 13.—Seizures of liquor amounting in all to 700 gallons were made by Sheriff Athorne of York county and his deputies at various places in Old Orchard yesterday.

How Plate Glass Is Made.

The cast plate glass of which mirrors, shop windows and such things are made is prepared from the whitest sand, broken plate glass, soda, a small amount of manganese and cobalt oxides. The glass when perfectly melted is poured upon an iron table of the size required, and the thickness is regulated by a strip of iron placed down each of the four sides of the table. Immediately after it is poured out the molten substance is flattened down by an iron roller, which lowers the glass to the thickness of the strips at the sides. It is then annealed or tempered for several days, after which it is ground perfectly level and polished to transparent brilliancy. The first plate glass was made in 1688 at St. Picardy, France, where the process was found out by an accident, as so many other important methods in manufacture have been discovered, where there were eyes to see the accidents and minds to apply them or the lessons they taught to the advance of art or industry.

The Irish Bull In Journalism.

Of a well known reporter of a past generation many curiosities of style are still repeated with zest by Dublin journalists. It was this man who explained, describing a case of drowning off Dalkey, "The body was washed ashore by a receding wave." Of a fugitive from justice he wrote: "The burglar was surrounded on all sides by the police. Escape was impossible. Suddenly he made his way down a cul-de-sac and disappeared through a side street." The most popular story of this impressionist writer, however, relates to Mr. Gladstone. On the Grand Old Man's one and only visit to Dublin he was interviewed by the eccentric press man. Mr. Gladstone, at the conclusion of a somewhat amusing array of questions, very courteously expressed his pleasure at meeting the interviewer. The latter, in a high state of delight, said with enthusiasm, "The pleasure is mutual, Mr. Gladstone, but is all on my side."—London Tribune.

The Oldest Sense of Humor.

The oldest idea of humor is surprise. This the child exhibits (for that which is oldest we shall find in the youngest) when it hides and cries "Boo!" both surprising and frightening its senior, be this senior father, mother, brother, sister or friend. One may find this primal sense of humor distributed through the modern short story. Frequently the turn in the plot, if not in its development, hinges upon this child humor of surprise. Even some grownup folk will pull a chair from under one, thus showing themselves still children in their sense of fun. The verbal conceit found in much of the verse in the pages of modern comic papers is of this same class of humor and furnishes conclusive evidence that a number of men and women are at child's play in literature. Poems which end contrary to their foreshadowings are of this sort. —New York Herald.

A Curious Custom.

In certain parts of India in families where there are several daughters the youngest sisters may only marry after the elder sister is married. Of course it frequently happens that no suitor appears for the elder, in which case she is got out of the way by a very neat expedient. She is wedded to a tree or a large flower, and then the younger sister may marry. The elder sister must be careful, however, to choose a plum, apple or apricot tree, from which she can get a divorce, for if she married an elm, pine or poplar these are sacred trees and must not be trifled with.

His Wig In His Pocket.

Benjamin Franklin once wore his wig in his pocket at the court of Versailles. When he was about to present himself at the court for the first time he was informed that a wig was essential. Franklin's head was so large that no ordinary wig would begin to fit it. However, one was found sufficiently large to pass him through the antechambers, after which he was permitted to remove the ridiculous conventional appendage and place it in his ample pocket.

Hard to Please.

Mr. Snaggs was accosted on the street the other day by a beggar who was covered with a very remarkable mass of patched and ragged garments and who said:

"Mister, haven't you some old clothes you could give a fellow?"

Snaggs surveyed the beggar from head to foot and then asked:

"Are not the clothes you have on old enough for you?"

Discriminating.

A thoughtful hostess gave a children's party and decided it would be healthier to serve only mineral waters.

One little girl tasted of her carbonic and laid the glass down.

"What's the matter, dear? Don't you like charged water?"

"No, ma'am. Please may I have some water that you've paid for?"—Life.

Worry Makes Disease.

A man who keeps worrying about the state of his liver will almost be sure to have trouble with it eventually. Indigestion can be brought on in the same way and a long list of other ailments.—A Physician in World's Work.

Shoe Superstitions.

Never place a pair of new shoes higher than your head, says an old superstition, or you'll have bad luck wearing them, and never black one before putting the other on for a similar reason.

The secret of being tiresome is in telling everything.—Voltaire.

AN EXPLANATION

[Original.]

A lady sat in a train on her way home after a summer outing. Her attire was half mourning and a bit of white ruching in her bonnet marked her for a widow. A gentleman sitting near her arose and, approaching her, raised his hat and said:

"Mrs. Sands."

The lady looked up and met a kindly glance with one the reverse of kindliness—it was icy cold.

"You have forgotten me?" said the man.

"Not at all. I have good reason to remember Ogden Rockwell."

The man stood, evidently undecided whether to return to his seat or remain and prolong the interview. The lady removed a bag from the vacant seat beside her, though she did not ask him to be seated. He sat on the arm instead.

"A great deal has passed since we last met," he said.

"I remember the circumstance very well. It was a week before my wedding. You took it upon yourself to give me advice."

"The scene is equally vivid to me. I remember some things I said to you, but if I advised you I have forgotten it."

"At that meeting, or rather parting, you told me that if I married Laurence Sands I would regret it. I did not believe that you would aid in any regret a wife might feel in her husband's weakness."

"Nor did I dream that fate would make it my duty to expose that weakness. As cashier I was responsible for any leak in the funds of the bank."

"You could have screened him for the sake of the woman you had professed to love."

"Hanford was suspected of having taken the money. Would you have had me sacrifice him?"

To this there was no reply.

"Granting," the man went on, "that there was no matter of duty or justice, would you expect me to shield a man who had taken away from me all that made the world attractive to me?"

"You struck through him the woman whom you say was all that might have made the world attractive to you."

There was a brief pause at the end of which the man said:

"I asked what you would have expected."

"I would only expect a man of wonderful nobility of soul to shield a rival."

"You would put it better if you said, 'Only a cur would fail to shield a rival when the woman they both loved was to suffer.'"

She looked up at him inquiringly.

"My part in the exposure was what hurt me," he added. "That I could not help, though it wounded you."

"Why was the exposure necessary when there was a way out of the matter, as is evident from the fact that Laurence was not prosecuted?"

"It was known to the officers of the bank that a considerable sum of money had disappeared. As I have said, Hanford was suspected. The real culprit must at least be known."

The woman bent her head. The discussion of the matter was terribly painful, even though it had occurred five years before. She put her handkerchief to her eyes and wept. Then, drying her tears, she said:

"There is one and only one feature of the case on which I love to dwell. That is the noble act of Laurence's friend, Edward Horton, who paid the indebtedness and saved Laurence from prison."

The man dropped into the vacant seat. When he did so he was too absorbed in his thoughts to be conscious of the act. At the end of a brief silence he said:

"You were misinformed as to Horton's part in the matter. Horton was implicated in the embezzlement and threw the whole blame on your husband."

The lady turned in astonishment. "Horton implicated! Horton threw the blame on Laurence!"

"Horton, not I, was responsible for the matter coming out."

"Why, then," she asked indignantly, "was I led to believe that Horton furnished the means to save Laurence? From the first I was deceived—deceived by everybody, by you, from whom I might have expected"—

"You were Laurence Sands' wife."

"Was this a reason why I should be deceived as to the person who befriended him?"

"Yes."

"Will you explain?"

"The person who furnished the means to make good the deficit did so on the condition that some one should stand in his place to you as the donor. Horton, as Laurence's friend, made an excellent substitute and, being implicated, could be compelled to accept the part."

"Why did the donor desire to hide his noble act under the cloak of a thief and a traitor to his bosom friend?"

"Because he was a man and you were a married woman."

"Well?"

"He loved you."

She sat staring at him, her eyes seemingly growing larger and larger.

"You?"

"I."

Even the rattle of the train was not sufficient to hide the words both would have spoken. There were no words. He felt a hand on his and saw tears starting from the eyes of the woman who had so long supposed he had wronged her, while really he had saved her unutterable suffering.

The Neponset-Dorchester team defeated the Merrymounts at Nightingale field, Ashmont, on Saturday in a close game, 5 to 3. The playing of the two teams was very even, but the Neponsets made their hits when they were most needed.

George Donaher, an ex-Merrymount, was a big factor in the game as his afternoon's work with the stick consisted of two doubles, a single and a neat sacrifice.

Eddie Forbes was behind the bat for Merrymount and his throwing stopped the home team's base stealing. Osgood and Dunn made difficult catches of flies and Parker and Baker also did some good fielding.

Four hits, an error and a steal netted the Neponsets three runs in the second inning. In the fifth, Wadleigh led off with a double. Dacey hit to Dunn who threw poorly to second to catch Wadleigh. Wadleigh scored on Bennett's roller, Dacey going to third. Bennett made a bluff to steal second and Forbes threw to Parker, who returned the ball in time to nail Dacey at the plate. A fast double play, Dunn to Parker to Stevens ended the inning. The home team scored one more in the seventh.

Merrymount scored its first in the fifth. Parker led off with a hit. Osgood sent up a fly to Massey, and Forbes fanned. Dunn fanned but the catcher missed the third strike. Dunn made a bluff for second and Parker started home on the throw down. The ball was returned and half of the home team started to run down Parker between the bases. In the midst of the mix-up the ball was booted and Parker scored.

In the seventh, with two down, Dunn and Kolson singled. Dunn started to steal third and Baker hit to right scoring Dunn and putting Kolson on third. Baker started for second and Kolson scored while Baker was dodging back and forth between bases. Baker reached second by a clever side step but was left. In the eighth, Merrymount got a man around to third and in the ninth got a man to first but could not score.

Other Games.

The Sacred Hearts of Atlantic pulled out of a hole at Cambridge on Saturday when they won from the Sacred Hearts of that city in the ninth innings by a score of 8 to 7. The Cambridge team scored six runs in the first inning and at the end of the fifth the score was 7 to 2 in their favor.

Out Classed By MacGregors

The MacGregors of Quincy and the Riverdales of Brighton met on Saturday afternoon in a game of Association football on Ward Three playground. The MacGregors won the toss and decided to play with the wind. The Riverdales started with a rush and speedily invaded MacGregor territory, and in the first few minutes they looked dangerous. After the first ten minutes the MacGregors settled down and started in to play their combination game for which they are justly famous.

Thirteen minutes had gone when the MacGregors were awarded a penalty kick, for a foul committed by the Riverdales. Craig took the chance and scored on same. Brydson next found the net for the locals. Score at half time MacGregors, 2; Riverdales, 0.

On the resumption of play it was readily seen that the Riverdales had shot their bolt during the first half, for they simply fell to pieces against the superior stamina of the "Macs" who added five goals in the second half, winning by a score of 7 goals to 0.

The visitors were loud in praise of the ability of our local team. The MacGregors are putting up a very fast article in football, and they merit the increasing support they are getting by their skilful play and gentlemanly conduct both on and off the field.

The regular meeting of the MacGregor Football Club was held in Doble's hall Friday, Aug. 10. A. M. Cameron was called to the chair.

The members had been looking around for a new president, some business man of the city who had shown an interest in the game. The name of Frank F. Prescott, the city editor of the Daily Ledger, was presented to the meeting, and he was unanimously elected.

The other officers elected were: Vice President, James McLeod; Financial Secretary, Robert Craig; Recording Secretary, A. Malcolm; Treasurer, James Cordiner; Captain, Archie Craig; Vice Captain, James Brydson; Managers, A. M. Cameron, John Johnson and Robert Craig; Delegate, John Troupe; Alternative, James MacLeod.

The meeting of Merrimac Valley league of Association football clubs was held Saturday night in Lynn. Both our local clubs were represented. Article 6 of last year's rules was amended. Delegates were supplied with players' signature sheets, and in consequence the ensuing week will be a busy one for club managers.

Accident to Yachtsman.

There was a peculiar accident off the Squantum Yacht club house, Sunday afternoon, during which Fred Adams was severely bruised. He was aboard the yacht Mingo, when the yacht Toss came along. In attempting to luff the Toss was in immediate danger of raming the Mingo. Adams ran forward and seized the bowsprit of the Toss to fend her off. She was coming too fast, however, and he was knocked down and pinned by the bobstay which came across his breast. It was thought at first that he had sustained a fracture of the ribs, but he fortunately escaped with a few bruises.

Serious Accident.

Officer Lyons, while passing through Water street about 10 o'clock Saturday night found a boy lying beside the railroad tracks near the corner of Pleasant street. The boy was unconscious and had evidently jumped or fallen from an electric car. He proved to be Wallace Kemp aged ten years a son of Alexander Kemp of 38 Trafford street. Dr. John H. Ash, who happened to be passing, was called, and took the young man to his home. His face was cut and bruised. He escaped, however, with severe bruises.

Maple lodge K. and L. of H., will work the degree on several candidates at its meeting in Wilsons hall on Wednesday, after which a social and general good time will be enjoyed. Mrs. Celia Baxter has charge of the entertainment.

Tragic Death Of Police Officer

Special Officer Thomas F. Maloney of 239 Fayette street, was killed Monday afternoon by falling from a train on his way home from Boston.

He boarded the 2.27 train from Boston and it is supposed that he was sitting on the brake wheel of the rear car, and when the train went around the curve at what is known as the Southhampton street bridge at South Boston he was thrown off.

The train always rounds this curve with a jerk, and people on the train Monday said they noticed that the jerk was unusually sharp. He struck on his head and his skull was split from the forehead to the base of the brain.

The train was stopped and backed up and at that time it was thought the man was a Rockland officer.

Later the Quincy police received word that from a pay envelope found in the man's pocket it was probably Thomas F. Maloney. Officer Bradley was then sent to Boston and identified him.

Mr. Maloney has been a special officer since 1903. He was born in Quincy, May 13, 1876, and has always resided here. He attended the Willard school for several years, and then entered the employ of his father, who was a stone mason. Later he entered the employ of the Dodge Iron Foundry Co. at South Boston, and learned the trade of an iron moulder. He followed this trade in Boston and Quincy for 11 years.

In addition to his service on the Quincy Police force, he did police duty for the Metropolitan Park Commission for six months. He was a quiet unassuming man and universally liked by his fellow officers.

Brave Act Of a Woman

But for the prompt action this morning of Mrs. G. A. O. Keiswetter of Chapins news agency, the life of a little Italian boy would probably have been crushed by a heavily loaded stone team.

Mrs. Keiswetter had just alighted from a car at the corner of Hancock and Granite streets. As she started to cross the street she saw a little boy standing in the middle of the street directly in front of a heavily loaded stone team.

The driver of the team had his eyes elsewhere, and it looked for a minute as though the boy's life must be crushed out. With remarkable forethought and entirely regardless of her own safety Mrs. Keiswetter dashed in front of the horses and pulled the boy to a place of safety.

The thing was all over in a second, and Mrs. Keiswetter continued on toward the store, just as though it was an everyday occurance for her to pull a boy from in front of horses.

C. E. Movement.

Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, was a passenger on the White Star liner, Republic, which reached Boston on Monday. Dr. Clark has spent nearly ten months abroad, visiting societies and conventions of Christian Endeavor in Germany, Norway, Sweden, Hungary, Bulgaria, Turkey, and Switzerland, and many points in Great Britain. He reports the Christian Endeavor cause as flourishing in all these countries, while in many of them it is very strong. The recent World's Christian Endeavor convention in Geneva was a great success, and brought together delegates from all over the world. In the Baltic provinces of Russia, and in Finland too, the society is growing rapidly in spite of the political disturbances. In Europe there are now over twelve thousand societies, with over half a million of members. After Great Britian, Sweden and Germany have the largest number of societies.

Five Years in Navy.

Norman Everson of Cranch street is now at home awaiting an honorable discharge. He enlisted at the Boston Navy Yard in April, 1901; spent ten months at Newport, and then sailed on the "Hartford" on a seven months' cruise on the Southern coast of United States and the West Indies waters. In August, 1902, was back in Boston on the "Wabash" for a month. After that he was on the "Olympia" until she was ordered out of commission last March. He visited Panama, England, France, Spain, Austria, Greece, Turkey, Morrocco and Norway. During his enlistment of over five years he never saw a flake of snow, as it was during the warm season that he visited the "land of the midnight sun."

Auk and Sally Were Not In It

The Auk, the representative of the Quincy Yacht club, did not show up as well as expected yesterday in the first of the trial races off Marblehead, finishing 11 in a list of 17. She was over eight minutes behind the leader, and about five minutes astern of the Manchester.

The elapsed time of the yachts is given below:

Boat and owner.	h.	m.	s.
Spokane, F. Lewis Clark	3	43	08
Hayseed, III, H. L. Bowden	3	44	55
Windrim Kid, F. G. Macomber,	3	45	26

Sally VIII, L. F. Percival	3	58	01
Alecto, E. H. Hodgson	3	58	39
Cod, Dr. Morton Prince	did not finish.

The Auk was eighth at the first turn, and nine at the second turn, being passed by the Bonidrei, the Caramba and the Sumatra. The Sally VIII, picked by some of the Boston papers to win, was next to the last to finish, being over six minutes behind the Auk.

Another race is being held today. Better luck to the Auk.

Cottage Avenue

The Ramblers have been wondering whether the crushed stone put on Cottage avenue Monday would be carted off. Gravel has been carted on and carted off; edgestone has been set and raised; lawns have been sodded and resodded, etc., etc. But the road roller has now got to work and the job may be finished sometime.

—Every kind word you say to a dumb animal or bird will make you happier.

In Board of Metropolitan Park Commissioners, August 2, 1906.

VOTED: That on and after August 15, 1906, Rules 1, 2 and 3 of rules and regulations governing the use of automobiles and vehicles propelled by other than animal power passed by this Board on September 18, 1905, be repealed and that the following rules be enacted in their stead, to take effect on said August 15, 1906.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.
Metropolitan Park Commission.
RULES AND REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE USE OF AUTOMOBILES AND VEHICLES PROPELLED BY OTHER THAN ANIMAL POWER.

Rule 1. No automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall be allowed within any reservation except upon town or county roads therein and upon Hillside Street in Blue Hills Reservation, Turtle Pond Road and Bold Knob Road in Stony Brook Reservation, Charles River Road in Watertown in Charles River Reservation, the border road in Middlesex Fells Reservation extending from Highland Avenue to Summer Street in Malden, the driveway of Lynn Shore Reservation, the driveway of Winthrop Shore Reservation, and the driveway of Revere Beach Reservation from Lynnway to Revere Street; and upon the driveway of Revere Beach Reservation from Revere Street to its intersection with Revere Beach Parkway during the period extending from September 15th to June 15th inclusive in each year and from and after eleven o'clock P. M. to eleven o'clock A. M. on the day following during the period extending from June 16th to September 14th inclusive in each year.

Rule 2. No automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall be allowed within any parkway except Middlesex Fells Parkway, Revere Beach Parkway, Mystic Valley Parkway, Fresh Pond Parkway, Blue Hills Parkway, Neponset River Parkway, Nahant Beach Parkway and Lynnway, provided, also, that no automobile or vehicle propelled as aforesaid shall be allowed on any driveway in any of said parkways that has not been fully completed and open to public use.

Rule 3. No person shall drive an automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power on Middlesex Fells Parkway, Revere Beach Parkway, Mystic Valley Parkway, Fresh Pond Parkway, Blue Hills Parkway, Neponset River Parkway, Charles River Road in Watertown, Lynnway or Revere Beach Reservation from Lynnway to Revere Street, at a rate of speed exceeding fifteen miles an hour, or on any other road or parkway where the same is allowed at a rate of speed exceeding ten miles an hour. Upon approaching a crossing of intersecting ways, also in traversing a crossing or intersection, and in going around a corner or a curve in a reservation or parkway every person operating an automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall run it at a rate of speed less than that hereinbefore specified, and in no event at a rate exceeding eight miles an hour.

Any person violating any of the above rules shall for each offence be punished by a fine of not more than twenty dollars. [Revised Laws, Chap. 28, Section 30.]

[NOTE.—The new rules change the old rules only in increasing the speed limit on Lynnway and that portion of the driveway of Revere Beach Reservation between Lynnway and Revere Street, and in extending the hours within which automobiles are allowed on Revere Beach Reservation between Revere Street and Eliot Circle.]

Sudden Death Of Mrs. Craigie

The cable news today reports the sudden death of Mrs. Pearl Mary Theresa Craigie, familiarly known as John Oliver Hobbs, the author. Her mother is a sister of Mrs. John L. Eldridge of this city, making Mrs. Craigie a cousin of Paul R. Blackmur, the ex-City Solicitor of Quincy. Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan Richards of New York, now residents of Ventnor, England, with whom she had just spent a fortnight, returning to London Sunday evening.

In January last she visited this country and several Quincy people attended a reception given her by the Woman's Press Association.

Among Mrs. Craigie's works were: "Some Emotions, and a Moral" (1891); "The Sinner's Comedy" (1892); "A Study in Temptations" (1893); "A Bundle of Life" (1894); "Journeys End in Lovers Meeting" (one-act play written for Ellen Terry), "The Gods, Some Mortals and Lord Wickenham" (1895); "The Herb Moon" (1896); "School for Saints" (1897); "Osborn and Ursyne," tragedy in blank verse (1899); "Robert Orange" (1900); "The Serious Wooing" (1901); "Tales About Temperaments," "Love and the Soul Hunters" (1902); "Froude" (1903); "The Flute of Pan" (1905). Her plays are: "The Ambassador" (1898); "A Repentance" (1899) and "The Wisdom of the Wise" (1900).

Quick Run

The Quincy Yacht club fleet made a quick run home from Annisquam on Sunday. The fleet got under way at 6 A.M., and at 1.30 were at anchor off the club house. Commodore Crane in the Iris was the last to start, but he was the first to arrive.

—A woman—Kuehne Beveridge—will provide the model for the magnificent memorial monument to be erected by San Francisco, as a reminder of the late great disaster. It will be placed in Golden Gate Park, and will be carried out in marble, bronze and stone. The symbolic figure is that of a young girl just blooming into full beauty of womanhood. She is weeping, leaning against a closed Gothic door. The figure, which will be tinted marble, will be a reproduction of the sculptor's sister, the Baroness Ray Von Wrede. The door in the gate will be golden bronze, and the framework and steps approaching it will be of stone. The committee in charge are said to be enthusiastic over the beauty of the sculptor's work, and without doubt the memorial will be one of the most admired if saddest in significance of the rebuilt city's glories.

Non Union Men Were Discharged

There came near being a strike at the High school building this morning owing to the refusal of the union masons to work with the non union stone masons of Peter T. Fallon, the sub-contractor for the granite work.

Mr. Lord, the contractor, did not stop to argue matters with the union, but immediately ordered the non union men to quit. He then put some of the union men at work so as to interrupt progress as little as possible, and left for Boston to secure other men.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The rich town of Brookline believes in looking after the dollars, having issued 700 warrants for the collection of back poll taxes.

Did you ever stop to think how much is expected of the business man by the ordinary citizen, and how little the ordinary citizen cares for the business man's interests? If society wants a little money in the treasury an appeal to the business men is made; if an athletic team is short of funds it asks the business men to chip in; if some one wants a petition presented to somebody the business men are asked to sign it. Why? Because the business men are supposed so be more interested in the material and moral welfare of the town in which they are doing business. Ought not the working man and the farmer be just as deeply interested, particularly if they are natives of the town? Then don't forget to reciprocate the favors that at every opportunity you ask and expect from the business men. Don't try to see how much you can buy when you go to the city. Try to do the bulk of your business with the local business man. You can save money by it nine times out of ten.—Marsfield News.

A CHECKERED LIFE

Ann O'Delia Diss Debar Is Once More a Free Woman

WAS "OCCULT PRIESTESS"

Achieved Notoriety by Stripping Aged New Yorker of His Fortune--Her Filthy Husband Remains an Inmate of a Prison

London, Aug. 14.—Ann O'Delia Diss Debar, who, under the name of Laura Jackson, was sentenced Dec. 30, 1901, to seven years' penal servitude for connection with an alleged immoral cult, known as the "Theocratic Unity," of which her reputed husband, Theodore Jackson, was the head, has been liberated from Aylesbury prison under ticket-of-leave, having obtained the maximum reduction of sentence by good behavior.

Mme. Diss Debar has been known under many names in the United States and Great Britain, but her greatest notoriety was achieved as the perpetrator of a so-called spiritualistic deception by which Luther R. Marsh of New York was in his old age stripped of the fortune he had accumulated in the practice of law.

Though claiming to be the daughter of King Louis I of Bavaria and Lola Montez, she was in fact the daughter of Professor John C. F. Saloman, once of Washington and later of Kentucky. After varying fortunes and persecutions by persons who would have had her confined in asylums, she married a Dr. Messant. That was in 1871. Later she became the wife of General Joseph H. Diss Debar and by him had two children.

She traveled about the country representing herself as the personification of occult powers and the revealer of hidden truths and in this way, while living in Washington square, New York, she met Luther R. Marsh, an aged lawyer, and by means of alleged spirit materializations and spirit painted pictures secured large sums of money from him and he also deeded to her his home in Madison avenue.

About this time Diss Debar left the adventuress, who went to live at the Marsh home and also hired apartments where she officiated as a priestess of spiritualism and won great notoriety. Suit was brought to prove her an impostor and she was charged with conspiring to defraud Marsh. She was arrested and sent to jail and indicted by the grand jury. The Gerry society took her children. Her trial resulted in her conviction and she was sentenced to a term of imprisonment. On her release from prison she went to Europe, then returned to the United States and, going to the west, got into more difficulties through bogus spiritualism.

Under the name of Vera P. Ava, she fell into the hands of the Chicago police, who sent her to the Joliet penitentiary for two years. Released from that institution, she married William J. McGown in 1895 at Chicago. McGown, like Marsh, was a man of wealth. In 1889 she was forced to leave New Orleans with Theodore Jackson, whose wife she then said she was. They were playing the spirit materialization game there, and it was said they were running a "fruitarian" colony in Florida.

A year later they turned up in Capetown, South Africa, where Mme. Diss Debar called herself Helena and Jackson called himself Horos. Occultism and hypnotistic performances were the order there, and a wealthy South African contractor gave his money to Mme. Diss Debar to establish a colony of brotherly love. The institution that she and Jackson were running at that time was called by them the "College of Occult Sciences."

Later the pair appeared in London, where they promoted the Theocratic Unity organization, scandals in connection with which led to their arrest in September, 1901. The trial, which continued at intervals through three months, developed facts of such a loathsome character that several of the London papers excluded from their columns all reports of the proceedings in court. Jackson assumed a defiant attitude towards public sentiment and the law and had to be warned by the presiding judge that he was injuring his case. In the course of her evidence Mme. Diss Debar asserted that she had an income of $14,000 yearly from the estate of her former husband, General Diss Debar.

Justice Bigham summed up strongly against the prisoners, saying it was difficult to conceive of more revolting and abominable conduct than that which had been attributed to them. He added that he would not be doing his duty unless he prevented the male prisoner from practicing such filthy acts under the cloak of religion for some years to come. The jury was absent from the courtroom less than five minutes and returned with the verdict of guilty, whereupon Justice Bingham sentenced Jackson to 15 years' penal servitude and his reputed wife to seven years' penal servitude. Mme. Diss Debar heard the sentence smilingly and bowed politely to the justice as she left the courtroom.

Highest Bidder May Get Contract

Washington, Aug. 14.—The installation of boilers for the warships New York and Massachusetts has aroused some controversy because the award is likely to be let to the highest bidder The lowest bidder has made a protest. It was found that the boilers of the lowest bidder were different from those which had been inspected and submitted to test and could not be accepted. The firms submitting the lowest bid have been asked to show cause why they should be awarded the contract under the circumstances, and the matter is still pending.

Another Disappointed Lover

New York, Aug. 14.—A second warrant has been issued for the arrest of Helen Hamilton, who was arrested last week on complaint of James O. McClelland of Philadelphia, charged with obtaining $800 from him by promising to marry him. The new warrant is based on the complaint of Leo Kinsel, who alleges that he gave Mrs. Hamilton about $2000 while under the impression that she intended to marry him. He also alleged that he advanced about $2500 to her.

Travelers Must Have Passports

Washington, Aug. 14.—Since the recent attack upon the life of King Alfonso of Spain strict measures have been instituted to establish the nationality of foreigners visiting that country, and the American vice consul at Madrid, Maddin Summers, has written a letter to the state department, calling attention to the fact that Americans intending to travel in Spain should provide themselves with passports.

Accidentally Killed by Poison

New York, Aug. 14.—John McMackin, former labor commissioner, poisoned himself by accident at Livingston Manor, N. Y., and died two hours later in great agony. McMackin went to a medicine chest from which he took a bottle supposed to contain medicine, but which was filled with oxalic crystals, bought to cleanse a straw hat. He mixed up a dose and swallowed it.

Collision of Passenger Trains

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 14.—As a result of a collision between two passenger trains on the outskirts of this city, one man is dead and 10 persons are more or less seriously injured. The collision occurred under a bridge, the engine of the incoming train ploughing into the rear coach of a train which was being backed out of the city.

Heads of Leading Brokerage House Charged With Aiding and Abetting Embezzlement--All Three Are Arrested

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 14.—Alexander R. Chisolm, paying teller of the First National bank, was arrested, charged with the embezzlement of $97,000 of the bank's funds. He was held by Commissioner Watson and is in the custody of the United States officers at a hotel. During yesterday afternoon W. L. Sims and C. M. Kays, manager and assistant manager of one of the leading stock and cotton brokerage houses in Birmingham, were arrested, charged with aiding and abetting the embezzlement of national bank funds. They were released last evening on bonds.

The shortage at the First National bank was discovered while Chisolm was on a vacation. The bank has a large reserve fund on hand, and it was from this that the amount was taken. There was no regular time for counting the cash in the reserve funds, which accounts for the fact that the shortage was not discovered sooner.

Officers decided to wait until Chisolm returned. When he stepped from a train yesterday he was confronted by the federal officers and several directors of the bank. He later made a full confession.

W. P. G. Harding, president of the First National bank, said the loss would not affect the institution. The bank has a capital of $1,000,000 and a surplus of $400,000. When Chisolm was arrested $3000 was taken from his suitcase. He was bonded for $30,000. The difference, $64,000, between these amounts and the shortage, has already been taken from the undivided profits account of the bank and charged to profit and loss.

Chisolm was one of the most popular young men socially and personally in Birmingham. It is said that nearly all of the money embezzled by Chisolm was used in speculation in cotton futures and that his losses have extended over a period of several months. It is said that he traded under an assumed name and made all his payments for margins in cash.

Got Death Instead of Cash

Rochester, Aug. 14.—According to a statement made to the police by Frank Randazzo, three men entered his saloon while he was alone. One of them stepped up to the bar and demanded $25 in cash at once under penalty of death by the Black Hand. Randazzo says that he opened a drawer, but instead of taking out money he secured his revolver and shot the man who made the demand, killing him instantly. The other two men ran out of the place and escaped. The man killed was Lelajoyine d'Como of this city. Randazzo was arrested.

Teamsters Get Rid of Turley

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The last official act of the convention of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters was to expel from the organization former Secretary and Treasurer Turley, who has been a thorn in the side of President Shea and his followers. The convention decided that Turley had worked against the best interests of the brotherhood.

Will Review Powerful Fleet

Washington, Aug. 14.—Orders for the formation of the Atlantic fleet to be reviewed by President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay Sept. 3 have been issued at the navy department. The president will be aboard the Mayflower and the fleet which he will review will consist of 43 vessels, carrying 1178 guns, with 812 officers and 15,235 men.

Japan Makes the Conditions

Pekin, Aug. 14.—M. Hayashi, the Japanese minister here, has informed China that Japan is ready to establish a customs service at Port Dalny, and urges China to make similar arrangements at the frontier stations in northern Manchuria, so as to place the traffic on the Japanese and Russian railways on an equality.

No Faith In Persian Reform

St. Petersburg, Aug. 14.—Russian officials who are in close touch with affairs in Persia are inclined to be skeptical as to the genuineness of the reform movement in Persia or anything more than a "Turkish constitution" resulting from the creating of a national assembly as announced in dispatches from Teheran.

Young Stensland Thinks Father Dead

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Banks of the Chicago Clearing House association have offered a reward of $5000 for the apprehension of Paul O. Stensland, fugitive president of the Milwaukee Avenue state bank. Vice President Theodore Stensland of the failed bank says he believes that his father is dead.

Labor Appeal to Roosevelt

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 14.—The American Federation of Labor of Porto Rico has forwarded to President Roosevelt an appeal against the alleged use of the police by the insular administration to obstruct the efforts of the federation to improve the condition of the working people.

WON FAME AS WRITER

Mrs Cragie, Author of Many Plays, Dies Unexpectedly

London, Aug. 14.—Mrs. Pearl M. T. Cragie (John Oliver Hobbes), the authoress and dramatist, died in her sleep of heart failure. Her death was totally unexpected, she having been apparently perfectly well when she retired. Mrs. Cragie was 39 years of age. She was a native of Boston, Mass. She was married when 19 years of age to Reginald W. Cragie, by whom she had one son, now 16 years old. Her interest in the land of her birth continued throughout her life, and she made several visits to the United States after her marriage.

Mrs. Cragie went out of life even as she told a reporter a few months ago she would wish to go. "I don't want anyone to expect my death, much less do I wish to expect it myself," she said, "and in the Episcopalian ritual, 'from battle and from murder and from sudden death,' I would leave out the last phrase."

Told Wife to Ask No Questions

Chicago, Aug. 14.—After an unexplained absence of 31 years, Professor Charles H. Frye, formerly superintendent of the Chicago normal school of this city, returned to Chicago. One of his first acts upon arrival at his home was to hand 50 $100 bills to his wife with the remark: "Ask me no questions." Frye was 31 years old when he disappeared. Since that day no word had been received from him by his wife. He has settled down at home as though nothing had happened.

Not Mentally Responsible

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Lunacy proceedings have been instituted against Asi L. Esac, or Elizabeth Case, who created a disturbance during the church service attended by President Roosevelt. Miss Case was examined by Drs. Fowler and Seaman, examiners in lunacy, who reported that the woman is mentally incompetent. As there are no charges against Miss Case, there is nothing to prevent her leaving Oyster Bay before she is served with the lunacy papers.

Prince Ferdinand's Life Sought

London, Aug. 14.—A dispatch to a news agency from Vienna says that it is reported that Yanne Sandausky (the Macedonian leader who was a member of the brigand band which in 1901 captured Miss Helen M. Stone, the American missionary, and held her until ransomed,) has hidden himself in the Bistritza forest, surrounding Prince Ferdinand's villa, with the object of killing the prince. The villa is strongly guarded and the prince seldom leaves it.

Campaign Textbook Proofs Ready

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 14.—President Roosevelt's luncheon guests yesterday numbered five, and the topics of discussion ranged from the prospects of Republican success in the congressional campaign to the digging of the Panama canal. Representative Sherman of New York, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, brought the proofs of the party's new campaign textbook for the president's revision and approval.

"An Act of Providence"

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—The Rhine and Moselle Insurance Company of Germany has decided that it will not pay its $8,000,000 of liabilities arising from the fire of April 18. The company's policies do not carry an earthquake exemption clause and it is thought at the local office that the head officers are putting forth the plea of "an act of providence."

Veterans Crowd Minneapolis

Minneapolis, Aug. 14.—The inrush of visitors for the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic continues and the prospect is that the meeting will be attended by more than 100,000 veterans and their friends. The contest for national commander-in-chief is growing warm, although no great amount of electioneering has so far been done.

Forest Fires In New Brunswick

St. John, Aug. 14.—Forest fires which have been burning in Kings and Westmoreland counties for nearly a week have destroyed a large amount of timber, and in a number of places are threatening farm buildings. The rainfall in this province has been light. The crops are being greatly injured by the drought.

Thirteen Plotters In Jail

Washington, Aug. 14.—Governor Magoon of Panama advised the state department of the arrest of 13 men on the isthmus, charged with plotting to kill President Amador and overthrow the republic. Eleven of the men are Colombians, one a Mexican and the other a Nicaraguan. All are in jail.

Disturbances In the Crimea

Fedosia, Aug. 14.—Agrarian disorders in the hill regions of the Crimea are increasing in gravity. Many villages are affected. Several armed encounters with guards have occurred, in which many persons were wounded. Reinforcements of troops are being sent to the disturbed region.

Toronto May Have Great Strike

Toronto, Aug. 14.—A complete tie-up of building operations is threatened by the action of the Federated Building Trades Council, which will call out on strike all allied members who are working with non-union carpenters.

City of Presidents

Birthplace of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

The Heart Can't Stand Rheumatic Acid Poisoning

To Free and Correct the Blood a Uric-O Treatment is Advised.

There is great danger in those sharp shooting pains through the chest around the region of the heart. It means that poisonous uric and rheumatic acid are there ready to spring and grip tightly the muscles controlling the heart's action. Don't neglect these warnings, they are the danger signals Nature flashes to you for help. You must neutralize and drive these dangerous poisons from the system, or sooner or later they will overcome you.

The only true way to cure Rheumatism is to get at it from the inside with Uric-O. It acts with marvelous swiftness upon the muscles, kidneys and blood. Clears out the sand-like deposits in the muscles, forces the kidneys to perform those duties for which they were designed and neutralizes the acid within the blood.

Your physician will admit that this is the only true way to cure Rheumatism permanently, and should know that Uric-O is the one remedy that will do it successfully and permanently. Uric-O is a liquid taken internally, 3 times daily and does not contain a drop of alcohol, opium or other dangerous poisons. It is good for Rheumatism in any form. Sciatica, Muscular, Inflamatory and Articular Rheumatism all yield readily to Uric-O. The store of E. J. Murphy is the home of Uric-O in Quincy, and if you call on him, he can tell you of many wonderful cures that Uric-O has made right here in your own home city. He sells it for 75c. and $1.00 the bottle or you can obtain a trial bottle free by writing to the makers of Uric-O, the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y.

The Key to a Fortune

[Original.]

John Nettleton was an inventor. He invented a number of small devices for various purposes, but none of them turned out to be of value, or, if they did, some one who furnished the means to put them on the market reaped the benefit. Nettleton's wife and a girl she had adopted stood by him through all his disappointments. His son Peter, as soon as he became old enough to shift for himself, became a machinist and drifted away from home.

Peter knew enough of such matters to feel sure that if his father had invented means of overcoming the defect he had made a model of the contrivance. He and Maggie hunted all over the house for such a model. Every closet was ransacked, spaces under the eaves of the roof, cellar and workshop, to no purpose. The model was not to be found.

The pet scheme of John Nettleton's life was a machine for saving labor, the object of which he alone understood. While thus engaged he dreamed at night of great fortunes secured, or that some one was destroying his model just as he had perfected it. Often his wife would awaken him when he was struggling in nightmare. But before he accomplished his object she died, leaving no one but Maggie Thorpe, her adopted daughter, to care for him. She remained with him and was a perpetual bow of promise.

It was several years after his wife's death before Nettleton struck the fundamental idea of his machine. But on applying it he found that a device was necessary to overcome a defect which, though trifling in itself, rendered the machine useless. He worked three years over this and overcame it. Then he made a model of his machine, and a separate model of his contrivance to overcome the defect. He had been so swindled by persons appropriating his inventions that he chose to keep a key to this one, which would alone unlock the secret. The model of the machine he kept in his workroom. The model of the contrivance he kept no one knew where.

But with all his precaution John Nettleton never reaped the benefit of his invention. Death took him away so suddenly that he had no time to reveal to any one where he kept the model he called his key model. Peter was called home to bury his father and found nothing to represent an inheritance except a will bequeathing the little house and the invention to Maggie Thorpe. Peter saw the model of the machine, and, being a machinist, was delighted with it; but, setting it in motion, he soon saw the defect. It seemed a simple matter to remedy that, and he set to work to do so. Maggie told him that his father had done so, but she knew not by what contrivance.

Peter obtained employment near by and nights and holidays went to his father's workshop to find a remedy for the defect. As his father had been encouraged by Maggie, so was the son. She would go into the workshop, which was in the rear of the house, when he was there, and when she found him despondent would remind him that his father had overcome it, and what had been done once could be done again. Often late at night the shop door would open to reveal Maggie's sympathetic face while she held in her hand a plate on which she had placed a simple supper.

But Peter had not the genius of his father and at last made up his mind that if he did not give up hunting for the secret he would go mad. Then, and not till then, Maggie advised him to give it up and reminded him that there were fortunes to be made in other ways.

Peter decided to go back to the work he had done before his father's death, but when he came to part with Maggie he found that he had won a greater treasure than fortune—the heart of a pure young girl whose disposition would render her the most valuable of wives. With this discovery he made another—that he could not go and leave Maggie. He must take her with him.

Peter bought a plain gold ring which he took to Maggie. Not finding her in the house he went to the shop. She was there soldering a kettle that had become leaky. Peter produced the ring and as he was about to slip it on her finger dropped it. It rolled into one of the great seams between the boards in the floor.

There was nothing to do but take up a board. Peter took up two and found the ring on a box placed between the joists. He took out both the ring and the box, and seeing that the latter was locked Maggie went for John Nettleton's keys, which she had kept since his death. She unlocked the box and displayed a model.

Something told them both at once that here was the missing key to a fortune. Taking out the model Peter turned with it to the model of the machine, but Maggie espied a paper in the bottom of the box.

God, if necessary, will direct my little girl to this.

Peter saw at once how the connection was to be applied to the machine and catching up a screwdriver made the attachment. Then setting the whole in motion they both watched it working smoothly.

"Peter," said Maggie at last, handing him the paper, "see what your father said about our finding the key to a fortune."

"The key to a fortune," he said after reading it, "is often the goodness of a woman. At any rate it is so in this case." FLORA MILLIGAN.

IS AFTER SHONTS

Gompers Statement on Employment of Coolie Labor

THE EIGHT-HOUR IDEA

Labor Leader Says Canal Commissioner Has Been Hostile to It--Shonts Says Use of Chinese Is Not Contrary to Law

Washington, Aug. 14.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement, has taken issue with Chairman Shonts of the isthmian canal commission on some of the latter's statements as to the employment of coolie labor in the construction of the Panama canal.

Gompers characterizes as an absurdity the contention of Shonts that the law with respect to the exclusion of the Chinese is only applicable to territory at the time subject to the authority of the United States and that the canal zone was acquired subsequent to that date. There is no such provision, says Gompers, in the law referred to, and he cites the various provisions of law in this connection.

Mr. Gompers declares that neither he nor James O'Connell, president of the International Association of Machinists, who visited Shonts, were able to persuade him from his position on the eight-hour question, and they devoted little attention to the subject of Chinese coolies, because, he says, Shonts emphatically declared it was not his intention to employ them.

The charge is specifically made by Gompers that Shonts "had sufficient influence with the congress hostile to labor to secure the annulment of not only the eight-hour law, but the eight-hour principle, in the construction of the Panama canal. The future," he says, "will determine the judgment of the people of our country upon that subject."

In conclusion Gompers says: "Congress violated the eight-hour principle; now Chairman Shonts proposes to violate the Chinese exclusion law, upon which fact and principle there is such a deep-seated sentiment and conviction among the people of our country."

Mr. Shonts made the following statement:

"The eight-hour law does not apply to unskilled labor on the Isthmus of Panama. The entire present unskilled labor force is alien. We cannot secure this class of unskilled labor from the United States. It is therefore not seen why a law passed in the interest of American labor at home should be made applicable to alien labor, which probably never heard of its existence. Its application would have increased the labor cost of the canal several million dollars. The American laborer in this country would have to pay his share of the consequent increased taxation without any compensating benefit to himself.

"At the time of my interview with Mr. Gompers, in discussing the eight-hour law, aside from what I have already said, I stated that my understanding of the reason for the enactment of the eight-hour law in this country was primarily to give to the highest type of labor in the world longer hours for mental recreation and improvement; but that with the lowest class of labor, as at Panama, it was more helpful and improving, more in their interest and more an act of kindness than otherwise to permit them to work 10 hours a day and pay them for it, because they are paid by the hour.

"As to the statement of Mr. Gompers that the 'existing law excludes Chinese laborers and coolies from the United States or any of its possessions; the Papana canal zone is an American possession and it is as much a violation of the law to bring Chinese coolies there as it is in other portions of our country,' I can only say that the commission has secured the opinion of the highest legal authorities of the government. It has been held that such law does not apply to the canal zone.

"The law excluding Chinese from the United States and its possessions was passed in March, 1903, and specifically set forth that such laws should only be applicable to territory at that time subject to the authorities of the United States. The canal zone was acquired subsequent to that date, and congress has not extended its provisions so as to embrace the canal zone. The canal must be dug and the first requisite is to have labor to dig it. We do not believe it wise or economical to depend only on the West Indian negroes. We cannot secure the unskilled labor in sufficient number from the United States. It is therefore not in competition to our own labor, and any agreement entered into will provide for the return of Chinese direct to China upon the completion of service on the canal work.

"In conversation with Mr. Gompers, the well known views of Mr. Shonts as to labor on the isthmus, both with respect to the possibility of the future employment of Chinese and otherwise, were practically set forth as above, and any contrary understanding must have been due to a misapprehension of his position."

County Treasurer a Suicide

Goshen, Ind., Aug. 14.—E. E. Drake, treasurer of Elkhart county, committed suicide following the loss of $5000 of county funds in the failure of the Indiana National bank, which funds he had to replace.

WHITNEY AND SULLIVAN

Probable Heads of Ticket of the Bay State Democracy

Boston, Aug. 14.—Congressman John A. Sullivan clinched the ticket of "Whitney and Sullivan" yesterday by declaring that he would become a candidate for lieutenant governor if it could be shown that he would thereby contribute to the cause of reciprocity and tariff revision.

"Whitney and Sullivan" is the ticket that has been in the mind of leaders of the organization for several weeks, and with the announcement from Whitney and Sullivan that they would become candidates for the nomination on the tariff issue the organization slate may be said to be on its way to completion.

Both Whitney and Chairman Quincy have indicated that their choice for lieutenant governor was Sullivan, and the tip that has gone out into the state since the launching of the Whitney boom has been Whitney and Sullivan.

[Big Batch of Indictments

Boston, Aug. 14.—Thirty secret indictments, including those against 17 ice dealers and six ice companies, which were returned by the Suffolk county grand jury, were made public in the superior court. In addition to the ice indictments, four indictments were brought in connection with the alleged violation of the building laws in the construction of the new normal school building foundation in the Fenway, and three indictments were found in the Chelsea aldermanic "graft" cases. These are three of the so-called "special" cases to which District Attorney Moran has been giving much attention.

A Pathetic Ceremony

Revere, Mass., Aug. 14.—By the caving in of a section of a sewer being constructed here Anthony Cavanaugh, 44 years old, who was at work with several others in the trench at the time, was crushed to death by falling gravel and choking clay. Just as he died he received absolution from the pastor of an Italian church a few rods distant from the scene. While Cavanaugh was in the trench buried up to his neck two other workmen held his head above the mass of clay while the priest administered the rites.

Surprise For Yachting Sharps

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 14.—All calculations were upset and a boat that has not sailed in any of the preliminary races of the season proved itself a veritable dark horse by winning the first of the Eastern Yacht club's series of trial races which will determine the three boats that are to meet the German yachts in September's races for the Roosevelt cup. The Spokane, owned by Vice Commodore Clark of the Eastern Yacht club, won in a square sailing test.

Had Pelf Ready to Take Away

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 14.—Two policemen surprised two burglars who had broken into the residence of Joseph E. McCreery and captured them after one of the burglars had tried unsuccessfully to use a pistol and knife on the officers. The policemen had been informed that there were intruders in the house, which was closed for the summer, and they entered and found the burglars with jewelry and silverware packed ready for removal.

End of Adams Strike

Adams, Mass., Aug. 14.—The strike in the four mills of the Berkshire Cotton Manufacturing company has ended and 3000 employes will return to work Thursday morning. Treasurer Plunkett of the company granted the strikers several concessions, but remained firm in his decision to refuse to re-employ Samuel Whittam, president of the Weavers' union, whose discharge precipitated the strike three weeks ago.

A Five Percent Advance

Boston, Aug. 14.—A raise of wages affecting more than 2000 operatives in cotton mills of New England in addition to the many thousands who have previously been given the benefit of an increase went into effect yesterday in three New England communities: Adams, Mass., and Pittsfield and Exeter, N. H. The increase amounts to 5 percent.

Fishermen Lost In Fog

Boston, Aug. 14.—Fishing schooner Mystery reports the loss of two men, Michael Reddy and a man from Prince Edward Island, who were fishing in a dory off the south channel last Thursday and were lost in the fog. The Mystery cruised about for a night and a day, but found no trace of the missing men.

Stabbed In the Back

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 14.—Jealousy over Marie Massi, aged 17, the belle of the Italian colony at Swampscott, was the cause of a bitter duel in which Ernest Spelto was stabbed in the back by a knife in the hands of one of his rivals. Spelto was taken to a hospital, where 11 stitches were taken in the wound.

Vessel Burned at Sea

Boston, Aug. 14.—Captain Smith of steamer Casilda reports sighting a vessel on fire at 5 o'clock Sunday morning 30 miles southeast by south from Highland light, Cape Cod. The burning craft was of about 70 tons register. Nothing but the hulk was left.

Objected to New Overseer

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 14.—One hundred operatives in the cardroom of the Rotch yarn mills here have struck. The strikers decline to work under William Henry, a new overseer.

Short Storm Proves Fatal

Meridian, Miss., Aug. 14.—The loss of two lives has already been reported as the result of a storm which precipitated nearly four inches of rain within an hour here yesterday afternoon.

HOME FOR THE WEALTHY

Families of Millionaires Plan a Superb Hotel In Chicago.

APARTMENTS TO BE BUILT TO ORDER

Promoters of the Scheme to Follow Fancy of Each Person In Erecting the Apartment House—Garages to Be Scattered Through the Building. Athletic Quarters and "Gardens" to Be Provided.

It became known recently that about fifty millionaires and multimillionaires of Chicago and middle western cities are planning an apartment house for their families, and have organized the members into advisory boards to prepare plans for the building in which they propose to live for the remainder of their days, says a Chicago dispatch.

These possessors of great wealth have had opened to them a community of the most ultra exclusiveness in the proposed hotel of dazzling magnificence to be erected at an enormous cost on the Otto Young property in Michigan avenue, Chicago, where the prevailing feature in construction will be that persons with sufficient wealth may lease for a long term of years or for life apartments constructed according to the lightest wish or most fickle fancy of the occupant.

Many of the most wealthy families in Chicago have planned to take apartments in the proposed hotel, and besides them the cream of the wealth of cities throughout the middle west have been asked to join in the scheme, which will probably center in Chicago most of the great wealth of the country outside of New York city.

The cost of the hotel in the light of circumstances which have developed is at present beyond estimating. Into the millions, however, it is conceded the cost of such a project will run. But as only the upper strata of the millionaire colonies in the west are to be invited into the grand apartment scheme the expense is a matter of small importance.

Because of the wide variance of tastes in form, arrangements and finishing of apartments, the hotel will probably have a wider difference of uniformity than any other building in the world. The only similarity will be on the outside, where the walls are to be uniform from street to roof. Among the proposed features of the millionaires' home are:

Private elevators to the various floors and in some cases to apartments are to be provided.

Garages are to be scattered through the building.

Athletic quarters are to be provided in many parts of the building.

Cafes in the styles of every known race of epicures, with native chefs and stewards in charge of the building and subsequently their management.

"Gardens" and rooms and "corners" of the most magnificent fittings.

Although the private apartments will be maintained with private retinues of servants, importation of service men and women from England and the continent is to be made for the hotel proper.

THUMB PRINT EXPERT.

Chicago Woman to Instruct Secret Service Men In Washington.

After studying the thumb print system of identifying criminals for over fifteen years Mrs. M. E. Holland of Chicago has been appointed instructor in the secret service at Washington, says a Chicago dispatch.

Mrs. Holland is thirty-four years old and the wife of Phil Holland, editor of the Detective. Fifteen years ago she began the study of criminals under Detective Fernier of Scotland Yard, and since then she has devoted her entire time to it.

"One can take the imprint of a baby's thumb," says Mrs. Holland, "and the grown man can be identified by it when all other means fail."

It is said that the government is preparing to use it where thousands of laborers are employed as a means of identification on pay day.

New Signal System For Railways.

The Great Western railway is about to make an experiment in signaling which, says the London Express, it is believed will herald a worldwide revolution in railway working. This is nothing less than the substitution of audible for visible signals and the abolition of the familiar semaphore arm at the top of a signal post. Instead of the engine driver having to look out for his signals, the signals declare themselves to his ear unmistakably. "Line clear" is expressed in the new system of signaling by the tinkling of a bell. "Line blocked" is expressed by the blowing of a whistle, which continues until the driver with his own hand turns it off. Both bell and whistle are fixed inside the engine cabin close by the driver as he stands to his lever, and they afford a much more telling means of notification than would a dial on which signs appeared. The apparatus is so constructed that if anything goes wrong anywhere the whistle signal operates.

Leather Drinking Cups.

A revival of an old English custom is the use of leather as a material for drinking vessels—their reappearance being especially in the form of prizes for sports. The English shapes of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries are copied and the goblets, loving cups, tankards, etc., are handsomely mounted in silver.

Three Men Lose Money

Three Italians were rather unfortunate Sunday, according to the story they told the police on Monday. The men were Domenico Colletti of Hayden street, Antonio Cordarilli and Antonio Pagniomi of Liberty street. They came to City Square on an electric car and shortly after their arrival, upon taking account of their possessions, found themselves minus. Colletti found that he was out $20, Pagniomi was out $11, and Cordarilli was out some notes and money. Whether they lost the money on the car or after their arrival in City Square, while waiting for another car, they do not know.

HONORS AND WORTH.

Absurdity of Titles That Descend From Father to Son.

When you find a man a most excellent runner, poet, surgeon or mariner, you give him due respect for his skill. If he is very eminent, his occupation esteemed and you chance to be some ruling power, he may receive a title. You do not confer this title because of his grandmother, and you do not make the old lady a duchess or indeed pay her any particular attention. This omission does not reflect discredit on the grandmother. It is obvious to her mind that to make her a peeress because not she, but some one else, has done something "good" would be as absurd as giving her twelve months' hard labor if he had done something otherwise.

Still less rational would it be to make the man's son a peer. The old lady has given the world this grandson. Perhaps she is in a measure the cause of his greatness, just as she might be to a certain extent responsible were he a criminal. But the son of the man did not make his father. He is not to be more greatly praised for what his father has done than for what William the Conqueror did.

The world seldom or never gives a man a title because his father earned one, but it does an equally silly thing when it allows a son to inherit such an "honor," says Home Notes.

Until a man can transmit merit it is absurd to allow him to transmit a testimonial as to merit. And, if there be no pretense of claim to exceptional worth, what solid reason can be advanced for a man receiving a designation that commands deference?

The Deepest Well.

The deepest well in the world is situated in the village of Speremberg, about twenty miles from Berlin. It has a depth of 4,194 feet.

TODAY'S COURT.

Daniel Robertson was fined $10 for drunkenness at Quincy.

—The oldest Knight Templar in New York State, Millard L. Devereaux of Clyde, recently died, aged ninety-seven years. He remained in unimpaired mental and physical vigor until the last. He had been a master builder of importance, and in 1832 built two of the Williams college buildings.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,
as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, in buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. City Campaign Begins Early

Mayor Thompson should come home immediately from his vacation in New Hampshire and look out for his political fences. The city campaign has started in unusually early this year.

Archie Thayer has announed his candidacy for mayor of the city as a Peoples party candidate, and has secured a permit to speak in City Square this evening on the issues of the day.

Mr. Thayer was recently in business on Savil street near the Quincy depot, but because of his oratory he was evicted, and has since held forth in a tent at Houghs Neck, where he has received sympathy and encouragement.

It is said that several others have the bee in their bonnet, and there may be several candidates for the mayoralty nominations this fall.

Arraigned For Larceny

Deputy Chief McDermott of the Milton police returned from New York Tuesday having in custody George Forsythe and Mary C. McCormick who were apprehended in that city at the request of the Milton police. The parties left home Aug. 3, having first it is alleged taken $300 belonging to the McCormick girl's father.

They were arraigned in the Quincy court this morning upon a complaint charging them with larceny of more than $100. They waived examination in the lower court, and were held in $500 each for the grand jury.

Launch Chartered For Cup Races

The committee of the Quincy Yacht club, on arrangements for the challenge cup races at Manchester next week, met Tuesday evening.

The committee decided to charter the launch Madeline which will run out from Marblehead each day and follow the racers over the course.

The capacity of the Madeline is seventy and club members will be given the first opportunity to purchase tickets at $1 each.

Should the full capacity of the launch not be taken by club members, outsiders will be allowed to purchase tickets.

Babcock—Geeson,

Mr. Telley Eugene Babcock, of Plainfield, Connecticut, and Miss May Elizabeth Geeson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Geeson, of 47 Butler Road, Quincy, Massachusetts, were united in marriage in the New Old South Church, Boston, at twelve o'clock, noon, on Wednesday, August fifteenth, nineteen hundred and six, by Rev. Allen E. Cross, the officiating pastor, Rev. George A. Gordon the pastor, being absent from the city. No cards.

After a bridal tour Mr. and Mrs. Babcock will reside in Plainfield, Connecticut, where they will be at home to their friends after November first.

TODAY'S COURT.

George Forsythe and Mary C. McCormick were arraigned for the larceny of more than $100 from Frank J. McCormick at Milton. They waived examination and were held in $500 each for the grand jury.

Warren Carr was fined $75 for violation of the liquor law at Quincy.

Augustus A Custis was fined $10 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at the Blue Hills. Appealed.

William Phelan was fined $5 for drunkenness and $10 for assault on Officer Butler at Weymouth.

Improvements At First Church

Some extensive alterations are being made to the interior of the First church which will add greatly to the architectual beauty of the edifice. They are confined wholly to the easterly end of the church.

All the plastering on that end of the church has been torn down and the windows that were in that end of the building before the chapel was built are to be bricked up, making a solid wall between the main church and the chapel. The new wall will be delicately tinted and the finishings will be of mahogany to correspond with the pulpit.

In addition to this, two and possibly three additional memorial tablets are to be placed on the east wall by Hon. Charles Francis Adams.

In Board of Metropolitan Park Commissioners, August 2, 1906.

VOTED: That on and after August 15, 1906, Rules 1, 2 and 3 of rules and regulations governing the use of automobiles and vehicles propelled by other than animal power passed by this Board on September 18, 1905, be repealed and that the following rules be enacted in their stead, to take effect on said August 15, 1906.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Metropolitan Park Commission.

RULES AND REGULATIONS GOVERNING THE USE OF AUTOMOBILES AND VEHICLES PROPELLED BY OTHER THAN ANIMAL POWER.

Rule 1. No automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall be allowed within any reservation except upon town or county roads therein and upon Hillside Street in Blue Hills Reservation, Turtle Pond Road and Bold Knob Road in Stony Brook Reservation, Charles River Road in Watertown in Charles River Reservation, the border road in Middlesex Fells Reservation extending from Highland Avenue to Summer Street in Malden, the driveway of Lynn Shore Reservation, the driveway of Winthrop Shore Reservation, and the driveway of Revere Beach Reservation from Lynnway to Revere Street; and upon the driveway of Revere Beach Reservation from Revere Street to its intersection with Revere Beach Parkway during the period extending from September 15th to June 15th inclusive in each year and from and after eleven o'clock P. M. to eleven o'clock A. M. on the day following during the period extending from June 16th to September 14th inclusive in each year.

Rule 2. No automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall be allowed within any parkway except Middlesex Fells Parkway, Revere Beach Parkway, Mystic Valley Parkway, Fresh Pond Parkway, Blue Hills Parkway, Neponset River Parkway, Nahant Beach Parkway and Lynnway, provided, also, that no automobile or vehicle propelled as aforesaid shall be allowed on any driveway in any of said parkways that has not been fully completed and open to public use.

Rule 3. No person shall drive an automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power on Middlesex Fells Parkway, Revere Beach Parkway, Mystic Valley Parkway, Fresh Pond Parkway, Blue Hills Parkway, Neponset River Parkway, Charles River Road in Watertown, Lynnway or Revere Beach Reservation from Lynnway to Revere Street, at a rate of speed exceeding fifteen miles an hour, or on any other road or parkway where the same is allowed at a rate of speed exceeding ten miles an hour. Upon approaching a crossing of intersecting ways, also in traversing a crossing or intersection, and in going around a corner or a curve in a reservation or parkway every person operating an automobile or vehicle propelled by other than animal power shall run it at a rate of speed less than that hereinbefore specified, and in no event at a rate exceeding eight miles an hour.

Any person violating any of the above rules shall for each offence be punished by a fine of not more than twenty dollars. [Revised Laws, Chap. 28, Section 30.]

[NOTE.—The new rules change the old rules only in increasing the speed limit on Lynnway and that portion of the driveway of Revere Beach Reservation between Lynnway and Revere Street, and in extending the hours within which automobiles are allowed on Revere Beach Reservation between Revere Street and Eliot Circle.]

Heavy Fines For Expressmen

Quincy liquor cases occupied a greater part of the attention of the district court this morning and heavy fines were imposed in the cases heard.

The first case was that of Warren Carr of the Midland House, Houghs Neck, who plead guilty to a violation of the liquor law and was fined $75 which he paid.

The other two cases were those of Peter Hynes, Jr., and Archie McDougal of the Riverside express. Each of the two defendants were arraigned upon two complaints, one for keeping and exposing liquor for sale, and the other for interfering with an officer.

City Solicitor Thomas represented the government and J. W. McAnarney the defendants.

Hynes was fined $50, and McDougal $75, the latter also being given three months in the house of correction, for violation of the liquor law. They appealed.

The cases against them for interfering with an officer were dismissed.

Water Meters Being Installed

Work was commenced this week by Commissioner Burke, under an order passed by the City Council appropriating $10,000 to install water meters. The first consignment of meters, 75 in number, arrived last Thursday and work installing them commenced Monday.

Commissioner Burke when interviewed said that it was his intention at first to connect all business houses and blocks. After that places that were using more water than was allowed would be metered. Work was now being carried on installing meters in Ward One.

In regard to rates to be charged metered places Mr. Burke said that it was not the intention to make any radical changes until a sufficient number of places had been metered and time enough had elapsed to enable him to have some basis to work upon.

At present there would probably be no change in charges unless it was found that the place metered was using more water than it was entitled to under the rate they were paying. If they were using more then they would be charged for the excess.

He further said that no definite number of meters had been ordered, but that they would be received in lots of fifty.

As to the kind of meter adopted the Commissioner said that Mayor Thompson had made an elaborate study and investigation of the different makes of meters and had adopted the meter known as the "Empire" made by the National Company.

Several of the business blocks in City Square have already been connected including the office of the Daily Ledger.

—The other day the head of a boarding school noticed one of the boys wiping his knife on the tablecloth and pounced on him at once. "Is that what you do at home?" he asked, indignantly. "Oh, no," answered the boy quickly, "we have clean knives."

Saw Only Little Of Historic Quincy

The Marblehead Historical society made a pilgrimage to Quincy on Tuesday and inspected a number of places of historic interest about the city. The party, 25 in number, arrived in City Square by electrics at 2 o'clock.

The first place visited was the shrine beneath the steps of the First church. As the party headed in that direction, two of them, an elderly lady and a young lady, evidently mother and daughter, lagged behind and the door of the church had been closed and locked when they reached the steps.

The next few minutes were unhappy ones for them for, try as they would, they could not make the caretaker hear. First one would pound with their knuckles and then the elderly lady would come to the rescue with an umbrella handle. Then another door was tried the elderly lady becoming more impatient every minute. Then she walked around the building to the chapel door and finding it open quickly made known her find to the daughter. Alas the main church could not be reached this way. The front doors were again attacked, and the raps became more firm than ever. Then the door opened and with a sigh of relief they walked in and cooled off.

The party also visited the President Adams houses and returning to City Square took a car for home.

Among those in the party were Nathan P. Sanborn, Mary E. Graves, Mrs. Sarah E. Gregor, Mrs. Ruth A. Stone, Clara R. Cruff, F. W. Sanborn, Mrs. F. G. Ramsdell, Hannah Tutts, Fred Broughton, Louis S. Ramsdell. Others did not register.

A RELIGIOUS WAR

Prediction That France Will Soon Experience One

THE POPE'S ENCYCLICAL

Impression That It Seeks to Have State and Church Law Modified--France Unlikely to Move In That Direction

Paris, Aug. 15.—The pope's encyclical to the archbishops and bishops of France prescribing their attitude with regard to the church and state law attracts widespread attention here, and its probable effects are the subject of animated discussion by the press and public and particularly by the clerical and official classes responsible for the execution of the law. A pontifical messenger arrived here bearing the document to Archbishop Richard. The entourage of the archbishopric summarized their views in the following words: "The pope has spoken, and we bow with submission and joy to his instructions."

While this reflects the general attitude of the hierarchy, yet a considerable element among the clergy receives the decision of the pontiff with disappointment and regret, as being likely to inaugurate an era of religious strife. The decision causes serious confusion with regard to the practical carrying on of churches. The new law lays down specific provisions concerning the organization of cultural associations, but the pope's decision appears to make it impossible for the clergy to conform to the law.

The view generally prevails that the Vatican seeks to create a situation compelling the government to enter into negotiations for some form of church organization that will be acceptable both to the church and to the state. However, there is no indication of the government's willingness to move in that direction.

The government journals strongly disapprove of the encyclical. The Temps says: "The resolution to afflict all friends of religious peace is very apparent. Uncompromisingness dominates pontifical circles. In immense majority of reasonable French Catholics desired the benefit of the liberal provisions of the separation law. It goes without saying that the pontifical decision will not change the sentiment of liberal-minded Frenchmen, who above all wish for religious peace. The separation law contains broad, tolerant dispositions, and is accepted as such by unprejudiced men. The anti-clericals even raised objections to the liberality of the law.

"One wonders to what hopes or chimera the pope is now clinging. Has the lesson of the inventories taught Rome nothing? The only outcome of pontifical resistance is that the church has herself deprived her devotees of the worship to which they are attached by old customs. The strange paradox occurs that the religious authorities refuse the churches the powers offered them by the law. This sensible and clear-minded nation, desirous of peace before everything, never will admit the decision to be the fruit of truly Christian or logical and sensible inspiration."

La Croix, representing the clericals, says: "The pope's wish will be realized. Catholics are about to unite in obedience under the direction of the bishops. Despite possible trials, the church will emerge finally victorious."

The free-thinking and socialistic journals declare that France already has expressed her opinion in the recent elections and that the government, though embarrassed, must not give way and thus leave the anti-clericals in an awkward position.

The Echo De Paris considers a religious war to be inevitable unless the government compromises before Dec. 11, after which date, according to the law, any exercise of religion, unless under the auspices of associations, will incur the risks of fine or imprisonment, being considered clandestine.

Successful Break For Liberty

New York, Aug. 15.—An 18-year-old Italian girl, who has made desperate efforts to evade the execution of a sentence of deportation imposed by the Ellis Island immigrant officers, has slipped away from the custodians. She is Grazia Ferrenti, whom the immigrant officers excluded because she was regarded as likely to become a public charge. With her in the break for real liberty went a compatriot of her's named Salvatore La Porte.

Railroad Lawyers In Conference

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 15.—More than 60 lawyers, representing all the larger railroads east of the Mississippi river, particularly those traversing the territory south of the Ohio river and the New England states, have assembled here to make a detailed study of the provisions of the railroad rate bill, which goes into effect on Aug. 29.

No Further Special Concessions

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 15.—Radical changes in credit and allowances have been made by South Carolina cotton mills. For a long time the mills of this section have had to extend special favors to northern selling agents, jobbers and exporters in the way of extra dating and exorbitant freight allowances, in order to induce them to take their product on a parity with that of the New England and English mills. Now, however, the southern product has been improved and the manufacturers have become, in a day, independent. They will abolish all special concessions.

Habeas Corpus Frees Browne

New York, Aug. 15.—Charles E. Browne, the former examiner of silks in the government customs service in this city, was ordered released from Sing Sing prison by Judge Hough on a writ of habeas corpus. Browne was recently brought back from Canada, whither he had fled after giving bail, and was taken direct to prison. His counsel claimed this was in violation of the extradition treaty between the United States and Canada.

Pittsburg, Aug. 15.—Papers of consolidation of three railroads in different parts of Pennsylvania will be filed this week, which will constitute the formal announcement of a project of prominent foreign bankers to build a low grade double track railroad from New York to Chicago, by way of Pittsburg, which will cost about $150,000,000.

Almost a Hundred Perished

Syzran, Russia, Aug. 15.—Since the fire which destroyed the greater part of this city, 98 persons have been missing and it is thought they perished in the conflagration and that their bodies were consumed. Seven persons suspected of incendiarism were killed during the progress of the fire.

A Lynching Is Scheduled

Greenwood, S. C., Aug. 15.—A posse of 1000 men is pursuing "Bob" Davis, a negro, who attempted to criminally assault Miss Jennie Brooks, 20 years old. If he is caught he will probably be lynched. Davis' brother was lynched 12 years ago for assault on a white woman.

Bondsmen Superseded

The personal bondsman is fast becoming obsolete; the risk to private fortune is too great.

The corporate bond is just as rapidly supplanting the old form; and, in time, men will marvel that they were ever called upon to incur the danger of personal suretyship.

In point of safety, convenience and propriety, there can be no comparison between the two; the one is just as weak and perilous as the other is strong and safe.

The time comes when it will be thought as reasonable to borrow the key of a friend's safe as to borrow his name for surety purposes.

A BITTER CONTEST

Five Seek Democratic Nomination In Georgia

SMITH AGAINST THE FIELD

Charges That Other Candidates For Governor Are Banded Together to Beat Him--He Would Disfranchise Negroes

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 15.—The most remarkable state campaign that Georgia has seen in 20 years has entered upon its last week. Not since the war, perhaps, has there been a race for the office of governor in which so much bitterness has been displayed and in which arguments over the platforms of the opposing candidates have been replaced so completely by personal abuse. It is a five-cornered affair.

The five candidates are Hoke Smith, former secretary of the interior in the cabinet of Grover Cleveland; Clark Howell, former speaker of the house and former president of the senate of Georgia, and now a national Democratic committeeman and editor of the Atlanta Constitution; Colonel J. H. Estill, editor and owner of the Savannah Morning News; Judge Richard B. Russell, formerly of the superior court, and Colonel James H. Smith of Oglethorpe county, about the only millionaire farmer in the state.

Three of the candidates have personal newspaper organs. Hoke Smith is the former owner of the Atlanta Journal, and that paper is making his fight its fight. Estill's organ is the Savannah Morning News, which he owns. Colonel Smith recently started a paper of his own to present his platform to the people.

Hoke Smith charges that the four other candidates are banded together to beat him. He declares their candidacy to be a trick of the state machine to bring about his defeat by preventing him from getting a two-thirds majority in the state convention. He has the most radical platform of any of the candidates. He stands for a law to keep the negroes from voting. There is no doubt that this is a popular issue in the country, where the negroes' vote is large and where it counts. He has worked that plank for all it is worth among the country voters.

He has another plank for use in appealing to the cities. There is scarcely a city in the state but has some protest to make against railroad rates. The present railroad commission, it is charged, will not give relief. Smith declares that the day he is inaugurated governor he will call for the resignation of Warner Hill and Joe Brown, railroad commissioners, for neglect of duty in not giving the people just rates.

Hoke Smith's strongest card in fighting the machine, as he terms his opposition, is Thomas E. Watson, former Populist candidate for President of the United States. This stormy petrel of politics is stirring up more strife in Georgia politics now than ever before. He is helping Hoke Smith. He is writing cards to the newspapers and making speeches to the people.

Bryan Will Be the Nominee

Dallas, Aug. 15.—With 700 delegates, the number being limited by law, and more than 4000 spectators, what promises to be the most exciting state convention held by the Democracy of Texas since 1892, when the party split, opened here. The first ballot for governor will probably be taken this afternoon. Senator Bailey received an ovation. He said that it has been determined already who the nominee is to be, meaning Bryan, and the declaration evoked applause.

Hettie Green's Son For Governor

Houston, Tex., Aug. 15.—The faction of the Republican party of Texas known as the "reorganized party" held its state convention here. E. H. R. Green of Terrell, president of the Texas Midland railroad and son of Mrs. Hettie Green of New York, was nominated for governor. The platform dealt with national and state issues along the usual lines. There was considerable enthusiasm when the name of Secretary of War Taft was mentioned.

Democrats and Populists Will Fuse

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 15.—Prospects seem good for fusion between Nebraska Democrats and Populists. The conventions will meet simultaneously today, but in different buildings. It is a foregone conclusion that the Democrats will give the heartiest endorsement of Bryan as a presidential nominee, and it is possible that the Populists may declare for him.

Would Clip Shah's Wings

St. Petersburg, Aug. 15.—According to advices from Teheran, the complete demands of the progressives far surpass the scope of the reforms proposed by the government. These demands involve the practical abolition of all the real power of the shah, leaving him only a figurehead, and even propose the abrogation of the so-called "divine law," on which his authority is based.

Carrying Freight Under Chicago

Chicago, Aug. 15.—The freight bores of the Illinois Tunnel company carried merchandise of all kinds in carload lots for the first time today. This movement marks the practical completion of the Illinois Tunnel company's system of underground freight railroads, the construction of which was begun five years ago, and which has cost its owners about $30,000,000.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title – Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Stensland Aided by a Woman In Preparations For Flight

Chicago, Aug. 15.—Testimony indicating that extensive preparations for flight were made by President Stensland, and that a woman entered into these preparations, has been secured by Assistant State Attorney Olsen, through the cross-examination of Mrs. Ellen McCracken, housekeeper for Stensland.

It was learned that Stensland took with him in trunks and boxes, sheets and other bedding, towels, window curtains, carpets, rugs and a silver dinner set. Some of this is said to have been traced to Baraboo, Wis., but of a big trunk said to have been taken by Stensland, the detectives have not been able to get a trace.

Telegrams have been sent to all parts of the world, asking the authorities to look for the trunk, which is said to be three feet high and bound with iron. The box traced to Baraboo weighed 375 pounds when it was placed on an express wagon at the Stensland home the day of the flight.

Big Checks Must Accompany Bids

Washington, Aug. 15.—Scores of applications for information concerning the proposed contract for 2500 Chinese laborers have already reached the isthmian canal commission, and indications are that hundreds of persons are planning to make bids for this contract in the hope of realizing a small fortune from it. But prospective bidders without extensive financial backing will be much disappointed, for it will be required by the commission that a large certified check shall accompany each bid. The amount of this check will probably be not less than $50,000.

To Shoot Lynching Mobs

Raleigh, Aug. 15.—Governor Glenn is preparing a drastic general order to the commander-in-chief of the North Carolina National Guard concerning the conduct of captains and military companies called into service for the purpose of putting down mob violence. Subjoined to the order is a warning to citizens to keep clear of any mob formation, as the military commanders will be obliged to fire after due warning has been given, or themselves suffer a court martial. The governor declares that every man composing a mob is without the pale of the law.

Thought Indictment Was Burned

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—A warrant has been issued for the arrest of W. H. Vice, formerly coast passenger agent of the Union Pacific road. Three years ago Vice disappeared and an indictment charging him with the embezzlement of $10,000 was returned by a grand jury. It is said that Vice went to Honduras and that recently he returned here, believing that the indictment against him had been burned in the conflagration of April last.

Subject For Newspaper Gossip

London, Aug. 15.—The coming meeting of King Edward and Emperor William is the subject of editorial articles in all the daily newspapers, and speculations as to its probable effect on all the existing open problems of European politics, especially with regard to the near east, on account of the critical state of the health of the Sultan of Turkey, are rife. It is generally held, however, to be an indication of improved Anglo-German relations.

Lightning Killed Telegraph Operator

Richmond, Aug. 15.—Stewart Battalle, railroad telegraph operator at Acree, was instantly killed last night by lightning while he was at his desk in the depot. He was found dead in his seat with his head thrown back and his right hand near the telegraph key. The telegraph apparatus was wrecked.

Fined For Hissing Old Glory

Bayonne, N. J., Aug. 15.—James Piere, an Englishman, was fined $25 in police court for hissing the American flag during the performance at a theatre here. Piere's action in hissing the Stars and Stripes as they were waved by a performer at the conclusion of a song almost caused a riot in the audience.

Will Have Peaceful Settlement

St. Johns, Aug. 15.—The Newfoundland and Canadian governments are now negotiating a modus vivendi respecting the Labrador boundary, which will enable the lumbering interests operating on Hamilton Inlet to continue work, pending a settlement delimiting the territory involved in the dispute.

Russian Emigrants Hampered

Thorn, Prussia, Aug. 15.—A new ministerial edict is being enforced here. All Russian emigrants entering Prussia must be provided with a passport and a sum of money—for adults $100, and for minors $75. If not provided with this money they are returned to Russia.

An All-Day Battle

Sofia, Aug. 15.—According to official reports, the fighting between Greeks and Bulgarians at Ahiolu on Aug. 12 lasted from dawn until 8 o'clock in the evening, in the course of which seven persons were killed, the number of wounded not being ascertained.

Daring Daylight Robbery

London, Aug. 15.—Jewelry valued at $35,000 was stolen from a case belonging to some Viennese merchants at the Earl's Court exhibition. The robbery was committed in daylight.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Thursday, Aug. 16.
Sun rises—4:52; sets—6:45.
Moon rises—1:26 a. m.
High water—8:30 a. m.; 8:45 p. m.
The temperature will rise in the New England states. The weather will be fair.

RELIEF NOT NEAR

Treasury Hampered by Scarcity of Small Bills

IT CANNOT FILL ORDERS

Law Needed to Increase Volume of Circulation--Short Supply of Fractional Currency Will Soon Be Seriously Felt

Washington, Aug. 15.—A large New York national bank applied to the treasury for $20,000 in $1 and $2 certificates and offered in exchange two $10,000 gold certificates. The bank did not get the small notes because the treasury did not have them to spare. All demands for small bills in excess of $400 or $500 lots are being refused.

Within the next few months the treasury will be unable to add to the volume of $1, $2 and $5 certificates and a shortage of more or less serious consequence will follow. Secretary Shaw says he will be unable to furnish much relief until congress enacts a law authorizing him to issue more silver certificates of small denominations or providing some other means of increasing the volume of circulating money.

When the crop movement gets under full swing the pinch will be felt. The activity of the fall trade, followed by the Christmas season, will bring the real crisis, for it is now certain that the last additional dollar which the government can issue will be exhausted long before that period arrives. The treasury now holds $6,044,965, which represents the amount available for increasing the present volume of $1, $2 and $5 bills in circulation. When that money is gone Shaw will be put to hard straits to find means of providing more small bills for the business of the country.

Secretary Shaw was asked what he would do when the last of the reserve had been dissipated. He replied that he would then endeavor to have the holders of the $5 certificates send them to Washington for redemption. For each $5 note he will have five ones struck off, thereby adding to the number of notes without increasing the total amount outstanding. Last winter Shaw asked congress to pass a law authorizing the issuance of $5 and $10 gold certificates. The house passed such a bill, but Senator Aldrich did not approve of the idea and the measure died in the senate committee on finance. Had it become a law the treasury could have converted any part of $150,000,000 into gold certificates of small denomination, for it has that amount of gold on hand.

Yesterday a Washington banker sent a messenger to the cashier at the treasury department with a request for $200 worth of dimes. The messenger was sent back without a single dime, but was told that next week he could get a few. This shows how short the government also is in fractional currency. To supply the demands, in the nine subtreasuries and the four mints the government has only a trifle more than $5,000,000 worth of dimes, quarters and halves. This stock will not last long, but before business interests of the country suffer, relief will be at hand, as the bullion being purchased will soon be coined.

Reunions of Old Soldiers

Minneapolis, Aug. 15.—Despite a sultry day, the reunions of the various regiments of the G. A. R. attending the national encampment were carried through with great success. Some of the gatherings were largely attended but others were confined to not more than half a dozen of the original regimental members. Two more members of the Grand Army died yesterday, making three who have passed away since the commencement of the present encampment. The fight for commander-in-chief has become active and bitter.

Posse and Dogs on a Hunt

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 15.—A posse is hunting with dogs for an unknown man who entered the home of Henry Davis, a farmer, near Baldwin, struck him on the head with an axe as he was asleep, and made an attempt to criminally assault Mrs. Davis. Davis is in a critical condition and his wife collapsed from her desperate fight. Mrs. Davis is uncertain whether the assailant is black or white.

Alleged Embezzler to Be Deported

New York, Aug. 15.—On the cabled complaint of the chief of police of Budapest, Hungary, a second-cabin passenger on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, who was on the passenger list as Gustave Freedman, but whose real name is said to be Fabara, was arrested on the charge of embezzlement. The moneys are alleged to have been taken in Hungary, and amount to $4600. Fabara was ordered deported.

Death In Mad Mullan's Wake

London, Aug. 15.—According to a report from Aden, ,after devastating 19 villages, the Mad Mullah, inflated by his success, attacked the Sultan of Mijertain's territory. Both sides lost heavily. The sultan had nine near relatives and 700 warriors killed, but eventually repulsed the mullah.

Murderer Killed From Ambush

Marietta, I. T., Aug. 15.—The killing of Dr. Graham of Holder, who was shot dead about a month ago by Ben Steward, was avenged yesterday afternoon when unknown persons shot Steward from ambush, killing him instantly.

BANKER COLE DEAD

Former Head of Wrecked Concern Succumbs to Long Strain

Boston, Aug. 15.—Charles H. Cole, Sr., formerly president of the Globe National bank, died at St. Margaret's hospital, Louisburg square, last night, after a week's confinement, due to acute general tuberculosis contracted while in prison at Greenfield. Cole was conscious till a few hours before dissolution.

A week ago Cole gave evidence of breaking down under the mental strain he had undergone for years, due to his troubles at the Globe bank, and with the mental disturbance came physical prostration.

The wasting attacked his entire frame and system, and after a consultation it was decided to at once remove him to St. Margaret's. All that medical skill could suggest was done, but Cole's vitality was gone.

Cole had been staying at his old home at Hingham since his release from the Greenfield jail, last spring, where he had served his full term, less commutation, for the conviction of responsibility for the crash of the Globe National bank.

It was on May 14, 1900, that he was sentenced to eight years in the Greenfield jail on a charge of the misappropriation of $900,000 of the funds of the bank.

Results of Practice Kept Secret

Rockport, Mass., Aug. 15.—The battleships and torpedo boat destroyers of the Atlantic fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Evans, returned to Rockport harbor last night after a day spent in secret signal practice and in maneuvers, which included a search by the battleships for the torpedo boat destroyers, which were regarded as a hostile force. The destroyers are said to have eluded the big ships of the fleet, although on this point, as on othtr matters in relation to the maneuvers, the officers were not communicative, as the work is regarded as a naval secret.

May Have Been Maine Vessel

Boston, Aug. 15.—Several vessels report that they sighted the burning schooner off Highland light seen Aug. 12 by steamer Casilda, which arrived here Monday. The captain of the Rockport schooner Etta B ran ran close to the derelict, but saw no sign of life. The stern was charred and the name on it appeared to be "Harvest Home." The schooner Harvest Home hails from Ellsworth, Me.

Fifteen Miles of Dead Herring

Boston, Aug. 15.—Dead herring floated on the water for 15 miles in the path of the Danish steamer Texas, from Copenhagen. Captain Anderson encountered the herring on the eastern edge of the Grand Banks. He is unable to say whether they were killed by a submarine disaster or a fishing vessel had foundered nearby. A dory full of water adds plausibility to the latter theory.

Married Teachers Not Wanted

Boston, Aug. 15.—Under the new school regulations prepared by the Boston school committee the marriage of a woman teacher shall operate as a resignation of her position and the business agent of the board, when notified of such an event, has been instructed to strike the name of the newly wedded from the payroll.

No Fear of Police Station

Boston, Aug. 15.—The police of division 6 are considerably worked up by a bold robbery which took place almost under their noses when someone entered the barroom of M. H. Hughes and rifled the cash register. The robbers entered by breaking a pane of glass in the front door, and then pushing back the bolt.

Herman Charged With Murder

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 15.—Alexander Herman was bound over to the criminal superior court on the charge of murder in the first degree. He was accused of shooting and killing Martin Korschinski as the latter entered his own home, Herman having laid in wait for the victim.

Charged With Murder

Providence, Aug. 15.—Charles E. Smith was arraigned in court here, charged with the murder of Edward King by pushing him into the street. Smith was held in $3000 bonds for the grand jury.

Boston's Tax Rate Lowered

Boston, Aug. 15.—It is announced at city hall that Boston's tax rate for the current year will be $15.90 on the thousand, a reduction of 10 cents from the present rate.

The Pulajane Uprising

Manila, Aug. 15.—Governor Ide has returned to Manila after a conference at Tacloban, Island of Leyte, with Major General Wood, Brigadier General Lee, Governor De Veyra, 15 presidents and Colonel Taylor of the constabulary. The presidents promised to furnish information leading to the extermination of the Pulajanes. The outlaw band is being greatly increased by the leaders forcing peaceful farmers to participate in raids, threatening them with death if they refuse.

Promiscuous Shooting by Soldiers

Brownsville, Tex., Aug. 15.—Evidently angered because of a search made among their ranks to apprehend a negro who attacked Mrs. Leon Vans at her home here, and who, she asserted, was a negro soldier, members of a battalion of negro federal troops stationed at Fort Brown, near here, entered Brownsville, became unruly and fired several volleys down Main street. As a result Frank Natus is dead and a policeman's arm and hand were shattered by a bullet.

City of Presidents

Birthplace of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

THE INCONVENIENCE OF SUPERSTITION

[Original.]

Returning to the city after a six months' absence I hastened to congratulate my intimate friend Tom Funk on his engagement, which he had announced to me by letter a few days after my departure. I found him in his den at home smoking an after dinner cigar. He listened to all the pleasant things I had to say to him about entering upon the happy engagement period, then, after waiting for me to light a cigar he handed me, settled back in his chair and said:

"You're too late. It's off."

"Off?"

"Yes, off—off for good."

"What's the trouble?"

"There is or was just one fault in Molly, and, though I admit there are a great many in me, her one fault is a staggerer."

"Extravagance?"

"No. Quite economical."

"Fond of admiration?"

"No more than any woman."

"Hot tempered?"

"On the contrary, she's very amiable."

"I give it up. Tell me what it is."

"She's chock full of petty superstitions. You know how long I was trying to get her. Well, the reason was that she was consulting fortune tellers to find out whether the match would be a lucky or an unlucky one. The witch she had most confidence in told her that there was a dark gentleman wanting her (that's me), but if she married him she'd be very unhappy. It took me a year to find out about this, but when I did I fixed the witch with a five dollar bill and she told Molly she'd got the light and dark gentlemen mixed, and Molly was to marry the dark one. This settled it, and I supposed the coast was clear when Molly informed me that my original proposal had been made on a Friday and I must do it over. I was to call and take her by surprise just as I had done on the first occasion. I agreed, and do you know I struck the thirteenth day of the month. I had to wait a few weeks in order to surprise her again, and this time I didn't strike any bad luck. I proposed for the third time.

"Stupid ass that I was, I went off and bought an opal engagement ring. When I offered it Molly almost fainted. She said that even to offer an opal would involve a never ending chain of bad luck. The engagement must be broken and we must begin all over. This made me tired, but I was very much in love and consented to what I couldn't help. It took us two months to get around to where I could give her another ring. I bought one with a number of stones in the setting, a big one in the center, with two outer circles, the whole forming a cluster. As soon as she saw it she began to count the stones and in another moment turned pale and dropped the ring.

"'What is the matter now?' I gasped.

"'There are thirteen jewels.'

"I swore. Then I told her that she must either wear that ring or go without one. Her amiability conquered, and I consented to begin over once more. The next time I got ahead of the fates by giving a solitaire diamond. That was four months after she had accepted me.

"I was invited to her house to a dinner to celebrate our engagement. Molly and I sat side by side. I accidentally upset the saltcellar between us.

"'Throw it over your shoulder, quick!' she screamed. I grabbed the heavy cut glass saltcellar and, throwing it over my shoulder, smashed a mirror on the sideboard.

"'The salt! The salt!' she cried. 'Not the saltcellar.'

"'Confound the salt!' I blurted.

"She grabbed a fistful of the salt and tried to throw it over my shoulder; but, being in a hurry, she threw it into my eyes. Great heavens, how it smarted! I lost my temper and said a lot of things that shocked my prospective mother-in-law, but the father-in-law looked at me approvingly, and I knew he was on my side, though he didn't dare say so.

"Molly wet her napkin in a finger bowl and wiped the salt out of my eyes. She was so lovely about it all that I quieted down, and, though the rest of the dinner was not exhilarating, there was at least no bad feeling.

"Of course I insisted on replacing the mirror, and, of course, I was not permitted to do so. My own celebration of our engagement was to be a party to the opera. I paid $25 for a box and invited the whole of Molly's family—seven persons. Everything looked promising, the weather was fine and we had every reason to believe we would have a good time. But just as we were entering the opera house Molly and I both stubbed our toes on a half step between the entrance passage and the foyer. Do you know, that girl turned and led the whole party out on to the sidewalk, where she declared that nothing could induce her to go in again, for the opera house would burn down if she did and there would be a holocaust. So we all went home.

"I treated her so coldly after that that I supposed she would break the engagement. She bore it all beautifully. But I had had enough of it and determined to get my freedom. I went to a seventh daughter of a seventh daughter and paid her well to give me an unlucky horoscope. She said that I was born on the unluckiest day of the year at the dark of the moon, with all the unlucky stars in the firmament in the ascendant. This I sent to Molly, who in a tearful letter broke the engagement. Thank heaven I'm a free man."

The Habit of Health

Many people have a habit of ailing. How much better it would be to learn to keep well. For health, after all, is largely a matter of habit, which all may acquire with a little practise.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

teach good habits to Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. If you are subject to Bilious Attacks, suffer from Constipation or are troubled with Indigestion, Nervousness or Headache, Beecham's Pills will reform all these bad habits and set an example of good health, which the body will quickly follow. You can break up all sickly habits by occasionally using the health suggestions transmitted by Beecham's Pills.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, in buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

The Auk

One of the First Three In Wednesday Afternoon Race

Four trial races to select three defenders of the Roosevelt cup have now been held; the two yesterday being won by the Bonidrei and Spokane. This makes two for the Spokane, and the Cod led in the other race.

When the positions in each race are added together it will be seen below that the Caramba makes the best show with Bonidrei and Hayseed III tied for second place. The Auk of Quincy is No. 9. and ahead of both the Manchester and Sally VIII. The Auk has improved in each race.

The four races are tabulated below and the position shown at a glance in each race:

	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th.	Points
Caramba	9	2	3	5	—	—	19
Bonidrei	8	6	1	6	—	—	21
Hayseed III	2	7	10	2	—	—	21
Chewink VI	12	3	6	4	—	—	25
Vim	5	9	2	10	—	—	26

Lorelei	14	15	17	17	—	—	63
Alecto	16	—	16	15	—	—	†47

*Cod was disabled in first race.
†Alecto did not start in second race.

Two races were sailed on Wednesday. The Bonidrei, sailed by the youngest skipper in the fleet, took the lead early in the morning race, and maintained it to the finish. The Vim was a good second and the Caramba third.

The Auk was No. 8. She made a poor showing on the first leg, a reach, but was third in elapsed time on the second leg, and also third in time on the beat home.

The elapsed time of the yachts in the morning race was:

Yacht and owner.	h.	m.	s.
Bonidrei, G. H. Wightman	2	05	22
Vim, Trenor L. Park	2	07	21
Caramba, C. H. W. Foster	2	11	05
Cod, Dr. Morton Prince	2	13	02
New Orleans, F. S. Heaslip	2	14	35
Chewink VI, F. G. Macomber,	2	15	00
Sumatra, Francis Skinner	2	15	04
Auk, C. F. Adams 2d	2	16	18
Sally VIII, L. F. Percival	2	17	05
Hayseed III, H. L. Bowden	2	19	01
Windrim Kid, F. G. Macomber,	2	20	03
Ellen, C. P. Curtis, Jr.	2	20	06
Manchester II, Dr. J. L. Bremer	2	21	28
Skiddoo, H. M. Sears,	2	22	23
Spokane, F. Lewis Clark	2	23	04
Alecto, E. W. Hodgson and R. L. Pond	2	25	08
Lorelei, B. P. Cheney & C. D. Lanning	2	26	47

In the afternoon race three miles to the leeward and return, the Spokane finished first, the Hayseed second and the Auk third. The Quincy boat was only 83 seconds behind the leader. On the first leg the Auk was next to the last in turning, but on the second leg she made the best time of the fleet.

The elapsed time of the yachts in the afternoon race is given below:

Boat and owner.	h.	m.	s.
Spokane, F. Lewis Clark	1	44	12
Hayseed, III, H. L. Bowden	1	45	24
Auk, Charles Francis Adams, 2d	1	45	35

Boston & Maine's Big Year.

The earnings of the Boston & Maine Railroad made a phenomenal increase in the year ending June 30, showing good management on the part of President Lucius Tuttle, and General Passenger Agent Dana J. Flanders. The road's gross income has been, for the years ended June 30:

1901	$31,375,620.00
1902	32,430,595.00
1903	34,266,608.00
1904	35,471,492.00
1905	36,800,834.00
1906	39,836,288.00

The net earnings from operation were over nine million dollars, and over two millions were available for dividends. It was the best year in the history of the country, and speaks well for business in New England.

Sub Master at High School Married

At the pretty town of St. Hyacinth in the Province of Quebec on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30, there was a notable gathering at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Crowe, when their daughter, Miss Catherine Elizabeth, was united in marriage to Mr. Melvin T. Holbrook of Sharon, the sub-master at the Quincy High school.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Fee of Christ church at St. Hyacinth. A wedding reception followed from three to five o'clock, when Mr. and Mrs. Holbrook left on a bridal tour.

Their future residence will be on Putnam street, Quincy, and they will be at home after December 1.

Martin H. Cook.

The funeral of Martin H. Cook was held Tuesday from St. John's church with a solemn high requiem mass, and was very largely attended by friends and business associates. The floral offerings were many and testified to the high esteem by which he was held.

Mr. Cook was a well known granite dealer of Quincy, doing business under the firm name of McDonnell & Cook, located on Water street, South Quincy, for 20 years.

About 8 years ago the firm dissolved partnership, and Mr. Cook retired from the stone business and interested himself in real estate, being a large property holder. Mr. Cook was unmarried and resided on Brackett street with his father and sister. His mother died about four years ago.

Mr. Cook was a very quiet and unassuming business man, whose word was always reliable.

The Works of Richard E. Brooks

The "Listener" of the Transcript has a complimentary reference to a Quincy artist. After reference to changing fashion in dress, he says:

But if you begin to lose faith in the existence of any ultimate laws of beauty, on Bromfield street, step around Park street corner and take a look at the work, at exhibition at Doll & Richards, of Richard E. Brooks, the sculptor of the Cass statue on the Public Garden. Here is a tray of what look at first glance, to be Greek coins, but which turn out to be portraits of contemporary Americans, some of them children. A whole necklace of them is composed of the children of one family. Literally can the happy mother, whose portrait is there in one of the larger medals, say as she wears them, "these are my jewels."

"The Greek art, and the art reverently based on the Greek art, can never grow old or old-fashioned, or, for any fraction of a moment, shock the taste of any age, or excite the risibilities of the most frivolous or ignorant. Evidently when such work can be produced by a native of our Braintree, bred in the true principles of the art and beauty in the great ateher of the modern world, Paris (whose Salon's gold medal has been awarded to the Braintree artist,) we need not despair of there being fundamental laws of beauty if only we truly seek them. That he is possessed by the Greek art is doubly attested by his statuette of "The Boxer." Here is such a figure as is seen among the statues collected from recent excavations in the museum at Athens, and not commonly photographed or reproduced in plaster as most of the more famous classic statutes have been. It is one of those Greek athletes that fairly seem to move and sway with life.

"One that the Listener encountered in Athens seems to be about to take another stride, and will do so when you turn your head, you almost believe—a tall, slender man doing his heel-and-toe mile, with the spring of a man in fine condition. This new boxer of Brooks' has his big back curved, his hands are down and spread, his face is ablaze with tense expectancy; he is evidently "opening up," awaiting or inviting the attack of his antagonist and is well matched. At all events, he is fairly dancing on his pins with excitement as only the perfectly well made statue can do, and his excitement is quickly contagious, as the meaning and spirit of some genuine bit of high art only can be."

Funeral of Officer Maloney

The funeral of Officer Thoman F. Maloney, who lost his life Monday afternoon by falling from a train while on his way home from Boston, was held this morning from the Sacred Heart church.

The services were very largely attended, the church being filled with many of the friends of the dead officer. The services were conducted by the Rev. John P. Cuffe. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers. These included a large piece representing a policeman's shield. It was composed of asters, carnations, roses and ferns, and across the face were the words, "Quincy Police." This was sent by the Police department.

The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery, West Quincy. The bearers were Officer Lyons, Goodhue, Milford, Kelliher, Bishop and Whalan.

For Larceny of Constable's Dog

George W. Taylor, a constable, got so worked up over an arrest he made this morning, that he fainted away after turning the prisoner over to the police. The man arrested was Francisco De Guana, and it is alleged he stole a dog belonging to Mr. Taylor's son, Clifford. Shortly after the Italian disappeared with the dog, Ernest Taylor, another son, was informed of the circumstances and notified the police. He then drove with his father, George W. Taylor, along South street where they overtook the Italian and dog. Mr. Taylor promptly arrested the man and brought him to the police station.

Just as he had turned the man over to Officer Cahill, Mr. Taylor's nerves relaxed and he fell over in a faint.

Swimmer Drowned In the Neponset

Timothy Mahoney, aged 20 years, of Neponset, was drowned Wednesday night while in swimming on the Quincy shore of Neponset river between the two bridges. Mahoney, who boarded at 36 Minot street, had been in this country about six months.

About 9 o'clock Mahoney and John Dolan went in swimming. Suddenly Mahoney cried for help and Dolan swam for him. He succeeded in getting hold of one of Mahoney's hands but was unable to save him. The body was recovered later.

Slight Fire At Shipyard

The shrill whistling at the Fore River Shipyard about 11.30 last night led many to believe that a brisk fire was in progress, but as the city fire alarm did not sound fears of a fire were soon quieted. It appears that a slight fire had started in some shavings, and while one watchman put out the fire another sounded the whistle. The fire was all out before the whistle stopped.

Has Lost Sight Of One Eye

The case of George Johnson, who it is alleged in a spirit of fun rubbed grease and oil on the face of Harry Ramanan, came up in court this morning and was continued for a month, as the Ramanan boy is unable to appear.

At the Eye and Ear Infirmary, where he is undergoing treatment, it is said that he has lost the sight of one of his eyes and the other is in a very bad condition. The physicians hope to be able to save the use of one eye.

Fell from Tree.

Raymond, the 8 year old son of John E. Ford of Pearl street, fell from a tree at Faxon Park, Wednesday afternoon, breaking his leg. He was found by a woman who took him home in a baby carriage. He was then taken to the hospital.

People's Candidate

Favors a Park Near City Square And Ice Water In Fountain

Archie Thayer, the self chosen People's candidate for Mayor, opened his campaign Wednesday night, when he gave a fifteen-minute address in City Square, near the fountain.

It was about 7.45 when Archie appeared on the scene with his platform, a cracker box, under his arm.

Quite a crowd of curious spectators soon collected. Attention was immediately called to the new tin dipper that adorned the drinking fountain which he said was his first public contribution.

He told the audience that if elected he would have a public park in City Square and that the fountain would run ice water so that the parched throats of the people might be quenched.

If the people put him in City Hall he could assure them that they would have a Mayor there with a backbone. The place needed cleaning out and he would do it. Two years was as long as he desired to be Mayor.

The small boy and larger boy hoodlum element was present in a body among the audience gathered about the speaker, and his remarks were frequently punctuated with remarks intended to be funny.

Archie further said that he intended to secure an office in City Square for headquarters from which he would conduct his campaign. He intended that it should be an aggressive one and that Saturday night he would again address the people.

Several policemen were about who had been instructed by the Chief not to interfere unless the meeting became too boistrous.

Lost Child.

The lost child call was sounded Wednesday night at 8.37 to summon searchers to find Agnes Nelson, aged 4 years, of 34 West street, who had been missing since early in the afternoon. The child was found later in Braintree.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

It takes just $13.20 of the Boston tax rate this year, the same as last year, to pay the city tax, yet the mayor claims he reduced the tax rate. The fact is that eight cents less were required per $1,000 for State expenses, and two cents less for county expenses and the total reduction was only ten cents.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Boston's municipal debt is over $100,000,000 and increasing every year and Boston is only an exemplar of American municipal administration in general. Any financial man will tell you that a Boston bond is good, there is ordinarily a market for them at any price pretty close to par, and there is never any trouble cashing the interest coupons. The payment on the principal of the bonds is a problem for posterity. who, very likely, will learn finance from the present generation and will simply issue more bonds to pay for these and pass the debt with its accumulations along to the next generation. Practically every other city in the commonwealth is similarly situated to Boston, and yet no change in municipal policy is at all likely, But what will be the outcome? Is it creditable to our business sagacity to assume that it does not matter just because this generation will not be called on to foot the bills? Sometime these bonds will have to be paid. Valuation is not gaining on expense in public administration in any community, and some day the people will have to face the alternative of excessive assessment to meet these debts or of renunciation of the debt and confessed bankruptcy. The municipal debt of American cities is a disgrace to our supposedly model system of self government.—Haverhill Gazette.

Hot Campaign In Green Mountain State Will Continue

CLEMENT ARMY SMALLER

Regular Republicans Are Committed to His Local Option Ideas--Hints at Dishonesty Are Boldly Challenged

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 16.—The state campaign has entered upon the last three weeks of its progress, and finds both parties vigorously engaged in what promises to be a great battle, hard-fought to the very eve of Sept. 4. It is becoming easier to gauge the real strength and solid basis of the fusion-independent movement. Four years ago Mr. Clement was without the nominal support of the Democratic organization, but he was sustained by a vast number of Republicans who identified him with the principle of local option, and distrusted any other leader for its successful adoption. Today the regular Republican organization stands fully committed to the accepance of local option as the true legal method of dealing with the evils of intemperance. This has detached much of Clement's army of four years ago.

A month ago it looked as if Clement's call to rally for better government, more economical expenditures and a general renovation of state politics was to assume large proportions, but the present drift of events is gradually in the opposite direction.

After making proper discount for partisan estimates of the size of the respective rallies, it seems certain that the interest in the Clement meetings is waning, and that in Proctor's gatherings is increasing.

Proctor boldly challenges the widespread figures scattered by Clement to show increased state expenses by pointing out that these additional sums of money have gone for improved educational facilities and a more modern and humane treatment of the insane and other wards of the state. No one denies that immoralities have been discovered among a few officials in one state institution, but all such persons have been discharged, and even prosecuted when not protected by a statute of limitation.

Clement proposes to build a complete system of permanent highways merely from the economies which he promises, without any specifications: the Republican platform stands by the present highway tax, whereby each town is assessed for the support of roads, and the sum total is distributed in proportion to each town's mileage of roads.

It is too early to make any definite estimates, on either side, which are of sufficient value to record; but unless Clement is able to present specific charges to meet the detailed vindications of Republican management by its defenders, it seems probable that Vermont will return one of her old-time Republican majorities. The voters of Vermont are sensitive to any reproach of dishonesty and graft, and impatient of anything approaching machine dictation; but they are even more sensitive to accusations against the fair name of the state.

Odell's Pertinent Comment

New York, Aug. 16.—Frank E. Perley, secretary to Governor Higgins, last night gave out a statement in which he says in part: "In the coming convention there will be 1010 delegates. A careful and conservative canvass shows that more than 750 of these delegates will favor the renomination of Governor Higgins. Ex-Governor Odell, commenting on the statement given out by Perley said: "I notice that Governor Higgins' friends say that 750 of the delegates are for his renomination. Only about 300 delegates have been so far chosen. How can they tell about the other 450?"

Texas Democrats Trust Bryan

Dallas, Aug. 16.—The Democratic state convention adopted a platform reaffirming the principles of the party, endorsing the administration of Governor Lanham, demanding that the next legislature enact a law prohibiting lobbying, and favoring a law against railroad passes. Unbounded confidence in the statesmanship and patriotism of William J. Bryan appears in a resolution, together with the hope of his nomination for president in 1908.

Texas Republicans' Choice

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 16.—The Republican state convention nominated a full state ticket, headed by Carey A. Grey for governor. The resolutions condemn what is referred to as the wasteful extravagance of the state Democratic administration; commend the Roosevelt administration, and condemn the Texas congressmen for opposing the Republican national administration, "from whom aid comes to Texas."

National Issues Ignored

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 16.—Early this morning the Democratic convention nominated A. C. Shallenberger for governor. It adopted a platform which ignores national issues in the main. It bestows unstinted praise on W. J. Bryan, pointing to him as the leader of Democrats of the nation.

Chicago Claims Heavy Tax Fees

Chicago, Aug. 16.—That Chicago is the home of all Pullman cars and that they should be taxed here was the claim made by Corporation Counsel Lewis when he attacked the valuation of the Pullman company before the board of review. He contended that the fact that a car journeyed from state to state on regular or irregular trips did not exempt it from taxation in Chicago. Lewis also insisted that the company pay taxes on $22,000,000 of capital stock, $20,000,000 surplus, and back taxes on $1,650,000.

Five Deaths at Encampment

Minneapolis, Aug. 16.—Colonel C. W. Keeting, for 10 years commander of the department of Louisiana and Mississippi, after heading their division in the Grand Army parade, was overcome by heat and exhaustion and died an hour later. Keeting was an examiner and appraiser in the customs department at New Orleans. The casualties to date are: Five deaths, eight injured and 46 prostrations.

Two Men Burned to Death

Buffalo, Aug. 16.—Two men lost their lives in a fire which broke out in the sail loft of a ship chandler's establishment here. The two men were waterproofing sails with an explosive composition. It is believed they were smoking pipes, for there suddenly was an explosion and flames immediately burst out all over the top floor of the building. The fire did $75,000 damage.

FORTY POISONED

Pleasure Seekers Ate Ice Cream From Unclean Cans

SIX MAY NOT RECOVER

Victims Purchased Stuff From Itinerant Venders at Salisbury Beach--Hurry Calls For Doctors, Who Were Kept Busy

Salisbury Beach, Mass., Aug. 16.—Forty persons were poisoned by impure ice cream here last evening and six of the victims are in a serious condition. The names of the six are Edward O'Connell, Michael Ring, Miss Susie Thayer, John Murphy, Miss Yvonne Adams and Miss Flossie Seigel.

Yesterday was known as "Haverhill day" at the beach, and about 4000 persons came here from that city, Newburyport and nearby places. All those who became ill ate ice cream purchased from four venders of Newburyport who sell ice cream, fruit and confectionery from wagons.

Just before 6 o'clock last evening a young girl fell in front of a local hotel, and when bystanders went to her assistance they were startled to find that her face had turned a dark color and that her features were drawn and contorted. It was at first thought that the girl had poisoned herself intentionally, but while several doctors were examining her another young woman nearby collapsed.

For two or three hours reports of persons being overcome by violent illness came to the local police. Emergency calls were sent to Newburyport and nearby places and promptly responded to, and eight doctors and a trained nurse, who were at the beach, hastened to the assistance of the numerous victims. Medical Examiner Hurd of Newburyport also came to the beach and assisted the other physicians.

The six persons most seriously ill were taken to the Hotel Cushing. All were unconscious, and were in a serious condition. Practically all of those affected were under 20 years of age.

The physicians decided that the trouble was due to ptomaine poisoning from unclean cans which contained ice cream. Samples of the cream were taken by the police and the Newburyport board of health ordered all the itinerant venders to stop the sale of ice cream until further notice. Nearly all the victims belong in Haverhill and, excluding the half-dozen named, none is in a serious condition.

Backing Up Printers' Strike

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 16.—The delegates to the International Typographical union convention adopted a resolution expressing their full confidence in the officers and the executive council, congratulating them upon "the wisdom and prudent foresight shown in the conduct of the contest for an eight-hour day," and especially endorsing the action of the levy in the 10 percent assessment levied for the purpose of conducting the strike.

Mystery In Woman's Death

Providence, Aug. 16.—Because of the suspicious circumstances surrounding the death of Susan Honan, who died without regaining consciousness since she was found on the electric car tracks Sunday night, near Riverside, Medical Examiner Perkins performed an autopsy and found several bruises on the arms and legs and also a fractured skull. The latter injury caused the woman's death. Coroner Lincoln will hold an inquest.

Fast Freight Underground

Chicago, Aug. 16.—The Illinois Tunnel company has its freight service in full operation after five years of construction. Record runs in the handling of freight were made from many of the 40 business houses and the four railroads already connected with the tunnel system. The freight is taken on underground and carried 40 feet below the street surface to the basement of the building to which it is consigned.

Collision Caused $10,000 Damage

Washington, Aug. 16.—The navy department has been informed that the estimate of the damage done to the battleship Illinois in a recent collision with the Alabama amounts to $10,000. While the Illinois cannot be completely repaired in time for the president's review, she will participate in that function, and return to the yard later.

Dillon on Home Rule Question

Dublin, Aug. 16.—John Dillon, addressing a Nationalist meeting last night, claimed for Ireland a measure of home rule on the lines adopted for the Transvaal and said that in that case Irishmen would be found practical, reasonable and willing to give concessions where they are necessary.

Great Labor Demonstration

Mortgagee's Sale.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS that by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed, given by ROBERT F. ROGERS to J. WALTER BEAN, dated the fourth day of May, 1906, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1,026, Page 325, for breach of condition of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction upon the premises on THURSDAY, the sixth day of September, 1906, at three o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular, the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely:

All that certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situated on the northerly side of Glover avenue, in that part of Quincy, in said Commonwealth, known as Norfolk Downs, shown on a plan by H C. Mildram, Surveyor, dated April 23, 1892, and being lot 14 on said plan. Said lot being more fully described as follows: Bounded southerly by Glover avenue, fifty-three and thirty-three hundredths (53.33) feet; easterly by lot 13 on said plan, one hundred forty-three and forty-one hundredths (143.41) feet; northerly by land owners unknown, fifty-three and thirty-five hundredths feet; and westerly by lot 15 and 17 on said plan, one hundred forty-four and ninety-two hundredths (144.92) feet; containing seven thousand six hundred eighty-eight (7,688) square feet. This conveyance is made subject to a mortgage of $3,000 to Mary P. Bailey, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1,023, Page 175, and being the same premises conveyed to me by deed of Henry J. Perkins, dated November 23, 1905, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1,014, Page 235.

This sale is made subject to said first mortgage and to any and all unpaid interest, taxes, assessments and liens of every description.

$200 dollars in cash will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale and the balance of the purchase money within seven days.

Vermont Seeks to Recover Alleged Illegal Freight Charges

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 16.—Two suits against the Central Vermont Railroad company have been brought by the state of Vermont on account of alleged illegal freight charges. One suit is for $10,000 and alleges that excessive freight tariffs have been charged, and the other is for $5000 damages, demanding the return to the state of amounts alleged to have been collected in excess of the regular rates.

Attorney General Fitts alleges that the state has been compelled to pay higher rates for all coal purchased and used by the insane asylum at Waterbury than other parties have paid. In particular, it is charged that the state has been compelled to pay 40 cents a ton more than a certain coal dealer in Ogdensburg, N. Y., has had to pay for shipping coal over the railroad line.

The action is brought under sections 3902 and 3903 of the Vermont statutes, providing for equal and reasonable rates to all corporations from carrying companies, under a penalty. It is returnable at the September term of the Washington county court, which will be held here.

Bullet Was Intended For Another

Providence, Aug. 16.—Antonio Vissala, aged 34, was shot and fatally wounded last night by Antonio Ricciolina. Vissala and Ricciolina went to the saloon of Angelo Rossi, where Ricciolina demanded of Rossi some money which he claimed to have on deposit there. He received $12 and after some words left the place and went to his home, returning soon after with a revolver, apparently with the intention of shooting Rossi. Vissala, who was coming out of the door, received the bullet in the left side and died an hour afterwards. Ricciolina was arrested.

Marine an Alleged Thief

Newport, R. I., Aug. 16.—Private Alexander Stevens of the United States marine corps, mail orderly of the battleship Rhode Island, was arrested last night, charged with opening a letter addressed to a gunner of the Rhode Island. Stevens is said to have cashed a check for $52 which the letter contained. A policeman arrested Stevens as he was coming out of a saloon. He was in citizens' clothes and his white uniform was found stuffed into his mail bag, which he had dropped in the lobby of the Newport postoffice.

Begged to Be Put to Death

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 16.—Abraham Horne of Boston, aged 38, saturated the front of his clothing with the contents of a two-quart can of gasolene last night and received burns from which he may die. The police think that Horne deliberately poured the gasolene on his clothing and then set fire to it. He came to Somerville last evening with the can of gasolene and was discovered on an unfrequented street with his clothing blazing. On the way to the hospital Horne begged to be put to death.

Longshoremen Allege Discrimination

Boston, Aug. 16.—Two hundred longshoremen, employed by Stevedore Delap on the Metropolitan steamship wharf, struck on account of four of their number being discharged for quitting work without permission. The strikers claim the discharged men have been discriminated against. An effort will be made to have the difficulty adjusted today. Should this be unsatisfactory, the strikers expect sympathetic action on the part of other longshoremen.

Brook Skeleton Mystery Solved

Northampton, Mass., Aug. 16.—The skeleton of a man found last Sunday night in Hadley brook was identified last night as that of Orison Lane of Belchertown, aged 32, who disappeared Feb. 26, 1900. He was suffering from nervous prostration when he disappeared and it is supposed that he drowned himself in the brook. The fact that the skeleton showed that one leg had been fractured helped in the identification, as well as the buttons and other portions of the clothing found.

Drowning of Two Little Sisters

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 16.—Two children, aged 7 and 8 years, daughters of William H. Bakey of this city, were drowned in Windsor pond last evening. The children, together with their mother and three of their older sisters, were enjoying a picnic near the pond. The two younger children were sent for a pail of water and while climbing over a rock at the edge of the pond fell into deep water.

New Bedford Strikers Lose

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 16.—The introduction of a number of outside help in the carding room of the Rotch mill broke the strike of the 225 employes of that room, and many of the old hands reported for work. Some of them found their places already filled. The men struck because of the employment of a new foreman in their room.

Scored an Easy Victory

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 16.—Bonidrei, owned and sailed by G. H. Wightman of the Hingham Yacht club, the youngest skipper of the fleet, easily won the third trial race to select the three defenders of the Roosevelt cup. Bonidrei went into the lead just before reaching the first mark, and was never headed.

Boy Fell a Hundred Feet

Monson, Mass., Aug. 16.—James W. Tufts, aged 11, son of Professor Tufts of Chicago university, is in a critical condition with a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. He fell over a cliff on Mount Bunyon to the rocks below, a distance of about 100 feet. His chances of recovery are doubtful.

BOMB AND BULLET

Used With Deadly Effect In Many Cities of Poland

MASSACRE CARRIED OUT

Revolutionists' Plot Directed Against Police and Troops Effectively Carried Out, Especially In Warsaw

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—Acting apparently with a definite plan and at a signal, the terrorists and revolutionists yesterday inaugurated a carnival of murderous attacks with bombs and revolvers on the police and troops in various cities in Poland, echoes of which are heard from Samara, Ufa, Yalta, Kiev and even far-away Chita, where the acting chief of police was slain almost on his own doorstep. The resolutionist campaign flamed out with especial virulence at Warsaw, where these conspirators shot and killed 17 policemen, four gendarmes and seven infantry patrolmen, and wounded a score more. Soldiers fired a volley into a crowd, killing 15 and wounding 130 with bullets and bayonets.

The massacre at Warsaw is supposed to have been planned by revolutionists in revenge for the arrest recently of socialist workmen in the iron working suburb of Praga. It was a Catholic holiday and no one suspected that a massacre was in preparation. The weather was beautiful, the city was calm and thousands of people were crowding excursion trains.

Simultaneously the attack on policemen began at 10 o'clock in the morning. About 1 o'clock in the afternoon news began to arrive from all parts of the city revealing the concerted nature of the attacks. In Ostrovskaia street four men attacked a sergeant of police, but the latter was able to bag three of them, who were armed with revolvers. In a fight in Torovia street revolutionists shot down two patrolmen, and a Jewish merchant was killed by a stray bullet.

A band of 10 men invaded a grog shop in Choledena street, where they wounded a soldier. The clerk and wife of the proprietor opened fire upon the invaders and a passing patrol, attracted by the disturbance, seized the entrance of the shop, stormed the house and captured all of the band. In the afternoon strong detachments of infantry, dragoons and Cossacks appeared in the streets, dispersing the crowds with their swords, firearms and bayonets. The streets were quickly emptied, and by 9 o'clock all the shops and restaurants were closed. Ambulances and vans were kept busy carrying the wounded to hospitals. All passers-by were searched by patrols and many arrests were made.

Other Polish cities singled out by the terrorists were Lodz, where six soldiers, three patrolmen and the wife of a police captain were wounded by the explosion of bombs in the police station, and two soldiers and two terrorists killed in the streets; Radom, where a bomb thrown into the police station killed the wife and child of the police captain; Vlotslavek, where the chief of police was slain, and Block, where at a given signal the policemen on all the posts were simultaneously attacked and several of them wounded.

On account of the agrarian disorders and especially several attacks on post trains, the railway between Samara and Zlatoust, which already was carrying guards on all its trains, was yesterday placed under martial law. Two of these attacks occurred yesterday near Ufa, revolutionists in each case flagging a train, bursting open the doors of the mail cars with bombs and rifling the registered pouches. The booty in one case amounted to $15,000, and in the other case the amount captured is not known.

Martial Law In the Caucasus

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—Owing to a serious revolutionary outbreak the whole of the Caucasus, with the exception of a few districts, is under martial law. In the districts of Shusha and Sangesur armed bands openly attacked detachments of troops.

Cossacks Balk at Police Duty

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—Cossacks from Poltava refused to perform police duty at Tiflis. A large number of arrests were made. Details are unobtainable.

Mrs Cragie's Death Natural

London, Aug. 16.—The inquest on the body of Mrs. Pearl M. T. Cragie (John Oliver Hobbes) resulted in a verdict of death by natural causes. The surgeon who performed the autopsy testified that he found evidence of weakness of the heart muscles. Otherwise everything was normal. He expressed the opinion that Mrs. Cragie died suddenly and painlessly.

Women Were Hunting Bargains

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Susan Weiland was probably fatally injured and many other shoppers were hurt in a bargain-day rush at a department store. A number of women were carried out of the crowd overcome by heat, each in a fainting condition.

Labor Men Censure Congressmen

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 16.—A resolution censuring Congressmen Foster and Haskins of Vermont for their attitude on the Chinese labor question was adopted by the Vermont branch of the American Federation of Labor.

TRACE OF STENSLAND

Fugitive Bank President Was on a Train Bound East

Pittsburg, Aug. 16.—The Chronicle Telegraph is authority for the statement that Paul O. Stensland, the defaulting president of the Milwaukee Avenue state bank of Chicago, was in this city yesterday, and is now thought to be in the east. According to this statement Stensland was seen aboard a train at the Union station by Oscar Holmer, who used to be a close friend.

Holmer had gone to the station to meet a friend that was on his way east, and while talking in the Pullman car his attention was attracted to a man seated near.

"Hello, Stensland, what are you doing here?" Holmer said to the man.

"For God's sake, is it you? Don't give me away," was his answer.

"I told him he and his affairs were none of my business," said Holmer, "and then he started to talk. He said he thought I knew all about his trouble and declared he was almost out of his mind with worry. He did not say where he had been, but I think he has been in Canada. He told me that he was going east and said he had plenty of money. As we were talking—we had not had time to exchange more than a few words—the train began to move and I had to jump off, bidding good-bye to my friend.

"My friend, who came from Rochester via Buffalo, told me the man whom I recognized had been on the train from that city and that they had talked together."

About Time to Preserve Forests

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Unless precautions are taken for the preservation and cultivation of forests the United States will be compelled to buy lumber from foreign countries, according to Mr. Hale of Washington, special representative of the department of forestry of the United States, who delivered an address here before members of the National Coopers' association. Hale declared that certain regions had been almost depleted of merchantable timber.

Insurance Agent In Contempt

San Francisco, Aug. 16.—A bench warrant has been issued for the arrest of H. C. Quinby, agent of the Eagle Fire Insurance company. Quinby had recently been brought before a grand jury for examination as to his methods of settling claims of policyholders. He refused to answer questions and was cited to appear before Judge Graham to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt. He did not appear.

Browne's Troubles Not Ended

New York, Aug. 16.—Charles C. Browne, the convicted federal silk examiner who was ordered released from the state prison at Sing Sing upon a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Hough, was rearrested as he stepped from the prison and arraigned before Judge Hough. Bail for his trial upon an indictment yet pending against him was fixed at $30,000 and he was committed to the Tombs prison.

Alleged Peonage In Georgia

Columbus, Ga., Aug. 16.—Commissioner Brown has held A. Q. Campbell, A. P. Bradshaw and W. C. Matthews under bonds of $1000 each on the charge of peonage. The men are heads of a railroad construction company. Complaint was made by a number of laborers, alleging that they were unlawfully detained by threats and abuse.

Dinner In Labor Leader's Honor

Boston, Aug. 16.—Over 200 labor union men from various parts of this state attended the complimentary dinner given here last night in honor of Frank K. Foster of this city, delegate to the British trade congress. James Wilson, also a delegate to the British trade congress, will sail with Foster for England from this port on Friday next.

Prominent Man Fatally Hurt

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 16.—While riding a bicycle here, Milton H. Northrup, 65 years old, former postmaster of this city, ex-member of the legislature and for many years editor of the Syracuse Courier, was struck by a street car and received injuries which resulted in his death. He was for many years conspicuous in public life.

Wellman Delays Trip to Pole

London, Aug. 16.—A dispatch from Christiana to The Daily Mail says that private letters received there from Spitzbergen state that, owing to the lateness of the season, Walter Wellman, the chief of the Chicago Record-Herald Arctic expedition, has abandoned the project of ballooning to the North Pole this year.

Why Missionary Work Halts

London, Aug. 16.—Rev. Dr. Horton created a sensation at the free church convention at Harrowgate by declaring that missionary work was making the smallest headway owing to the indifference of the church at home, thousands of Christians and many ministers spending more on tobacco and dress than on missions.

King Edward In Germany

Cronberg, Aug. 16.—King Edward and Emperor William returned to the castle from an excursion to Homburg and Saalsburg late yesterday afternoon. After luncheon the emperor and king conversed an hour. Baron Von Tscherschky and Sir Frank Lasceller were present. The subject of the conversation is not known.

BOSTON LETTER.

Whitney to Oppose Moran For Governorship Nomination.

SITUATION IS MUCH MIXED.

Conservative Democrats Feel Sure of Beating District Attorney.

The Democratic leaders in Massachusetts, or at least some of them, fully believe that they have now got John B. Moran beaten for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

It is quite possible that they are correct. The leaders of the conservative wing, men like Quincy, Mayor Fitzgerald, Congressman Sullivan, and Transit Commissioner Joseph J. Corbett, do not hesitate now to declare their belief that Moran is on a toboggan and going to the bottom of the hill as fast as speed will carry him.

It is probable that Moran has lost strength in the last weeks, as these leaders declare, but the end is certainly not yet.

When Henry M. Whitney, former president of the West End Railway company, consented to stand as a candidate for the Democratic nomination against Moran, the courage of the members of the conservative wing of the party took on immediate strength. The opponents of Mr. Moran have certainly had a bad scare. At one time they were ready to take to the woods and let the district attorney for Suffolk county play the game all by himself. It is said that Transit Commissioner Corbett was the moving spirit to give courage to the frightened city leaders, and that he is the man who stopped the Moran tidal wave by forcing Congressman Sullivan into the field merely as a stalking-horse while a stronger and more desirable candidate was picked up.

To this day Mayor Fitzgerald has somewhat temporized with the Moran movement. He would like wonderfully well to see the district attorney beaten, but he has not the courage to lead the movement, and he will not declare himself very strongly until he is convinced that Whitney is going to be successful in his move for the nomination. Mr. Fitzgerald's friends say that the mayor is brave, but when he has an opportunity to show it, as in the present instance, he declines it with alacrity. As a matter of fact, courage is not the strong point of the mayor.

The Fight Is Still Hot.

But Moran is not yet beaten. The caucuses are more than a month hence and in the Democratic party there is a strong feeling for the district attorney. There is a strong conviction among the Democratic masses that the party has for years been used by designing politicians and scheming financiers for their own benefit, and that these men have had very little interest in the party except as it affected their personal political fortunes and their financial schemes. An Essex county lawyer, who has been a life-long Democrat, voiced the general discontent against the old-time control of the party when he declared that for a decade it had been merely an adjunct to the Boston Elevated Railway company and other corporations of that class desirous of controlling the city of Boston and the commonwealth, and securing legislation in the interests of these institutions. He declared that personally he had no sympathy with the class of men who have acquired control of the Democratic city and state organization for wholly selfish purposes. He declared that the party as at present organized had no sympathy with the common people and never would have so long as that class of men control it.

It is this feeling abroad among the Democratic masses which has made Moran such a formidable opponent to the Democratic machine, and come very close to insuring him the nomination for governor. And for that matter it is wholly within the limits of possibility that he may yet succeed in wresting the nomination from men who are today so busily engaged in an effort to nominate Whitney. There is no question that Whitney is a strong man with one wing of the Democratic party, but he appeals to an entirely different class to that included in the Moran following. He is essentially and primarily a corporation man. His sympathies have always been with the corporations, and as a candidate he does not especially appeal to the working man or the man of small possessions. He is as essentially a corporation man as is William A. Gaston or Josiah Quincy. While at the head of the West End street railway and as president of that corporation, he was severely criticised for his large expenditures of money to secure favorable legislation in connection with the bill to provide for the construction of elevated railways in Boston. The lavish hand with which these expenditures were distributed caused such general comment and criticism that public investigation was ordered by the great and general court and held by a committee of the legislature. This committee found that there was good ground for the criticism and itself condemned these expenditures on the part of the West End.

Of course all these things will militate against Mr. Whitney, and undoubtedly Mr. Moran will find a great many things about which to question him before the nominating campaign is over.

Democratic affairs are in such a foggy state that until after the caucuses very little can be done toward organizing the campaign. If Mr. Moran is nominated, the party will bring to the front issues similar to those outlined in the platform of the district attorney, which he issued some weeks ago. Aside from that, if he is nominated, an entirely different set of campaigners will compose the battle line. Mr. Moran will have very little confidence in the leaders of the conservative wing, and, if nominated, will probably relegate them to the rear and put his own trusted lieutenants in charge of the campaign forces.

Contrariwise, if Mr. Whitney is nominated, the old-time leaders will compose the staff which will direct the canvass against the Republicans.

Of course, Mr. Moran is already in the field. He has been nominated by one political party and yearns for the indorsement of the Democrats. He has been turned down by the Socialists, who were wiser than their cold-water brethren, the Prohibitionists, but he still has a standing as representing the forces of temperance, notwithstanding the fact that he is a recent convert to the teetotal idea. Consequently he must be a candidate at the polls, even though unsuccessful in his quest for the Democratic nomination. He will undoubtedly have a sufficient following among the Democrats to make the calling and election of Governor Guild certain whether he gets the Democratic nomination or not, but if he is turned down by the Democratic caucuses, it will be necessary for him to go upon the ballot by nomination papers, as the Prohibitionists are not a party within the legal meaning of that word, since they did not in the last election cast three percent of the total vote.

Moran's Grave Mistake.

It is plainly evident that Mr. Moran made a grave mistake when he made his attack upon the Home for Intemperate Women, and released all the inmates confined there, on the ground that it was a prison and not a home. He tried to convey the impression that the home was a money-making institution and that the women there were obliged to work very hard for the benefit of the institution. One by one, however, these women are being brought into court for intemperance, and most of them elect to go back there in preference to being sentenced to the island or Sherborn. It was certainly a grave error of judgment in the district attorney to attack an institution vouched for by philanthropists and clergymen as well-conducted and beneficial.

What will come of his indictment of licemen, normal school contractors and others remains to be seen. In the grand jury room only the side of the prosecuting attorney is heard. There is no opportunity for a person accused to give evidence in his own favor. Therefore, while it is comparatively easy to secure indictments, it is quite another matter to secure convictions in court.

Are Ministers' Sons Bad?

A bishop marked the names of those whom he deemed worthy of remembrance for some service performed in religion or politics or literature or science or art or commerce or philanthropy or warefare, or some other aspects of the various life of the nation. Of such names he found 1,270 who were the children of clergymen or ministers, taking no account of those who were grandchildren of clergymen or more remote descendants. Of the children of lawyers, there were 510, and of doctors 350. The sons of clergymen who became themselves clergymen were 350. He further asserts that the superiority which the clergy enjoy in respect to their children to the other professions lies beyond dispute. The superiority has been not of numbers only, but of degree. From clerical homes have sprung more distinguished sons than from the homes of any secular profession.—Leslie's Weekly.

A Funny Eagle.

A Russian grand duke was once the guest of a German prince. It was early in the last century. In Russia the imperial double headed eagle is to be seen everywhere and on everything throughout the empire—stamped, painted, embroidered or sculptured. At that period the education of grand dukes was somewhat limited. This grand duke went out shooting in Germany and, among other things, shot a large bird. He asked an experienced huntsman who accompanied him what the bird was. "An eagle, your highness," was the answer. The grand duke turned on him in an irritated way. "How can it be an eagle," he asked, "when it has only one head?"

Shadeless Forests.

Large tracts of dense forests in Australia are practically shadeless. Many kinds of trees in that strange country turn their edges instead of the flat surface of the leaves to the sun, and thus one may stand under a tree of enormous size and be as fully exposed to the sun as though he were in the open plain. Travel through these forests is said to be exceedingly arduous work, as the trees, while they do not cut off the sun, prevent the breeze from reaching the ground, and thus the traveler experiences a stifling heat.

Use For Spoiled Beer.

"There is no need," said a brewer, "for us to throw away beer that has turned sour, nor is there any need for us to try to doctor it up. We have a ready sale for our spoiled beer among cement makers. Don't think from this that cement makers have a morbid taste for sour beer. Nothing of the kind. They use this beer in making cement for leather joints. It takes the place of acid, being cheaper and yet just as good."

In Bad Shape.

The police were called to a house on Manet avenue, Wednesday afternoon, to take care of Harry W. Damon of 287 Pond avenue, Brookline, who was suffering from over indulgence of drink. He was kept at the station all night, and this morning was in bad shape. Since 5 o'clock he has had three fits.

—The skin of men and women of some nations, particularly in hot countries, is much thicker than that of others. The Central African negro has a skin about half as thick again as that of a European. That of a negro is thickest over the head and back, presumably to form a protection from the sun.

—Rev. Elmer E. Williams of Middleboro, to whom a call was recently extended to fill the pastorate of the First Baptist church at Randolph, met the pulpit supply committee of the church at the church Monday and notified them of his acceptance. Juvenile Cases.

A number of juveniles were in court this morning for various crimes committed in various parts of Quincy. These cases were all heard in the juvenile session.

Clarence W. Hunter, Charles Packard, and John W. McDonnell were arraigned for killing a hen and four ducklings of Edward P. Phelan. Cases continued until Aug. 23. Packard was also arraigned for breaking glass. This case was also continued until Aug. 23.

Arthur De Censo, Frank Sullivan, Harold Beaton and Frank Belluchi were arraigned for burglary at the house of James H. Stetson at Quincy. Case continued until Aug. 23.

John Curry and Frank Belluchi were arraigned for breaking and entering the store of James Gillis at Quincy. Cases continued until Aug. 23.

Prize Dogs.

Quincy was represented at the Tedesco country clubs inaugural kennel show held at Swampscott on Monday and Tuesday, by G. L. Haupt's red and black "cocker spaniels" who succeeded in carrying off five of the much coveted ribbons; one blue, three red and one yellow. Mr. Haupt also bought the black puppy "Buster" who took the prize for being the best pup in the show.

Boys Arrested.

Arthur H. Turner, aged 14 years, and Edward Kingsman, about the same age, were arrested at their homes in South Boston this morning for the larceny a small sail boat from Thomas Conboy at the Fore River works. The boat was stolen last Friday, but was recovered by the South Boston police.

They Scorned Doctors.

The learned ladies in olden times took great comfort and pride in their skill in medicine. With true professional scorn they looked down upon the regular doctors as upon quacks. "For God's sake beware what medicines ye take of any fyssissyans of London. I shall never trust to them because of your father and my uncle, whose souls God assoil." So wrote a lady in conscious pride. She knew she could have saved the lives of her unfortunate relatives if she had only had a chance to dose them with some of her wonderful concoctions or to have put upon them some such plasters as those for which Dame Margery Paston was famous. Her husband sent for one of her plasters for the king's attorney, James Hobarst, who was suffering with an ache in his knee, and to whom Sir John Paston felt himself sentimentally indebted. "He is the man who brought you and me together," he wrote to Margery, "and I had leaver than £40 that ye could with your plaster part him and his pain."

Grease In Wool Fabrics.

Few persons realize when they put on woolen garments what a large amount of animal fats wool contains, for to the touch woolens are not greasy. In the big clothing shops where men's garments are cut, however, the floors around the tables where electric knives clip out the odd shaped pieces soon become as slippery as though they were waxed for a dance.

"Why do you wax the floors—to keep the fabrics clean?" is a common query from visitors.

But the clothing cutters explain that this accumulation of grease comes from the friction of wool cloth over the wood. The wood's pores soon become so charged with it that they feel greasy to the touch, and even the harder woods in the cutting tables absorb from the woolen fibers so much of the animal fat that to all appearances they might be in steady use in the rendering department of an abattoir.—New York Press.

—The Firemens Relief Association of Weymouth held an outing Tuesday evening at Fort Point.

These are the Days.

These are the days when the word "Adirondacks" sounds good to everyone. Up there the sun is just as bright, but the days are never hot and enervating—the nights are always cool and the pine-laden air has that invigorating something in it that brings sleep, appetite, rest and new life to the jaded urbanite.

These are the days! The season is at its height. All the hotels are open and there is room enough for everyone. The Adirondack country is too vast ever to become crowded. From east, west, north or south you can reach the North Woods via the New York Central Lines, "America's Greatest Railroad."

UNIVERSITY FOR MEXICO.

To Be Founded In 1910 to Celebrate Centennial of Independence.

Commissioned by President Diaz of the republic of Mexico to observe the workings of the University of California and Stanford university in order that the National University of Mexico, which is to be founded to celebrate the first centennial of the independence of Mexico in 1910, may be modeled after the best in these two great American universities, Dr. Ezequiel A. Chavez, subsecretary of public instruction and fine arts, is in Berkeley, Cal., says a correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle. He is to give a course of lectures at the summer school of the University of California on the "History, Institutions and Progress of Mexico." His connection with the state university during the summer school is incidental to his work as a commissioner. He accepted the invitation in order to get an insight into the methods and administration of this university.

Dr. Chavez said recently: "I am here to observe. The school system of Mexico is unique. It has had its own development. It is not Spanish, it is not American, but Mexican. There are, first, the primary, then the grammar and high schools and finally the preparatory and professional schools. There is no university in the American or European sense. There are faculties of law, agriculture, fine arts, medicine, engineering, architecture, arts, crafts and archaeology in the City of Mexico and other cities of the republic, but they are entirely separate and distinct. On the occasion, however, of the one hundredth anniversary of the independence of Mexico in 1910 all these various faculties will be welded together into a national university."

Senor Chavez is the leading psychologist of Mexico. He was professor of psychology in the preparatorium before his appointment to his present position as secretary. He has done important service in rendering into Spanish certain classics of logic and ethics, notably Mills' logic and Spencer's ethics. His latest translation is the "Primer of Psychology," by Professor Titchenor of Cornell.

BOSS TRUCKMAN A BOY.

Twelve-year-old Running a Big Business While Father Is Sick.

"Say, sergeant, I sent a dozen teams out this afternoon, and they haven't any light, so if you see them shoo them around the back way. I ain't got no $3 to pay for fines."

Thus spoke twelve-year-old Johnny Farley of New Rochelle, N. Y., who is conducting his father's business while the latter is at death's door in the Polyclinic hospital, Manhattan, says the New York Times.

Police Sergeant Cody was so impressed by the lad that he called him up on the telephone the other morning to learn if the teams got home safely.

"You bet they did, sergeant. You're a brick all right, and I won't forget your favor," was the answer the sergeant received.

John V. Farley conducts a livery and trucking business in New Rochelle. He attended to the office work personally, and when he was taken to the hospital his mind was on the business, as he did not know whom to get to run it.

"Don't you worry, pop; I'll jump in and run the business," were Johnny's words before his father was placed on the operating table. The father told him to go ahead. Johnny was placed in absolute control and so far has not made a mistake. New Rochelle men who do business with the Farleys are taking an interest in the youngster because of his grit.

NEVER TOO OLD FOR GOLF.

British Experts Decide That It May Be Played While Life Lasts.

Dr. T. C. Allbutt, regius professor of physics at Cambridge university, recently gave out the dictum that the law ought to forbid any man to begin playing the game before he is thirty-five years old, until which time he is capable of more vigorous athletics. Dr. Allbutt, according to a London cable dispatch to the New York Sun, left it to be inferred that golf should only be regarded as a kind of last resort for those tottering down hill toward senility.

The presentation of the golf problem in this form led to inquiries among the best known exponents and amateurs of British athletic games. As a result the following table was compiled, representing theories as well as practice: Cricket should be abandoned at 40 years; football, 30; hockey, 35; lawn tennis, by women, 45, and by men 60; rowing, 60. The age for quitting cycling was not definitely fixed.

According to the table, golf should be played while life lasts, but should not be begun too young. Scotland's ice sport, curling, alone takes no regard for time, but looks forward to eternity.

Tree of Death.

The Koreans are greatly excited over the appearance of a bamboo tree through the cracks of the floor of the room last occupied by the late General Min Young Whan, says the Korea News. Since the suicide of the general in November last the room has been kept closed, and when the room was opened a few days ago the bamboo had already attained the height of more than four feet. The Koreans find a parallel to this phenomenon in an event that occurred in Songdo 500 years ago, when a patriot defending the emperor was done to death on a stone bridge just outside the city. Several months after his death a bamboo sprouted up between the stones on the very spot where the patriot had breathed his last.

Southern Guests

At Launching On Tuesday Of Steamer Satilla

Arrangements have been completed for the launching of the steamship Satilla the first of a fleet of four building for the Atlanta, Birminghand and Atlantic railroad next Tuesday.

The launch will be informal and will be attended only by a limited number of guests invited by the railroad company. The yards therefore will not be open to the public. Ample opportunity, however, is afforded to witness the launch from the shores surrounding the yard.

The launching party will leave Boston in a special car attached to the 10.45 train, and will run direct to the yard from East Braintree over the Fore River Co. tracks. The launch will take place at 11.30.

A lunch will be served the launching party after the launch in the mold loft at the works.

Successful Lawn Party

A lawn party held for the purpose of raising funds to reduce the debt amounting to $3,000 on St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church, Wollaston, was held Wednesday afternoon and evening on the rectory grounds adjoining the church on Hancock street. The grounds were illuminated with a large array of electric lights. Situated about the lawn were tents

The various features were in charge of the following:

Post office,—Mrs. F. J. Peirce and Miss Grace Fowler.

Fortune teller,—Mrs. Walter E. Burke.

Old curiosity shop,—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas V. Dale.

African dodgers,—Robert Sibley and Carl Fowler.

Candy table,—Miss Jennie Flood and Mrs. Walter Baker.

Lemonade table,—Miss Lydia Hennigar.

Ice cream table, Mrs. Herbert L. Packard and Mrs. Walter Roberts.

During the evening there was an entertainment in charge of Dr. Ernest P. Brooks, and consisted of violin solos and fancy dances, by Frank Snyder; banjo selections, by Professor Erastus Osgood; clog dances, by Norman Kolstad; and a comedy sketch, by Charles Whiteacre.

Supper was served from 5.30 to 7.30, and was in charge of Mrs. H. P. Barham and Mrs. Daniel C. Miller.

The lawn party was in charge of Rev. A. Edwin Clattenberg, the new rector of the church, who worked hard to make it the success which it was.

Movement For Anti-Fraud Laws.

There is today, all over our country, a decided movement toward the enactment of laws that will protect consumers against substitution and adulteration.

Many states now have very stringent pure food laws, and a national pure food law is to go into effect all over the United States on January 1, 1907.

New York State has also a law prohibiting the stamping of cotton as linen and a law compelling all silver sold as sterling to be 925-1000 fine.

Other states have other laws along the same lines.

North Dakota has taken the lead in enacting a law for the protection of property owners against a very common and serious kind of fraud—the selling of adulterated paints and paints containing ingredients worthless or worse than worthless.

The law passed by the North Dakota legislature compels all makers of adulterated paints to label their kegs with the exact ingredients of their paints.

Pure-white-lead-and-linseed-oil is accepted as the standard paint by the law-makers, just as it is by paint authorities everywhere.

Notes About Houghs Neck

Never has there been a more successful season at this popular resort than this year. All the cottages have been occupied all summer, and the real estate agents say that they could have let many more if they had them. Aside from this, there has been an unusual number of excursionists to the beach this year. With a five-cent fare on the electrics and fifteen minute service it has become a favorite spot for mothers to take their children for an afternoon's outing. There is plenty to amuse the little ones, and there is but little danger of their coming to harm. If they have pennies to spend there is ample opportunity for them at the numerous catch penny enterprises.

One thing that has been largely the means of making the beach popular this year is the absence of the many clubs with which the beach abounded last year. This was due to the instructions given to the agents to refuse their cottages to clubs. There are some clubs here but comparatively few, and the police keep them well in hand.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston was one of the distinguished visitors to the beach on Wednesday, being the guest of friends on Rock Island road.

Manuel Coit and family of Charlestown are in the Margie cottage on Charles street for the month of August.

A. W. Rydstrom and family of Roslindale are in the Moffitt cottage on Darrow street.

I. P. Dodge of Boston with family have taken the Wetzell cottage on River street for the month.

Archie Thayer and his flower garden and group of turtles, cats and the like are a thing of the past. He thinks there will be more money in being Mayor.

Mrs. W. H. Hewitt of Chelsea is in the Marquette cottage on Charles street.

Charles H. Carroll of Brookline is camping on Shannon street with his family.

John Lawrence and family are tenting on Charles street.

John P. O'Neil of Boston with family are in the Weston cottage on Charles street, for the month of August.

There was an enormous crowd at the beach last Sunday. It was said to have been the largest ever outside of illumination day.

Miss Nora O'Neil of the Ocean View cottage is entertaining Edward Donovan and Patrick Igginston of South Boston.

Lyman School Runaway Caught

Shortly after 3 o'clock this morning the gate man at the Quincy Adams depot saw someone trying to break into a freight car. He blew his warning whistle which called Officers Lyons and Phillips.

The officers came across the young man later. When he saw them approaching he started to run and they followed shouting to him to stop. The more they shouted the faster he ran. Finding he would not stop some pistol shots were sent after him without effect.

The officers chased him into Pearl street where he was found in a yard hiding in some bushes. While running away the fellow dropped an overcoat which the police recovered.

At the police station it was ascertained that the young fellow's name was Wilfred Huntley, and that he was one of the two who escaped from the Lyman school last Monday.

The overcoat proved to be one that he had stolen earlier in the day at Neponset. The Boston police were notified and this morning a Station 11 officer came to Quincy after him, with a warrant charging him with larceny.

Trotting at Readville.

The grand circuit racing is fast at Buffalo; it is faster yet at Poughkeepsie, a rather slow track, and horsemen are asking, what will the rate of speed be when the "two-minute" Readville course is reached? The entry list for the five days' racing which begins here August 20, is the largest on record, the total number of entries being about 200; and it embraces almost all the fast trotters and pacers now in training from Maine to California.

Remarkable Achievement Of the Auk

First in Race Of the Morning Second in Race Of the Afternoon

From the work of Thursday in the trial races off Marblehead it is almost certain that the Auk of Quincy will be one of the three American yachts selected to meet the three Germans in September in defence of the Roosevelt international cup.

In the morning race of Thursday the Auk finished first, and in the afternoon race finished second, only 12 seconds behind the Sumatra.

The Auk has now finished first, second and third in the six races of the series. Allowing 5 points for first place, 4 for second, 3 for third, 2 for fourth, and 1 for fifth place, the Auk is now at the head of the fleet with 12 points to her credit. The Spokane is a close second and the Bonidrei and Windrim Kid a tie for third place, as will be seen by the following summary compiled by the Daily Leder showing times each yacht has finished first, second, third, fourth and fifth.

	1	2	3	4	5	Points
Auk	1	1	1	0	0	12
Spokane	2	0	0	0	1	11
Bonidrei	1	0	1	0	0	8
Windrim Kid	0	1	2	0	0	10
Caramba	0	1	1	0	2	9
Hayseed III	0	2	0	0	0	8
Cod	1	0	0	1	0	7
Sumatra	1	0	0	0	0	5
Vim	0	1	0	0	1	5
Chewink VI	0	0	1	1	0	5
New Orleans	0	0	0	1	2	4
Manchester	0	0	0	2	0	4

Ellen	0	0	0	0	0	0

The position of all yachts in each race is given below, a column for each race, first, second, third, etc. When the positions are added together it will be seen that the Bonidrei, Caramba and Auk have the best of it, having the smallest totals. The Auk in one day moved up from No. 9 to No. 3:

	RACES

*Cod was disabled in first race.
†Alecto did not start in second race.

MORNING RACE.

Conditions were perfect on Thursday for the races, and the test was the best of the series. Most of the yachts were closely bunched and well handled. The Auk finished with a lead of 16 seconds over the Windrim Kid.

The elapsed time of the yachts in the morning race was:

Yacht and owner.	h.	m.	s.
Auk, C. F. Adams 2d	1	44	17
Windrim Kid, F. G. Macomber,	1	44	33
Bonidrei, G. H. Wightman	1	45	12
New Orleans, F. S. Heaslip	1	45	58
Caramba, C. H. W. Foster	1	46	12
Ellen, C. P. Curtis, Jr.	1	46	23
Manchester II, Dr. J. L. Bremer	1	46	50
Spokane, F. Lewis Clark	1	46	56
Cod, Dr. Morton Prince	1	47	00
Hayseed III, H. L. Bowden	1	47	14
Sumatra, Francis Skinner	1	47	28
Vim, Trenor L. Park	1	47	29
Chewink VI, F. G. Macomber,	1	47	41
Sally VIII, L. F. Percival	1	50	40
Skiddoo, H. M. Sears,	1	51	45
Alecto, E. W. Hodgson and R. L. Pond	1	52	08
Lorelei, B. P. Cheney & C. D. Lanning	1	53	33

AFTERNOON RACE.

The afternoon race was even more glorious than the morning. The splendid work of the Auk was repeated but she stood over too far eastward on the home leg and the Sumatra finished 6 seconds ahead.

The elapsed time of the yachts in the afternoon race is given below:

Boat and owner.	h.	m.	s.
Sumatra, Francis Skinner	1	19	42
Auk, Charles Francis Adams, 2d	1	19	54
Windrim Kid, F. G. Macomber,	1	20	46
Manchester III, Dr. J. L. Bremer	1	20	49
Spokane, F. Lewis Clark	1	20	56
Bonidrei, G. H. Wightman	1	22	37
Cod, Dr. Morton Prince	1	23	00
Sally VIII, L. F. Percival	1	23	02
New Orleans, S. F. Heaslip	1	23	13
Chewink VI, F. G. Macomber	1	23	26
Vim, T. L. Park	1	23	39
Hayseed, III, H. L. Bowden	1	23	50
Ellen, C. P. Curtis, Jr.	1	24	01
Lorelei, B. H. Cheney	1	24	11
Skiddoo, H. M. Sears	1	24	51
Alecto, Hodgdon and Pond	1	25	06

In only one race of the six has the Manchester, the defender of the Quincy cup, led the Auk, the Quincy challenger. The chances are now good for the Auk to lift the cup next week and bring it back to Quincy.

WIRELESS SEA BLOCK SIGNAL

German Engineer's Device to Prevent Marine Collisions.

Wireless telegraphy, which automatically stops ships when they approach each other in fogs or heavy weather, is one of the latest inventions reported to the United States government by our observing consuls abroad, says a Washington dispatch.

Consul J. I. Brittain of Kehl reports that a Berlin engineer has applied for a patent for an invention to avoid collisions between vessels at sea. By the inventor's system vessels are supplied with special wireless telegraphic apparatus which acts over a short circuit, even as short a distance as half a mile.

As soon as a vessel enters within a certain distance of another vessel this telegraphic apparatus acts automatically in such a manner as to close the steam tube to the screw on each vessel. The machinery is thus instantly checked, and the steamers have time to reverse the engines or reduce speed. In this manner it is declared accidents by collision can be prevented absolutely.

POLITE LIGHTNING.

Played Pranks, but Said Adieu on Bell Before Leaving House.

Hurling half a dozen uncorked bottles containing ink and other fluids down a long stairway without spilling any of their contents was among the pranks played by lightning at the home of William M. Davis, in Cottage street, Derby, Conn., the other night, says the New York World. None of the bottles was even cracked.

The electric bolt entered a window, circled a brass bed in which Mr. and Mrs. Elsworth E. Straun were sleeping, only slightly shocking them, and then leaped to a shelf on which were the bottles and a lamp. The lamp was untouched, and the bottles were swept out of the room twenty feet to the hall on the floor below.

The lightning left the house by the electric doorbell wire, ringing the bell as it went out and singeing the hair of Mr. Straun's pet dog on the veranda. The same bolt, it is thought, opened the skylight on James McNamara's house next door.

Wireless Telegraphy on Trains.

Bavarian railroad trains are to be equipped with wireless telegraphy like ocean steamers, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The ministry of state railways has decided to install Marconigraphy on some of its trains to transmit orders and signals. There have been extensive experiments of short distance wireless telegraphy made on Bavarian roads near Munich, which are said to have been successful. While the minister of railroads was on one of the trains a message was transmitted to him from Berlin, 200 miles distant. The receiver was fitted on the locomotive [illegible] The apparatus to be insta[illegible] will permit not only of the receipt [illegible] messages while the train is in motio[illegible] but also of the sending of dispatches. WHITNEY REPLIES

Gives Refusal to Queer Proposition of Moran

QUESTION OF CANDIDACY

District Attorney Wanted It Left to Bryan to Settle--Whitney Announces His Own Candidacy For the Governorship

Boston, Aug. 17.—Henry M. Whitney issued a statement last night in which he declined to accept District Attorney Moran's suggestion to refer the contest for the Democratic nomination for governor to Mr. Bryan. Whitney announced positively that he had decided to become a candidate for the nomination. In his statement Whitney said:

"While always interested as a citizen and business man in public affairs, and in the success of the party to which I belong, I have never been a politician, and cannot become one now. I can honestly say that the holding of public office, even an office of such dignity as the governorship of Massachusetts, possesses no attraction for me. I had much rather remain a private citizen.

"But I find myself in a position where I cannot properly regard only my personal inclinations As a business man I have long been deeply interested in closer commercial relations with Canada and perhaps I stand more prominently for that cause than any other man in Massachusetts."

"Last year I became the Democratic candidate for the office of lieutenant governor for the sole purpose of giving the people of Massachusetts an opportunity to have a referendum vote on these vital issues. While success was not quite achieved, the result was highly encouraging. It would be false modesty on my part to fail to recognize that the vote I then received makes me the logical Democratic candidate for governor this year, if the same issues are again to be pressed, provided that General Bartlett, our excellent candidate for governor last year, does not desire the renomination to which, by courtesy, he is entitled. Finding that he does not desire to run again, I have reluctantly become convinced that only through my candidacy can the issues which I have so much at heart be safeguarded for the future. The expressions which have reached me within the last week from business acquaintances, as well as from men interested in political affairs, have satisfied me as to where my duty lies. Therefore, I am now ready to say definitely that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination. I regret that there should be any contest for the Democratic nomination, but I trust that if we must have one it will be so conducted as not to jeopardize our bright prospects of victory.

"I have seen in the press this morning an interview with District Attorney Moran in which he proposes to leave it to some tribunal other than the delegates to be elected by the Democracy of Massachusetts to say whether he or myself ought to receive the nomination. I cannot accept the suggestion that he makes. It would not be in accord with Democratic theories of government to place Mr. Bryan or anyone else in a position of exercising powers which belong solely to the Democratic voters of Massachusetts and are a part of their right of franchise; nor is it for a moment admissable to give to the Democratic voters of a few cities the right to make a decision which belongs to all the Democrats of the state. I have not the slightest idea that Mr. Bryan would be willing to have the appointment of the candidate for whom the Democrats of Massachusetts are to vote left to him, but I think that he would advise the defeated candidate before the convention, whoever he might be, that it was his duty to abide by the decision of the party."

Governor Close to Lynching

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 17.—Within the shadow of the home of his victim, Miss Jennie Brooks, after having been identified by her and after Governor Heyward had addressed the mob in vain, "Bob" Davis, the negro who murderously attacked Miss Brooks with intent to commit an assault, and who afterwards outraged a negro girl, 14 years old, was lynched at Greenwood last evening. Hundreds of bullets were sent through the negro's body. The governor witnessed the lynching from a distance.

Many Killed In Explosions

Chihauhua, Mex., Aug. 17.—Two cars of dynamite were blown up on the Mexican Central railroad near here. Two women, two children and eight men were killed. Several steel cars and all buildings near the explosion were destroyed. This explosion caused another explosion in a factory two blocks away. In this explosion three persons were blown to pieces and 30 others were wounded. The factory was wrecked.

RID OF TROLLEYS

No Longer Part of Assets of the New Haven Road

DEAL CAUSES SURPRISE

Carried Out While Massachusetts Was Preparing a Test Case to Prevent Control of Trolley Car Systems by Railroads

Boston, Aug. 17.—Details of the transfer by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company of street car systems valued at many millions of dollars leaked out in this city, and it was learned that the railroad company has taken steps to divest itself of practically all of its street car property in southern New England. The transfer, which follows closely on the announced intention of the Massachusetts authorities to retain in this state control of Massachusetts street railway corporations, has been made to an association known as the New England Security Investment company.

According to information obtained here, the deal was said to involve the street car lines owned by the New Haven road in both Massachusetts and Connecticut, with connecting lines to Rhode Island and New York. A report from New Haven, however, indicated the probability that the Connecticut lines might not figure in the transfer, due, it was said, to the fact that under the charter of the Consolidated Railway company, the holding company of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, such a transfer would be unnecessary.

For over three years the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company has been acquiring street railways in the state of Massachusetts, and recently the holdings of the company reached such proportions that the matter was made the subject of a special message by Governor Guild to the legislature, on the eve of its adjournment last June.

Attorney General Malone also interested himself in the matter and, acting in accord with the views of the governor, he drafted and submitted to the legislature a bill intended to prevent a continuance in this state of the control of the trolley car companies by steam railroad systems.

A brief consideration of the matter by the legislative committee on street railways brought about the suggestion that a test case be made and the attorney general set about preparing a case which would eventually receive a ruling from the Massachusetts supreme court. While this case was being prepared the attorney general, desiring certain information in connection with the car lines owned by the railroad, asked President Mellen, through Chairman Jackson of the state railroad commission, to furnish it to him.

The information asked for by Malone was transmitted to him yesterday and almost simultaneously the fact that the railroad company had transferred its holdings became known.

The action of the railroad company at this time created a mild sensation, but it was impossible to get an expression of opinion as to what effect it would have on the proposed court proceedings.

Fight at Tangier's Gate

Tangier, Aug. 17.—A fierce fight took place outside the gate of the city between followers of Raisuli, the pretender, and Anjera tribesmen. The noise of the fusillade caused a panic and shops were closed. Pasha El Ghazei, with regular troops, attacked the combatants and drove them away, killing several of them. The fight had its origin in a brawl in the market place. Here the followers of Raisuli had two men killed and three wounded.

Boy and Bomb Started Commotion

Warsaw, Aug. 17.—A boy threw a bomb last evening into a procession which was returning from a pilgrimage to the shrine of the Holy Virgin at Rokitno, near Warsaw, wounding two of the processionists. The explosion attracted a patrol of infantry, who, without warning, fired a volley, wounding 30 persons.

Considering Collective Note

Vienna, Aug. 17.—Politicians here do not apprehend dangerous complications from the Balkan situation. It is expected that the powers will present a collective note to the governments at Sofia and Athens and that this will have the effect of bringing Bulgaria and Greece to reason.

Earthquakes In West Indies

Kingstown, St. Vincent, Aug. 17.—There were four shocks here, and on the Island of St. Lucia within the space of eight hours there were 51 distinct shocks. The continuousness of earth tremors since the severe shock of last February is causing considerable anxiety.

Fishermen Have Fared Badly

St. Johns, Aug. 17.—The Labrador mail boat reports that the fishery off Labrador is the worst this season in 20 years. Owing to the failure of the Labrador catch and the short catch along the Newfoundland coast, the price of fish is advancing rapidly.

China Getting Into Line

Shanghai, Aug. 17.—It is announced that Yuan Shai Kai, commander of the Chinese forces, intends, as an experiment, to introduce a constitutional government in the province of Chili.

BANK DOORS CLOSED

Old Institution May Never Again Open Its Doors

Boston, Aug. 17.—The First National bank of Chelsea did not open for business this morning, orders having been issued by the comptroller of the currency to close the institution.

National Bank Examiner Ewer has been making an inspection of the bank recently and last night, at the request of the directors, he visited the institution and counted the cash on hand. The bank examiner stated that he found no discrepancy between the cash book and funds on hand, but that from a superficial examination, he had decided to recommend to the authorities at Washington that the doors of the bank be closed to business. He said that he had had no opportunity to make a thorough inspection of the books, but from what he observed from statements of some of the officials that it was doubtful if the bank was ever reopened for business. Beyond this statement the bank examiner had nothing to say for publication.

The First National bank is one of the oldest institutions in Chelsea, having been incorporated as a national bank in 1864. It has a capital of $300,000 and carries deposits of several million dollars. The president is Sylvester B. Hinckley of Newton, formerly a resident of Chelsea. The cashier is Walter Whittlesey.

The cause of the bank's trouble is not definitely known, but it is intimated that unprofitable investments and unwise speculation are responsible for the difficulty.

Rescued From Death In Mid-Air

Wakefield, Mass., Aug. 17.—Suspended in mid-air, clutching a live wire, and at any moment likely to be hurled to the ground 40 feet below, Arthur Johnson, a lineman, would have in all probability been electrocuted but for the prompt and courageous work of Paul Lane, a fellow-workman. Johnson was suffering intense agony when Lane climbed a pole and wrenched the man's hands free. The injured man was left at the top of the pole while Lane went for a doctor. He attempted to climb down and fell nearly half the length of the pole. Johnson's hands were badly burned and his body bruised, but he will recover.

Playout of Hand Tubs

Providence, Aug. 17.—With a "squirt" of 234 feet 9 3-4 inches, the Fire King company of Pawtuxet, R. I., carried off the first prize of $200 and a silver torch among the old fighting tubs at the 16th annual muster of the New England States Veteran Firemen's league in this city. The Brockton tub, Hancock No. 1, carried home the second prize of $150 after a play of 234 feet 6 3-4 inches, the Geyser of East Providence took third of $100 with 234 feet 3-4 inch, while the Enterprise No. 2 of Arlington took the fourth prize, $50, playing 198 feet 3-4 inch.

A Mistake In Signals

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 17.—Six persons were injured quite severely and a dozen others shaken and bruised by a collision of a passenger train on the Rutland railroad at Grand Isle last night with some cars filled with excursionists on a side track. A mistake in signals which led to the misplacing of a switch and sent the train onto the siding was the cause of the accident. Probably none of the injuries will prove fatal.

Strikers Lose Their Jobs

Boston, Aug. 17.—The places of more than 100 union longshoremen who struck at the Metropolitan wharf as the result of the discharge of four of their number have been filled by new men, and work has proceeded with little interruption. Stevedore Delap states that so far as he is concerned the incident is closed.

Dog Saved Child's Life

Providence, Aug. 17.—Louis, the 18-month-old son of George Latermore of Hope Valley, was saved from drowning in the Tarkiln pond by the prompt action of a bulldog. The boy had fallen into the pond, which is very deep near the shore, and the dog jumped in and brought him to safety in his teeth.

Fire Chief's Wagon Kills Woman

Boston, Aug. 17.—Mary Murphy, an aged widow, got in the way of fire apparatus which was responding to an alarm on Green street last night and she was run over and fatally injured by District Chief Grady's wagon. The woman was taken to the relief hospital, where she died.

British Emigrants For Canada

London, Aug. 17.—Brigadier Howell and Colonel Lamb of the Salvation Army leave England for Canada Aug. 17, having completed arrangements for the settlement of between 20,000 and 25,000 emigrants in the dominion within a year. A fleet of steamers will be chartered for their transportation. The emigrants will be scattered through Canada in such a way as to place them within reach of the work for which they are best suited.

Held on Extortion Charge

New York, Aug. 17.—Maury L. Freeman, a stock transfer tax examiner employed in the state comptroller's office, was arrested last night on a charge of extortion. It is alleged that Freeman told the manager of a mining company that by the payment of $250 stock could be transferred in this state without the necessary stamp. A detective was sent to the mining office and it is alleged that a marked bill was paid.

Four Mutineers Escape Death

Sebastopol, Aug. 17.—Admiral Skrydloff has commuted the sentences of four mutineers who were condemned to death to 20 years' imprisonment. Other sentences were confirmed.

CALL FOR CANNON

His Presidential Boom Formally Launched In Illinois

NOT SEEKING THE OFFICE

But No Man Could Refuse Summons to Such a Place--Several Political Rivers Must First Be Crossed--A "Stand Patter"

Danville, Ills., Aug. 17.—Coincident to the launching of a presidential boom, Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the national house of representatives, was nominated unanimously for an 18th term in congress by the Republican congressional convention of the Eighteenth Illinois district. Resolutions were voted by the delegates, setting forth their unanimous belief that Cannon is the fittest candidate of the Republican party for President of the United States. In response Cannon said:

"The resolution which you have just adopted, coming as it does from those whom I have represented in the national house of representatives for over 30 years, touches me profoundly. I would not exchange your confidence for the gratification of any ambition I might have. It is proper for me to say, however, that we are on the eve of a campaign for the election of a national house of representatives, which may involve one-third of the personnel of the United States senate, to say nothing of the campaign in the respective states.

"In politics, as well as in other matters, it is best not to cross a stream until you come to it. The first stream to cross is in November next, and it is necessary that we should be successful in crossing it before we attempt to get over the river in 1908. If in November the interests of the Republican party shall again be clothed with power in the national congress and the first session of the Sixtieth congress can succeed in making approximately as good a record as was made by the first session of the Fifty-Ninth congress, which has just come to a close, coupled with the addition of a wise administration by the chief executive and the impartial enforcement of the laws, the party will deserve and, in my judgment, will receive the approval of the people in 1908.

"It is too early to determine the personnel of the national ticket for the presidential election. So far as the Republican party is concerned, it will no doubt, in convention assembled, perform that duty wisely when the time comes, and whoever is chosen for leadership will surely receive the hearty support of those who believe in the policies of the Republican party, of which I am an humble member. These policies are vital for the best interests and welfare of all the people. No man would refuse the nomination at the hands of a great party for the highest office in the republic, but such a nomination is not to be had for the seeking."

The keynote sounded by Speaker Cannon in his slated address to the convention was to "stand pat." He praised the tariff of the Dingley bill. He said that the tariff should be revised only when revision would do more good than harm to the great mass of people.

Speaker Cannon said that if he were engaged in toil which gave him the right of membership he would join the ranks of organized labor. He scored the anti-injunction measure, which was introduced in congress with the sanction of President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor. After disposing of the labor question, Cannon's address dealt with President Roosevelt, whom he praised unstintedly.

Newark Off Visiting List

Newark, N. J., Aug. 17.—The Democratic factional differences here, which recently have revolved around the announcement that William J. Bryan would speak in Newark after his coming visit to New York, were somewhat set at rest by the making public of a cablegram from Bryan announcing that he would not visit Newark.

Farcical Proceedings

Webster City, Ia., Aug. 17.—After taking 3698 ballots, the Thirty-seventh district Republican state senatorial convention has adjourned till Aug. 23. The last vote stood exactly as did the first vote cast, each of the three counties in the district standing solidly by its own candidate.

Not a Candidate For Congress

Boston, Aug. 17.—Congressman William S. McNary last night announced that he would not be a candidate for renomination in the Tenth district. He made the announcement in a letter to The Post.

Campbell Will Be Governor of Texas

Dallas, Aug. 17.—Thomas M. Campbell was nominated by the Democratic party for governor of Texas. He will be the second native governor of Texas. There were four candidates for the nomination.

Outbreak Quelled by Volley

Warsaw, Aug. 17.—An outbreak occurred in the central prison among the political offenders confined there, owing to the hospital conditions. The wardens of the prison called in half a company of the Perniva regiment, who subdued the outbreak by a volley which killed two and wounded 10 of the prisoners.

Past, Present and Future Paint

The best "past" paint is the paint which has worn down evenly, leaving the surface ready for repainting without the need of expensive scraping and "burning-off."

The best "present" paint is the paint which is applied with least labor, covers the most surface per gallon, and looks the best when on.

The best "future" paint is the paint which lasts without cracking or peeling, affording perfect protection for the greatest number of years.

Viewed in any of these ways,

Salem Pure White Lead

(Made by the Old Dutch Process)

mixed with Pure Linseed Oil is best. Good painters all say so.

Send for our free book. It tells about paints, thoroughly yet simply, and gives you a test for paint purity.

ICE CREAM POISONING

Probers at Salisbury Beach Are Not In Accord

Salisbury Beach, Mass., Aug. 17.—The investigation to determine the blame for the wholesale poisoning of picnickers by ice cream, as claimed, has begun.

Police and health officials are accusing each other of carelessness, while the dealers who sold ice cream on the beach have been forced to discontinue business pending developments.

A little delay in the investigation is caused by waiting for the report of the analysis by the Boston board of health of the seized ice cream specimens. In case the report finds impurities in the cream prosecution of the dealers will be begun.

Orin Gurney of the Newburyport health board declares Chief Beckman of the Salisbury Beach police was slow in seizing samples from the dealers at their stores in Newburyport, allowing them ample time, he says, to clean their cans, instead of taking them immediately from the carts.

Beckman retaliates by accusing Gurney of lack of vigilance in his official capacity by allowing teams "reeking in filth," as he describes them, to sell on the beach. The victims of the poisoning are recovering.

The terror that filled the beach has entirely subsided now that the alleged cause of the trouble is widely known.

Frightened to Death

New York, Aug. 17.—Sheer terror of a large bull terrier dog led to the death of Hugh Leonard, a middle-aged man, in a saloon in Chinatown last night. The same dog terribly bit another man, Martin Donovan. The animal, Donosaid, was set on him and Leonard. Leonard ran out of the place in fear and died in a drug store nearby. Donovan's condition is serious. August Marcella, a bartender, was arrested. He is accused of having set the dog on the two men.

Ducking For Winning Nine

Washington, Pa., Aug. 17.—The Washington Independents, a crack local baseball nine, went to Coffey's Crossing, a village several miles west of here, and defeated the home team, 5 to 4. The home rooters had wagered considerable money on the game and took revenge on the winners by ducking the entire nine in a nearby creek. The Washington players put up a desperate fight, but every man was thrown into the water in his baseball uniform.

Japs In the Ascendency

London, Aug. 17.—A Daily Mail correspondent telegraphs that, having made a tour of northern Korea and Manchuria, he found that the Japanese are now more strictly observing the open door. Japanese manufactures, however, have largely replaced articles of European and American origin throughout Manchuria, mainly owing to the advantage obtained by the free entrance of Japanese goods through Dalny.

Texans Don't Like Negroes

Austin, Aug. 17.—Conditions at Brownsville are anything but reassuring. An armed body of men extends from the city proper to the barracks and it is believed if any negro soldiers show themselves there is danger of immediate and serious trouble. By agreement with the federal authorities the governor has sent a ranger force to Brownsville to preserve order.

Kermit Roosevelt In the Northwest

Deadwood, S. D., Aug. 17.—Kermit Roosevelt, with a young friend, John Heard, have arrived here for a visit with Seth Bullock. The feature of the visit will be an overland trip to President Roosevelt's old ranch near Medora. The party will consist of Bullock, his son, Paul Martin, Kermit Roosevelt and John Heard. They will be gone for a week or 10 days.

Promotion of Friendly Relations

Berlin, Aug. 17.—The correspondent at Homburg of The Lokal Anzeiger quotes British Ambassador Lascelles as describing the result of the meeting there of King Edward and Emperor William as likely to be of great advantage in promoting friendly relations between Great Britain and Germany.

Guard Murdered by Convicts

Charleston, S. C., Aug. 17.—Feigning illness, three negro convicts serving long terms on the chain gang stopped in the stockade, seized and overpowered H. C. Stello, the white guard, and cut his throat with a butcher knife, killing him. Two "trusties" were locked in and the men escaped.

Jockey's Injuries Result Fatally

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Charles Schoen, a steeplechase trainer attached to the stable of M. Daly at the Saratoga race track, died from injuries received while training a jumper. He struck on the back of his head and concussion of the brain ensued.

Receiver For Chicago Bank

Chicago, Aug. 17.—The Garfield Park bank, a small institution, has been placed in the hands of a receiver by Judge Bethea. The collapse of the Milwaukee Avenue state bank is said to be responsible for the failure.

Red Guard Leader Drowned

Stockholm, Aug. 17.—Kock, the leader of the Red Guard of Finland, was on board a small sailing boat bound for Sweden, which was run down by a steamer. Kock and another man were drowned.

FEDERAL DIVORCE HUNT

Women Clerks to Examine Records For Twenty Years.

CONGRESS WANTS STATISTICS

Information Gained by Census Clerks Sent to New York and Every Principal County In the United States Will Be Used In Framing a Uniform Divorce Law.

Twelve of the brightest and most skillful women clerks in the department of commerce and labor of the bureau of the census recently invaded the county courthouse at New York, marshaled by William H. Jarvis, and installed themselves in the surrogate's court. They will hold possession every day for some eight weeks when the room is not needed by the surrogate. In that time they expect to go over the divorce records of New York county for twenty years, says the New York World. Examinations of similar records will be made simultaneously in every principal county of every state in the United States for the purpose of collating information, which will be used in framing a bill for the federal supervision of divorces, just as there is a federal supervision of bankrupts. Another body of Washington clerks was set to work in Brooklyn on the same task.

The unannounced appearance of the young women created a sensation in the courthouse, and there was a general rush of clerks "to look them over." There wasn't much to see except a dozen coiffures bent low over a long table and many taper fingers going deftly over a great mass of papers and a dozen pencils making swift records.

When the news spread to the offices of lawyers who have been counsel in divorce proceedings in which the evidence was sealed after the granting of the decree there was a general interrogation as to how far the federal government would go in its researches. The head of the clerical force expressed the opinion that as a matter of courtesy the county would permit the examination of the sealed bundles which no man outside of the referees and the judges had seen.

Although Mr. Jarvis made it clear that no names were to be copied in the compilation of the statistics, the mere announcement that the arcana of divorce secrets were to be thrown open to twelve women created consternation.

The men and women employed in the census bureau are required not only to possess intelligence, but good memory. Every employee is under bond not to reveal information under pain of $500 fine or a term of imprisonment, or both. The twelve women and the eight men brought on from Washington were selected with especial reference to their fitness and their loyalty. Most of them are from southern states and are especially jealous of their reputations for being able to keep secrets. Nevertheless the attorneys who have family skeletons locked up were averse to any secrets being distributed among twelve women, even if no names should be placed on record.

In the state of New York it is the law that all cases not tried in open court are sealed by direction of the court, and this is strictly enforced either literally or presumably, sometimes the entire record of a case being securely sealed with big red seals and then tied with red tape, with the exception of the decree. Then again it has often been said that divorces have been granted to certain influential persons of social or financial standing in the community that have been secretly put away and guarded so that information of them has never come to light. These will now be made subjects of a thorough search and all the data regarding them will be placed in the public records at Washington. The secrets thus disclosed will not be for publication, but for the use of the government only, no matter how sensational may be the character of the facts revealed.

The examiners will make no record of names—except in their memories—but will file answers to the following queries:

State or country in which married.
Date of marriage.
Date of separation.
Date of filing petition.
Who was libellant—husband or wife?
How was notice served—personally or by publication?
Was case contested?
Was decree granted?
Date of decree or judgment.
Number of years married.
Cause for which divorced.
If not direct, was intemperance an indirect cause?
Kind of divorce—absolute or limited.
Number of children by this union; number affected by decree.
Was alimony asked for?
Was alimony granted?
Occupation of husband; of wife.
Residence of libellee.

Stuffing For Kansas Pillows.

Mrs. Gilyeat, clerk in the state auditor's office, Topeka, Kan., is making a sofa pillow that will represent between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 in bonds which have been canceled by the state school fund commission during the time Mrs. Gilyeat has been in the auditor's office, says Leslie's Weekly. When bonds are paid or refunded the auditor punches holes in them. These small round pieces of paper Mrs. Gilyeat has saved for her pillow, and she has kept note of the value of the bonds canceled. She now has the clippings from more than $10,000,000 worth of the bonds.

Danderine

GREW THIS HAIR:

AND WE CAN PROVE IT

Testimonial No. 422.

MISS JEANETTE WALLICE,
343 W. 14TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

When the scalp throws off either dandruff or a gummy substance, it is an evidence of scalp disease, and no time should be lost in correcting it. You certainly would not hesitate to take treatment were you to look at this matter through a magnifying glass. When highly magnified it resembles a working mass of insects. These creatures absorb the nutriment or life-sap of the scalp causing the scalp to become dry and feverish, resulting in the loss of hair and finally baldness. Danderine works wonders in all such cases. It thoroughly eradicates all trace of scalp bacteria and makes the hair grow unusually long, strong and beautiful. One 25 cent bottle is enough to show you that it will do all this and even more. NOW at all druggists, three sizes, 25c., 50c. & $1.00 per bottle. KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., Chicago.

ONE MAN'S IDOL

[Original.]

Many years ago in Madrid there lived a grandee, Don Roderigo de Sandoval. His house was on a little square, or rather court, in the center of which was a fountain with a cup where any one might quench his thirst. Don Roderigo had married a girl very much younger than himself and set her up on a pedestal as his mother had placed a crucifix on her dressing table, to worship. Signora de Sandoval while she at first found it pleasant to be thus adored, especially since adoration brought with it every comfort, soon found it tiresome. Her husband devoted but a brief time to her every day, the rest being given to affairs of state, he being one of the king's cabinet. The rest of the time the young wife spent alone, and it did not occur to the husband that the time would hang heavy on her hands or that she would crave society, especially of the opposite sex. Did she not have servants at her beck and call, the finest apparel to wear, the most savory dishes upon her table? What more could any woman need?

One night when Don Roderigo was returning from the palace where he had been in conference with the king, just before entering the court in which he lived he stopped short and fastened his eyes on a scene before him. A young man stood at the fountain holding the cup in his hand and looking up at the balcony projecting from the second floor of Don Roderigo's house. Just within a window opening on to the balcony fluttered a handkerchief, while the young man was making signs with the cup. His back was toward De Sandoval, so that he could not be recognized.

The husband watched this pantomime in a sort of stupor. He could not have been more thunderstruck had he seen an angel from heaven alight on the fountain and pour mud upon the waters. That the being he had worshiped could thus dishonor him filled him with agony. While he looked he saw a fan waved frantically from within the window and the man drinking at the fountain dropped the cup and walked rapidly away. Don Roderigo, awakening from his stupor, followed, but the stranger had only a short distance to go to turn a corner, and by the time Sandoval reached it the man he sought was nowhere to be seen.

Don Roderigo went to his house, kissed his wife (she noticed that his lips were cold as ice), and went to bed. He did not accuse her nor ask the name of the young man who had been making signs at her window. From that time his manner toward her was changed, though no one except herself noticed it. She was allowed the same privileges, enjoyed the same comforts, but somehow she felt that she lived in the shadow of death.

A few weeks after the episode that had such a marked effect upon Roderigo he was coming home late at night when he saw a man drinking at the fountain. Advancing, he knocked the cup from the stranger's hand. The man turned, hot at the insult, and seeing one worthy of his steel drew his rapier and attacked the insulter. Sandoval drew and defended himself, casting from time to time an eye on his wife's window. All was dark there, and in time he called a halt in the fight, apologized for the insult, refilled the cup and offered it to the stranger. The latter, puzzled, drank and went away.

After that on numerous occasions—always at the dead of night—some stranger stopping to quench his thirst at the fountain would report in the morning that the cup had been knocked from his hand and, sometimes after a fight, the insulter had apologized and proffered a full cup. The police seemed singularly apathetic about the matter, not even taking pains to watch the fountain. Thus it became the belief that the person who gave these insults was high in favor of the government.

One night a man entered the square and, seeing another at the fountain, withdrew under the shadow of a flight of steps. While the man at the fountain was drinking a third figure approached and knocked the cup out of the drinker's hand.

"What means this insult?" asked the man attacked.

At that moment a glimmer of white appeared on the balcony of Don Roderigo's house. Roderigo saw it in an instant.

"It means that I have at last found the man I have been so long looking for," said Roderigo.

His rapier flashed, but before the man for whom it was intended had turned to draw his own weapon a third man shot from a shadow and stood, sword in hand, between the two.

"You are mistaken, signor," he said. "I am the man you have been looking for. I was a lover of your wife's before you married her. Thrice I have passed a few words, or rather signals, with her from this fountain, but I have never been nearer. She is pure as marble. Go and continue the worship which till you found me here you bestowed upon her, for she is worthy of it."

The reply to this was a lunge on the part of Don Roderigo and a shriek from the balcony. The stranger caught the blade on his own steel and replied in kind. In a few minutes Don Roderigo de Sandoval lay stretched upon the pavement.

"You made an idol of your wife," said the stranger, sheathing his rapier. "I have made a widow of her."

A year later Signora de Sandoval married the man who made her a widow and became one of the most attractive of all the dames of the capital. From being worshiped by one man she was worshiped by a whole

If Mothers Only Knew!

Nine times out of ten when children are out of sorts a few doses of Dr. True's Elixir will make them well, strong and happy. If worms are present they will be expelled. If there are no worms True's Elixir acts as a gentle tonic laxative. It cleans out the stomach and bowels, and turns the scale in favor of health by aiding and strengthening the digestion. Unsuspected Worms cause so much illness in children that it is a custom in many families to give at regular intervals to guard against them. Some of the symptoms of worms are languid looks, indigestion with variable appetite, malaria, irritable disposition and restless sleep. If your children show any of these signs do not risk delay but give them the remedy that has given relief for over 50 years. It is purely vegetable and harmless in any condition of child or adult.

Sold by all dealers, 35c., 50c., $1.00. Write for free book "Children and their Diseases."

Souvenir Colored Post Cards.

For the tourist who delights in the after enjoyment of his vacation journey, there is no more pleasant reminder than a souvenir postal card of some beautiful scene or pleasant picture of the territory visited. The Boston & Maine R. R. appreciating the fact that almost everybody is more or less interested in these colored post cards, has this year issued a beautiful set of colored post cards, twenty in all, each one representing some beautiful New England view point, whether mountain or seashore or inland. These cards are the expensive lithograph post cards, done in natural colors and especially attractive and artistic in their make up. The entire set will be mailed to any address upon receipt of 30 cents in stamps by the Boston & Maine General Passenger Department, Boston.

AS MILLER SEES SARATOGA.

Like "12 o'Clock and a Sunday," Says Poet of the Sierras.

"It is all 12 o'clock and a Sunday," is Joaquin Miller's description of Saratoga as it is today. The "poet of the Sierras" is spending the summer with his wife and daughter in their cottage at Saratoga, says a special dispatch to the New York Herald. "I have been in Saratoga often," said Mr. Miller. "Never before has it been so beautiful, so clean, so sweet, and the people so well dressed and all so quiet and orderly. I was here in 1876 with Frank Leslie, who took me to his country place to write a poem on the death of Custer. It was a very bad poem. I did not publish it. The subject was too horrible to write about.

"I remember the town as it was then, so noisy, so much dirtier. I heard people shouting and brawling in the streets like a western mining camp—so much drinking. All this is so different now. People here are of a much better class. No drinking, no brawling in the streets, so much better clothes; and, above all, no wretchedness—a most wonderful thing. Everybody appears to be happy and nobody miserable. Nothing wretched here except the hand organs. Hand organs are the only wretched things I have known here. No, I have not seen the races. The other night I took a walk in the streets and I saw the great crowds of people. No, I did not go into the hotels. I do not like hotels. I have lived in too many. I like woods, trees and the birds.

"All my publications were burned in the fire at San Francisco. I am glad of it. I shall rewrite them. I can write them over much better. That is what I am working on now. I do not need to work any more. I am going to write each day a little until they are done over again. I was in Oakland, just across the bay from San Francisco, when the first earthquake came. My bed shook like a boat hitting a wharf. I jumped up and went out.

"'There has been an earthquake,' said my Japanese boys. We saw the cattle coming out of the woods into which they had run.

"'It is all over,' said my boys. They knew. In Japan they have earthquakes every day. Before the earthquakes come over there the cows run into the woods, where roots of trees keep the ground from cracking. When it is over they come out again, all frisking. I looked over at the city and saw smoke in many places from the fire—air all still and so quiet except a queer noise for half an hour like New York Central trains going through that subway.

"Soon a column of black, jet black, smoke rose and spread out flat in the upper air. Underneath were flames, and then the top of the cloud took fire and burned—two fires, one below, one above the cloud. Later I saw three layers of fire, one above the other, with a black cloud between.

"Papers wired me to describe the scene, but I paid no attention to the requests. No one could describe it—all very solemn and so still. I am glad to be here, where everything is so lovely and everybody is so happy."

A CRACK SHOT MAYOR.

Startling Exhibition of His Marksmanship In Ending a Strike.

Mayor John Coutcher of Kelly's island, twelve miles from Sandusky, O., in Lake Erie, recently employed an entirely original method to solve the labor problem, says a Sandusky dispatch. Several hundred foreigners employed in quarries struck for higher wages after they were paid off. Refusal made them angry, and two days afterward they threatened to destroy the company's property.

Mayor Coutcher was advised of the situation. He had no police department to call upon and help could not be summoned from Sandusky in time to be of any assistance. He decided to take matters in his own hands. With his rifle on his shoulder he marched to the quarries, where he ordered the strikers to disperse. They demurred and he opened fire upon them. One ball grazed a striker's ear, another was sent through the leg of another's trousers, and a third clipped the heel of a foreigner.

By this time the strikers, dismayed and awed at the display of marksmanship, fled precipitately. The ringleaders left the island in haste and the others returned to work in the afternoon.

Mayor Coutcher is a crack rifle shot, having many times brought down twenty-five birds straight in shoots at Sandusky.

New Life Saving Apparatus.

M. Pierre Samois, who has invented a new life saving apparatus, went to the Louvre swimming baths a few days ago to test it, says the London Globe. The apparatus consists of two small circular metal buoys through which the arms are passed. A belt connects the buoys, which are constructed in such a way as to be practically unsinkable. M. Samois' invention was put to many severe tests by expert swimmers, none of whom were able to remain under water a moment while wearing the apparatus.

To Umpire Fiddlers' Contest.

Senator elect Bob Taylor of Tennessee has accepted an invitation to serve as umpire at the old time fiddlers' contest and reunion to be held at Yazoo City, Miss., in October, and will also deliver an address, says a Memphis dispatch. Congressman Williams, Governor Vardaman and all other candidates in Mississippi state and senate contests will likewise attend and sing their campaign songs to the music of the aged fiddlers.

To Meet the Corinthians

A great game of association football is scheduled for next month, when a Boston team captained by Manager Frazer of the Fore River team, will be up against the Corinthians from England. During the next few weeks the team to do duty on that occasion will be pitted against the strongest local teams that can be found, and it is hoped that by this means, together with strict training, on the day of the game the trainers will be able to put their men into the field in the pink of condition.

The official team has not yet been made public, and it is most likely that the final selection will not be made until the morning of the match. The following players are among those in training for the event: H. C. Artis, Lynch, McAllister, McDevitt, Lyons, Connor, A. Stoop, Forsyth, McDonald, Williams, Connolly, Lewis and Nuttal.

Good Work by Sick Man.

It was not surprising that Constable George W. Taylor fainted on Thursday. He had been under the doctor's care, and had been confined to the house for for a week, taking no solid food. It was unwise for him to leave the house, but he was plucky and captured his man.

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles O. Hayden was arraigned for violation of the liquor law at Weymouth. Case continued until Saturday.

Arthur H. Turner was arraigned for the larceny of a boat from Thomas Conboy at Quincy. Case continued until next Thursday.

Auk One Of Six

Eleven Yachts Eliminated From Trial Races To Pick Three

In the two sonder class races off Marblehead yesterday, the Auk of Quincy was 13th and 2d, the Sumatra, Caramba and Skiddoo being in the charmed circle in the morning race, and the Vim, Auk and Chewink in the afternoon.

The Eastern Yacht club regatta committee held a meeting after the second race and announced that all but six boats had been eliminated from the list of contestants for the Roosevelt cup. The six yachts requested to continue the trials today are: Auk, owned by C. F. Adams, 2d; Bonidrei, owned by G. H. Wightman; Caramba, owned by C. H. W. Foster; Spokane, owned by F. Lewis Clark; Sumatra, owned by Francis Skinner, and Vim, owned by T. L. Park.

By the Daily Ledger summary below, the first six boats are the Auk, Caramba, Spokane, Sumatra, Vim, Chewink or Windrim Kid. The summary allows 5 points for first place, 4 for second, 3 for third, 2 for fourth and 1 for fifth place as follows :

	1	2	3	4	5	Points
Auk	1	2	1	0	0	16
Caramba	0	2	1	0	2	13
Spokane	2	0	0	0	1	11
Sumatra	2	0	0	0	0	10
Vim	1	1	0	0	1	10
Chewink VI	0	0	2	2	0	10
Windrim Kid	0	1	2	0	0	10
Bonidrei	1	0	1	0	1	9
Hayseed III	0	2	0	0	0	8
Cod	1	0	0	1	0	7
New Orleans	0	0	0	1	2	4
Manchester	0	0	0	2	0	4
Sally VIII	0	0	0	2	0	4
Skidoo	0	0	1	0	0	3

MORNING RACE.

The wind yesterday morning was light and none of the yachts finished within three hours. It was a triangular course of nine miles, and the honors went to the Sumatra with the Auk No. 13.

The elapsed time of the yachts in the morning race was:

Yacht and owner.	h.	m.	s.
Sumatra, Francis Skinner	3	04	09
Caramba, C. H. W. Foster	3	07	19
Skiddoo, H. M. Sears,	3	07	29
Chewink VI, F. G. Macomber,	3	09	19
Bonidrei, G. H. Wightman	3	12	00
Vim, Trenor L. Park	3	14	16
Hayseed III, H. L. Bowden	3	15	33
New Orleans, F. S. Heaslip	3	15	35
Windrim Kid, F. G. Macomber,	3	16	30
Alecto, E. W. Hodgson and R. L. Pond	3	16	48
Cod, Dr. Morton Prince	3	17	31
Manchester II, Dr. J. L. Bremer	3	17	54
Auk, C. F. Adams 2d	3	18	19
Spokane, F. Lewis Clark	3	18	36
Ellen, C. P. Curtis, Jr.	3	19	18
Sally VIII, L. F. Percival	3	22	09
Lorelei, B. P. Cheney & C. D. Lanning	3	31	30

AFTERNOON RACE.

It was a windward and leeward course of six miles in the afternoon, and the Auk did splendid work, but was second to the Vim. The elapsed time was:

Boat and owner.	h.	m.	s.
Vim, T. L. Park	1	49	48
Auk, Charles Francis Adams, 2d	1	51	30
Chewink VI, F. G. Macomber	1	53	01
Sally VIII, L. F. Percival	1	53	32
Ellen, C. P. Curtis, Jr.	1	53	40
Windrim Kid, F. G. Macomber,	1	54	32
Spokane, F. Lewis Clark	1	54	42
Cod, Dr. Morton Prince	1	54	49
Skiddoo, H. M. Sears	1	55	09
New Orleans, S. F. Heaslip	1	55	13
Sumatra, Francis Skinner	1	57	11
Manchester III, Dr. J. L. Bremer	1	58	07
Bonidrei, G. H. Wightman	2	00	01
Alecto, Hodgdon and Pond	2	00	44
Caramba, C. H. W. Foster	2	01	35
Hayseed, III, H. L. Bowden	2	03	22
Lorelei, B. H. Cheney	2	07	24

It was arranged that the race today should start at 10.30, and the course was further reduced to a triangle of two miles to the leg, or four miles to leeward or windward. The boats to be given two minutes to go over the line in order to avoid crowding.

The positions in each of the eight races is shown below. The Bonidrei and Caramba had the best average at six, and the Auk was a close third with six and one-fourth. The Chewink, Sumatra and Vim came next:

	RACES

Decision Regarding Labor Imported From Mexico

CLASSED AS UNSKILLED

Came to United States to Work as Laborers on Ordinary Railroad Construction--Law Defined by Department of Justice

Washington, Aug. 18.—An important question respecting the importation of labor from Mexico into the United States for work on railroad construction in Texas has been determined by the department of justice at the instance of the department of commerce and labor. The question was whether men employed as laborers on ordinary railroad construction were "skilled" or "unskilled" in the meaning of the law. The department of justice, through an opinion rendered by acting Attorney General Robb, has decided that the men are "unskilled" laborers and that therefore they cannot, under the law, be admitted into this country under contract.

In 1905 and 1906 several Mexicans applied for admission to Texas and were debarred by a board of special inquiry on the ground that they were contract laborers, and that their entry into the United States was in violation of the immigration act approved March 3, 1903. An appeal was taken at the instance of contractors for several western railroads. The question involved the construction of the term "skilled labor," it being contended by the appellants that laborers ordinarily employed in the construction and maintenance of the tracks of railroads were skilled laborers, and that if labor of like kind could not be found unemployed in the United States, laborers of this class could be imported into the United States under contract.

Acting Attorney General Robb, in his opinion, said in part: "The act was designed and intended for the protection and security of the American laborer, whose welfare every patriotic citizen is bound to promote. Laws designed for his benefit should, if possible, be so constructed as to effectuate rather than retard the objects for which they were enacted.

"The act of 1903 contains the unequivocal provision that the act shall apply to unskilled as well as to skilled labor. No exception whatever is contained in the act in respect to unskilled labor, but it is provided that skilled labor may be imported under certain conditions.

"I entertain no doubt that 'ordinary hands, commonly employed in the construction and maintenance of the tracks of railroads,' are not skilled laborers within the meaning of the immigration act of March 3, 1903. Having reached the conclusion that they are not skilled laborers, it follows from what I have previously said that such laborers may not 'be imported into this country under contract in any event.'"

Immediately on receipt of the opinion acting Secretary of Commerce and Labor Murray dismissed the appeals of the aliens and ordered them to be deported.

Jerome's Ice Trust Probe

New York, Aug. 18.—G. H. Webb, commissioner of industrial statistics for Rhode Island, has been asked to aid in the investigation into local ice companies now being conducted by the grand jury of this county. District Attorney Jerome was moved to make this request of Webb because, following a report by that official, investigations were begun at Providence recently against officials of ice companies. It is understood that Webb will testify.

Brilliant Business Outlook

New York, Aug. 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that abundant crops and an oversold steel industry engender sentiments of confidence that make the outlook bright for a continuance of present prosperous business conditions. Each week brings a new high water mark in some department and the net result is uniformly better than for the corresponding week in any previous year.

New Cross-Continent Auto Record

New York, Aug. 18.—L. L. Whitman and C. S. Carris, who arrived here from San Francisco last night at 11:55 o'clock, in a 36-horse power automobile, established a new cross-continent automobile record of 15 days, 1 hour and 50 minutes. The former record, 32 days and 23 hours, they made in 1904.

Claims a Cure For Consumption

Paris, Aug. 18.—The Matin announces that Professor Behring has completed his researches in connection with his alleged cure for tuberculosis, and that he will now commence the distribution to hospitals of a specific, where the best methods of its application will be studied.

Chinese General Killed

Pekin, Aug. 18.—By the explosion of a gasolene tank used in connection with a lantern show here, a general of the army and another official were killed and several persons were wounded. The occurrence caused great alarm and gave rise to many rumors.

Wants Intervention In the Balkans

London, Aug. 18.—A dispatch from Athens states that King George is going to Marienbad, where he will meet King Edward, whom he will ask for intervention in favor of the Greeks against Bulgarian excesses.

Hard Pressed For Money

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—The credit of $7,500,000 voted by the late parliament for famine relief being already exhausted, and the commission revising the budget having scraped the last possible kopec to raise $10,000,000, it is reported that the government has determined to have recourse to an internal loan of $27,500,000 to provide the further sum urgently needed to prevent starvation and provide seed for a new crop. The loan will be "subscribed" by the state savings banks; in other words, virtually commandeered by the government for the necessities of the state.

Woman Strangled and Robbed

New York, Aug. 18.—Mrs. Mary Manelski, wife of a farmer, was strangled to death in the dining room of her home in East Williston, L. I. The rooms had been ransacked and the members of the family believe that $1000 which Mrs. Manelski had in the house was stolen. Peter Levy, a negro farmhand who was employed on a farm nearby, was arrested on suspicion. The prisoner denies any knowledge of the crime.

Reyes Charged With Treason

Washington, Aug. 18.—Charges of treason and dishonesty made against President Reyes of Colombia by Diego Mendoza, in an open letter just made public in New York, have attracted little attention in Washington. The charges have not been brought to the notice of the state department in any official manner and it is not believed they will.

Forestalled Natural Death

Philadelphia, Aug. 18.—In the last stages of consumption, and not expected to live another day, Kasper Muelberger, aged 44, last night shot and killed himself. With the little strength he had remaining, Muelberger crawled out of bed and, climbing upon a chair, took his revolver from the top of a wardrobe and shot himself in the head.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fire of unknown origin destroyed a large new barn at the Westboro (Mass.) insane hospital at a loss to the state of $12,000. Ten cows were burned to death.

Charles P. Archibald, aged 63, for many years prominent in Massachusetts Masonic circles, died at his home at Medford, Mass., of apoplexy.

The third Old Orchard National Holiness camp meeting has opened at Old Orchard, Me., and will continue until Aug. 26.

The United Copper Foundry company of Boston suffered a loss of about $15,000 in the destruction by fire of its plant at Medford, Mass. The fire was of unknown, but rather suspicious, origin.

Chelsea Bank Men Indebted to Failed Institution

PRESIDENT FATALLY ILL

Gives Up Equity In Large Real Estate Holdings to Offset Indebtedness of Over $300,000 --How the Crisis Developed

Chelsea, Mass., Aug. 18.—Following the official information given by Bank Examiner Ewer to the national comptroller of the currency that the failure of the First National bank of Chelsea, the doors of which were closed Thursday night, was due to excessive loans made to officers and directors of the bank, it has become understood that the principal factor in the suspension of the bank is a large indebtedness on the part of its president, Sylvester B. Hinckley.

This indebtedness is unofficially estimated at from $300,000 to $500,000, but directors of the bank say that Hinckley has transferred to the institution his equity in large real estate holdings, which, it is expected, will provide for the payment of all depositors in full.

Hinckley is said to be fatally ill at his home in Newton. So ill, it is said, is he, that on Saturday last he was unable to place his signature to the papers transferring his property to the bank, and it was necessary for him to resort to making his mark upon the document. This proceeding was legalized by the witnessing signatures of his wife and son. It is said that Hinckley had not been able to be at the bank for four weeks.

Developments indicate that Hinckley was involved in extensive real estate transactions, from which he expected to realize splendid profit for the bank, as well as for himself. The failure of his plans, in connection with his illness, as well as dissatisfaction on the part of at least one of the directors with some of the paper placed with the bank as collateral, accounts for the closing of the bank.

The director most active in bringing affairs to a crisis was Thomas Martin, a former president of the bank, who, in an interview, said that recently he discovered evidence of unbusinesslike methods, and as a director started an investigation, which developed the fact that paper held by the bank was not what Martin considered strictly commercial. He said also that the signatures in some cases "needed explaining." Martin also stated that sufficient property had been transferred by Hinckley to the bank to insure the payment of depositors in full.

Examiner Ewer, having been appointed temporary receiver by the comptroller, is in charge of the bank, and with an augmented corps of clerks is busily engaged upon the accounts of the institution. He is unable to intimate when he shall be able to report further to his chief at Washington.

Manufacturing Concern Perhaps Hit

Boston, Aug. 18.—It is reported that a manufacturing concern of this city is heavily involved by the failure of the First National bank of Chelsea. No official announcement has been made by the company.

Minister Held Seat Illegally

Shelburne, N. S., Aug. 18.—W. S. Fielding, minister of finance in the Canadian government, was unseated last night as member of parliament by the supreme court. Fielding was charged by the leaders of the Conservative party in his district with holding his seat illegally, on the ground that his political workers in the last general election had been guilty of corrupt practices. Fielding, who is the right-hand man of Premier Laurier, will have to seek re-election before he can again sit in parliament.

Cuban Guards Make Trouble

Havana, Aug. 18.—Half a company of rural guards stationed at the castle of La Fuerza on duty as palace guards refused to obey their officers, on the ground that the food furnished them was insufficient and the conduct of their captain harsh. The latter wounded a soldier in the arm with his sword. The man's comrades became noisy and threatening, but were quieted by the arrival of the president's adjutant. The unruly detachment was then replaced by other guards.

Next Encampment at Saratoga

Minneapolis, Aug. 18.—The Grand Army of the Republic has completed its 40th encampment and adjourned to meet in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1907. The encampment decided that a protest against the erection of a statue to Henry Wirz should be sent to Commander Lee of the United Confederate Veterans.

Punch In Scuffle Brought Death

Boston, Aug. 18.—Patrick J. Dever, a teamster, pleaded guilty in the superior criminal court to manslaughter in causing the death of Walter Ewing with a single punch in a scuffle on the street. There being no evidence of a malicious intent, Judge Harris placed the case on file.

Rich Man Takes His Own Life

New York, Aug. 18.—The lifeless body of Thomas C. Long, 65 years of age, a wealthy retired broker, whose home was in Brooklyn, was found last night in Prospect Park in that borough. He had shot himself, but his motive is entirely unknown.

The Roundup By Willie West

Sport Critic Dips His Pen In Acid and Frees His Mind.

I see that Fred A. Wenck, the New York sporting editor and near-athlete, has come out in defense of President Harry C. Pulliam of the National league. Well, that serves Pulliam right.

"Gym" Bagley, the pugilistic authority, writer and near-humorist, also defends Pulliam. That serves Pulliam right too.

P. S.—Birds of a feather flock together.

The New York National baseball management, through too much trickery, disappointed 12,000 loyal rooters recently and didn't return their money when the game with Chicago was forfeited. Say, Jesse James was an amateur and Captain Kidd was only a misguided philanthropist compared to this performance. Even the national game can't stand "deals" like this.

Know a man by the company he works for.

There are two kinds of really safe bets—the kind you intended to make and didn't and those that you decided not to make at all.

"Did you go to the horse races in Paris?" I asked of a traveler.

"No," he replied, "but I saw a close race in Glasgow."

"What race was that?"

"The Scotch."

Adrian C. Anson wants to be sheriff of Cook county, Ill. Anse has been looking for trouble all his life and finding it, and if he gets the sheriff's job he'll find more.

I see that eight amateur yachtsmen were drowned in one day in New Jersey waters recently. This is a gloomy record, but the plea of "contributory negligence" will relieve the gods of wind and water of all blame.

The number of fool yachtsmen is legion, and they all "know it all." Tell them to put in a reef and they say, "Back up, you're an old woman." Tell them to take down all sail and anchor in a thunderstorm and they say, "We're sailors, not corn shuckers." Tell them not to make fast the main sheet in squally weather and they say, "Rats; a four ton boat 'll stand anything." Tell them not to run in on the wrong side of a channel buoy and they say, "Oh, there's always thirty or forty feet of good water inside a mark." Yet I have seen many a channel guide with not three feet of deep water between it and the rocks or shoals, as the case may be.

Tell the "know it alls" that a heavy sea is no place for a catboat, no matter how big she is, and they reply, "Come off; our boat won't sink even if she fills—if the cabin door is shut." Of course not, if the cabin door is water tight, and so makes the cabin an air chamber. But how many cabins are water tight, and when a boat capsizes who has time to shut a cabin door or close a slide, and who, in such an exciting moment, thinks of shutting the cabin door or of anything else but how to get to a place of safety?

Moral.—A little knowledge of sailing is more than a dangerous thing—it is suicide.

Never judge a man's fortune by the taxes he pays nor a prize fighter by his victories, for many a millionaire has a "wise" legal adviser, and full many a fighter has a manager who arranges the result of the fight beforehand.

Louis Cella, the St. Louis turf juggler and bookmaking trust, has been putting over some raw ones on eastern tracks. Cella was the real cause of Governor Folk's drastic action in St. Louis. Why doesn't the Jockey club if it is the pure white souled body it claims to be, come to life and tell Cella where he can buy a ticket back home? Is the amount paid for the privilege of operating his "books" so big that the Jockey club (which controls running racing in the east) CANNOT AFFORD TO LOSE IT? Of course not. But maybe it is so big that the Jockey club DOES NOT WANT TO LOSE IT.

A CHILEAN QUAKE

May Have Destroyed the Country's Chief City

WAS FOLLOWED BY FIRE

Meagre Reports of Disaster Say That Many Persons Were Killed or Injured--Reports From Various Quarters Vary Greatly

London, Aug. 18.—The most disastrous earthquake in the history of Valparaiso, the chief seaport of Chile, is reported in dispatches received from South America.

While dispatches are very meagre, owing to the destruction of lines of communication, it is feared that a large portion of the city is in ruins and that a large number of lives have been lost.

Messages received by business houses here say that commerce is paralyzed and that a destructive fire followed the collapse of the buildings, just as happened in the recent San Francisco disaster.

Shipping in the harbor suffered severely, and several vessels are reported sunk by the tidal waves which accompanied the earthquake.

Reports Perhaps Exaggerated

New York, Aug. 18.—Except for a few private messages reporting an earthquake in Chile, no direct news from Chile has as yet been received. New York officials of cable companies having connections in South America express the opinion that the first reports of the earthquake were exaggerated.

The reports received from various quarters of the globe regarding the disaster have varied greatly, some going so far as to compare the havoc wrought to that of the San Francisco catastrophe, with details much the same. It is said that the city, at first shaken by a violent earthquake, took fire and was burning fiercely, many scores perishing in the flames and the ruins of the fallen buildings.

The central cable office of the Western Union Telegraph company in New York has received a service message saying that the Valparaiso office closed for the night at 11:30 o'clock, eastern time. This is an unusual proceeding,

No Advices at Washington

Washington, Aug. 18.—Washington is without any advices regarding the earthquake in Chile. Neither the state department nor the Chilean legation received any dispatches regarding the disaster. The Chilean minister is absent and Don Manuel J. Vega is the charge. He was much concerned when the meagre reports of the earthquake reached him, but nothing official came from his government and he was unable to give any information bearing on the situation.

Recorded at Victoria

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 18.—The Valparaiso earthquake was recorded by the seismograph at Victoria. E. B. Reed, the officer in charge of Victoria meteorological station, obtained a record of the shock, which was prolonged. From the local record the most recent earthquake shock occurred about 4:10 o'clock Thursday afternoon and lasted from that time until 8 o'clock.

By Way of Hamburg

Hamburg, Aug. 18.—A business house here has received a dispatch stating that numerous districts in Chile have been partially or totally destroyed; that Valparaiso has been practically demolished; that many ships had been lost, and that over 100 persons had been killed and many hundreds injured.

Business Totally Suspended

New York, Aug. 18.—A private cable dispatch to W. R. Grace & Co. from Valparaiso, received by way of Lima, Peru, says that the earthquake in Valparaiso is severe and that business in the city has been totally suspended.

Typos Claim Eight-Hour Victory

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 18.—With the declaration that the fight for the eight-hour day is as good as won, the annual convention of the Typographical union voted to reduce the strike assessment from 10 percent to 8 percent of the wages of employed printers. At this time 38,960 members are working eight hours, 2556 are under a nine-hour contract and 4709 are on strike. The expense of the strike to date has been approximately $1,600,000.

Tartars Repulsed by Artillery

Tiflis, Aug. 18.—An engagement occurred between Colonel Vevern's detachment, garrisoning the village of Agdara, and Tartar bands, who attacked with such determination that Vevern was forced to order his artillery into action. The Tartar loss was very heavy. Fufther attacks are expected.

Great Exodus of Jews

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—According to the newspapers, 2100 political prisoners passed through Cheliabinsk last month on their way to various destinations. It is also stated that 25,000 Jews emigrated from Russia this year.

Customs Stations Wanted

London, Aug. 18.—A dispatch from Tokio states that Great Britain, the United States and Japan have intimated to China the necessity of insisting that Russia establish customs stations in northern Manchuria.

Coming Sporting Features

A. A. U. Track Championship — London Football Team Coming, Etc.

The outlook for near future sporting activity throughout the country is of the brightest.

Among the events scheduled are interesting yachting events on the great lakes and on the Pacific coast, aquatic features at St. Louis, tennis at Boston,

MYER PRINSTEIN, CHAMPION BROAD JUMPER.

New York and Philadelphia and golf tournaments at practically every club in the land.

It was decided recently at Chicago by the executive committee of the Western Professional Golfers' association to hold its annual tournament the last week in September. The event was left open for bids from the various Illinois clubs. Play will be entirely at match play if thirty players or less enter. If more than that number are listed, however, a qualifying round will be played.

The western amateur golf championship opens Sept. 8.

H. Chandler Egan of Chicago is looked on as the probable winner.

The championship committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States and the athletic committee of the New York Athletic club have agreed that it would be much better for competition to have the junior national and the senior national championships not held on the same day. Therefore it has been decided to hold the junior national championships at Travers island, New York, on Friday, Sept. 7, at 3 p. m. and the senior national championships on Saturday, Sept. 8, at 3 p. m. at Travers island.

Many of the members of the champion Olympic games team will compete, including Myer Prinstein and Ray C. Ewry, the jumping stars. Ewry recently established a new world's record in the standing high jump.

H. CHANDLER EGAN, GOLF STAR.

The Corinthian Football club of London, which sailed recently from Liverpool for Quebec and will play at Livingston, Staten Island, N. Y., on Sept. 6 and 8, is undoubtedly the most famous amateur association football club in the world.

The national amateur swimming races to be held by the Missouri Athletic club of St. Louis on Sept. 13, 14 and 15 have attracted a notable array of stars.

TESTS TO STOP CRIME

Successful Results Expected From Operations on Brains.

CHILDREN PUT UNDER THE KNIFE

Pennsylvania Society to Protect Children From Cruelty First American Organization of Its Kind to Adopt This Course—Some New York Doctors Believe Success Can Be Attained—"Rot," Says Dr. Coerr of Brain Operations.

Following out the theories of the country's foremost physicians and the recent rulings of the juvenile courts, the Pennsylvania Society to Protect Children From Cruelty, working in conjunction with Director Coplin of the bureau of health and charities and Chief Abbott of the bureau of health, has instituted the practice of performing operations upon the children given into its charge where medical opinion is rendered that such a course is likely to prevent a criminal career, says a Philadelphia special dispatch to the New York Herald.

The first subjects of these experiments were recently operated on at the infirmary of the society in Philadelphia, which was the first organization of its kind in the United States to adopt this course. In all seven children were put under the knife by a number of Philadelphia's most prominent surgeons, who performed operations of varied natures, from the most delicate to ones of minor importance, calculated to improve the mental and moral condition of the patients.

There were two operations on brains, three on eyes and two minor operations for nervousness, and all, it is believed, will be successful.

The children are but a few of the number examined by Dr. L. C. Wessels and Dr. A. C. Butcher, detailed to the task by Director Coplin, and a number of similar operations will be performed within a short time with the same purpose in view. Thus far only those children have been examined who are in the temporary custody of the society. Where such children are found by the examining physicians to be apparently destined to a criminal career through some physical defect the parents of the children are consulted, and if permission is obtained the operation is performed. The obtaining of the parental consent is compulsory under the law.

For over two weeks the examinations have been going on, the most minute inquiries being made by the examining physicians into the past history of the children and their parents, as well as questions bearing upon their present health and condition. As a result a campaign against criminology has been instituted by the society which medical experts believe will be of immense value in suppressing tendencies for evil in the children brought into the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, and the physicians interested in the idea believe that in many cases the entire future of the little patients will be altered for the better as a result of the operations they are performing.

The total number of children examined is 147. About 50 per cent have been found to be suffering from refraction of the eyes. Glasses have been ordered for all these, and, wherever possible, the parents have been required to meet the cost of the glasses, but where they are unable to do so the society furnishes them.

Dr. Alfred Gordon, one of the operating surgeons, reports that he has discovered a surprisingly large number of cases of feeble mindedness among children supposed to be the victims of cruelty, who are really in a condition bordering closely upon imbecility and calling for constant and patient care of a character their busy parents are unable to give them. It is proposed that these children in many cases shall be sent to the institution for the feeble minded which is to be built at Spring City, where the evil can be corrected to a great extent and perhaps result in the total cure of the children, who would otherwise be turned out upon the world misunderstood and regarded as common criminals. It is believed that the criminal instinct in their brains, caused by the defect, would increase as they grow older.

Medical men in Philadelphia are greatly interested in the new and unprecedented move of the society, and the most prominent of Philadelphia surgeons have volunteered their services in the cause.

Dr. J. H. Burtenshaw of New York remarked that such experimental operations as those detailed from Philadelphia had been conducted in various insane hospitals and in prisons with favorable results. He thought that Philadelphia, and Philadelphia physicians and surgeons, led by Dr. S. Weir Mitchell and Dr. A. C. Abbott, had accomplished more with these operations than any other city.

He knew, through a young student friend, that much had been tried along the same line with excellent results in a Toronto hospital. Children with demonstrated criminal tendencies, children already sent to reformatories, had been operated upon in the last two years with distinct and beneficial results. He said that it frequently had been found that children with bad tendencies not inherited could be somewhat deprived of these tendencies by an operation on the skull.

There would be found a matting together of the membranes of the brain close to or adhering to the skull in such cases usually. If the surgeons were successful in locating where that condition had developed—sometimes it developed from an accidental blow—an operation would relieve it.

"Of course," Dr. Burtenshaw remarked, "the work at present is tentative and in a way experimental, but there have been definite and hopeful results in changing tendencies not inherited."

Dr. W. B. Noyes of Columbus hospital, in New York, said that in certain cases any sort of an operation would sometimes stir a brain with benefit.

"In any case where there is a normal defect which may be due to an obvious injury to the head, it is well recognized that it is good surgery to operate. If there is a depression of the skull or other indication which might bear relation to the criminal tendency or the weakmindedness present in the patient an operation is justified, but scarcely otherwise."

Dr. Coerr of Roosevelt hospital, in New York, said that the Philadelphia operations were interesting and the results would be noted.

"As to operations on the brain for the purpose of correcting criminal instinct, we believe as a rule that it is all rot and partakes of chicanery. We cannot create a new man or change the particular character of an individual's brain. As to the operations on the eyes and other parts of the body, we deal with a purely physiological question and know that results may be accomplished.

"Eye strain may cause a tendency to crime, and proper treatment may correct it. Physical conditions often prompt bad mental conditions, and these are possible of being corrected in a legitimate and scientific manner. Beyond that we do not know much about curing criminal instinct from a medical or surgical point of view.

"Great progress has been made in the study of the brain, but not in the sense of correcting the criminal instinct. Neurologists have as a rule had ample opportunity to study the brains of criminals and of ignorant persons, and of recent years educated persons have willed their brains in the interest of science. All the examinations made, however, reveal but little difference between brains of ignorant or criminal men and those of educated men. In one instance a portion of an educated man's brain was found to be slightly larger than that of the average ignorant man's brain, but we cannot tell whether it was due to education or to some other cause."

Dr. Baumann of St. Mark's hospital in New York said:

"New York physicians will naturally watch with interest the experiments in Philadelphia. We have never had any of that kind in New York that I have heard of. There were a few in Toledo, O., a year ago, and I understand they proved very successful. Of course, if good results are accomplished operations of that character will doubtless be tried in this city.

Dr. Kents of Bellevue hospital said: "Operating on the brain to correct criminal tendency is far fetched. I doubt if anything beneficial could be accomplished, even if the patient recovered from the operation. There have been operations on the brain for epilepsy, but I believe in most cases the patients died. As to the operations on the eyes and body, some good may be accomplished. I do not know that surgical operations to cure criminal tendencies have ever been performed here, but if it be demonstrated that they are possible and successful I have no doubt the subject would be promptly taken up."

"Operations on the skull," observed Dr. David Bovaid, Jr., of New York, "are generally of service where there has been an injury which results in a pressure on the brain. If these operations were of that sort they are likely to be fortunate. But to operate without any indication as to where the trouble lies would of course be operating in the dark."

New Masts For Warships.

The naval constructors who are engaged on the plans for the next battleship to be built by the United States have completed the design for a skeleton mast, with the same principle of construction applied to the yards, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. This mast will support the observation tops, where will be situated the fire control officers, those who direct the gun fire by means of observing the vulnerable points of the enemy and ascertaining by range-finders the proper direction of the projectiles. Formerly masts of this kind were built of hollow steel; hereafter they are to be of skeleton steel framework, so that a shot coming in contact with the mast or yard so built will not bring it down or do more than destroy a part of the support. This is a new feature in battleship construction and is understood to be adopted from foreign vessels which are now building. It will introduce the principle of presenting to the enemy as little of a target as possible. It is believed that the percentage of hits possible at sea in action will be small enough to protect the structure from demolition.

Spying by Airship.

Is the airship already beginning to lend itself to purposes of military espionage? An incident that seems to point in this direction is just reported from Cognac, France, says the London Globe. At about 5 o'clock the other evening a balloon passed over the town, sailing low, and came to ground about three-quarters of a mile away, near Combe-des-Dames. It contained four men who spoke German and admitted that they were from Strassburg. On being asked for their papers they showed only a pencil note, indicating that they were engaged on an official mission. At the gendarmerie they asked for the Swiss consul, but they are believed by the French police to be German officers.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The valuation of Quincy is now in excess of that of Chelsea, the latter city reporting $25,966,425 and Quincy $26,785,885. At the same time Quincy's tax rate is less, that of Chelsea being $19.60 an increase of 60 cents.

Quincy people are congratulating themselves, after many years of waiting, upon having a gas company whose promises can be relied upon. When the present company took possession they promised better service, a reduction in price and an extension of mains. All thes have been fulfilled and more. It is the aim of the present company to get the confidence of the people and they are apparently doing it.

Personal.

Dr. A. F. Nightingale, formerly of Quincy, brother of Mrs. Geo. W. Brooks of 70 Centre street and Mrs. Geo. Gary Bush of Belleviu, Florida, received the degree in June of L. L. D. from Simpson College, Iowa, where he delivered the annual address. Dr. Nightingale has just been renominated for a second term as superintendent of schools, Cook County, Chicago. The "boys" of fifty years ago will remember him as "Gus" Nightingale, who was then known as a bright scholar and good declaimer.

Mass. Agricultural College.

For the past month, President Kenyon L. Butterfield has been in Amherst in charge of the Agricultural College. He is getting acquainted with the duties of his new position during the vacation season, but impresses everyone by the quiet and persistent energy displayed in all his work. His formal inauguration will not take place until October 17th, on which date his assumption of the office of the president will receive formal recognition. The day should prove one of great interest to the college and to the state in which he hopes to make the college so important an educational factor.

Prominent in Clan.

Alexander Souden, a well known resident of South Quincy, died at the City Hospital yesterday from the shock following an operation for appendicitis. He was 55 years of age and resided at 317 Water street. He was identified with Clan McGregor, O. S. C., being one of its prominent members. Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 P. M.

New Councillor

Col. Sidney O. Bigney of Attleboro announced yesterday that he would not be a candidate for renomination as councillor from this district. The action came as a surprise.

The Veteran Firemen's muster, which is to be held in Salem, Sept. 11, under the auspices of the Salem Veteran Firemen's association, promises to equal the New England muster held in that city Aug. 20, 1903. The ability of the Salem organization to entertain visiting brethren was demonstrated at the New England league muster three years ago, when no less than 53 organizations—the largest ever assembled at a muster, took part in the parade and trials.

High School Problem

Nothing has as yet been done, officially, by the School Committee to provide quarters for the High school pupils when the schools open Sept. 10. It is certain that the building will not be ready for occupancy on that date and from all appearances it will be many weeks later before it is ready.

Chairman Hallowell however says that he is looking about for available room for the school for temporary quarters, and that the School Board will probably take definite action at its regular meeting, which will be held Tuesday, Aug. 28.

In Three Places

Incendiary Fires Set in Quincy Point Boarding House

A dastardly attempt was made last night to burn a house on Washington near Chubbuck street owned by Julius Johnson and occupied as a boarding house by Mrs. John Holstein. The family were all at home at the time seated on the front piazza, and the incendiary must have entered the back way and applied the match. He set the fire in three places but its timely discovery prevented any great loss.

It lacked but a few minutes of 10.30 when the domestic entered the house and went into the kitchen. The room was getting thick with smoke and she called for help. Investigation showed three fires in progress; One in a mattress in the basement; a portiere in the parlor, and one in a room off the parlor. None of the three fires had made much progress and were quickly extinguished.

In the meantime someone sounded an alarm from Box 272, which came in at 10.30.

As the alarm sounded Lieut. McKay and Officer Matthews who were in that vicinity saw a man run and gave chase. Dr. Bushnell who was on his piazza also saw a man run from the direction of the fire and gave chase. In the darkness the police caught Dr. Bushnell and the man who evidently was the fire bug got away.

When hose 4 reached the box, a man who was evidently interested in the case, told the driver that it was Box 27 that had sounded. He did not fool the firemen however. Although several people were near the fire alarm box at the time no one seemed to have seen who pulled it.

One of the boarders of Mrs. Holstein, who sat on the piazza at the time, said that he could look through the window to the kitchen, and thinks it strange that he saw no one about.

When Chief Litchfield arrived he began an investigation, and was not long in arriving at the conclusion that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

Mrs. Holstein says that she had no enemies that she knew of.

Dahlias in Great Variety

Patrons of the West Quincy and East Milton line of the electric cars cannot have helped but notice the beautiful display of dahlias on the left side just before reaching the West Quincy depot. They are at the residences of George F. and James H. Elcock. The larger display, however, is at the residence of the former.

George F. Elcock has two hobbies, killing rattlesnakes and raising dahlias. The latter hobby, however, is the one that appeals the strongest to the public. Mr. Elcock has so many varieties that it is almost impossible to count them. According to his own count he has over one hundred, and if appearances count for anything he has not exaggerated any in his count.

He does not confine himself to any one good or variety for he has many specimens of what are known as the decorative, show, cactus and pompom. They range in size from the pompom, that is perhaps an inch and a half in diameter to the show and cactus that are six inches in diameter.

As for colors, there is an endless variety. All the colors of the rainbow and many more. Some of the tints are very delicate and the clustering of the various shades form a kind of kaleidoscope effect that is very pleasing to the eye.

Then again there are many varieties, which to the unfamiliar person seem to be of the same specie, yet if you were to examine them closely it would be seen that the shades while nearly alike are different. Some of the show and decorative specie are wonderful examples of what nature can do.

Mr. Elcock plants his bulbs early in the season and his dahlias are therefore in bloom among the earliest. He spends many hours every week among his flowers and the different kinds are as familiar to him as his A, B, C's. Touch a blossom and ask its name and the answer comes immediately.

He is also very liberal with his flowers and desires that others should enjoy them as well as he does himself and he therefore gives many away. They are not missed for he can readily cut a bunch of two hundred and not have them missed. It is not often that he has his flowers stolen for one has no need to steal. It is only necessary to ask for a few blossoms to have that request immediately filled.

Locals and City Brevities

RED OR GREEN.

Color Troubles of the Color Blind Poet, Whittier.

It is well known that the poet Whittier was color blind and unable to distinguish red from green. He once bought for himself a necktie which he supposed to be of a modest and suitable olive tint and wore it once. He never wore it again, for his friends soon made him aware that it offended against the traditional quietness of costume enjoined alike by the habits of the Friends and by his own taste. The tie was of flaming scarlet.

On another occasion, when he found a little girl in distress on account of a new gown, made over from her elder sister's, which was not becoming to her coloring and complexion, he tried to console her.

"I wouldn't mind what a rude boy says about it, Mary," he said kindly. "Thee looks very well indeed in it, like an oread, Mary, dressed all in green."

Unfortunately, Mary was not dressed in green. She was red haired, and her dress was red. That was the trouble.

Once, on a day in mid-March, when out walking with a Friend and deeply engaged in conversation, Mr. Whittier approached too near for safety to a place where blasting was going on. The danger signal was shown, but neither Friend noticed it until a workman, violently waving his arms and shouting, leaped before them and warned them back.

"I didn't see the flag at all," said Mr. Whittier's companion.

"I saw it," rejoined the poet, with a twinkle in his eye, "but I thought it was in honor of St. Patrick. Thee knows my defect. I can't tell Erin from explosions except by the harp!" —Youth's Companion.

ROMAN ROSES.

They Are Beautiful and Abundant Because They Eat Meat.

"I have yet to see a rose equal to those grown in Rome," said the amateur horticulturist. "They bloom in the greatest abundance all through the winter, and they are as large and rich and velvety as American Beauties, living out of doors, climbing like ivy or honeysuckle over the crumbling marble walls of ruined temples, gleaming in crimson and green masses upon ancient columns, giving to the grimmest and saddest of mediaeval palazzos an air of gayety and youth.

"One day on the Via Sistina, as I passed the garden that had once been the garden of Lucullus, I saw an old man tending the superb roots that grow there. He was pouring on their roots a dark, rich looking fluid.

"'Why are the Roman roses so beautiful and abundant?' I said to the old man.

"'Because they eat meat,' he answered.

"'Eat meat? Nonsense,' said I.

"'Well, they drink meat—meat extract, which is the same thing,' said the old man. 'We Roman gardeners have for centuries watered our roses thrice a week with a strong decoction of fresh beef—a rich grade of beef tea. They are meat eaters. That is why the roses of Rome are as hardy and prolific as weeds and at the same time as richly, delicately beautiful and as sweetly perfumed as flowers grown under glass.'" —Chicago Chronicle.

Called Back.

A commercial traveler for a London firm secured an order for £1,000 in the west of England and, as it was not duly acknowledged, wrote a letter to the firm calling special attention to it and saying, "I thought you would consider such an order quite a feather in my cap."

In reply he received this note from his principal: "We have filed your order and inclose for your cap the one feather you require."

After a fortnight came another letter from the firm: "The people who gave you the £1,000 order have failed, and we lose the goods. We have this day sent to you a bagful of feathers for you to fly home with, as we do not want you out on the road for us any more."—Strand Magazine.

Food Value of Cheese.

It is said that one pound of cheese is equal in food value to more than two pounds of meat. It is very rich in proteids and fat. Considering this, it is low in price when compared with meat and ought to do good service to the poor man in replacing occasionally the regular diet of meat. In America cheese is looked upon more as a side dish and luxury than in some parts of Europe. The Swiss peasant depends on it as a staple second only to bread, while the use of it in England and Germany is extensive.

Delay Fatal.

Visitor (to widow)—I am so sorry to hear of the sudden death of your husband. Did they hold a postmortem examination?

"Yes, and, like those doctors, they did not hold it until he was dead, or they might have saved his life."—Clinical Reporter.

What It Cost Him.

Mrs. Watts—There! We have cleared off the last of that church debt, and it never cost you men a cent. See what women can do. Mr. Watts—I don't know about the other fellows, but I know you have made me spend more than $100 for extra meals downtown while you were out monkeying around.

The First Sight.

Ethel—I understand it was a case of love at first sight between Jack and Miss Oldgirl. Maud—Yes, dear. But the first sight was at her bank book.

Wonder is the first cause of philosophy.—Aristotle.

BRAINTREE.

Sunday last Messrs. Charles H. Custance, James H. Levangie and John M. Levangie, members of Nahanton Tribe, No. 81, Improved Order of Red Men, acted as hosts to a visiting delegation of their tribe, and also to a number of pale face friends, including ladies. An old-fashioned clam bake was served in the open air and the bill of fare included all the "fixin's" with ice cream and cake.

Monatiquot lodge, K. of P., will hold their annual field day and outing at Fay's grove, South Framingham, Labor day, Monday, Sept. 3. All friends of the lodge are invited to join with them and of course the invitation includes the ladies. The committee visited the grounds and report that it is a fine place for an outing and a first class time is expected.

Mr. H. A. Cone of Tremont street has recently purchased a house on Sherbrooke avenue which they intend to occupy at once.

Mr. E. S. Grover and family of Tremont street have returned from Sea View, Mass. Mr. Grover has found quite a number of Indian arrow heads near Taunton river this summer which he prizes highly.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wagner, who were recently married in Nova Scotia, are expected to return to their home on Pearl street tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith and son Rufus of Hancock street are spending a few weeks with relatives at Houghs Neck.

The many friends of Mrs. Harry Tripp of Holbrook will sympathize with her in the loss of her husband, who for so many years was in business in South Braintree square. He was a very capable electrician and had numberless friends who grieve at his demise.

Patrick Sullivan of Hancock street, well known among the older residents of this locality, has been quite ill of late, requiring medical assistance.

Rev. E. A. Thomas of Boston will preach Sunday at the First Congregational church at 10.30 and 7.00. As Mr. Thomas is a speaker of more than ordinary ability it is hoped that a large number will attend both services.

Otis Singleton of Harrison avenue, who has been spending the past two months traveling through the middle west on business and for pleasure, has sent a letter home from Chicago. He expects to be away a long time and see more of the states.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Mehring of Littlestown, Penn, are visiting their daughter Mrs. C. H. Kohler, Dearing avenue.

The friends of Miss Helen Richards of Front street, Weymouth, are pleased to learn that she is somewhat better after her severe illness and hope for her speedy recovery.

At the morning service at the Union church Rev. Mr. Shaver supplied the pulpit and delivered a very interesting discourse. The excessive heat prevented some from being present. Those that were able to participate in public worship felt repaid for their effort and were no warmer than others who did not attempt to go. The Y. P. S. C. E. held an excellent service at six o'clock.

The band Concert at Washington square on Monday evening was surely appreciated, judging by the crowds that thronged the steets and sidewalks. The band played at South Weymouth Wednesday evening.

The alarm was rung in on Wednesday morning for a burning haystack near Mrs. Chase's house on Commercial street. The department responded in answer to box 27 and soon had the blaze under control, and the all-out was sounded.

Elliot street, although one of the shortest streets in this village, holds the record for children. There are 52 children in the ten houses on the street. In one house alone there are 19 children.

Next Sunday morning, August 19th, Rev. E. A. Norton of Quincy will occupy the pulpit of the Union church and on Sunday, August 26th, Rev. C. S. Brooks of Wellesley.

The house occupied by Mr. Alfred Carver on Granite street was entered sometime between 7 and 8 o'clock on Monday morning. We are glad to hear that only a suit of clothes was taken.

☞The Delineator for September is packed with good reading matter for everyone. The woman of fashion will find much of interest in the many pages devoted to dress, millinery and neckwear; and those who are otherwise inclined may derive a good deal of pleasure and entertainment from the literary features provided in this number. Barry Pain, the well known humorist, contributes the first chapter of "The Diary of a Baby"; a story that promises to be one of the brightest and cleverest this author has ever written.

Few Roses In Lives of Players

The Man With the Dough Bag Is Baseball King.

When Is a Manager Not a Manager?—Nearly Always.

There are few people who really know of just how little real importance a baseball player is unless they happen to be put wise by some good friend who knows the ropes.

Out on the field, of course, it is the player who does the brilliancy stunts, and he is the man in the public eye, but greater than the hero is the man who counts the coin.

When the man behind the coin counter says "Hump!" the player humps, and when he doesn't then he drops into the cheap restaurant, where feed does not cost so much. When he gets on good terms with the money king he eats in more attractive places.

But the man with the coin is the king. There is no denying that fact, and the more that baseball becomes a business the more kingly he becomes.

Managers have largely ceased to be managers. In most cases they are merely figureheads. Off the field captains, who keep the players in condition, see to it that they don't get grouchy, watch their play and suggest the necessary changes in batting order and in lineup. They may tip the owners off to good players, but after all they suggest, and that is about all. Players are totally dependent on the man behind the money counter. A player signs a contract for life. It isn't quite nice to think about and talk about, but he virtually says when he signs a contract, "I am your man Friday as long as you want me."

It is like marrying. A man ties up for life, and death is almost the only relief possible. Year after year that man has got to tie up with the same club with which he started off, provided, of course, that the club wants him.

It is a kind of one sided compact, however. The club takes the man on trial. If he makes good he is kept until he becomes bad. Then he is told to transport his belongings to other quarters.

The man has no option in the matter. Each year before a certain time of the season he is tendered a contract by the club. If he does not get the tender before the time fixed, then he is free to sign where he wants. The club which owned him has given him his liberty, has cut the ropes that tied him.

When he gets the offer of so much salary he has to accept or refuse. If he accepts he is supposed to work the limit for what he is paid, and while he may get a raise during the year the "may" is entirely problematical.

If he decides he does not want the money offered him, thinks he is worth more, he probably negotiates with the club, sets forth his views. The owners may agree with him, and again they may not. If they don't he has to come to the club's terms, quit the game or play independent or outlaw ball. He can't play in the really green pastures.

Sometimes, of course, a player gets a club in a tight corner, and it has to have him. Then he can pretty near name his terms. But as a general rule the club gets the player in the tight corner. If the club needs good men, finds them hard to get, the fans get to kicking and the town gets hot, the club may come to the player's terms—again problematical.

Some players are able to sign a nonreserve clause contract—that is, they don't have to play with one team but a year and then are free to go where they choose. But the majority of leagues have barred nonreserve clause contracts, the Southern doing so last year.

When a player reports for duty he does not report for pay until the opening of the league season. As a general rule, he works for one whole month to get into shape without receiving a cent of salary.

WHITNEY AND MORAN

Relative Strength Not Disclosed at Meeting of Democrats

Boston, Aug. 18.—Resolutions "accepting" William J. Bryan as the national leader of the Democratic party and its probable candidate for the presidency in 1908 were unanimously adopted at a meeting of the Democratic state committee here, the committee having met to make arrangements for the annual state convention to be held in the fall. Oct. 4 was named as the date and Boston as the place for holding the convention.

Unusual importance had been attached to the sitting of the committee, as it was expected that in the course of the proceedings something would develop to show the relative strength of Henry M. Whitney and District Attorney Moran, the avowed candidates for the nomination for governor on the Democratic ticket. The session was a disappointment in this respect, as no vote was taken on any question which would disclose the support held by the two men among the members of the committee.

Doctor Charged With Larceny

Pittsfield, Mass., Aug. 18.—Dr. Whitman V. White, a consulting physician and a member of the board of managers of the Manhattan state hospital of New York, was arrested here and taken to New York on a charge of grand larceny. It is charged that White took $1280 belonging to the James O'Sullivan trust estate in New York city. He had been in this city for about two months and was apprehended by an agent of a surety company which has been looking for him.

Insurance Recommendations

Boston, Aug. 18.—In his annual report, Insurance Commissioner Cutting recommends that deferred dividend policies be prohibited in Massachusetts, that "expenses should be limited and some measure be enacted which would prevent the trustees from stealing the funds." Deferred contracts, he says, have proved so demoralizing and expenses have been so lavish that it is wise for the state to interfere.

Rockport Has Enjoyable Night

Rockport, Mass., Aug. 18.—Thousands of people gathered in the vicinity of the harbor last night to view the illumination of the six battleships now here. The band of the Kentucky gave a band concert in the village and the orchestra of the Maine gave a pop concert in the town hall. The town was awake until a late hour, as it was the last night of the fleet's stay in this harbor.

Yardmen's Strike Not Justified

New Haven, Aug. 18.—A statement relative to the recent strike of yardmen in the local yards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad was given out by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. It declares that the strike was illegal and denounces the conduct of the New Haven yardmen and commends those of the men who did not go out on strike.

Dockmen's Strike Grows Serious

Boston, Aug. 18.—A conference between a committee of the 200 longshoremen who are on strike at the Metropolitan Steamship company's wharf and officials of the company failed to result in negotiations toward a settlement. It is stated that if no progress is made within the next few days in adjusting the difficulties the entire waterfront may be tied up.

Attorney General Will Investigate

Boston, Aug. 18.—Railroad Commissioner Bishop states that the next step in the matter of the reported sale by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad of all the trolley lines in Massachusetts owned by that road must be taken by Attorney General Malone. Malone states in a local paper that he will now investigate the new company.

Stabbing Results In Death

New Lebanon, Conn., Aug. 18.—Adolph Walgar, aged 29, is dead, and William Ownes, 55, is under arrest, following a quarrel alleged to have occurred between the two men at a carpet cleaning works, where both men were employed. Walgar was stabbed in the back with a pair of shears, dying in a few minutes from loss of blood.

Started Fire With Kerosene

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 18.—An attempt to start a fire with kerosene resulted in the terrible burning of Mrs. George Masters at her home and she died from the injuries last night. Mrs. Masters' daughter, Emily, 15 years old, tried to put out the flames which enveloped her mother, and she was severely, but not dangerously, burned.

Wrote Books For Children

Skowhegan, Me., Aug. 18.—Rebecca S. Clark, better known as "Sophie May," writer of many books for children, died at her home in Norridgewock. She had been in feeble health for several months. Hemorrhages were the immediate cause of death. Miss Clark was born in Norridgewock in 1833. In all she had written 31 books.

Fugitive Caught at Last

Portland, Me., Aug. 18.—Warren Richardson, who is wanted at Athol, Mass., for alleged murderous assault, was arrested here last night. Search has been made for Richardson since July 1. He has been in a logging camp in the Maine woods, it is said.

Fined For Employing Children

Northampton, Mass., Aug. 18.—Five leading business men of Northampton were fined by the district court for employing boys under the age of 14. The cases were the first of the kind to come before the court here.

Serenading Felicia

By OTHO B. SENGA

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

"Run out, children; run out and play," coaxed Felicia, "shooing" them along with the skirt of her pretty gown.

"You come, too, Aunt Fillie," begged Jimmie. "You said you'd play 'timbuktu' today."

"I'm going to be very busy this morning, Jimmie," evaded Felicia.

"Going to try on?" cried Gladys ecstatically. "Oh, do let me stay!"

"I'm not going to 'try on,' Gladys; it isn't the dressmaker who is coming," Felicia smiled happily.

The brown eyes of Bobby the adorable opened wider and then narrowed knowingly. "You goin' to have p'tic'lar comp'ny?" he demanded.

Felicia's joyous laugh rang out sweetly. "Yes, Bobby, very particular company."

"I'll bet anything it's Mr. Parker," grumbled Jimmie. "I don't want to go away if it is."

"Oh, let us stay!" cried Gladys, jumping up and down. "Mr. Parker'll want to see us—he always does. You know, Aunt Fillie," argumentatively, "he said the other day he was very fond of children."

"Yes, I know," hurriedly, "he is fond of children—good children, obedient children"—

"Then we'll thtay," agreed Donald placidly.

"Of course," assented Gladys and Jimmie, with one accord, seating themselves on the steps with cheerful alacrity.

"Come on, Bob," Jimmie added patronizingly.

But the adorable one stood aloof, regarding Felicia with gravely reproachful eyes. "Has he got somepin' p'tic'lar to say to you?" frigidly.

Felicia laughed and blushed rosily. "I think so, Bobby," gently. "Now, Jimmie," coaxingly, "you are the oldest—you ought to set the others a good example. Take them away and have them play something. I want to talk with Mr. Parker a little while, and then perhaps we'll play."

Jimmie rose grandly. "I'm most nine," importantly. "I'll boss the others. Come on, kids."

He stopped and turned to his pretty aunt with masculine superiority. "But if you're smart you won't keep Mr. Parker shut up in that dark parlor very long. I bet he druther play 'timbuktu.' Come on, Bob. What you standin' there for?"

Felicia paused on the steps and looked back apprehensively. The adorable one stood in the path, his feet planted wide apart, his hands thrust into the pockets of the recently acquired trousers and a faraway look upon his beautiful face that somehow filled Felicia's heart with foreboding. Had she known Bobby better she might have feared less—or more! She ran down the steps and laid a detaining hand on Jimmie's arm.

"Jimmie, dear," she whispered impressively, "remember that Bobby is your guest, and you must do everything you can to make him happy."

"All right," gruffly, still with a sense of being defrauded. "Come, Bobby."

"Go with the others, Bobby," coaxed Felicia alluringly; "they will show you their pets."

He brought his heaven turned eyes down to her face.

"Some day," he breathed sweetly, "I shall give you a Sarah Nade."

"So you shall, Bobby," gratefully, "whenever you wish."

Bobby skipped away, and Felicia ran singing up the steps.

"Isn't it sweet of him?" she thought. "I never heard him sing except that once at All Saints'. I don't wonder they call him the adorable one! Such a lively thought, to give me a serenade!"

"This is my dorg," introduced Jimmie proudly. "His name is Bunch o' Brightness, but we call him Bunch for every day. Get your cat, Gad. Glad's cat is a blue ribboner!"

The big, fluffy Persian was brought out for the admiration of the guest, who regarded it with coldly critical eyes.

"Where's Don's pet?"

"It's a parrot," explained Gladys. "He's in the house—in a cage. When we got Fluff we had to shut the parrot up, 'cause he wanted to pick Fluff's eyes out."

"You orter hear the parrot talk!" cried Jimmie. "He can say 'Now's the time,' 'Go it, old boy,' and 'I'll bet on you,' plain as I can."

"Let's bring him out," tempted the adorable one, "and look at all three together and see which is the nicerest."

"Oh, we can't!" cried Gladys hastily. "If they should fight, Aunt Fillie would be most scart to death."

The back of the adorable one is turned squarely upon the timorous Gladys. "Girls," witheringly, "are always scart!"

"I guess we'd better, Glad," said Jimmie slowly. "She said do everything we could to make Bobby happy."

"We'll make everybody happy," answered Bobby serenely. "We'll give her a Sarah Nade!"

"What's a Sarah Nade?"

"He means lemonade," interposed Gladys, anxious for reinstatement. "I'll help make it."

"No, it's a Sarah Nade—singing and—and bringing gifts. You make a p'cession and have your pets for gifts, and we'll all sing."

"Can't we dress up?" The girl never wanders far from her wardrobe.

"Naw!" in concert from the three masculines.

"Oh, I mean play dress up," pleaded Gladys. "I'll put on one of mamma's dress skirts, and Jimmie can put on papa's coat."

"Has it got tails?" The possibilities of the proposal appeal to the adorable one.

"I can find one with tails," eagerly—"two tails."

"All right. Can't you put a skirt on, Don? Then there'll be two ladies and two gentlemens in the Sarah Nade."

Don objected, but his minority vote was not recorded, and twenty minutes later the procession stole noiselessly up the steps and opened the door into the cool, dark hall.

Don, bearing the bellicose parrot, staggered patiently up the front of his mother's new tailored skirt; Gladys, with Fluff's claws digging wildly into her bare arms, switched the train of a pale blue foulard; Jimmie held his hand over the quivering jaws of the anxious Bunch and divided his attention between the trailing silk draperies in front of him and the two tails that dragged the ground at his rear. The adorable one, walking somewhat remotely, bore no indication of any participation in the proceedings.

Don pushed aside the portiere at the parlor door.

"In a Sarah Nade," the manager had explained before starting, "every one sings the things he likes best. Just as quick as we reach the curtains all begin!"

Don was like the heroes at Balaklava—not his to question why. He poked himself into the dim, sweet smelling room and opened his mouth in a doleful howl. Gladys pushed in close behind him, shrilly yelling; Jimmie planted both feet firmly on the blue foulard and gruffly vociferated in an imitation bass.

Their entrance was evidently not happily timed. An athletic young man sprang to his feet with a smothered exclamation, and Felicia was silent from sheer consternation.

Don's next step, gasping "Where the love in your eyes I could see," was inimical to renewals of any sort. Being born under Cancer, his movements were usually sidewise and crablike, and the clinging broadcloth skirt added to his uncertainty of balance. He fell heavily, and his chubby foot and legs upset the shrieking Gladys and bowled the valiant rag and bone vender on top of his suffering sister. Gladys in falling grasped despairingly at the legs of the astounded Parker and brought him to his knees on the howling heap.

Poll escaped from Don's clutches and instituted a severe investigation of every leg, arm or body within reach of her vicious beak, clamoring incessantly. "Go it, old boy! Now's the time! I'll bet on you!" Bunch o' Brightness showed his fighting blood in violent attacks on Poll and the yowling Persian.

The man disentangled himself angrily and turned to the now hysterical girl. "I suppose you call this funny, Miss Austin, but I must confess my idea of a joke fails to coincide with yours."

He stepped grimly over the struggling mass, kicked Bunch—not gently—and with apparent relish cuffed the squeaking parrot.

"Glad tidings of great joy I bring," sang a seraphic voice as Parker strode into the hall. The adorable one was standing in his most admired Sunday pose, his hands loosely clasped before him and his beautiful face turned upward. He smiled beatifically into Parker's face and completed his carol.

"Did she like it?" with sweet solicitude. "Did she like the Sarah Nade?"

"Bobby," sternly, "who put up this job and what is it for?"

"Me," proudly. "We wanted to Sarah Nade her."

From the parlor came a pitiful sob and then a shrill, insistent, childish voice, "Did he say, Aunt Fillie—did he say that p'tic'lar thing he came to say?"

Parker went back.

"I didn't, Gladys, but I'm going to now. I won't be driven off so easily."

And, to the astonishment of the serenaders, he took Aunt Fillie in his arms, whispering swift, passionate words that brought back the sweet flush to her cheeks and a tremulous, happy smile to her lips.

Onions.

Onions are an excellent cure for sleeplessness. They act as a kind of soporific if taken in small quantities before retiring. They will be found to be more appetizing if finely chopped up and laid between two thin wafers or biscuits. Eaten in this way, they are also easily digested. The reason so many people complain of onions disagreeing with them is that they eat too much of the homely vegetable. Onions are not intended to be eaten en masse. When they are taken raw they should be thoroughly masticated, or, better still, the juice of the onion should be pressed out and taken on bread or as a sauce. In this form the onion is splendid for liver complaints and acts in consequence as a purifier for a dark and muddy complexion.

Salmon Sometimes Caught at Sea.

The salmon is one of the anadromous fishes, of which the shad and sturgeon are other examples, anadromous fishes being those that come from the sea and ascend fresh water streams to spawn and return to the sea again after spawning. It is not known of the shad whether it remains in deep water in the ocean not very far away from the river whence it came or whether it goes south, but it seems certain that some salmon at least spend their sea life not far away from their rivers, for salmon have been caught at sea in northern waters off the New England coast on hooks baited for cod, haddock and halibut.

AMERICA'S APPIAN WAY

Facts About the Old National Road, Whose Restoration Is Advocated

Origin and Present State of the Famous Highway From Cumberland, Md., to Vandalia, Ill.—A Well Built Road Which Has Had a Century For Its Justification — Magnitude of the Original Enterprise

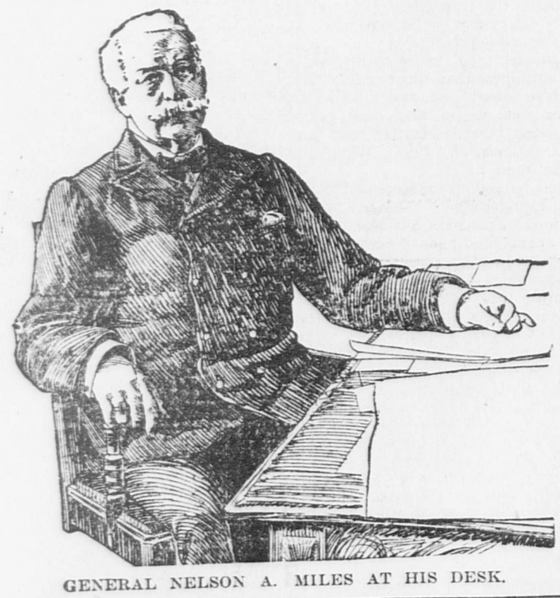

THE building of national highways by the federal government as well as the undertaking of experiments to determine the best methods of road preservation are subjects which are again receiving the attention of large numbers of citizens throughout the United States and the hearty approval of some of them, says the New York Post's Washington correspondent.

Ever since the foundation of the government national road building has been advocated by many persons as a far greater function of the general government than seed distribution and some of the other gift schemes for which the federal treasury is drawn upon to pay the bills. The tremendous and rapid increase in the use of horseless vehicles not only for pleasure seekers, but as a business, trucks taking the place of delivery wagons of all descriptions, has naturally attracted new and strong support to the good roads movement, so that the extent of public sentiment in favor of improved and well kept thoroughfares connecting the principal cities of the country is greater now than ever before. It may even be believed that the popular demand for up to date roads between cities is fast approaching that unanimity of opinion which has long required city streets to be kept in a condition approaching as near as possible the combination of permanency, smoothness and noiselessness.

Some years ago General Nelson A. Miles, then the head of the American army, lent his name to a movement for building a broad and direct automobile thoroughfare across the country haps two or three hundred, would have more miles of improved roadway than the more populous sections of the south or east. The more recent development of federal roadbuilding plans has sought to overcome that opposition by proposing the construction to warrant expenditure of the money. It is well understood that hard work would be required to get congress to undertake any such plan unless constituents come to the front in no uncertain way to present their requests for improved highways throughout the most traveled sections of the country.

Restoration of Old National Road.

To this end a movement has already been started for the restoration of the old National road from Cumberland, Md., to Vandalia, Ill. People who have ever heard anything about this thoroughfare know that it is one of the historical landmarks of the country. It is 102 years since the first steps were taken toward building the great highway from the farther edge of Virginia out through the then little known west to the frontier. There is probably no other thoroughfare in the whole country that can compete with it for the distinction of being called the American Appian way. No public highway save the Roman military roads of centuries ago was ever constructed probably on a scale of greater nobility or designed for more enduring usefulness. The idea was a remarkable one in its inception and inspiring in its prophecy of the expansion and prosperity of the American republic. Like the farseeing plans of L'Enfant for the Capital City of the nation, it has through several of the eastern states. Such a plan has been repeatedly urged to join Baltimore with Washington, a distance of forty miles. Within the last few days the agitation has been renewed, and enlarged commercial advantages have been urged as sufficient reason for whatever expense is involved.

Last spring Thomas A. Edison came south with his touring car and an accompanying baggage carrying automobile. He intended to make some experiments in one of the southern states, and by the time he had reached Washington he was pretty well worn out by the shaking up he had received on the bad roads between New Jersey and Washington. Only a man of his indefatigable energy would have kept on by automobile after the warning he received that, instead of finding better roads south of Washington, he might expect them to average even worse than those over which he had traveled. He determined to complete his trip, however, regardless of personal comfort if his two cars would stand the strain. He was successful, but what he learned about "how not to keep country roads in repair" would be valuable advice to any roadbuilders who want to avoid mistakes in building thoroughfares capable of standing the wear and tear of traffic.

Effect of Automobile Traffic.

Increase in motor car traffic is bringing to general public notice the advisability of some comprehensive scheme for constructing national thoroughfares on just as broad ideas as the trunk lines and feeders of the railroads. Good road measures have been pending in congress for many years, but the weak point in their advocacy has always been that they contemplated taking federal funds to build improved roadways in out of the way sections of the country where at present the roads are little better than mountain trails. Sufficient opposition would always spring up on the part of congressmen whose districts would not benefit from such an outlay, and these men would argue that if the bill went through, some vast county in Oregon or Montana, with a population of perbeen justified for a century without being subject to destructive criticism of present day experts.

Advocates of the restoration of the National road of Revolutionary days across the Alleghanies are willing that sentiment alone should be the primary mainspring for the inauguration of the movement and are convinced that if the proposition is once brought before the public in this light it will be swept along to a successful outcome by commercial arguments. Many newspapers in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and other states have given their approval to the project and are advocating the passage by congress of some such bill as that introduced at the last session by Representative George A. Pearre of the Cumberland district. His measure authorizes the government to take possession of this National road and restore it to the condition intended by the federal officials of a century ago as a great public thoroughfare connecting the east and south with the central west.

In addition to this support of the press, various automobile clubs have recorded themselves in favor of the movement. They contemplate the delight of rolling over a smooth thoroughfare leading from the picturesque upper waters of the Potomac, up over the Alleghanies and down the western slope through cities and towns of the central west that would undoubtedly be willing to aid in the movement in connection with approaching celebrations of the centennial of their founding. Other supporters are those who argue that the historic highway is the best section of roadway in America for purposes of restoration, as the rebuilt road would be a noteworthy object lesson on roadbuilding and would help along the cause of good roads throughout the entire country.

Much of It In Good Repair.

Those who have toured over the road for long distances recently have been surprised to find so much of it in good repair, although its construction was begun more than a century ago. The work dragged along, however, until 1844, and then after a time passed out of the hands of the government to many private corporations, which undertook the maintenance of the right of way as a business proposition. They collected toll from all those who used it and were thus enabled to keep it in fine repair. Toll roads having been abolished practically everywhere in the last two or three decades, this national highway reverted to the states through which it runs, and, while still kept in fairly good repair, it is not as well maintained as in the days of private ownership.

Magnitude of the Enterprise.

Earnest advocacy of the restoration of the road to its intended conditions as a national thoroughfare comes from the Virginia Society For the Preservation of Antiquities. Its members view the building of this road as the most important enterprise undertaken by the federal government in its first half century of existence. The magnitude of the work can best be appreciated by reflecting on the fact that in all subsequent history congress has never undertaken another such extensive project, in spite of the ever increasing popular demand for good roads. But no doubt means can readily be devised if popular sentiment is once brought to bear on congress.

The money for the original construction was raised from the sale of lands ceded by the far extending state of Virginia, the dominating factor in federal affairs of colonial days. At the beginning of the last century the valley of the Ohio was fast filling with settlers, most of them trudging west from Virginia. The Washington-Braddock road, following an Indian trail across the mountains, was the route of the pioneer emigrant. A general demand arose for better means of communication between the old commonwealth and the Ohio valley, and Virginia agreed to cede to the federal government all that part of her domain north of the Ohio river on condition that a percentage of the money derived from the sale of land there should be assigned to the construction of a public highway connecting the fringe of Virginia settlements with what was then the western frontier. Official records show that $6,842,000 was realized in this way. That this insured thorough construction is evidenced from the condition of the road after a century's use, with but little in the way of recent repairs. At some of the places along the route old covered wooden bridges constructed from sixty to eighty years ago are still standing, apparently good enough to carry traffic for years to come.

In the department of agriculture there is a division of good roads for instruction in permanent roadbuilding, and the work could be undertaken by experts should congress so authorize at a comparatively small expense. It is natural to suppose the railroads of the country will oppose any movement to improve the public highways, but with the development of motor cars and trucks of every description there will be a steadily increasing public sentiment on the other side as well.

The whole subject is an interesting one, especially as relating to the historic Cumberland-Vandalia road, and in connection with the centennial celebrations of the towns along the way a concentration of effort in the next congress is anticipated in support of a national good roads campaign.

Unique Street Lighting Plan.

Trustee J. C. Steele of Santa Monica, Cal., has suggested a unique plan of street lighting, whereby an eight candle incandescent light, placed on the porch of each residence, would obviate the use of arc lights and would not only illuminate the streets, but the residences as well, says the Los Angeles Express. A system of porch lights could easily be installed and would cost the city little more than is at present being paid. It would light the streets better than under the present arrangement, it is believed. Globes will be provided by the householders. The wire attachment will be made in such manner that the electricity used will be computed on the city's meter and paid for from the street lighting fund. It is probable that this novel plan will be favorably considered by the board and, if feasible, adopted.

Swiss Doctors of Journalism.

In view of the proposed establishment of a university of journalism in New York the United States consul at Brunswick draws attention to the instruction that is being given in this subject in the universities of Germany and Switzerland, says the London Times. During the present summer session lectures on various aspects of journalism are being delivered at the universities of Leipsic, Berlin and Heidelberg as well as at the Technical high school of Danzig and at the commercial colleges of Leipsic and Cologne. At the University of Bern a course is being given on the "editing and news service of a newspaper, with practical exercises," while at Zurich, as the consul points out, the degree of doctor may now be obtained in journalism as well as in any other political science.

Trousers to Keep Flies Off Horses.

A horse in trousers is interesting Canandaigua, N. Y. The horse belongs to Charles Parshall, the Canandaigua agent for the Humane society, says the New York Sun. He observed that his horse suffered severely from the attacks of horseflies of late, so he conceived the idea of taking some old trouser legs and placing them on the animal, fastening them to the fly net.

The horse is now able to eat his rations without stopping to fight flies, and the plan is as much of a success as was the old horse bonnet to protect horses' heads from the heat, which also had its origin in Canandaigua years ago.

City of Presidents

Birthplace of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 21, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

ROUTED BY PEASANTS

Cossacks' Whips and Sabers No Match For Rustic Weapons

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—At the headquarters of the gendarmerie here intelligence has been received of another collision between Cossacks and peasantry in the province of Penza. In this affair the mob showed such determination and fury that the troops were forced to retreat, carrying off several of their number badly wounded. Five of the peasants were killed and several score wounded.

A detachment of 30 Cossacks had been dispatched from the town of Penza to a neighboring village to arrest two agitators. The villagers sounded the tocsin on the church bell, whereupon a crowd of 500 peasants, armed with scythes and other rustic weapons, advanced to the rescue of the prisoners. Undaunted by the Cossacks' whips and sabres, the peasants charged and forced the Cossacks to take refuge behind a stone wall. A volley from the carbines of the Cossacks failed to check the peasants and finally the Cossacks were obliged to flee.

The peasants are reported to have fought more like wild animals than human beings. In their fury they seized a priest who was hurrying up to assist the wounded and beat him almost to death before the wife of a sick peasant whom he had aided recognized him and intervened.

Crowd Rescued Bomb Throwers

Yuzzovka, Russia, Aug. 18.—Two bombs were thrown at Assistant Superintendent Chambers of the Novo Rossisk company while he was driving in a carriage, which was demolished. Seeing that Chambers was not seriously injured, his assailants fired at him with revolvers, wounding his guard. The police arrested the bomb throwers, but they were rescued by a crowd of workmen.

Governor's Ultimatum to Strikers

Riga, Russia, Aug. 18.—The governor general has issued a proclamation ordering the local strikers to return to work under the penalty of expulsion from the Baltic provinces, and announcing that the instigators of the strike on the street railroads will be arrested and tried.

Fifty Lives May Be Lost

Bristol, Va., Aug. 18.—Fifty men are entombed alive in the Clinch mountain tunnel at Clinchport, Va., as a result of a cavein. It is not known whether the men are dead or alive, but the work of rescue is being rushed as fast as possible. Air is being pumped into the tunnel and a large force of men is working in an effort toward rescue. Men, women and children are at the mouth of the tunnel awaiting news of those dear to them. Women scream and wring their hands and cry hysterically for fathers, brothers and loved ones. No bodies have been recovered.

Pools Reaped Vast Profits

New York, Aug. 18.—Amid scenes of frantic trading on the stock exchange, Union Pacific common was rushed upward 17 1-8 points a share and that of Southern Pacific 6 7-8 a share after an announcement of dividends far in excess of what the traders had any reason to expect. The result was that a large number of traders who had sold the stock short suffered sharp losses, and a pool in Union Pacific stock is said to have realized profits amounting to $15,000,000 and a similar pool in Southern Pacific $10,000,000.

Daring Performance of Bandits

Harbin, Manchuria, Aug. 18.—Yesterday a band of Chinese bandits attacked in overwhelming force a junk loaded with Russian government stores coming from Bodun under the guard of 12 soldiers. The latter abandoned the junk and fought they way to Harbin, losing two men killed and nearly all of them being wounded. A strong detachment of troops is pursuing the bandits.

Providence Man In Hard Luck

New York, Aug. 18.—Robert Laurie of Providence came to New York and started for the home of a friend, when someone took all his ready money. Later he discovered a man in his room, gave chase and had the intruder arrested. Laurie's gold watch was found on the man, who gave the name of Harry Frank. Frank was held for examination.

Steamer Attacked by Pirates

Canton, Aug. 18.—Thirty pirates, disguised as passengers, attacked the British steamer Kwaiping off Kwaichulu. The pirates escaped. There is an unconfirmed report that 20 of the passengers and crew of the steamer were wounded and that the pirates secured booty to the amount of 6000 taels.

Bark Rescued Fishermen

Liverpool, N. S., Aug. 18.—Bark White Wings, from New York, arrived here with Michael Reddy and Harry West of the Plymouth (Mass.) fishing schooner Mystery, who went adrift several days ago. They were picked up by the bark Nellie Troop and transferred to the White Wings.

Robbers Took Safe and Contents

Nizhni, Russia, Aug. 18.—Six armed men last evening entered the counting house of the Dadijda Steamboat company, overpowered the policeman on duty there, and made off with a safe containing $5000. One of the robbers was arrested, but the others escaped.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, in buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

NEW BULLET FOR ARMY.

It Is Light and Sharp Pointed and Increases Range of Rifles.

Brigadier General Crozier, chief of ordnance in the United States army, said recently that the light, sharp pointed rifle bullet which experts have been testing for some weeks had shown such satisfactory qualities that it will probably be adopted for use in the new army rifle, replacing the present service bullet, says a special dispatch from Springfield, Mass., to the New York Times.

The principal advantages of the light bullet are its flat trajectory and great penetrating power. On a 1,000 yard range it will be effective against infantry for 600 yards, while cavalry will be exposed for the entire distance. With the present service bullet infantry are out of range for about 700 yards out of 1,000, and at the 500 yard mark cavalrymen would hear the bullet whizzing over their heads.

The new bullet has a muzzle velocity of 2,700 feet per second, the greatest ever attained in a service weapon. At 500 yards it will penetrate white pine for thirty-two inches, as against twenty-six inches for the old bullet.

Another advantage in the light bullet is that it lessens the kick of the rifle. It weighs 150 grains and is fired with 50.5 grains of smokeless powder. The only serious drawback of the new bullet is that it is less accurate than that of the old one, but General Crozier hopes to remedy this by varying the powder charge or by making a slight change in its shape.

MEMORIAL TO JOEL COOK.

Association Started to Build Monument to Revolutionary Soldier.

Judge James B. Cooper, Sr., of Babylon, N. Y., and others have formed the Captain Joel Cook Monument association, whose purpose is to raise a fitting monument to the memory of the boy who was probably the smallest person who fought in the Revolution, says the New York Tribune. Captain Cook's body is now in an unmarked grave at Babylon. Judge Cooper, himself an old man, remembers Captain Cook well, and feels that it is a pity that he should not have been recognized long ere this.

Joel Cook was born on Oct. 12, 1760. He was therefore less than fifteen years old when, on April 19, 1775, Paul Revere made his famous ride. Joel was so small for his age that his earnest entreaties to be permitted to enlist in one of the first regiments raised were laughed at. However, one officer offered to take Joel as a waiter. The youth accepted. A year later he enlisted and carried arms throughout the struggle. In 1812 he raised a company and again fought. After the war he held several political appointments, but he died on Dec. 8, 1851, in abject poverty, and his son had to be sent to the Baptist home.

GIRL'S REMARKABLE SHOT.

Ten-year-old Killed a Deer at a Hundred Yards.

Jean Boalt Wheeler, the ten-year-old daughter of Attorney Charles Stetson Wheeler, and niece of Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California, has distinguished herself as a markswoman by shooting a deer at 100 yards straight through the heart, says a San Francisco dispatch.

Little Jean was up at her father's country home, the Bend, on the McCloud river, with her parents and Benjamin Ide Wheeler when she made the remarkable shot. The child was on horseback with others of the party and carried a rifle. She was ahead of the rest when 300 feet ahead of her she saw a buck with head high in air.

The animal turned suddenly and was about to bound away into the woods when little Jean raised her rifle and fired. The deer fell dead. It weighed ninety pounds after it was dressed.

Harvesting by Telephone.

J. A. Frambers of Oxford, Mo., has put the telephone to a new and novel use, says the Kansas City Journal. Sumner county is covered with a network of rural telephones. All told there are more than 3,000 telephones in the county. Mr. Frambers kept his thrashing outfit in constant communication with these telephones. He is a member of the Oxford Mutual company and has had a telephone installed in his cook shack. Whenever Mr. Frambers moves his thrashing outfit on to a farmer's premises his cook shack telephone is immediately connected with the telephone wire running along the highway, and no matter how far out in the country he may be Mr. Frambers and his cook are in constant communication with the grocers, butchers and other supply houses. Mr. Frambers can also call up almost any farmer in the county to talk thrashing to him, and the "next" man on Mr. Frambers' list can, simply by using the telephone in his home, learn just when the thrashermen will arrive at his place.

Planting For Cross Ties.

The railroads have to come to it sooner or later. Cross tie wood is becoming so scarce that the cost of it is almost prohibitive. Some of the railroad companies have started in to cultivate trees to be used as cross ties, says the Mobile Register. The Louisville and Nashville company is one of these. One of the plantations is near Carney station, Baldwin county, where a tract of a thousand acres of former forest land is now cleared for replanting. The effort will be made to get the greatest crop possible to the acreage. The ground was plowed and harrowed and worked as if grain or cotton were to be planted. The intention is to push the tree growth and get a record for reference. The trees will be planted seven feet apart in two directions.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The Principal entertainer of one of the strongest summer shows of the current season announced from Keith's for the week of August 20, will be Murray Carson, the noted English actor-author-manager, who will perhaps be more readily identified hereabouts as the author of "Rosemary," in which play John Drew and Maude Adams were both starred. Mr. Carson will make his debut before Boston theatre goers in a one-act romantic play from his own pen, entitled, "The Point of the Sword," in which he will be supported by Miss Berringer, a talented young actress, who likewise enjoys a unique reputation as an expert swordswoman. The coming week will be the last but one of the present season's engagement of the Fadettes woman's orchestra, an announcement which will be regretted by the many music lovers hereabouts. They will render the usual new program of selections, and an entire new list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinetograph.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Among the more important engagements made by Liebler & Co. for their massive production of "Cape Cod Folks" which will be seen for the first time at the Boston theatre, August 27, are Miss Bessie Barriscale, who has been identified with one of the more important roles in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and Miss May Buckley, who last season supported Raymond Hitchcock in "Easy Dawson" and "The Galloper." Another notable capture for this play is Miss Ella Wheaton, who last season played the second role in Charles Frohman's production of "Peter Pan" and was understudy to Miss Maude Adams.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The successful season of opera at the Castle Square Theatre will be brought to a close next week by a series of notable performances. The operas to be sung have been selected from those which have proved the most popular during the summer, and the company is stronger than at any time since its organization. On Monday and Tuesday evenings "Pinafore" and "Cavalleria Rusticana," the double bill which showed that the theatre was far too small to accommodate the public that like good music, will be given, followed on Wednesday and Thursday evenings and at the Wednesday matinee by "Il Trovatore." The farewell week will end with performances of "The Bohemian Girl" on Friday and Saturday evenings with a matinee on Saturday.

Sensations at Wonderland.

Every person who has visited Niagara Falls and the Gorge below them will doubtless feel an intense interest in one particular feature on the program of free attractions at Wonderland this week. That feature is James E. Hardy, who in 1896 walked a tight-rope across Niagara's rushing rapids from the Canadian side of the deep ravine to the cliff-top on the American side. This thrilling experience gained for Hardy the title of "The Hero of Niagara." The next year he crossed the gorge at Portage, on the Genesee River, and three years ago he went up beyond the City of Quebec, and, despite the attempted interference of the Canadian authorities, walked on a tight-rope across the rushing torrent of Montmorency Falls. Hardy's feat at Wonderland every afternoon and evening will be to walk a rope stretched from the tower on the picturesque Beautiful Orient building to one of the turrets on the Administration Building.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE OPENING.

"The Burglar's Daughter" which Vance and Sullivan Company will present at the Boston Grand Opera house as the attraction for next week, tells a story of modern New York life. The leading character of the play, "Meg of Mulberry Bend" is an ignorant and neglected little waif who is, at the death of her mother thrown out in the streets to shift for herself. Meg in her life-long association with thieves and outcasts has retained her sweetness and purity but is a sadly ignorant and rather tough little character. She finds refuge in the home of a wealthy clergyman who tries to help her and she, touched by his kindness and gentle manner tries her best to gain refinement Matinees will be given as usual on Tuesday-hursday and Saturday.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association
OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Hard to Catch Up.

Two Silesians, seated in a music hall, began to argue about the music of Wagner. The argument as it progressed grew heated. The upshot was that the younger challenged the older Silesian to a duel.

But the older Silesian declined to fight.

"No, no," he said. "I refuse to meet you. The risks are not equal. You, you see, are a bachelor, whereas I am a married man with three children. I'll tell you what to do. Go get married and wait till you've a family as large as mine. Then, when our risks are alike, come and challenge me again."

The younger man complied. He married. Three years passed and one day three years later he went, accompanied by a nursemaid, to his opponent's home.

"Here I am," he said fiercely. "My wife is at home. In this coach are my three children. Now for the duel."

But the older man shook his head.

"Not yet awhile," he said. "I have five now."

Exercise For Business Men.

The average city business man without physical impediments to fight against can probably get along successfully on such an exercise schedule as the following:

First.—Five minutes each day of purely muscular exercise, such as can be taken perfectly well in one's room without any special apparatus.

Second.—Short intervals during the day of fresh air, brisk walking, deep breathing. This can all be secured in the regular order of the day's business. A man can easily spend as much as half an hour walking out of doors every day. This is for heart, lungs and digestion.

Third.—The reservation of at least one day a week for rest and recreation, for being out of doors, for playing games, etc. This is essential. This is for both body and mind. A man who thinks he can get along without at least one vacation time a week simply proves his ignorance.—World's Work.

The Bite of a Girl.

The bite of a girl may be as productive of poisonous germs as improperly prepared foods, according to the statements of Professor W. D. Miller of the University of Berlin. In a lecture the professor said that a bite of a pretty girl would often bring a quicker and more horrible death than the bite of a serpent. Professor Miller, who has made a specal study of the bacteria of the mouth, said that only a short time ago he experimented on a beautiful girl in Germany and found that an arrow dipped in saliva from her mouth would send its victim in death throes more terrible than one dipped in the venom of the most deadly snake.—What to Eat.

Twins Born In Different Years.

"I have often been present at the birth of twins," said an old nurse. "Only once was I present, though, when the twins were born in different years."

"Twins born in different years? You are crazy," said the young bride.

"Not a bit of it," said the old nurse. "The thing happened in Pittsburg in 1899. The first twin was born at 11:30 o'clock on the night of Dec. 31, 1899, and the second was born at 1 o'clock in the morning of Jan. 1, 1900. There are, ma'am, a number of other cases recorded of twins born in different years."

The Cat Had Chickens.

The old housekeeper met the master at the door on his arrival home.

"If you please, sir," she said, "the cat has had chickens."

"Nonsense, Mary," laughed he. "You mean kittens. Cats don't have chickens."

"Was them chickens or kittens as you brought home last night?" asked the old woman.

"Why, they were chickens, of course."

"Just so, sir," replied Mary, with a twinkle. "Well, the cat's had 'em!"

A Comprehensive Verdict.

A child in an English town was killed by a steam atomizing apparatus falling on it. The coroner's jury brought in the following curious verdict: "Death resulted from shock following bronchitis and whooping cough, caused through the shaking of the house by the firing of a gun at the government proof butts on the Pulmstead marshes."

Raising His Wages.

Y.—You know I told you a few days after he employed me that he said he'd raise my wages in a month or so?

Z.—Yes. And didn't he?

"No. I misunderstood him. He said he'd try to raise my first week's wages by that time. I haven't had a shilling yet."—London Tit-Bits.

Compromise.

"I have a little granddaughter," said a senator, "who is very fond of animals, especially dogs. Her mother has taught her to pronounce the word until it sounds like dahg. Her father sticks to the good old fashioned dawg, so the child has compromised, and now every canine is a dahg-dawg."

Peevishness.

Peevishness may be considered the canker of life that destroys its vigor and checks its improvement; that creeps on with hourly depredations and taints and vitiates what it cannot consume.—Johnson.

Probably.

Probably a woman would be a bride to her husband longer if she should continue making company of him. Most women begin to save their jam for visitors when they have been married

Vim, Auk and Caramba

Selected to Sail For America In Roosevelt Cup Races

At the conclusion of Saturday's elimination trial races in the sonder class to select three yachts to meet the Germans in the international match from Sept. 3 to 7 for the Roosevelt cup, the Auk of the Quincy Yacht club was one of the three chosen.

The other two are the Vim and Caramba. The Vim is owned in New York and the latter is from the Eastern Yacht club.

The Vim is a good performer in all weathers and will doubtless prove America's mainstay should the races be sailed in a strong wind.

The Auk and Caramba are both designed by E. A. Boardman and are more of the scow type. They are at their best in light winds and smooth seas, while it is admitted that the Auk is perhaps no better than some of the other boats which have been eliminated, she has been handled in a superior manner by Ex-mayor Adams, who has no equal as an amateur skipper.

The announcement of the three boats selected was made at the conclusion of the three races Saturday.

The duties of the Committee of the Eastern Yacht club in forming their opinions as to which of these boats should be selected, have not been light. Even at the end of the first five days' racing there were but few of the class of seventeen that could be called positively hopeless.

The others showed that they were evenly matched. Some of the best boats were poorly handled while some of the poorer boats showed up well with first class handling. This made the selection more difficult as nearly every race brought out a different winner, and the committee had to watch with great care every point in the sailing of them.

The work by legs and the windward work were the things that counted most in the results reached. The best boats at windward work were vital points that were considered by the committee.

The wind all the week has been light and the sea flat. Had the weather conditions been different, the committee's selections would also have been different.

That some of the skippers of the yachts eliminated are keenly disappointed there can be no question. These skippers feel that had they an opportunity to show what their boats could do in a good stiff breeze, the blow would have been softened.

Three trial races were held Saturday.

The Vim won the morning race. The Caramba which crossed first was set back to second place. The Sumatra which came in second place, was given third, Spokane fourth, Bonidrei fifth and Auk sixth.

The morning race was a windward and leeward affair of four miles and was sailed in a light southwest breeze.

The boats were sent away at 10.40 with the Caramba in the lead, Spokane second and Auk third.

Under the new racing rules the yachts were allowed two minutes to cross and they were timed as they went over. The Auk was handicapped six seconds in crossing and was barely over in time.

Ten minutes after the start some of the boats found a good sailing breeze and forged ahead. The Auk and Bonidrei did not find it however and dropped behind.

The elapsed time for this race was:

	h	m	s
Vim	1	01	37
Caramba	1	02	07
Sumatra	1	02	25
Spokane	1	02	52
Bonidrei	1	04	14
Auk	1	04	25

The second race started at 12.25. A fishing schooner crossed the line just at the signal, breaking up the wind. The Caramba led off with the Spokane second, Sumatra third, Vim fourth, Auk fifth and Bonidrei last, with a handicap of 34 seconds. The result of this race was as follows:

	h	m	s
Caramba	1	06	49
Auk	1	08	16
Vim	1	08	22
Bonidrei	1	08	40
Sumatra	1	08	55
Spokane	1	12	04

A third race, the last of the trial series was started at 2.10. The wind was still light from the southwest but even.

All of the boats got away inside of the time limit of two minutes. The Caramba led the fleet to the weather mark with the Auk second and Vim third and the Bonidrei last.

The latter made quite a considerable gain on the run home, but could not get out of last place. The result of this race was:

	m	s
Caramba	55	49
Auk	56	15
Vim	56	59
Spokane	57	21
Sumatra	57	33
Bonidrei	58	14

By the Daily Ledger summary below the first three boats are Caramba, Auk and Vim. The summary allows 5 points for first place, 4 for second, 3 for third, 2 for fourth and 1 for fifth place as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	Points
Caramba	2	3	1	0	2	27
Auk	1	4	1	0	0	24
Vim	2	1	2	0	1	21
Spokane	2	0	0	2	2	16
Sumatra	2	0	1	0	1	14
Bonidrei	1	0	1	1	2	12

Quincy Yacht Club Cape Cat Race

An interesting race of the Cape Cat class of the Quincy yacht club was sailed Saturday afternoon off the club house, Houghs Neck. The wind was from the southeast, While light on shore it was freshened outside making a pretty race.

The boats went over pretty well bunched. The Arawak took the lead soon after the start and was not headed during the race. At the first turn the Iris appeared to be second boat but soon dropped into third position, the Atlanta taking second place.

In this position they sailed the balance of the race. The Iris was right after the Atlanta, however, and at the finish was but thirty seconds behind.

The judges were John O. Hall, George S. Morse, Wallace Campbell and John J. Deasy. The summary:

Bonidrei Chosen For Q. Y. C. Races

The Bonidrei owned by George W. Wightman, one of the boats raced in the Sonder class last week, has been selected by the Boston Yacht club, to represent that club in the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup races.

The races will be sailed this week commencing Wednesday off Marblehead.

The defending boat is the Manchester of the Manchester club.

Compliments to Old Soldiers.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 15, 1906.

One among the prettiest little events that took place at Minneapolis during the G. A. R. encampment, so says Col. Albert Keating of the John A. Andrew Post, G. A. R., Quincy, Mass., and Lieut. W. M. Witten of the 23 Va. Regt., C. S. A., in his suit of Confederate Gray from Glenwood Springs, Colo. This beautiful little incidence came about in this way:

These two old veterans in their blue and gray were sitting in the lobby of the National hotel talking over old times, when a party of young gentlemen and ladies, sons and daughters of prominent old union soldiers, passed through to the cafe for dinner, and before they took their seats they unanimously decided that they would be delighted to have the two old veterans as their guests. So one of the young gentlemen was delegated to extend the invitation and when the old soldiers were informed that the young ladies especially desired their presence, they instantly sprang to to their feet, and buttoned up their cherished uniforms, and each trying to be more erect than the other, marched seemingly with as much alacrity as their young and handsome escort.

After being introduced to the party, all were seated, and as the old confederate expressed himself after the elaborate repast, he said he never dreamed of such hospitality so far north. He said if all this genuine hospitality had been extended in his beloved Dixie that it would have been nothing more than he would have expected.

He told the generous young party that he would bet his old right arm that if they could trace back their ancestry they certainly would find they were from the Sunny South.

But the most interesting part of this brilliant affair, occurred at a late hour, when they took their leave. The two old boys in their blue and gray stood erect with clasped hands wishing each other many more years and prosperity.

Col. Keating remarked to Lieut. Witten that he thought to make this occasion an absolute success in every way, those beautiful and entertaining young ladies should seal all this kindness and hospitality with a kiss. At this suggestion the young ladies came forward at once and with all the ardor with which they would have kissed their devoted fathers, they threw their beautiful young white arms around the necks of the two old gray haired heros and imprinted kisses upon the lips of those two old soldiers, that they will never forget.

Lieut. Witten remarked to the gallant young men that he was very sorry indeed, that they were denied that part of the elegant bill of fare. They responded as one man that they were also sorry they were not soldiers. W. M. Witten.

Big Canvas Contract.

The order for the complete canvas outfit of the new battleship Vermont, now building at the yard of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company in Quincy, has been placed with Messrs. E. L. Rowe & Son of this city.

This company has already had much experience with this class of work, having provided, under government contracts, the complete canvas outfits for the battleships Rhode Island and New Jersey and the cruiser Des Moines.

The articles in the order includes sails, sail covers, tarpaulins, boat and launch coverings, boat awnings, deck awnings, coal bags, color bags, gun coverings, ladder screens, reel covers, coal screens, smoketack covers, tents, turret port covers, windlass covers, wind sails etc., in all over 700 separate pieces, which, of course means a lot of work.

Mayor Home.

Mayor Thompson has arrived home from his vacation trip to New Hampshire and was at his office at City Hall today looking the picture of health. He says that he had a pleasant outing and never felt better than he does at the present time.

Capt. Blanchard's 83d Birthday

Capt. Ira Blanchard observed his 83d birthday Sunday by receiving his friends informally at his home on Baxter street.

Capt. Blanchard was born in Rockland, formerly East Abington, Aug. 19, 1823. He learned the shoemaker's trade, at which he worked until 1847, when he started in business for himself. In 1850 he formed, with his brother, Leonard Blanchard, a partnership, which continued until 1861.

At the breaking out of the civil war Capt. Blanchard recruited a company with the assistance of Col. W. B. White of Quincy and the late Maj. E. P. Reed of North Abington, and served with the 12th Massachusetts regiment.

After the war, Capt. Blanchard resumed business as a shoe manufacturer. He received a contract for the labor of the shoe department at the house of correction at South Boston, and later he had charge of the shoe department at the state prison at Charlestown for 10 years.

Fell From Tree.

Frank A. Reed of South Braintree, son-in-law of Richard M. Sanborn, met with an accident Saturday night about eleven o'clock and will take an enforced vacation for two weeks from Mr. C. H. Hobart's general store. Frank climbed up into an elm tree in his yard, while his wife held a lamp, to get the white kitten of which his children are so fond. He reached the kitten and was decending when he lost his grip falling a distance of fifteen feet.

The kitten was not injured by the fall but Mr. Reed struck the calf of his right leg on the fence which had aided his ascent nearly breaking the bone. Dr. Granger was called and soon the severely bruised member was cared for.

Mr. Reed is only 37 years old and thought he could climb as well as some of his friends who are not such heavy weights. Two ladders were handy but Frank preferred to climb.

Lost Child.

The lost child call was sounded Sunday afternoon to gather a searching party to find Wallace Vose, aged 3 years, of Forest avenue. The boy left home at 10 o'clock in the morning. He was found late in the afternoon in the Reservation.

Robbed the Till.

Early Saturday evening sneak thieves entered the store of the Norfolk Credit Co. on Hancock street and while the attention of the clerks was attracted they stole $20 from the money drawer.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Henry M. Whitney says he was not coaxed, cajoled, persuaded or drafted in the campaign for the Democratic nomination and has decided to run because of any call from the Democratic party leaders or because of any party emergency. Of course this is to lift from his shoulders some of the burden of being a "machine" candidate, but it ought also to lift a big burden from the shoulders of the machine when some of their predictions fail to make good later in the fall. Mr. Whitney assumes entire responsibility for his entrance and presumably for all of his hopes and their future disappointments.—Haverhill Gazette.

A RIGHT TO VOTE

Principal Demand of Negroes of the United States

AGAINST JIM CROW CARS

Republican Party Charged With Breach of Promise With Reference to Southern Suffrage Conditions--Appeal to Voters

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Aug. 20.—The second annual meeting of the Niagara movement came to a close with religious exercises and a sermon by Rev. G. F. Miller. At the conclusion of the sermon an address to the country was read. It says in part:

"The men of the Niagara Movement turn toward the nation and again ask in the name of ten million the privilege of a hearing. In the past year the work of the negro hater has flourished in the land. Stripped of verbiage and subterfuge, and in its naked nastiness, the new American creed says: Fear to let black men even try to rise lest they become the equal of the white.

"In detail our demands are clear and unequivocal. First, we would vote; with the right to vote goes everything. Freedom, manhood, the honor of your wives, the chastity of your daughters, the right to work, and the chance to rise, and let no man listen to the liars who deny this. We want full manhood suffrage and we want it now, henceforth and forever.

"Second, we want discrimination in public accommodations to cease. Separation in railways and street cars, based simply on race and color, is un-American, un-democratic and silly. We protest against all such discrimination.

"Third, we claim the right of freedom to walk, talk and be with them that wish to be with us. No man has a right to choose another man's friends, and to attempt to do so is an impudent interference with the most fundamental human privilege.

"Fourth, we want the laws enforced against rich as well as poor; against capitalist as well as laborer; against white as well as black. We are not more lawless than the white race, but we are more often arrested, convicted and mobbed.

"We want justice, even for criminals and outlaws. We want the constitution of the country enforced. We want congress to take charge of congressional elections. We want the 14th amendment carried out to the letter and every state disfranchised in congress which attempts to disfranchise its rightful voters. We want the 15th amendment enforced and no state allowed to base its franchise simply on color.

"The failure of the Republican party in congress at the session just closed to redeem its pledge of 1904 with reference to suffrage conditions at the south shows a plain, deliberate and premeditated breach of promise, and stamps that party as guilty of obtaining votes under false pretence.

"Fifth, we want the national government to wipe out illiteracy in the south. We want our children trained as intelligent human beings should be, and we will fight for all time against any proposal to educate black boys and gilrs simply as servants and underlings, or simply for the use of other people.

"These are some of the chief things which we want. How shall we get them? By voting where we may vote; by persistent, unceasing agitation; by hammering at the truth, by sacrifice and work. We do not believe in violence, but we do believe in John Brown, and here on the scene of John Brown's martyrdom we reconsecrate ourselves, our honor, our property to the final emancipation of the race which John Brown died to make free."

The address closes with an appeal to the young men and women of the nation and asks: "Cannot the nation that has absorbed 10,000,000 foreigners into its political life without catastrophe absorb 10,000,000 negro Americans into that same political life at less cost than their unjust and illegal exclusion will involve?"

A resolution was adopted urging voters to question every candidate for congress as to his attitude on the 14th amendment, and to refuse support to him that will not positively promise to support its enforcement.

A Serious Oversight

Hawleyville, Conn., Aug. 20.—An extra passenger train on its way with about 800 passengers from New Haven to Pittsfield ran through an open switch here and collided head-on with a freight train which was standing on the siding waiting for the passenger to pass. The engine of the freight was badly damaged and Fireman Spencer of the freight was badly injured. The passengers were shaken up, but none suffered hurts. It is said that through an oversight the switch had been left open.

Current Too Strong For Power Boat

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 20.—The Mary Louise, a power boat owned by Clifford Chase of Boston, was overturned last night in attempting to pass through the rapid tidal current of the canal which connects with the Annisquam river, and Chase and his brother and son, who were the occupants of the boat, had a narrow escape from drowning. They were on a cruise from Portland to Boston, and instead of doubling Cape Ann they attempted a short cut through the Annisquam river.

Made and Lost Fortune

New York, Aug. 20.—Michael F. Dwyer, long one of the most prominent figures of the American turf, died at his cottage opposite the Gravesend race track of the Brooklyn Jockey club. Dwyer suffered a stroke of paralysis some years ago after he had returned from a disastrous racing campaign in England and since that time had been practically helpless. Dwyer was one of the most famous plungers the turf has ever known. He was a larger operator and amassed a greater fortune, it is said, than even "Pittsburg Phil" Smith. Smith died wealthy, while Dwyer was practically penniless.

Famous In War and on Stage

New York, Aug. 20.—Lewis Morrison, an actor, whose work as Mephisto in "Faust" gained him fame, died suddenly of shock at Yonkers, after undergoing an operation for stomach trouble. He was born of English parentage in Kingston, Jam., in 1845. He came to this country at an early age and enlisted on the Union side in the Civil war, receiving the rank of captain for distinguished service. He won the personal friendship and praise of General Grant during the siege of Vicksburg, when he swam the Mississippi under fire of the batteries with dispatches for the federal army.

Jerome and the Governorship

New York, Aug. 20.—District Attorney Jerome has issued the following statement: "In the present shameful condition of our political life in this state, I am willing to run for the office of governor of the state if the Democratic convention shall nominate me without any understanding, expressed or implied, other than that, if elected, I shall obey my oath of office as I understand it, in letter and spirit."

Black Hand Men Identified

Baltimore, Aug. 20.—Ignazio Castalano and Romeo Rosario, two Italians under arrest here, charged with attempting to extort $5000 from Michael Lanasa by Black Hand threats of disaster to his family, have been identified by the chief of police of Paterson, N. J., as men under indictment there on charges of robbing John C. Cortez of that city of $1600, Cortez having been given knockout drops.

NEWS IN BRIEF

John Norrie and Edward Butler each suffered a loss of about $3000 in the destruction by fire of their houses and barns at Milford, N. H. In fighting the fire, Frank Jewett of the fire department was injured by exploding chemicals.

A stable and hay barn belonging to the El Dorado hotel at Lenoxdale, Mass., was burned, together with seven horses. The loss is $7500. It is supposed the fire was set by someone who slept in the stable.

Midshipman Kingiro Katsukata of Tokio, Japan, died at the Annapolis naval academy hospital after nearly two weeks' illness with typhoid fever, complicated with peritonitis. He was 19 years old and entered the academy by special arrangement with the Japanese government.

At Oakland beach, Narragansett bay, Richard McDougal, aged 10, stepped from the bed of a small inlet into the channel and was drowned.

James Conley of Providence, aged 48, was seized with cramps while bathing and was drowned.

The K. Y. Townsend, the biggest steamer on fresh water, was launched at Superior, Wis. The vessel measures 602 feet in length, is 58 feet beam and 32 feet depth.

PLANNED A REVOLT

Leaders of Cuban Liberals Are Placed Under Arrest

A PLOT AGAINST PALMA

Officials Claim to Have Evidence of Scheme to Assassinate President and Overthrow the Present Government by Force

Havana, Aug. 20.—Half a dozen prominent leaders of the Liberal party have been taken into custody on the charge of conspiracy against the government and plotting to assassinate President Palma.

The events of yesterday have shown that the government was fully aroused to the necessity of putting down not only the open outlawry in western Cuba, but also to the necessity of capturing and confining the alleged leaders of this movement, who were strongly suspected of plotting the assassination of the president and overthrowing the present government by force. To that end the six members of the Liberal party were arrested.

The men arrested here are General Volez and his brother, Fausto, ex-Cuban consul at Bremen; ex-Senator Montegue, Colonel Piedra, chief of police in the house of representatives, and General Castillo, a former congressman from Puerto Principe province. The five above mentioned men are charged with conspiracy.

Telegrams were sent to Santiago directing the arrest of Juan Gualberto Gomez of Havana, known as the colored orator and one of the most influential of the Liberal leaders. Gomez has been campaigning lately throughout Santiago province against the government. The police of Santiago were also ordered to arrest Demetrio Castillo. Gomez and Castillo are charged with inciting to outlawry and revolution.

The Havana arrests were made by the city police on charges preferred by the chief of the government secret service. General Castillo managed to make his escape. After his arrest he was placed in a carriage in charge of a lieutenant of police. He asked that his brother-in-law, Senor Anana, be allowed to accompany him to bring a change of clothing. This request was granted. While on the way to the police station Anana drew a revolver and threatened the lieutenant with instant death unless he allowed the prisoner to escape. Both men then jumped from the carriage and ran. They were not caught. When President Palma learned of this incident he ordered that the lieutenant of police be dismissed at once. He was later arrested.

It is reported here that the rebels in the province of Pinar del Rio have received considerable reinforcements in the remoter districts. Rumors of encounters between them and the rural guards have not been verified. Leading veterans are assembling volunteers to attack and disperse all rebel bands.

The rebels hold that the government has been most unjust in the matter of elections and appointments and that it has not carried out its promises of public improvements, etc. The rebels in the remoter districts are said to be well armed and they are probably well supplied with ammunition.

Troops are being held in readiness to be transported to Pinar del Rio and the Western railroad has been notified that a train for this purpose may be requisitioned at any moment. In view of the rumors and evidences of plots, the government is loath to send the Havana troops away. The entire force of rural guards numbers 3000.

Troopers and Italians In Conflict

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 20.—Carousing at Hughestown last night led to a call for the constabulary, and three of the troopers, Privates Adelson, Butler and George, went to the place. Italians began an indiscriminate fusillade upon them in the darkness and the three troopers withdrew, not, however, until George had been shot in the abdomen and Adelson had received a slight wound. Reinforcements arrested five Italians. Two of these were shot and are in a serious condition. It is believed they were injured by their companions.

Explosion Scared Officials

Pekin, Aug. 20.—The explosion of the gasolene tank used in a lantern show, which gave rise to rumors of attempted assassinations, took place while Governor Tuan Fang of the province of Hunan was trying a moving picture machine which he had brought here from Europe for the amusement of the dowager empress. All the residences of officials have been heavily guarded by troops since the explosion.

Seven Railroad Workers Killed

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 20.—Plunging through a blinding rainstorm at the rate of 45 miles an hour, a fast freight train crashed into a slowly moving work train at Snag Hollow, killing seven and seriously injuring seven others of the work train crew. Three of the injured probably will die. Only one of the crew on the freight was injured.

End of Carmen's Strike

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 20.—The strike of the carmen of the Union street railway, which began five weeks ago, was officially declared off yesterday afternoon by vote of the Carmen's union. The number of men actually remaining on strike is small.

MERCURY SOARS HIGH

All New England Suffers From Excessively Hot Weather

Boston, Aug. 20.—Another excessively hot Sunday was added yesterday to the many already experienced in New England this season, tempting city people to the seashore, lake, river, field and mountain resorts, though even there the crowds could not wholly escape the heat.

In Boston it was one of the hottest days of the year. Reliable thermometers recorded 110 degrees in the sun. It being a holiday, allowing people to rest from their work in the city, there were few prostrations.

All New England shared in the discomfort. Even at the summit of Mt. Washington it was 100 degrees in the sun and 70 in the shade, an unusually high record. The official temperature at Burlington, Vt., recorded at the top of a hill, was 89, the hottest of the summer there.

In Rhode Island and Maine the heat was also very oppressive, and a few cases of prostration resulted. Boston weather forecasters predict unchanged conditions for a day or two.

Searcity of Mill Operatives

Providence, Aug. 20.—Mill agents in this city say that the shortage of experienced help due to various causes probably amounts to as high as 10 percent in this section. Robert Knight, head of the firm of B. B. & R. Knight, which operates 15 mills in this state and Massachusetts, believes that the lack of help is due to the weather conditions which have prevailed during the greater part of the summer. The sultry and humid atmospheric conditions had a depressing effect and have enervated the help, who simply could not remain in the mills and keep up their work and preferred to get out of doors for a while.

Yacht Destroyed by Fire

Branford, Conn., Aug. 20.—The large auxiliary schooner yacht Oweene, owned by Henry C. Rowe of New Haven, was burned to the water's edge last night while moored in front of Rowe's cottage at Pine Orchard. The yacht carried a 50-horse power gasolene engine and the fire was started by an explosion of gasolene. The vessel was valued at $10,000. Engineer James Boucher and a helper, comprising the crew, escaped in a small boat. Boucher was badly burned, but will recover.

Boycott on Metropolitan Freight

Boston, Aug. 20.—At a special meeting of the Longshoremen's Trade Council to consider the strike of 200 longshoremen employed by the Metropolitan Steamship company's wharf, it was unanimously voted that no union longshoremen will handle any freight from the Metropolitan Steamship line while the strike is on. This does not mean that the strike has spread to other longshoremen, but it is in the nature of a boycott of freight from the Metropolitan company.

Will Complain to Roosevelt

Boston, Aug. 20.—Resolutions were adopted at a meeting of the Boston Central Labor union protesting against the selection of Labor day for a naval review, which was characterized as "an advertising display of the latest improved methods for killing our fellow human beings on a day which should be devoted to the pursuits of peace." A communication will be sent to President Roosevelt asking that some other day than Labor day be selected for a naval review.

Bullet In Policeman's Back

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 20.—Patrolman Patrick H. McNamara is in a hospital with a bullet wound in his back, as the result of an attempt to place two alleged burglars under arrest. One of the fleeing men sent several shots from his revolver into the crowd of officers and bystanders, McNamara being the only victim. The two men were finally captured by other officers and gave their names as Edward Kenney and Frank Tracey.

Cool Robber Got Away

Concord, N. H., Aug. 20.—A stranger who was being shown a tray of diamond rings in the jewelry store of Merrill Bros. boldly walked out of the store with the entire tray, containing about 30 rings, and made his escape. The total value of the rings was about $2000. A young woman clerk was alone in the store, which is situated in the busy section of the city, when the robbery occurred.

Beautiful Bonfire Custom Followed

Concord, N. H., Aug. 20.—New Hampshire's eighth annual Old Home week opened with celebrations of various kinds in 125 cities and towns. Bonfires on a hundred hills formed beacons of welcome to the returning homecomers. Saturday night the line of illumination reached from Sandwich, in Carroll county, to Stratham, in Rockingham county.

Old Clergyman Passes On

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 20.—Rev. J. W. Cross, the oldest graduate of Harvard university and the oldest Congregational minister in the United States, died of old age at the home of his daughter here. He was born in East Bridgewater, Mass., in 1808 and was graduated from Harvard in 1828. At one time he was a representative in the legislature from West Boylston.

Railroaders' Wages Increased

Hartford, Aug. 20.—Notices have been posted in the offices of the Consolidated Railway company here announcing a general increase in the wages of employes. The increase is governed by classification of the men according to their term of service and is the same basis as that granted recently in other parts of the system.

ESTIMATES VARY

But Loss of Life by Chilean Quake Is Certainly Heavy

ONE REPORT SAYS 2000

Dispatches to State Department Place Fatalities at 500--Valparaiso Badly Off For Food and Water--Many of Santiago's Best Buildings Wrecked--Damage In Many Other Cities

Washington, Aug. 20.—There continues confusion of statements as to the magnitude of the disaster in Valparaiso caused by the earthquake shocks which began on Thursday, Aug. 16, and continued at frequent intervals throughout that and the next two days. Dispatches from Valparaiso state that a moderate estimate of the fatalities is 2000, and that the property loss may be as high as $250,000,000, which is as great as the loss sustained by San Francisco in consequence of the earthquake and fire which devastated that city last April.

A refugee who has arrived at Santiago places the known dead at 100 and other messages indicate that the first reports of damages and casualties were exaggerated. Dispatches to the state department place the fatalities at about 500.

These conflicting statements cannot at this time be adjusted. It is evident that even yet confusion and panic prevail at Valparaiso, and until order is restored it will be impossible to ascertain with accuracy the loss of life and the damage to property. The dwellings in the city have been practically abandoned by the inhabitants, who are existing as best they can in the plazas and streets and the hills, without shelter from storm or sun and with famine confronting them.

Food is already scarce and high, water for drinking purposes is lacking and disease feared. The government is doing all it can to bring in relief. The crippling of the railroads leading into Valparaiso constitutes a serious factor in the situation, as for an indefinite period relief supplies can only be obtained through other means of transportation, the seaboard affording the best of these.

At Santiago many of the best public and private buildings were wrecked. The loss of life there was augmented by the panic which overcame the people, many of whom threw themselves from the balconies of their homes and so were either killed or injured. The destructive force of the earthquake was experienced over a large extent of the country, many towns sustaining serious damage.

The first shock occurred about 8 Thursday evening, and was followed by others at intervals throughout the night. Panic prevailed, and the streets were filled with hysterical, wailing and praying people. Half the inhabitants of Santiago stayed on the streets or fled to the country Thursday night.

Fires followed in Santiago, but were quickly extinguished by a providential heavy downpour. Valparaiso suffered much from fire, and the flames are still devouring the buildings in the business district.

The disturbances are confined to the Pacific slope of the Andes, but Iquique, the center of the nitrate industry, has escaped injury.

The disturbances were recorded by seismographs in Washington, Honolulu, Hamburg and Goettingen.

Various firms in Europe and America with business interests in Chile have received messages announcing the safety of employes.

Among the places reported to have been damaged or destroyed are Vina del Mar, 12,000 people, three miles from Valparaiso; Limache, 4000 people; Quillota, 26 miles from Valparaiso; Illapel, 5000 people, 130 miles northwest of Santiago; Vallenar, 5000 people, 300 miles north of Santiago.

Houses in Valparaiso and Santiago, as well as other towns in Chile, are built to withstand earthquakes. They are made of stone, with thick walls, and are seldom more than two stories high. They are, therefore, not very combustible, as was the case in San Francisco.

Twelve Persons Drowned

New York, Aug. 20.—Twelve persons lost their lives in the waters about New York yesterday. Most of the victims were bathers, who either ventured out too far from shore and became exhausted, or who were seized with illness and became helpless. A number of heroic rescues of imperilled swimmers were made and these reduced what would otherwise have been a much larger death list.

Fatal Fall From Staging

New London, Conn., Aug. 20.—Thomas A. McQuarrie, aged 55, a bricklayer, was almost instantly killed by being knocked off a high staging by a mass of falling brick. Patrick O'Connell, a hod-carrier, at work with McQuarrie, was knocked off his feet, but hung to the scaffolding and escaped death.

Negroes In Lynching Fever

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 20.—To prevent a lynching threatened by the negro population of McCormack white citizens had to take Jack Samuels, a negro who had assaulted a negro girl, to Greenwood, where he was met by the sheriff of Abbeville county and put in jail for safe keeping.

When the Votes Tied

By CLAUDE PAURARES

Copyright, 1906, by W. R. Caldwell

It was an off year in politics—that is, it was a bad year for the politicians. The electors had taken the bit in their teeth and run away, and the cut and dried nominees had failed to become candidates. It was because of this that Abe Hewson had been elected to the legislature from one of the mountain districts. When his friends and neighbors had talked of nominating him he had replied:

"Shoo! Why, I hain't got no eddecashun!"

"Don't you reckon you need any to be an honest man."

"But I can't make no speech."

"The less gab the better. Been too much talk already."

"But them eddecated critters will git me all tangled up."

"Nobody can't tangle up a square man."

Abe Hewson was nominated and elected. He didn't have to pay out a shilling for campaign expenses, and he didn't make any promises. They knew him throughout his district as an honest man. They said of him as they said of a January coonskin—that was "prime."

His wife was not puffed up with pride over his nomination. She had little to say during the campaign. It was only when he came home and told her that he was elected that she motioned him to sit down and then said:

"Abe Hewson, nobody could dun say that you wasn't an honest man when I married you."

"I was tryin' to walk straight, Tilda."

"Fur ten years you was buyin' and sellin' mewls. Abe, did you ever lie and cheat in that business?"

"Drat me, but I was so squar' that I couldn't make a livin' at it."

"For six or seven years you have been buyin' coon and skunk and woodchuck skins. Have you been a liar and a cheat?"

"No, Tilda. I could have lied once and made $3 on a b'arskin, but I shet my teeth hard agin it."

"You kin borrow a dollar of most any man, can't you?"

"Reckon so."

"And when a man has got your word he depends on it?"

"'Pears that way."

"And all this is why you've been 'lected. It's cause you've got a good name; it's cause your a squar' man. Abe, we uns is pore folks. We hain't eddecated. Pianers and silks and broadcloths are not for sich as us. We squatted yere twenty years ago, and we'll stay squatted till the end. I hain't makin' the least complaint over it. I don't believe I'd care to be rich and have grand things. I'm satisfied to go right along just like this, but don't fling us down, Abe—don't do that."

"What d'ye mean, Tilda?" he asked.

"I hain't much of a reader, but I can make out 'nuff in our weekly paper to know that heaps o' men are willin' to part with their honesty to get ahead in the world. Don't part with yours. You are goin' whar you'll be tempted, but shet your teeth agin it. I'm holdin' my head high and feelin' jest as good as any one on this here mounting, not bekase we've got money, Abe, but bekase you are a squar' man. If you should lose that name you'd lose me. I'm lovin' you as much as a wife can, but I'm speakin' mighty straight when I tell you that if so much as a whisper should come back here that you had lost your squar'ness I'd walk off and starve to death in the woods rather than live on with you."

"And I wouldn't be blamin' you, Tilda," quietly replied Abe as he went out to walk about and think.

Abe Hewson went down to the capital of the state in fear and trembling. He was marked down by certain members and lobbyists as a good thing, but they gave him time to shake himself down into his place. There were axes to grind on every hand, but it was the coal men who had the largest. They wanted a charter for a railroad to run to certain undeveloped mines. It wasn't a line to build up the country and accommodate the people, but to bring coal out to market. They wanted a grant of state lands to recoup themselves.

A powerful lobby, well supplied with money and arguments, was on hand. Those who saw through the scheme and knew that it was a steal also knew that they had their hands full to fight it.

Abe was moving along slowly and trying to look ahead for pitfalls when the matter of the railroad came up and he found himself in the thick of it. He found himself in the position of many another before his time. The state employs no lobbyists to protect herself. All the argument and sophistry and money are in the hands of those who would rob her. The opponents of the railroad scheme sat down with Abe Hewson and tried to make him understand. They found him dense, but realized that he wanted to be honest. They contented themselves by telling him that it was his duty to vote against the bill. It was clear enough to Abe that day, but not so clear the next. The lobby had got after him.

Your congressional or legislative lobbyist is a smart man. He is a student of character. He is a diplomat. He is sleek and slick. In this case when it became apparent that the vote would be close the Hon. Abraham Hewson was given especial attention. Cigars and champagne met him at every turn. Men were solicitous about his health. He came to know that shawls and dress patterns and jewelry were being sent to his mountain home. Tailors were ready to measure him for new suits without cost to himself, and hints were thrown out that after the adjournment he would be wanted to fill an important position down in the lowlands.

All this was very soothing and seductive to Abe. He had always been used to plain speech. A spade was either a spade or not a spade. The sophistry of the lobbyists tangled him up. He was made to see that under certain circumstances a long handled shovel became a short handled spade. He was a man without a grain of natural vanity, but when gentlemen of wealth and education asked him to sit down and drink and smoke with them and deferred to his opinions it was only natural that he should feel puffed up.

The day came when a poll of the house showed that the vote on the railroad bill would be a tie. Abe Hewson could not be counted for certain on either side. Both sides claimed him, but he had made no direct promise. The casting vote would be his. Some of his mountain constituents had come down, but between the lobbyists for and the members against the bill they had soon been reduced to a state of uncertainty. For the first time in the history of the legislature an ignorant but honest "coonskin" member held the balance of power with the most important bill of two decades in the balance.

Queerly enough, the lobbyists had not resorted to direct bribery in Abe's case. They might argue and cajole and throw hints of rewards, but they felt afraid to go further. Both sides felt that he was trying to figure things out for himself and then cast his vote as conscience dictated.

The day finally came when the bill was to be put on its final passage. That it would be a tie vote every one was assured. Abe Hewson was in his seat, pale, nervous and hesitating between two opinions. He was no nearer a decision in his own mind than a week before. Some preliminary business was being transacted when a messenger called him out. Just outside the doors he found his wife. She had on her poke bonnet and heavy shoes and calico dress and had been the sport of a crowd for the last ten minutes. It was thirty-six miles over the rough mountain road to the log cabin, and she had walked all night. She had never been in the city before, never seen such crowds, never beheld such buildings, never looked so many men in the face.

"Gawd, Tilda, but you yere!" exclaimed Abe as he laid a hand on her shoulder.

"Yes, Abe."

"But what for? What dun brung ye?"

"That railroad bill, Abe. I've been readin' of it right along, and I've dun been prayin'."

"And—and"—

"Prayin' to Gawd, Abe—prayin' that he might dun gimme light to see my way clear and make you see yours. The light come yesterday. Gawd he dun wants you to vote agin that railroad and still be an honest man. I've walked all night to get here and tell you. I was skeered by the darkness, and I'm skeered by the people. They are laughin' at me now. I'd never have come, Abe—I'd never have come in this livin' world if Gawd hadn't dun sent me."

Half an hour later the bill was put on its passage, and one of the messages going over the wires to people interested read:

"Railroad bill knocked into a cocked hat. Abe Hewson's wife did it."

The Irish Fairies.

Fairies still play a prominent part in the life and belief of the Irish people. It is lucky to spill milk, a servant assured her mistress when she once dropped a jugful. "Them little people will be pleased with th' sup ye're lavin' them," she added. It was the same servant, says a writer in the Grand Magazine, who said that the good folk were very dainty in their habits and would not touch anything that was soiled or dirty.

"Let me tell ye," she continued. "Me own little nephew in the County Tipperary, a lovely young b'y of three weeks, was pinin' away, an' th' poor mother was distracted to know what was ailin' him, till she called in a woman who had th' name o' bein' wise, an' she told me sister th' fairies was takin' th' child.

"'An' what'll I do?' asked me sister.

"'Smear him wid dirt,' said th' woman, 'for whatever's annyway dirty th' fairies 'll lave after them.'

"Me sister done that, an' th' young child recovered, for when they seen th' dirt th' fairies let him be."

When Auntie Was Silenced.

Auntie was showing off her little nephew, aged two, to an admirer who was calling upon her for the second time. He was a very bright youngster and during a pause in the performances specially requested by auntie he suddenly remembered the way she had been teasing him before the caller arrived and decided to turn the tables on her, so he pointed a chubby finger at the door and said, "My rug!"

Auntie at once caught the spirit of the thing and cried emphatically, "No, my rug!"

"My dress," said her little nephew, pointing to auntie's gown.

"No, my dress," replied auntie, delighted to have an opportunity to show how cute he was.

Then the little boy sidled over to the caller and, pointing at him, cried, "My man!"

Silence on the part of auntie.—Pilgrim.

STERNER METHODS

Will Be Resorted to In Efforts to Suppress Polish Disorders

St. Petersburg, Aug. 20.—A call to an uncompromising war with terrorism and revolution in Poland was sounded in the imperial telegram of congratulation to Governor General Skallon of Warsaw on his escape from the bombs of would-be assassins at Warsaw Saturday. In this telegram the czar, after thanking divine providence for saving the governor general's life "for me and Russia," continues: "Do not be discouraged; be resolute in the battle with insensate anarchy and sedition."

Under present conditions in Poland it will be difficult to execute the imperial will, as the police have practically been driven from the streets of the Polish capital and the prevailing military measures are believed to be inadequate to cope with the revolutionists. Hence the text of the telegram is regarded here as indicating the intention of the czar to strengthen the hands of Skallon or his successor by furnishing more troops, empowering the use of sterner methods than hitherto were permissible, and the formation of a special ministry to take over the government of the Polish provinces.

The establishment of what is practically a dictatorship for Poland is hinted at by The Svet, the court organ.

After Littlefield's Scalp

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 20.—President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor began in this city an attempt to defeat Congressman Littlefield's return to congress by speaking to a large audience. He charged the congressman with being an enemy to organized labor and a friend to corporations. Referring to the challenge of E. E. Plummer of Bath to joint debate, Gompers said that he had no time to waste with a turncoat like Plummer. Gompers closed by urging the voters to turn out on election day and bury Littlefield.

Johnstown Has Another Flood

Johnstown, Pa., Aug. 20.—An unprecedented rainstorm here flooded Moxham, the fashionable residence section of the city, and caused thouhands of dollars damage. Many of the streets are two to three feet deep with water and the Conemaugh river and Stony creek are rising rapidly. The business section of this city is some distance from the flooded section and is safe from any damage. Barns, hundreds of out-buildings and several bridges have been carried away.

Carload of Powder Exploded

Yreka, Cal., Aug. 20.—Two boys were killed and another was probably fatally injured when a powder house belonging to the Grant Powder company was blown up. In nearly every house in Yekra windows were broken. Two damaged rifles were found near the boys' bodies. It is supposed that the boys shot into the powder house through a ventilator. A carload of powder had just been stored in the magazine.

Protest Against Greek Outrages

Philippopolis, Bulgaria, Aug. 20.—A meeting of 20,000 inhabitants of this city and surrounding districts, and which also was attended by 1900 delegates from Macedonian associations in all parts of Bulgaria, adopted resolutions protesting against Greek outrages. The meeting was orderly, and at its conclusion those present formed into an imposing procession and left copies of the resolutions at the Russian, French and British consulates.

Mendoza Declared a Traitor

Bogota, Aug. 20.—President Reyes has issued a decree declaring Diego Mendoza, ex-minister of Colombia to the United States, to be a traitor for having published a letter addressed to political friends in which he is alleged to have disclosed diplomatic secrets. The decree orders Mendoza to present himself at Bogota within two months in order that he may stand trial, failing to do which his extradition will be asked for.

Triple Drowning Accident

Gale, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Misses Margaret MacDonald of Boston and Bella Plummer of Worcester, Mass., were drowned in Lake Massaweple. The girls went for a row on the lake. When they did not return in time for dinner a search was instituted and the boat was found capsized. Dynamite was resorted to in an effort to find the bodies and they came to the surface and were recovered.

Cup Defenders Chosen

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 20.—The German-American regatta committee of the Eastern Yacht club has elected the Caramba, Auk and Vim to defend the Roosevelt cup against the three German sonder class yachts next month. The Caramba is owned by C. H. W. Foster, the Auk is owned by C. F. Adams and the Vim is owned by T. L. Park.

Played With Loaded Revolver

Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—Playing burglar with a loaded revolver, Claude Lanciano, 8 years old, shot and killed his baby brother, Edmund, 3 years old. Claude also shot himself through the hand. The child had procured the pistol from a bureau drawer.

Yellow Fever In Louisiana

New Orleans, Aug. 20.—The state board of health reports one case of yellow fever at New Iberia, 125 miles from New Orleans. The patient is a mulatto boy, 12 years old.

—Mrs. Leslie Carter-Payne has signed a contract by which she will become a star under the management of Charles B. Dillingham for the next five years. Nine prominent managers have been bidding persistently to get control of Mrs. Carter-Payne's future. David Belasco made no effort to retain her.

Odd Fellows Outing.

The annual outing of the Manet, Old Colony and Wompatuck Encampments was held Saturday afternoon at Nantasket point. There was about 300 in the party and they had a glorious time. The guests were Grand Patriatch Johnson and Grand Instructor Rowell of Lynn and Grand Lewis Warden Cook of Weymouth.

Dinner was served at Wades. After dinner there was a series of sports including a game of baseball.

The members of Manet Encampment went by electric cars to Houghs Neck, thence across the bay by boat.

Death of T. Dexter Pierce.

Thomas Dexter Pierce died Sunday at the City Hospital aged 84 years. Mr. Pierce has been a resident of Quincy for many years. He was a cracker baker by trade and has been employed by the G. H. Bent Co., at Milton for upwards of 60 years. He leaves two sons and two daughters.

—Kermit Roosevelt with his young friend, John Heard, has arrived at Deadwood, S. D., for a visit with Capt. Seth Bullock, a U. S. Marshall. The feature of the visit will be an overland trip by way of Belle Fourche to President Roosevelt's old ranch near Medora, on the Little Missouri river.

—Sixty guests escaped in their night clothes one night last week during a fire which destroyed the Arcadia, one of the best known summer resorts at Tracedie, P. E. I. The Arcadia was owned by I. C. Hall, United States Vice Consul for Charlottetown for many years. The loss is $8000 and insurance $4000

—Dr. Augustus Smith, the promoter of a longevity scheme, has not grown a year older in the last five or six years, according to his own statements. He is now attracting attention at Egg Harbor, N. J., by bathing the inmates of his sanitarium in Union creek, which he declares to be the river of life. He points to his own age, which he says is 135, as evidence of the wonderful powers of the river.

Steamer Launched

The Satilla For Brunswick Steamship Co In Her Element

The steel screw freight steamship "Satilla" the first of a fleet of four being built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. for the Brunswick Steamship Co., was successfully launched this morning at the Fore River yards. The launch was in the nature of a private one, and the yards were closed to the public. Both shores of Fore River were lined with people however, for a launching is always an interesting sight even if it is not a big battleship.

A large reviewing stand has been erected at the bow of the vessel, and this was gaily bedecked with the national colors, while streamers of the flags of international code were strung across the deck of the Satilla from bow to stern. On the reviewing stand were a number of the officials of the Steamship Co., as well as officials of the Fore River Co. Suspended from the bow was a ribbon of red, white and blue, from the end of which hung a bottle of Munn's Extra Dry with which the vessel was christened.

The launching party came from Boston in a special car attached to the 10.45 train. This car was dropped at East Braintree, from which point it was taken over the private road of the company, landing the launching party at the foot of the stairs leading to the launching stand. The party arrived about 11.30 and preparations to launch the vessel were commenced immediately.

It was just 11.34 when at the sound of a shrill whistle a hundred or more workmen began to drive in the wedges which lifted the vessel from her keel block. Then came a wait while the shores were taken out and the keel blocking split out.

At 12.08 word was given to saw away the soul piece. This was but the work of a moment, and at 12.09 the Satilla began to move down the ways.

As she started Mrs. C. F. Aeyer of Boston cracked a bottle of "Mum's Extra Dry" over her bow, and christened her "Satilla."

Miss May P. Atkinson of Atlanta, Ga., daughter of President A. M. Atkinson, was to have christened the vessel, but missed connections on her way from Canada, and the honor fell to Mrs. Aeyer. Mrs. Aeyer wore a blue traveling suit and carried a handsome bouquet of roses.

The Satilla moved slowly at first, but soon gathered headway, and slid gracefully into her native element. Shrill whistles at the works and from the sailing craft in the river, and cheers from thousands of workmen announced the launching to the world.

As soon as she struck the water she was surrounded by tugs and taken to her berth where she will be completed.

Immediately after the launch, a lunch was served in the mold loft, and at 1.40 the special train was taken back to Braintree and thence to Boston.

Among the more prominent of the guests present were:

President H. M. Atkinson of Atlanta, Ga.
Vice President and General Manager C. L. Dimond.
Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Aeyer.
P. S. Arkwright of Atlanta. Ga.
T. Jefferson Coolidge
T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr.
Francis Bartlett
Mr. and Mrs. George Barker of Huston, Texas.
George Putman
Gordon Abbott

President Bowles and other officials of the Fore River Company were also present.

The four vessels which will comprise the fleet are the Satilla, the Ocmulgee, the Ogeechee and the Ossabaw. They are constructed of mild steel; 313 feet long, a moulded breadth of 40 feet, depth of hole 25 feet, and a displacement of 5,000.

These vessels have been designed to carry the maximum of freight on an unusually light draft and consequently are arranged with the propelling machinery at the after end of the vessel, the remainder of the ship being devoted to the storage of cargo.

These vessels have a straight stem and semi-elliptical stern.

There are three large cargo holds having four hatchways suitably arranged for the expeditious handling of freight. In addition to these hatchways the cargo can be manipulated through four cargo ports on each side of the vessel. These cargo holds are isolated from each other by steel watertight bulkheads, which with the collision, machinery space and stern tube bulkheads divide the vessel into 7 separate watertight compartments which will insure the vessel floating with any two of the compartments flooded by the sea and in addition to this will insure greater isolation in the event of fire, to one compartment.

The vessel has been rigged with 2 steel pole masts having 4 derricks fitted to each with a working capacity of 7 1-2 tons per derrick. To insure that the vessel will trim properly when steaming light, deep trimming tanks have been arranged right forward and in the fore holes water ballast tank has been arranged for.

The officers' quarters are located in a steel superstructure built around the engine and boiler casings, with a handsome dining saloon amidships at the forward end of the superstructure. The crew, firemen, oilers and water tenders will be berthed in main deck in way of machinery space.

The usual pumping and drainage, sanitary and firemain systems have been arranged for on the most approved lines and in addition an electric light installation of ample power will be fitted.

Steam steering and screw hand gear will be installed with steering stations in pilot house and on quarter deck aft.

The propelling machinery consists of one set of triple expansion, surface condensing engines supplied with steam by 2 S. E.S cotch boilers suitable for developing sufficient power to propell the vessel at a continuous speed of 10 1-2 knots per hour.

The Quincy Fleet.

Several Quincy built warships will be in the Labor Day review of President Roosevelt, including the battleships New Jersey and Rhode Island, the cruiser Des Moines, and the torpedo boat destroyers Lawrence and Macdonough.

Special Ticket

Recommended Between Quincy and Nantasket

The Railroad Commissioners of Massachusetts rendered a decision this morning on the petition of the Mayor and City Council of Quincy, which set forth that the fare of twenty cents between Quincy and Nantasket Beach on the Old Colony street railway was an excessive charge.

The company plead increased cost of service, saying also that the line is operated only a few months of the year, and that the traffic is for pleasure, and can properly stand a higher charge than travel which is a matter of necessity.

It is true that those who ride daily between their homes and places of work are entitled on general principles to special consideration in low fares.

It cannot be denied that the patronage of summer excursionists is far from being as profitable as would sometimes appear to be the case, particularly to those who ride only occasionally as a part of the throng.

However, taking all things into consideration, the amount of travel, the distance travelled, and the character of this service, in comparison with that elsewhere, we believe the fare between Quincy Square and Nantasket Beach should not exceed 15 cents.

A change which might well be brought about by the issuing a special ticket. We recommend this change.

The report is signed by James F. Jackson of Fall River the chairman of the Railroad Commissioners.

Poverty Party At Houghs Neck

The Casino, Houghs Neck, was filled to overflowing Monday night at the poverty party given under the auspices of a number of the young people at the beach.

One of the requirements, aside from admission ticket, was that a costume portraying poverty should be worn. The result was that a more poverty looking crowd would be hard to find.

Aside from summer residents at the beach there were several clubs from Boston represented, who came in special cars.

During the early part of the evening there was an entertainment consisting of songs by George Johnson, Andy Leonard and Miss Grace Barney, and buck and wing dancing by George Driscoll.

The grand poverty march was at 9 o'clock, and was led by Arthur Dunn and Mrs. Joseph Ryan. At the conclusion of the march, prizes of $5 and $3 for the most poverty dressed men were awarded Michael Griffin and Arthur Dunn.

The judges were Councilman McDavitt of Boston, Thomas Cuff, H. W. Hughes, Frank Busnell and John Winterson.

Dancing was enjoyed until 10 o'clock.

Conductor Tossed in Air

One of the conductors on the Wollaston line had a narrow escape from a serious accident Sunday evening. He left his car at the junction of Hancock and Adams street to go across the street to throw the block signal. As he did so, an automobile came around the corner of the car. The conductor could not get out of the way and the automobile could not stop. The machine struck the conductor throwing him into the air. When he came down he fortunately landed on the front part of the machine and was carried some distance before it could be stopped. The conductor escaped injury but received a scare he will not soon forget.

Mrs. Craigie.

Chelsea, and not, as it has been generally stated, Boston, is the natal city of Mrs. Craigie (John Oliver Hobbes), whose recent death is regarded as a positive loss in the field of English fiction. Mrs. Craigie was Pearl Richards, and born on Nov. 4, 1867, in a small cottage, still standing, that was then numbered 75 Chelsea street.

The father, John Morgan Richards, is a native of Litchfield, Conn., a town in which many noted men and women have been cradled. Mr. Richards is a son of Rev. Dr. James Richards, who was of New Jersey birth, himself the son of a noted Presbyterian divine of the same name. Both father and son were distinguished, in their day, as writers, preachers and educators.

Clansmen at Funeral.

The funeral of Alexander Souden was held Monday afternoon from his late residence at 317 Water street. The services were very largely attended, Clan McGregor, O. S. C., of which he had long been a member, attended in a body.

The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Morrell of Wollaston. The remains were escorted to Mt. Wollaston cemetery by Clan McGregor, and the burial service of the order was performed at the grave.

Fell Down Stairs.

Mrs. John F. Gearin of 206 South street had a bad fall on Monday. She started to come down stairs at her home when she tripped and fell the whole length. Mrs. Gearin is quite a stout woman, and was severely shaken up and bruised. In addition to her bruises she received a bad cut on the head which required seven stitches.

The yacht Beatrice which has been cruising along the coast of Maine, returned this morning. All the crew, Messrs. Furnald, Allen, Hector and Matheson, report an enjoyable trip.

Quincy Cup

Four Days Of Racing Begins Tomorrow At Manchester

The races for the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup will begin tomorrow an continue daily the balance of the week, and possibly into next week, as it is required that one yacht shall win three races.

The cup is now in the possession of the Manchester yacht club, having been won from the Quincy club by the Lookout in 1900, and successfully defended by the Outlook of the same club in 1902. No races have since been held.

Until the sonder klasse races at Marblehead last week it was generally supposed that the Manchester would be the defending yacht, but today two trial races are being held by the Manchester yacht club to decide between the Manchester and the Ellen.

The first challenge was issued this year by the Auk, representing the Quincy Yacht club, and she has developed into a formidable flyer which is likely to bring the cup back to Quincy.

When a challenge is issued, however, other yacht clubs may also challenge and enter a boat, and the Boston and Corinthian clubs took advantage of this. The Boston club has entered the Bonedrei, and the Corinthian club the Windrim Kid.

With the Auk, Bonedrei and Windrim Kid struggling to lift the cup, and the Manchester or Ellen as defender, the races beginning tomorrow are sure to be close and interesting.

The Auk is sailed by ex-Commodore Charley Adams of the Quincy club, who is also an ex-Mayor of the city and a great grandson of President John Quincy Adams. All his racing has been in small yachts and he has few equals as a skipper.

The Windrim Kid will be sailed by John Small; the Bonedrei by young Wightman, and the Manchester or Ellen by the Boardmans.

Several representatives of the Quincy Yacht club will follow the races daily, having chartered the launch Madeline.

The races will be started daily at 2 P. M. and the time limit is three and one-half hours. In one race only has a challenging yacht won, as will be seen by the cup record below :

CHALLENGING CLUB AND BOAT.
1898—Lynn, Duchess.
1899—Lynn, Heiress.
1900—Manchester, Lookout (won).
1902—Quincy, Flashlight.

DEFENDING CLUB AND BOAT.
1898—Quincy, Recruit (won).
1899—Quincy, Hostess (won).
1900—Quincy, Hostess.
1902—Manchester, Outlook (won).

The crew of the Auk for the races will be Charles F. Adams, 2d, Arthur Adams and George Perkins.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The tax rate of Dedham is being reduced. Whether it is because of the added receipts from fines imposed on autoists we are not informed.

The tax rate of the city of Cambridge is the same as the city of Quincy—$18.60 per $1,000. That of Cambridge is less than last year, while that of Quincy is more.

The reported disappearance of the Robinson Crusoe island off the coast of Chili, may need verification, the same as the Cliff House at San Francisco.

The Boston Central Labor Union has protested against a naval demonstration on Labor Day, fearing doubtless it will prove a greater attraction than their parade. For the same reason there should be no sports on Memorial day, because the day is dedicated to the Grand Army; and for the same reason the churches should regulate the observance of Sunday.

Miss Ada M. Nightingale of Commissioner Burke's office is having a two weeks' vacation.

Miss Margaret Carroll of the Daily Ledger force in enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

It is rumored that Tax Collector Cunningham who was recently elected County Treasurer will resign the former office Sept. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Mattfield and their children, Henry, John and Hester of Berlin street, have returned after a fortnight's stay in Medfield.

Dr. Edwin E. Davis has returned from a three weeks' trip on his yacht "Carita" and will be found at his office as usual.

Mrs. Thomas Armstrong of Warren avenue is entertaining her friend, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Tinkham of Pittsfield, Mass.

Mrs. Edwin E. Davis and Miss Marguerite Davis are still on the yacht Carita at Marblehead where they escape the heated spell of weather.

Archie Thayer has become a constant attendant at the district court. He is probably collecting material for his political speeches.

The Crawfish's Tail.

The tail of a crawfish serves that animal as an oar. By a peculiar jerk of the tail the animal can retire from a dangerous object with almost incredible swiftness. The tail is much more effective in moving the animal backward than forward, a singular instance of adaptation to its situation, for by means of its tail it can withdraw into its hole with such swiftness as in an instant to place it out of danger.

COOLIES ON CANAL

Twenty-Five Hundred Will Constitute the First Batch

TERMS FOR CONTRACTORS

A Ten-Hour Day and Time and a Half For Holiday or Sunday Work--Those Who Cease Work Must Be Deported

Washington, Aug. 21.—Specifications for bids to furnish Chinese labor for the construction of the Panama canal have been issued by the isthmian canal commission. The basis for bidding is for 2500 coolies, although it is made clear that the commission may call for additional Chinese laborers should the experiment be successful. The number, however, shall not exceed 2000 a month.

All proposals must be received not later than 10 p. m., Sept. 20, at which time they will be opened. The usual conditions regulating competitive bidding for government supplies are prescribed by the specifications. The proposals are to be accompanied by a certified check or by a bond for $50,000 and the bond of the successful bidder will be advanced to $100,000, which will be forfeited if he should fail to enter into a contract.

The proposals are to be expressed in terms of hourly wages, payable in gold currency of the United States or its equivalent for the labor of not less than 2500 Chinese for a period of not less than two years, which may be extended. Chinese laborers will be required to work 10 hours each day. Overtime will be paid in excess of 10 hours and for all the work upon Sundays or holidays at the rate of time and a half. The holidays recognized are Jan. 1, Feb. 22, July 4, Thanksgiving day, Dec. 25 and the first and last days of the Chinese New Year.

The contractor must accept the responsibility for any such damages maintained by legal claim.

Laborers coming under this contract will be provided, free of charge, with lodgings, fuel for cooking, burial grounds, necessary medical and surgical treatment. No wages will be paid to any laborer, however, during illness or absence from work. Families and children will be allowed to accompany the laborers in the proportion of 13 percent of the total number of Chinese employed at any time.

The full number of laborers to be furnished under this initial proposal must arrive within the isthmian canal zone on or before Jan. 7, 1907. The contractors are liable to fines of $10 each for each person not supplied within that period, and any laborer discharged or disabled or who ceases work must be deported by the contractors to the place of original embarkation.

Proposals to furnish coolie labor must include the transportation of laborers to either of the ports in the canal zone, the furnishing to each laborer of proper clothing, bedding, food subsistence and other customary supplies and commodities. These agreements are to be in a form approved by the secretary of war. One copy of each of these agreements is to be delivered to the American consul at the port of embarkation and one copy to the canal commission upon the arrival and acceptance of laborers within the canal zone.

The laborers must be between 21 and 42 years old and in good physical condition, accustomed to digging and earth work. Foremen, to the number of not less than one to each 100 men, one physician to each 250 laborers and one interpreter to each 500 laborers, together with the necessary number of cooks and barbers, shall be furnished by the contractors. He shall also agree that neither slavery nor involuntary servitude shall be permitted with respect to any of the laborers and that they shall at all times receive just and humane treatment.

Week's Record of Violence

St. Petersburg, Aug. 21.—Last week's statistics show that 58 officials were murdered and 43 were wounded in Russia proper; that 50 bomb depots were discovered; that six safes were rifled of money, and that 63 persons were robbed. These official figures do not take into account the pillaging in the country, nor do they give the number of military executions or arrests of agitators and revolutionists.

Not Financed by Rockefeller

London, Aug. 21.—The managing director of the Tanganyika Railroad company writes to The Times, denying that John D. Rockefeller is financing the railway. The London Morning Post had stated that it was rumored that King Leopold of Belgium and Rockefeller would finance the proposed railway in Tanganyika.

Trains Held Up by Floods

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 21.—Floods in Arizona and southern parts of California, as a result of cloudbursts, have completely tied up the trans-continental lines of the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific. No trains have gone east from here since last Saturday.

Prediction Proved Correct

London, Aug. 21.—In a dispatch from Santiago the correspondent of The Daily Mail says: It is a curious fact that the earthquake of Aug. 16 was foretold by astronomers, who based their predictions on the conjunction of Jupiter, the earth and the moon.

President For Protective Tariff

New York, Aug. 21.—A "campaign document," issued by President Roosevelt in the form of a letter written by him to Congressman Watson of Rushville, Ind., is made public. The letter urges the country to make no change in the present congress and goes on at great length to tell of the great things accomplished by congress. "To make a change now," says the president, "would only bring about purposeless confusion." And in another place the president says: "We stand unequivocally for a protective tariff."

Meat Labels to be Changed

Washington, Aug. 21.—Representatives of the meat packing interests were in conference with officials of the agricultural department about the labels for their products which they will have to use under the meat inspection law and pure food law. It was discovered at the conference that the labels heretofore in use by the packers will have to be changed materially. The changes involve the consideration of a great mass of details.

Had No Case Against Crowe

New York, Aug. 21.—Pat Crowe of Omaha, who became well known at the time of the Cudahy kidnapping case and who recently came to this city, was arrested last night, charged with being a suspicious person, and taken to police headquarters. The police, however, were unable to find a record of a case for which they believed he was wanted, and he was released today.

Posses Hunting For Negro

Atlanta, Aug. 21.—As the result of an attack on Miss Ethel Lawrence and her 14-year-old niece by a negro in a suburb of this city, Miss Lawrence is dying and the child is suffering from blows from a stick inflicted by the negro. The country is being scoured by posses and if the negro is caught he will probably be lynched.

Congressional Appropriations

Washington, Aug. 21.—According to a statement issued by T. P. Cleaves and J. C. Courts, chief clerks respectively of the senate and house committees on appropriations, congress at its last session appropriated for the fiscal year 1907 $879,589,185.16, an increase of $59,404,550.20 over the sum appropriated at the last session.

CUBA'S OUTBREAK

Palma Takes Prompt Measures to Subdue Insurgents

RURAL GUARD IS LARGER

Telegraph Wires Cut, but Repaired by Guarded Workmen--United States May Be Drawn Into the Turmoil

Havana, Aug. 21.—The increasing uneasiness over insurrectionary manifestations in the western part of Cuba was quieted to a slight degree last evening by a decree of President Palma appointing General Montalvo, secretary of public works, to be in direct charge of all military operations against the insurgents. Palma also decreed the increase of the rural guards to 4000, the number contemplated in the bill introduced at the last session of congress.

It is evident that the Pinar del Rio insurgents are concentrating in the vicinity of the city of Pinar del Rio, intent on occupying it for their headquarters.

Both the government and the Western railway telegraph wires were cut yesterday afternoon between Consolacion del Sur and Pinar del Rio for several hours. Finally a guarded train took workmen from Pinar del Rio and repaired the lines. The workmen were not molested, but it is excepted that the telegraph wires will be cut again. Last night the telephone wires in that region also were cut.

Numberless rumors are afloat of fighting in the western part of the province of Havana. Bandera's force has attacked and rifled stores and stolen mules and horses at pleasure. The band stopped one railroad train.

Many revolutionists are reported to have left Guanajay, including Colonel Llaneras, who was captured with a negro companion and a coach loaded with arms, ammunition, medicines and machetes.

Several more arrests have been made in Havana of persons suspected of aiding the insurrection. Some small quantities of arms and ammunition have been seized.

The mayor of Consolacion del Sur has been suspended on suspicion of assisting the insurgents, and other officials are suspected.

A conspiracy has been discovered at Matanzas and the authorities are in possession of a list of names of those alleged to be connected with the plot, several of whom have been arrested.

There is considerable discussion as to whether, in the event of Cuba being unable to suppress the insurrection, she should ask the United States for assistance, or whether the United States may not intervene under the terms of the Platt amendment without such request being preferred. In the meantime the government assumes that it is entirely able to cope with the situation, although the condition of unrest may continue for several weeks.

Assaulted Seven-Year-Old Child

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 21.—Bob Etheridge, a negro, who attempted to criminally assault the 7-year-old daughter of T. H. West, a farmer, was taken by a large crowd to the scene of the crime, where he was shot to death. Etheridge was employed at the home of West. He asked the child to accompany him to feed the stock and while at the barn he attacked her. The child was horribly bruised, but the negro failed in his purpose.

May Not Please Bryan

Peoria, Ills., Aug. 21.—W. J. Bryan will be endorsed as the next presidential candidate of the Democratic party by the state convention of the Illinois Democracy, irrespective of the fact that he has announced that he does not care for the approval of the Democrats of the state officially expressed if Roger C. Sullivan is allowed by the convention to retain the position of national committeeman, to which he was elected in 1904.

Fire Fighting Apparatus Needed

Boston, Aug. 21.—That the danger of a conflagration is great in certain districts of Boston is noted by Fire Commissioner Wells in his annual report. In the crowded Charlestown district, among the frame apartment houses of Dorchester and along the waterfront of the city proper are places where Wells considers the fire hazzard the greatest, and he has recommended additional fire-fighting apparatus for these districts.

Shifting About of Troops

Washington, Aug. 21.—Orders have been issued by Military Secretary Ainsworth for the transfer of the negro troops from Fort Brown, Tex., where there has been serious trouble between citizens and soldiers, to Fort Ringgold, Tex., which is about 100 miles above Fort Brown. A company of white troops has been ordered to Fort Brown.

Higher Pay For Telegraphers

Topeka, Aug. 21.—The Santa Fe railroad has voluntarily granted its 1000 telegraph operators, from Chicago to El Paso, an increase of wages, averaging about $4 a month to each man, effective at once.

Sixteen Mutineers Killed

Cronstadt, Aug. 21.—Sixteen men condemned for participation in the mutiny here Aug. 1 were executed yesterday. Among the number were two students and an army surgeon.

FORGERY IS CHARGED

Two Arrests In Case of Alleged "Graveyard Insurance"

Boston, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Mary A. Tennyson of this city and Dennis Griffin, her brother, were arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of being accessories before and after the fact in the forgery of Griffin's name on May 4, 1906, to an application for an insurance policy in the New York Life Insurance company. Application was made to the Boston office, of which Albert J. Pickford is manager. It is charged that the scheme was one to defraud the insurance people, Griffin being, it is said, seriously ill with consumption.

The application was for a $3000 policy and it is asserted by the police that another person, who gave the name of Dennis Griffin, took the physical examination in place of the man who was to be insured. The alleged substitute is said to have disappeared.

Mrs. Tennyson and Griffin were released from custody on furnishing $3000 bail each. According to the police, Mrs. Tennyson's husband died last September, and the New York Life paid over $5000 on account of a policy held by him in that company. Two years ago a daughter of Mrs. Tennyson, a cripple, died. Her life was insured for $500. Mrs. Tennyson owns considerable property in the city.

Bad Railroad Wreck In Maine

Newport, Me., Aug. 21.—By a head-on collision between a coal train and a workmen's train one man was killed, two others severely injured and eight other shaken, bruised and cut at Etna last night. The dead man is Stephen B. Dionne of Waterville. The accident happened at a curve, at one side of which is a wall or ledge of jagged rock, and most of the injuries were caused by the men being hurled sidewise against the face of this ledge. It is said that the workmen's train was running to make a siding, where it expected to meet the coal train. Both engines were wrecked.

Not a Case of Manslaughter

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 21.—After a hearing in the police court, Judge Berry exonerated Joseph Yeager, the Fall River pitcher, of the charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Thomas F. Burke with a pitched ball at a game in Lynn. Judge Berry stated from the bench that he considered the arrest and arraignment of Yeager the best manner to place the defendant in good standing and that it gave the court pleasure to exonerate him from the charge which had been preferred against him.

Pool Selling at Readville

Readville, Mass., Aug. 21.—At the opening of the two weeks' Grand Circuit meet at the Readville track pool selling was resumed, despite the arrest of one auctioneer. The pool selling continued until the last race was started. It was claimed that an opinion had been received from former Attorney General Parker to the effect that the statutes of 1900 legalized the making of pools. It is expected that the case will be carried to the supreme court.

Caught In Building Collapse

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 21.—The concussion of a very heavy roll of thunder during an electrical storm is thought to have been the immediate cause of the collapse of a building by which one person was seriously and two others slightly injured. The man seriously hurt is Charles Zerbatus, who was caught and crushed under a heap of timbers. The building was unoccupied and had been partly torn down.

Helpless Woman Burned

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 21.—Mrs. Clara L. Edson, an invalid, 64 years of age, was fatally burned last night in a fire which broke out about 11 o'clock in her home here. She was helpless from paralysis and was terribly burned before she was rescued by firemen. She was taken to a hospital, where she died. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Fire Raging In Maine Forest

Rumford Falls, Me., Aug. 21.—News has reached here of a serious forest fire along the shores of the Magalloway river on property owned by the Berlin Mills Lumber company in what is known as the Umbagog region. A severe thunderstorm broke over this city, but it is not believed that the storm reached as far north as the fire.

Cowcatcher's Gruesome Burden

New Haven, Aug. 21.—An express train steamed into the railroad station here last night with the body of an unknown man, aged about 40, tightly wedged in the cowcatcher of the locomotive. The top of his head was gone, one leg was missing and the body was cut and torn.

Another Day of Excessive Heat

Boston, Aug. 21.—The heat of Saturday and Sunday continued yesterday with increased humidity, and a dozen or more prostrations were recorded. The official thermometer recorded only 88.55, but the moisture in the atmosphere made the conditions much more oppressive.

Alleged Burglar Held In $7000

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 21.—Frank Tracey, the alleged burglar, was held for the grand jury in $1000 on a charge of breaking and entering, and in $6000 on the charge of assault on Patrolman McNamara with intent to kill.

SEARCH OF RUINS

Begun on a Systematic Scale at Valparaiso

HUNDREDS DEAD IN CITY

Number of Dead In Entire Country as Result of Earthquake May Run Into Thousands--Small Towns Reported Destroyed--Details Lacking

Washington, Aug. 21.—The earthquakes in Chile have ceased, the resultant fires are out and the authorities and people of the two cities, Valparaiso and Santiago, are taking organized steps to relieve suffering, care for the wounded and bury the dead. The period of succor has entered.

Dispatches received from Chile tended to show that the first estimate of casualties and material damage had been greatly exaggerated, and that the people of Valparaiso are becoming calmer. The fear of further shocks has been removed by a statement issued from the observatory and yesterday it became possible, for the first time, to organize relief work, begin a systematic search of the ruins for the dead, and care for the injured.

Santiago is coming to the rescue of her suffering sister. Public subscriptions have been opened for money, clothing and provisions, and the capital is caring for all refugees from Valparaiso who make their way across the mountains.

The government is putting down pillage, wherever it breaks out, with troops.

It is still impossible to reach any correct estimate of the dead and wounded. The reports from Chile are most conflicting. A large section of the country, however, was visited by the catastrophe of last Thursday, and cabled estimates of casualties refer in some instances to particular localities, notably Valparaiso, and in others evidently to the entire district which suffered from the shock. The number of dead in Valparaiso doubtless will run into the hundreds, and for the entire country probably into the thousands. The property damage is estimated at from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000.

Relief is being organized with system and the government has taken complete control of the situation. The foreign legations are active in relief measures, as are private persons, and the greatest energy is being devoted to getting supplies for the destitute. The government has authorized the provincial governors to spend all money necessary for the relief of the needy in their districts. The funds subscribed in Iquique to celebrate the election of Pedro Montt to the presidency will be expended to relieve the sufferers. Public relief subscriptions have been opened in Buenos Ayres and the Argentine government will pass an appropriation to the same end. Chile will ask its congress for money for the reconstruction of Valparaiso.

The fires are under control or extinguished and the shocks have ceased. The people are engaged in seeking relatives and friends, in erecting or perfecting temporary out-door quarters against cold, in getting food supplies, and helping each other. Food and water are both very scarce and at this juncture many merchants have made material advances in the price of provisions.

The remoter districts have not yet been heard from and efforts are being made to establish communication, either by wire or couriers, with the provinces.

The statement is made that every building in Valparaiso has been damaged and the city has been described as "uninhabitable." The Almendral quarter and the principal streets are mere heaps of ruins. The people still throng the surrounding hills and the seashore, and many are leaving the locality as best they may.

It is reported that at several points the coast has lifted above its former level. The troops are maintaining perfect order. A commercial crisis is feared and very little business is being done.

The English firms located at Valparaiso do not appear to have sustained heavy loss, and it does not appear that any foreigners have been killed.

Santiago suffered much less than Valparaiso. The number of dead in Santiago is reported at 20. A local relief committee has been organized, the street cars have resumed running and the normal aspect of the city is rapidly returning. Refugees from Valparaiso are coming in in greater numbers every hour. The railroads are not yet in operation.

It is reported that six or eight towns in the stricken district have been destroyed, but details are still lacking. Vina del Mar, which is a suburb of Valparaiso, is described as almost entirely in ruins. There are 50 dead and 150 wounded at Tacla. Many houses in the Amagada district collapsed. In addition to towns previously mentioned Melipilla, Salvador and Santa Turnino sustained damage.

Features of Regular War

St. Petersburg, Aug. 21.—Advices from the southwestern section of the Caucasus show that the fighting in the districts bordering on the Persian frontier has now assumed the dignity of a regular war, with daily engagements resulting in heavy losses both to the Tartars and the Russian troops.

SENATOR ARRESTED

Prominent Nova Scotian Mixed Up In a Bank Failure

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 21.—Senator John Lovitt, president of the failed Bank of Yarmouth and one of the most prominent men in the province, was arrested last night on a charge of making false and deceptive returns concerning the bank's condition to the finance department of the Canadian government. A. Crowell, vice president of the institution and also a leading capitalist, was taken into custody on a similar charge.

The Bank of Yarmouth closed its doors on March 6, 1905. The bank held about $600,000 of the paper of W. H. Redding & Sons, shoe manufacturers of this city. When the shoe firm made an assignment on March 3 a run was started on the bank and the following day the institution was obliged to suspend, with liabilities of over $1,000,000. A. Stavert was appointed receiver of the Bank of Yarmouth, and when he took charge of the institution he discovered a number of alleged irregularities. One of the tellers was placed under arrest and another minor official committed suicide. The embarrassment resulted in the failure of several business firms.

Senator Lovitt, who is one of the leaders of the Liberal party in Nova Scotia, is prominent in business and political affairs of southern Nova Scotia.

Accident to New Steamer

Honolulu, Aug. 21.—With 150 passengers and 800 Asiatics on board, steamer Manchuria, one of the newest and fastest steamers on the Pacific ocean, is fast aground, lying broadside to the mainland on a reef off Rabbit island, below this city. Captain Saunders mistook another point of land for Mankapu point. He saw land ahead shortly before the vessel struck and reversed the engines at full speed, but it was too late to avert the accident.

Engineer Had to Scurry

Charlotte, Mich., Aug. 21.—Two Italian laborers are dead, two are dying and 15 more are injured as a result of an accident two miles from this city. An engine of the work train backed into the train while 50 laborers were eating their dinners. Several flatcars were wrecked, the men killed and injured being on these. Those not hurt rushed for the engineer, who ran his engine back up the track and escaped before they could do him harm.

Warships to Check Smuggling

Washington, Aug. 21.—The Russian ambassador has informed the department of state that the Russian government, in order to more effectively check the unlawful importation of firearms and explosives into the Russian ports in the Baltic, has decided to extend to the flotilla of revenue cutters charged with the surveillance and prevention of smuggling the assistance of the warships of the imperial navy.

Seventy Buildings Burned

St. John, Aug. 21.—Forest fires are doing much damage in various parts of New Brunswick and Quebec provinces. It is reported that the village of Caplan, with another settlement just back of it, has been almost wiped out of existence, about 70 buildings being destroyed and a large number of people homeless. The damage to crops and timberlands in that vicinity is heavy and the fire is still spreading.

To Battle With Zulus

Krantzkop, Natal, Aug. 21.—Colonel Royston's 3000 levies, of which 1500 are operating from Zululand, are ready to attack the irreconcilable natives. Royston has ordered the troops to secure the safety of the loyalists and not to fire unless they are ordered to do so by their officers or are obliged to do so in self-defense.

Coal Beats Oil Fuel

Washington, Aug. 21.—After a trial of a year of oil fuel on the torpedo boat Gwine it has been recommended that she be fitted to burn coal instead of petroleum. The best speed obtainable with oil fuel on the Gwine was about 16½ knots, while the sister boat, the Talbot, burning coal, made 20 knots.

Bad Jolt to Skallon's Nerves

Warsaw, Aug. 21.—In connection with the attempt on the life of Governor General Skallon on April 18, 28 arrests have been made on suspicion. The nervous shock to Skallon, caused by the explosion of three bombs in his immediate vicinity, has been so great that paralysis is feared.

The Cannon Presidential Boom

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 21.—The feature of the Republican state convention, in session here, will be the endorsement of Joseph G. Cannon as the nominee for the presidency in 1908. This action was decided upon last night at a conference of the state party leaders.

Slayer of Girl Unknown

Raleigh, Aug. 21.—The 16-year-old daughter of George Waddell, a farmer near Fremont, was murdered and her body thrown into a marl pit, where it was found. She had been strangled and the ground showed that a struggle had taken place. There is no clue to the murderer.

DEVELOPMENT OF FRUIT

Successful Experiments of the Agricultural Department.

TWO NEW VARIETIES OF LIMES

Small and Large Specimens Which Are Regarded as Commercial Successes--How the Morton Citrange Was Developed--May Be Less Expensive to Grow Than Oranges. Improved Pineapples.

New treats are in store for persons who enjoy a variety of fruits in the summer and early fall or who find comfort on hot summer days in sipping cooling drinks. Never content with results that may be so far in advance of past achievements as to seem like new milestones in the progress of their investigations, the plant and fruit experts of the department of agriculture are continuing unceasingly their search for novelties, says the New York Post's Washington correspondent. They note even the least indication of new traits which impress them as possessing possibilities of development and see whether results cannot be gained in the permanent betterment of the fruit species to which that particular product belongs.

One of the most popular and delicious thirst quenching decoctions at this season of the year is limeade. Up to within seven or eight years ago, although the lime as a fruit was grown in all tropical and subtropical countries for home consumption, it was only at a very few places that it was cultivated extensively for the manufacture of an article known as "lime juice." No commercial culture existed, however, in any part of the United States, and this was an evident indication that there was no demand which made fruit growers suppose it would be worth their while to grow limes. When the use of limes at soda fountains was introduced the demand increased so rapidly that the fruit attained standing as a commercial product and developed trade possibilities which were promptly recognized by plantation owners in southern Florida.

As the general demand for the lime is of such recent origin, very few varieties have been specifically named or become permanently introduced in the principal markets. Some sections of the United States have shown a decided preference for the small specimens, while in other cases large limes are more in demand. Some are very seedy, others nearly seedless. Some ripen early, while others do not reach their prime until late in the season. The unknown qualities of the lime are so great when compared with similar varieties of fruit which have been under observation and cultivation for decades past that there has been unusual difficulty in differentiating closely between the few varieties now practically established and the others which are still largely in an experimental stage.

After much experimentation the department experts have given names to two specimens which have progressed under their care to a point where they are looked upon as commercial successes. The smaller of the two is a hybrid of the West Indian lime with pollen of the Sicily lemon and has been named the "Palmetto." The original seedling was grown, fruited and tested in the subtropical garden of the department at Miami, Fla. The original experimental tree produced only three seedlings. One of these was small and ultimately died, but both of the others, which are almost exact duplicates of each other, have borne fruit which has had one of the chief marks of success--uniformity of size. Each lime weighs a trifle over one ounce, is nearly round, with a smooth surface and a rind less than one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness. The pulp, of a light greenish color, is tender and very juicy, with a flavor which the experts describe as "a sprightly acid of excellent bouquet." It is almost seedless, having usually only from three to six seeds. A feature recommending it to fruit growers is that it matures early and that because of the spreading, bushy nature of the vigorous hybridized tree it bears the greater part of the fruit near the ends of the branches, where it may be picked with the minimum of trouble and injury.

This small, regular and very juicy type exactly fits the requirements of the trade in some sections of the country and is destined to command a good price and wide market for the growers. For other sections, however, where for some reason or other the larger specimen of limes is preferred, the experts have provided a cross between the West Indian lime and the grape fruit. This has been named the "Everglade" lime, producing the largest fruits of any lime tested in the course of the official experiments in hybridization. The fruit is elliptical, measuring from an inch and a half to two inches in diameter and from one and three-quarters to more than two inches in height. Its color is light yellow, without the greenish tinge which distinguishes the smaller palmetto variety. Its characteristics are very similar to those of the smaller fruit, of course, but it has the advantage of producing at least a half an ounce more fruit content on the average than its more diminutive hybrid relative.

While developing these two new specimens in the line of acid fruits, the experts did not overlook the increasing demand for fruit of sufficiently appetizing characteristics to find favor as breakfast food. The great popularity attained by the grape fruit and the scientific success attained in the development of the Rusk and Willits hybrid citranges led to further work with other hybrids. This has resulted in the production of the Morton citrange, so named in recognition of the valuable services to agriculture of the late Hon. J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska, secretary of agriculture under Cleveland.

The experiments in this instance were made at Eustis, Fla., the original fruit from which this hybrid developed having been a cross of the trifoliage orange with pollen of the sweet orange. This cross fruit produced forty seedlings, of which eleven developed unmistakable signs of the true hybrid in exhibiting clearly intermediate character of foliage. As a dessert fruit or for eating at any time it has been found to be much superior to the two citranges developed prior to last winter, while it is as desirable for making a beverage similar to lemonade or limeade. Its rather firm membranes, separating the segments of the fruit, permit easy extraction of the pulp with a spoon, thereby putting it at once into the class with grape fruit. It has a very slight bitter taste and when served with sugar can be made to meet every demand of individual taste. For ordinary eating it is a little more sour than the ordinary sweet orange, but not any more so than some of the so called sweet oranges which find their way to the markets of the big cities. It is practically a seedless fruit.

A feature of interest to consumers of this new fruit is the probability that it will be less expensive than oranges, for instance, because greater hardiness of the hybrid makes possible its cultivation in sections where trees of similar species are killed by frost. While the cold resistant quality of the Morton has not been tested to its limit, the record of experiments shows that it went through all the winters at Glen St. Mary, Fla., since 1899 without losing its leaves. Several severe freezes which were disastrous to other species and seriously affected the orange industry even much farther south occurred during this time. Buds eight months old experienced without noticeable effect a temperature going down to 15 degrees. Experiments in Georgia returned similarly successful results in temperature falling to 8 degrees, showing that it can be grown not only wherever the orange is successful, but in additional localities where the orange could not survive the low temperature. This is an important feature as respects the availability of the fruit as a market commodity, a fact which is of general interest at such times as a great freeze in the south, when an orange crop may be killed off in a single night.

Pineapples, which enter so largely into table use, either as a fresh fruit, a preserve or in the preparation of a beverage, have also been the subject of experiments by the fruit specialists of the department. When the experts began this work some years back there was no technical literature on the subject available for their guidance. Experiments at West Palm Beach did not result as well as anticipated when first started, so finally the hybrid seed obtained in the course of crossing experiments was planted in a government greenhouse in Washington. When the young hybrid plants had reached a height of from six to eight inches they were shipped south and transplanted at the subtropical garden at Miami, Fla. Heretofore it has been asserted by growers that eight years was the time required for a pineapple to bear fruit, but these experiments have demonstrated that it can be done in four years if the plants are properly handled and nurtured.

To test the progress made from year to year pineapples grown from these experimental plants have been brought to Washington and compared with the best fruits obtainable in the Washington markets. In every case the experts found the flavor of the hybrids to be superior, and from this they have deduced the idea that the commercial line has been grown so many years without seed propagation that the old varieties have deteriorated. To maintain the highest quality a return to seed propagation is recommended by some of the experts, so that recent experiments may turn out not only to have produced new hybrids, but to have started a rejuvenation of the old species which had received a minimum of scientific care in the rush of commercial development.

Conquering the Colorado.

The first of the great American rivers to be completely held in bondage by a dam will be the Colorado, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The Laguna dam, twelve miles above Yuma, Ariz., will be completed by the government in two years. It will be 4,800 feet long and will be secured at the ends in the mountains which compress the Colorado at that point into this narrow width. The dam will consist of three massive concrete parallel walls, the spaces filled with stones and the whole width of the dam on top 244 feet. This great barrier will weigh 600,000 tons, and, although it will not rest upon rock, its weight will be such that not even the Colorado will be able to dislodge it. In low water the dam will back the river up and afford irrigation for 100,000 acres of rich bottom land, and in flood time the Colorado will thunder over the top.

Artificial Rain.

One of the Paris hotels in the Place Vendome has arranged to supply its guests with a shower of rain to order, says a special Paris cablegram to the Washington Star. By an arrangement of pipes placed high in the air over the courtyard a shower is obtained whenever required. The guests may sit under an immense umbrella twenty-five feet in diameter, enjoying the cool rainfall on a hot summer day.

Studing Geology In Alaska

The following from the Daily Record Miner of Juneau, Alaska, under the heading, "A man of Renown Among Us," is of interest to our citizens.

The mission here of T. A. Watson, who accompanied Prof. Crosby to Juneau and is a guest of Mr. W. H. Hile and family, is one in the interest of science as well as business and pleasure. He proposes to make a special study of the geological conditions existing in this district. His past life is intimately associated with the scientific and commercial development of the United States. Mr. Watson was associated with and made the first electric telephone for Prof. Bell and was associated with him in all the experiments by which the telephone was perfected. In fact, Mr. Watson heard the first sound ever spoken through a telephone, which was introduced in 1874. He was superintendent of the first telephone company ever formed and established the first exchanges. He filled the position of general superintendent of the company until 1881, when he retired from the telephone business and has never been actively engaged in it since. In 1884 Mr. Watson engaged in the shipbuilding business on a small scale to experiment with some new inventions pertaining to ships, and out of this small beginning has grown the great Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Boston, the largest shipbuilding plant on the Atlantic coast, employing upwards of four thousand men, with a pay roll of from fifty thousand to sixty thousand dollars a week. As president of that company he built battleships, cruisers, torbedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers, passenger and merchant ships, and among other big ships the great seven-masted schooner Thomas W. Lawson, which has a carrying capacity of 7,000 tons of coal. Mr. Watson retired from the shipbuilding business about two years ago, and is now giving his time entirely to the study of geology. He says he considers the district about Juneau marvelously interesting. He will remain here until about the 14th of this month, when he and Prof. Crosby will take a trip to the westward.

GERMAN GLEE CLUBS.

Early Days of the Saengerfests In This Country.

In the early days of saengerfests in this country they were held annually. The third saengerfest was held in New York in 1852, and many Newark Germans attended. Below are given extracts from the Newark Daily Advertiser, printed at the time:

June 10, 1852.—The German glee clubs of New York will celebrate the third annual festival in New York this year on the 19th to 22d of June. The New York Journal of Commerce states that the glee clubs from abroad will be received by the New York clubs and honored with a torchlight procession. The principal performance will take place at the Academy of Music, Fourteenth street, when the choruses will be sung by over 1,200 male voices, accompanied by an orchestra of 100 pieces. On the 22d will be held a picnic on the Bloomingdale road, opposite Striker's bay.

June 22.—Third musical jubilee of German singers, Saturday to Tuesday, 19th to 22d. The execution of the "Magic Flute" overture by 1,200 voices was very uncommon and surprising by the New York clubs and was received with great applause. The Eintrachts of Newark sang "Wallisischer Schiffergesang" in a distinguished manner. But the most marked performance was Martin Luther's "Ein Feste Burg Ist Unser Gott," arranged by Finke. We felt immediately what religious music really is—how grand, solemn and sublime such a hymn is when performed by a large orchestra and hundreds of voices. It was something to be remembered long. Kossuth was present during an intermission and was cheered.—Newark News.

THE SERPENT'S VENOM.

Mohammedan Legend of the Origin of the Tobacco Plant.

The prophet was taking a stroll in the country when he saw a serpent, stiff with cold, lying on the ground. He compassionately took it up and warmed it in his bosom. When the serpent had recovered it said:

"Divine prophet, listen. I am now going to bite thee."

"Why, pray?" inquired Mohammed.

"Because thy race persecutes mine and tries to stamp it out."

"But does not thy race, too, make perpetual war against mine?" was the prophet's rejoinder. "How canst thou, besides, be so ungrateful and so soon forget that I saved thy life?"

"There is no such thing as gratitude upon this earth," replied the serpent, "and if I were now to spare thee either thou or another of thy race would kill me. By Allah, I shall bite thee."

"If thou hast sworn by Allah, I will not cause thee to break thy vow," said the prophet, holding his hand to the serpent's mouth. The serpent bit him, but he sucked the wound with his lips and spat the venom on the ground. And on that very spot there sprang up a plant which combines within itself the venom of the serpent and the compassion of the prophet. Men call this plant by the name of tobacco.—Conte Arabe.

No Wool Over His Eyes.

Uncle Abe, a grizzled old negro, visited a zoological garden. He stood fascinated before a cage containing a chimpanzee and could not be induced to move. After awhile the animal came to the front of the cage and Uncle Abe spoke to him.

"Howdy?" he said. "Howdy?"

The chimpanzee not making any response, Uncle Abe chuckled and winked at him knowingly.

"Dat's right; dat's de way ter do! Doan' you nebber 'gin ter talk. Ef you does white man put er hoe in yer han' en meck yer wuk!" he said.—Harper's Weekly.

Stephen Girard, Hero.

A tablet "in commemoration of the courage and humanity displayed by Stephen Girard during the epidemic of yellow fever in the year 1793" in Girard college in Philadelphia discloses a phase of character in the philanthropist not generally understood. During the fever epidemic he gave up his business and his luxurious home and assumed the superintendency of a yellow fever hospital. He took up the work others recoiled from and did the work because it was his duty.

On Himself.

They had quarreled again.

"Perhaps you are not aware," she said, "that I had over a dozen proposals of marriage before I accepted yours."

He flushed.

"And perhaps, madam," he retorted haughtily, "you are not aware that I proposed to nearly twenty women before I became acquainted with yourself."

Temper.

If a man has a quarrelsome temper, let him alone. The world will soon find him employment. He will soon meet with some one stronger than himself who will repay him better than you can. A man may fight duels all his life if he is disposed to quarrel.—Cecil.

Posted.

"Can you repeat the Declaration of Independence?" she asked.

"I used to be able to," he replied, "but about all I remember of it now is, 'To be or not to be—that is the question.'"—Judge.

A Toss Between Rivals

[Original.]

Ben Arnold and I were chums, and Dorothy Drummond was a witch. Given a pair of chums and a witch, and what is the invariable result? A quarrel between the chums. If this invariable result had happened in our case there would be nothing worth the telling. So many such affairs have taken place that they have ceased to be at least novel. Dorothy said she would have neither of us, declaring at the same time that we were more in love with each other than with any one else. I will admit that this helped Ben and me to keep from quarreling, though neither of us believed her.

We invented tests to force Dorothy to show her hand. Whether she was too smart for us or whether she had nothing but friendship for either of us we could not tell. At any rate not one of our tests gave us any information. We conspired to send her invitations for a drive to take place at the same hour of the same day, hoping she would show her preference by accepting one and declining the other. The little minx accepted both, asking us to call with an equipage capable of seating four persons, as she wished to take her grandmother. We were both furious, but dared not disobey. We tried to force her to choose one of us to sit beside her, but she declined to enter the carriage till all had been seated. She was the life of the party, which must have been a difficult role to play, for Ben and I sat "nursing our wrath to keep it warm." When we handed the two women out, Dorothy was profuse in her thanks for an invitation which had not been given.

One day I told Ben that there was but one way to force a decision between us. That was to tell Dorothy if she would have neither of us she must lose both of us. We would both "go west." Ben consented to this at once. He believed the girl loved him and when it came to the point of losing him would show her hand. I had no doubt that I was the fortunate man and, if a choice was inevitable, would be chosen. If you ask on what grounds we based these opinions I reply that each drew his inference from Dorothy's actions toward him. She gave me her photograph, exacting my promise not to tell Ben, and gave Ben her photograph, exacting his promise not to tell me. This sort of trick she played us in a great variety of ways. It was quite natural that each should deem himself the favored one.

One evening we called on Dorothy together and stated our proposition. In order that neither should have the advantage of being spokesman we were both spokesmen. Ben made a preliminary statement of the case, while I followed with the alternative. The little witch's eyes danced while we were doing so, though when the last words were spoken, "or we go west tomorrow," she looked at us inquiringly. Seeing determination in the countenance of each, she made a little gasp, then turned her back and walked to the window.

When she turned toward us there was a singular expression, or rather combination of expressions, on her face—something serious, something comical, and, above all, something extremely mischievous.

"I don't wish to drive two such fine fellows away," she said. "If I must choose between you I must make my choice by lot."

Going to an antique writing desk, she opened a little drawer and took out an old copper cent, such as has now gone completely out of circulation.

"It is a toss between you. I shall flip this cent. If it comes down tails" (she said this to Ben) "I will marry you and make you a devoted wife. If it comes down heads" (turning to me) "you are the one I shall love till death do us part."

"You give me tails. I am not your preference," said Ben in a frightened tone.

"Let us choose for ourselves," I said. "Give Ben first choice."

"You have neither of you anything to do with the method by which I come to my decision," she said. "It is I who make the choice, not you."

Tossing the cent in the air, giving it a flip at the same time with her thumb, it fell on the floor, rolled about awhile, struck the leg of a chair and was still. Ben and I both sprang forward, but Dorothy waved us back.

"One step and you both go west!" she exclaimed.

Picking up the coin, which we could both see she did carefully and fairly, she held it out to us without looking at it herself.

"Heads!" I cried.

Ben dropped into a chair. She went to him and took his hand, while a tear stood in her eye. I slipped out of the room, leaving her to comfort him.

Ben acted very nicely about the affair and took his disappointment remarkably well. This, Dorothy told me, was because I had secured her by chance and not by preference. Bright of Dorothy to foresee such a result and act accordingly, wasn't it? I would have preferred to be preferred, but I was so glad to get her that I swallowed that part of the matter. At any rate we were married and have lived very happily ever since.

We had been married but a few months when, hunting for a pair of sleeve links in a Japanese box, I came upon an old cent bearing date 1858. Being an old fashioned, enormous coin, I was reminded that I had not seen one of them since Dorothy "tossed" between Ben and me. Turning it from one side to the other, I was astonished. It was a double header.

First Race

In the 1906 Series for Quincy Cup Started Today

At the eleventh hour yesterday the Manchester was selected by the Manchester Yacht club to defend the Quincy Yacht Club cup won in 1900. The decision was made after two friendly trials yesterday with the Ellen.

THE YACHTS ENTERED.

The Manchester is owned by J. L. Bremer of the Manchester Yacht club. She was designed by Boardman and built by the Fenton Company; length over all 35.75 feet; length water line 18.95 feet; beam 7.13 feet; draft 5.35 feet; weight 4,085 pounds.

The Auk is owned by Charles F. Adams, 2d, of the Quincy Yacht club. She was also designed by Boardman but was built by Lawley; length over all 37.80 feet; length water line 19.92 feet; beam 6.87 feet; draft 5.17 feet; weight 4,060 pounds.

The Windrim Kid is owned by F. G. Macomber of the Corinthian Yacht club. She was designed by Small and built at Quincy at the Baker Yacht Basin; length over all 36.88 feet; length water line 19.44 feet; beam 6.90 feet; draft 5.04 feet; weight 4,067 pounds.

The Bonidrei is owned by G. W. Wightman of the Boston Yacht club. She was designed by Crowinshield and built by Graves; length over all 34.32 feet; length water line 19.82 feet; beam 6.97 feet; draft 5 feet; weight 4,040 pounds.

In the eight races of the Sonder Klasse at Marblehead last week all these yachts sailed. The Auk and Bonidrei were the only ones to finish first in a race, once each. The Auk also got two seconds. The Bonidrei also a third. The Windrim Kid a second and two thirds, while the best showing of the Manchester was two fourths. The positions of these four boats in the eight races were:

	RACES
	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th.	7th.	8th
Auk	11	10	8	3	1	2	13	2
Bonidrei	8	6	1	6	3	6	5	13
Windrim Kid	3	14	11	14	2	3	9	6
Manchester	4	11	13	13	7	4	12	12

TODAY'S RACE.

The Quincy Yacht club is well represented today at the first of the races for the cup. Some yachtsmen are at Marblehead on their yachts, while others went to Marblehead by train, and are following the races in the steam launch Madeline, which was chartered by the Quincy Yacht club for the week.

Rear Commodore E. W. Sheppard is chairman of the committee of arrangements on the part of the Quincy club and will be in attendance daily.

When the Daily Ledger went to press the four yachts were jockeying for best position at the start which was scheduled for 2 P. M. A boat must win three races to capture the cup.

The Daily Ledger expects to bulletin the result of todays race at the office this afternoon.

T. Dexter Pierce.

The funeral of Thomas Dexter Pierce was held Tuesday afternoon from the residence of his son at 479 Quincy avenue. The services were largely attended quite a delegation being present from Bent & Co., cracker manufactory. They brought a large floral pillow, from which there was a wide ribbon with the word "Shopmates." The services were conducted by Rev. A. A. Ellsworth. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

Bemis for Councillor.

Hon. A. F. Bemis recently senator from the Second Norfolk district, has announced himself a candidate for the Republican nomination for councillor in this district, to succeed Col. S. O. Bigney who declines a reelection. Mr. Bemis formerly resided at Foxboro, but is now a voter of Brookline.

Logan a Candidate.

Senator Edward L. Logan of Boston has issued a letter, announcing that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination in the 10th Congressional district now represented by Hon. W. S. McNary.

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS,
Owner and Skipper of the Auk.

Arawak Leads In Percentages

The Arawak and Marvel are having a close contest for the championship of the Cape catboats this year, and the Iris is not entirely out of the race. The Marvel leads in points, but the Arawak has the best percentage. The standing Aug. 19 was:

CLASS D. CAPE CAT BOATS.

	Points.	Per Cent.
Arawak, H. C. Nickerson	732.1	81.3
Marvel, I. M. Whittemore	703.5	79.3
Iris, F. F. Crane	756.5	75.6
Hustler, H. W. Robbins	714.6	71.4
Josephine, Morton Smith	459.4	57.4
Mellwood, L. O. Crocker	276.1	55.2
Argestes, G. H. Wilkins	249.5	41.5
Stranger, Dr. F. E. Dawes	195.7	32.6
C. C., G. H. Carey,	149.4	29.8
Dolly II, W. W. Arnold	139.9	27.9
Moondyne, Shaw Bros.	123.8	17.6
Ariel, G. M. Sheahan	69.2	13.8
Notorus, C. O. Whitney	60.0	12.0
Saltair, C. C. Collins	55.8	11.1
Gleamer, F. P. Hayward	30.8	6.1

In Class E, Q and T, the Tyro, Orestes and Teaser II will be easy winners of the championship. In Class I the Dorchen and Gertrude II are struggling for first place, and in Class X the Teaser and the Barbara are well to the front.

Ladies' Night Quincy Yacht Club

The three hundred or more who attended the musicale given at Quincy Yacht club house Tuesday evening had the pleasure of listening to one of the finest programs ever given in Quincy.

The concert was given by members of the Philharmonic Orchestral club of Boston under the direction of A. H. Handley, which includes these artists; Frank S. Morton, violin; Peter Damm, violin; Ralph Smalley, violincello; W. B. Mack, clarinet; A. H. Handley, cornet, and W. M. Travers, piano.

While a large part of those present occupied seats on the piazza and enjoyed the cool breeze which was very refreshing after an extremely warm day, some of the younger set could not resist the temptation to dance to the inspiring music.

The program given was as follows:

March,—"Rural Wedding," Soederman
Overture,—"William Tell," Rossini
Trio for violin, 'cello and piano,—Selected.
Selection,—"M'lle Modiste," Herbert
Valse lente,—"La Faute Des Roses," Rod. Berger
(a) Gavotte,—"Louis XIII," Lemoire
(b) Spanish dance,—"La Paloma," Hungarian Fantasia, Tobani
Excerpts from "The Man From Now," "The Tourist."
Selection,—"The Defender," Denee
March, "Romaine," Gounod

Nantasket Fares

Not Wholly Satisfactory Says Mayor Thompson

Fifteen-cent fare from City Square to Nantasket would benefit only the people of Wards One and Two of the city, and therefore the city generally is not pleased with the recommendation of the Railroad Commissioners. Mayor Thompson when interviewed said:

At a hearing given last year before the Railroad Commission on the petition of the Mayor and City Council to reduce fares between Quincy, Nantasket and Brockton, the commission refused to act in the Brockton matter as it was their intention to require the railway to rebuild a large part of its line between Quincy and Brockton, at once, and, in view of the large expenditure made necessary, they felt they could not ask for a reduction of rates as the fare-limit rate, so-called, and applicable to through passengers, against which we were protesting, had been approved and endorsed prior to our petition by the Railroad Commission.

The Nantasket Beach matter was looked upon with some degree of favor, but action thereon would be postponed until the opening of the present season.

The Board did not act before its departure for Europe this year, and it is only now, after repeated urging, they have decided to recommend that the rate from Quincy Square to Nantasket be fifteen cents.

I consider this not wholly satisfactory, failing as it does to meet the public demand. The fifteen cent rate should apply to the whole city to be of any material value.

This decision shows me we are considered simply as a small part of the Old Colony Railway system, and treated on the basis of revenue income as a fractional part of the system as a whole.

In my opinion, the city should, in the future, obtain concessions before granting valuable rights in the public streets.

Arrested in Boston.

Freeman S. Gray, a well known East Milton character, has been at his old tricks again, and as usual wound up by getting arrested.

This time it was a horse and buggy that he purloined. He went to James S. Gallagher's stable on Tuesday afternoon and told the man in charge that he wanted a horse and buggy to meet Mr. Gallagher at the depot.

Gray then drove to Boston where he was later arrested. When apprehended he was in a bar room, having left the buggy standing in the street. Officer Shields and a Boston officer stood outside watching Gray. When he came out they placed him under arrest. Officer Shields then drove the team and Gray to Milton.

Engine House Damaged by Fire

The alarm from Box 41 at 9.45 Tuesday night called the department to a brisk fire in the engine house at the Field & Wild quarry off Granite street. When the department arrived the roof of the building was blazing fiercely and it looked as if it was doomed.

The firemen got at work quickly, however, and soon had the fire extinguished. It started over the boiler, and an over heated boiler was probably the cause. The watchman was the first to discover the fire and give the alarm.

From the roof of the boiler house the fire spread to the roof of the engine house. The roof of these two buildings were burned off, but the firemen were able to keep the flames from the machinery, which was damaged little, other than by water. Chief Litchfield estimates the loss at $300.

Later the services of a chemical were required to put out a small fire which had smouldered under the shingles on the roof.

MILTON.

J. W. Sweeney, assistant postmaster at East Milton has returned from a two weeks' trip to Peaks Island, Maine.

Letter Carrier L. W. Minot has returned from his vacation.

Rev. Theodore I. Reese has gone to Maine where he will camp for three weeks.

William Hodges and James Parks have returned from Maine, where they have been camping for two weeks.

—The estimated number of cantaloupes shipped from the famous Rocky Ford district in Colorado last season is 12-600,000. Seven hundred cars were sent out, being an increase of 108 cars over the previous season.

Locals and City Brevities

Another Quincy cup race tomorrow.

The public schools will open two weeks from next Monday.

Miss Martha Hanson has gone to Maine for a month's visit.

Miss Marion E. Teasdale of West Quincy has gone to Hingham for a two weeks' visit.

Several of the estates bounded by Copeland, Cross and Miller streets are being connected with the public sewer.

The two companies at the Wollaston fire station will give an exhibition Thursday evening at 6.30.

The local ice dealers report a scarcity of ice, and predict that the price is sure to advance, probably before the first of September.

Miss Margaret Stewart, the popular cashier of Miller's market, is enjoying a two weeks' sojourn at her home in Bath, Maine.

Mrs. Michael Walker of Dorchester, accompanied by her cousin Miss Jennie MacGillvray of Cambridge, are the guests for a few days of Charles W. Smith, Nelson street.

The contractor of the boulevard at West Quincy has commenced work laying a drain through the Willard school yard, and the section of the boulevard there is being graded.

Among those who took the oath of office as members of the Massachusetts bar before Justice Loring of the Supreme court on Tuesday was Henry Edwards of School street, who received the degree of Bachelor of Law from Boston University last June.

John Adams Commandery, Knights of Malta, will have their annual shore dinner at Wade's hotel, Nantasket Point, Saturday, Aug. 25. Committee of arrangements George H. Gardner, George H. Jaques, Frank R. Melville and George Ruxton.

MAGNIFICENT CROP YEAR.

New York Central Vice President Sees Fine Business For Railroads.

W. C. Brown, senior vice president and acting president of the New York Central system, who recently returned from a western trip of 3,000 miles in the wheat and corn belts, visited Indiana, Illinois, Missouri and Iowa and prepared special and careful reports on the conditions prevailing in Kansas and Nebraska, says the New York Sun. His view is that the crops in all these states are remarkable both as to quantity and quality.

"I believe," he said, "that the United States this year will harvest a larger quantity of grain of all sorts than ever before and will market it at a better price, considering the size of the crops.

"The wheat crop in those six states, in which I have personally made investigation, will be magnificent. In each instance it will be of a remarkable size and the quality will be the best that I have ever seen. Kansas this year is going to produce a wheat crop of about 90,000,000 bushels. Last year it produced 87,000,000 bussels, but that will easily be surpassed this year, judging from a careful estimate by counties which was based in part on thrashing returns.

"The corn crop is in splendid condition. It has had plenty of moisture, and, given a month or so of good warm weather, it will turn out exceptionally well. In Kansas and Nebraska a corn crop on as large a scale as ever before is practically assured. Iowa will produce 350,000,000 bushels of corn and possibly 355,000,000 bushels. In Missouri, with the exception of four counties in the northeast, all the counties will have great corn crops. With the splendid corn prospects so near realization the railroads both in the east and west can look forward to a year of splendid business."

WILL BACK PALMA

United States Closely Watching the Cuban Revolution

IT WILL BE SHORT-LIVED

Has Received About All the Accessions It Will Be Likely to Gain--Public Confidence Is Strengthened by Troops

Washington, Aug. 22.—The United States will not permit the government in Cuba to be overturned. Should the insurrection assume formidable proportions troops will be sent to the island to assist the government in quelling it. The state department is disposed to believe that the present reign of lawlessness will be shortlived, and that President Palma will be able to cope with it.

No steps toward rendering assistance will be taken unless Mr. Sleeper, the American charge of affairs, shall notify the department that the insurrection threatens the stability of the government. This government has, through its representatives, been watching developments in the island closely for several months. It knew several weeks ago that an insurrection was being planned, but its information all along has been that the uprising would not become a serious menace to the government.

But little definite information has been received with reference to the cause of the insurrection. Government officials are disposed to say that it is the outgrowth of the southern tendency to revolt. Within the last few months many complaints of the Palma administration have been received at the state department. One of the chief complaints is that the agreement under the Platt amendment to complete and maintain a sanitary system has not been carried out.

Complainants have been writing asking this government to force the Palma administration to live up to the spirit of the Platt amendment. It is thought that some of the men who are behind the present insurrection may have inspired the complaints.

Unconfirmed Rumors of Fights

Havana, Aug. 22.—The indications are that the revolution in western Cuba already has practically reached its maximum. The government and people generally believe the movement has received about all the accessions it will be likely to gain.

The promptness of the government in arresting suspected leaders and plotters in Havana and elsewhere and in sending reinforcements to the disturbed districts has had an excellent effect in strengthening public confidence and overawing sympathizers with the movement.

On the other hand, peaceable inhabitants of the cities of Pinar del Rio, Consolacion del Suro, San Juan del Martinez and other western towns are in hourly apprehension of the attack and occupation of those places. The fact that probably 1000 insurgents are attempting to concentrate in the province of Pinar del Rio upon towns inadequately guarded by small detachments of rural guards, mostly inexperienced in warfare, makes the situation grave.

There have been many rumors of fights at various points in the province of Pinar del Rio, but they have not been confirmed by government or press dispatches. However, night attacks on the city of Pinar del Rio and other towns continue to be regarded as a probability. The government wires are working freely. The guard at Pinar del Rio, Consolacion del Sur and San Juan del Martinez have received reinforcements of 200 troops. The loyal citizens are well equipped to repel invasions.

There was some fighting yesterday in Havana province and more is hourly expected. A detachment of rural guards encountered a portion of Bandera's band, at which shots were exchanged at close range. One insurgent was killed and the others scattered.

For Final Peace Arrangements

San Jose, C. R., Aug. 22.—The government of Costa Rica recently extended formal invitations to Guatemala, Salvador and Honduras to meet here, in accordance with the convention recently signed on board the United States cruiser Marblehead, and the Costa Rican independence day, Sept. 15, was suggested as the date for the meeting. The three republics mentioned cordially accepted the invitation.

Police Found Much Booty

New York, Aug. 22.—Henry W. Swandt, a distributing clerk in the parcel department at the general postoffice, was arrested last night on a charge of embezzlement from the mails. A search of Swandt's rooms, the police say, resulted in the discovery of alleged stolen property estimated to be worth nearly $5000, which included watches and jewelry.

Falling Rock Killed Seven Men

Salome-Botello, Mex., Aug. 22.—Seven workmen were killed here in a big rock quarry being operated by the National Railroad of Mexico. An unusually heavy blast of powder buried the men beneath a heap of stone.

Dan Patch Breaks a Record

Galesburg, Ills., Aug. 22.—Dan Patch broke the pacing record for Illinois by making an exhibition mile in 1:57 3-4. He went the third quarter in 26½ seconds.

Wrongs in Congo Free State

London, Aug. 22.—Forty British missionaries have addressed an appeal to Foreign Minister Grey for the British government's immediate assumption of consular jurisdiction in the Congo Free State in order to protect British subjects there. The missionaries say that it is almost impossible to obtain independent witnesses in certain cases, owing to the facilities of the Congo judiciary to intimidate witnesses.

Wilson Inspects Packing Plants

Omaha, Aug. 22.—Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture, unattended, arrived at a local hotel and without registering or disclosing his identity drove alone to the packing plants in South Omaha. After a short inspection of several of the plants the secretary again returned to the city, saying: "I have inspected all the packing plants and found them in good condition."

Bound to Lynch Someone

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 22.—While the Polk county authorities were bringing Will Lawrence, a negro, to Tampa last night, to prevent his being lynched, a mob at Mulberry, also in Polk county, hanged John Bapes, a negro, and riddled his body with bullets. Bapes attempted to kill a white man. Lawrence was charged with an attempted criminal assault on a white woman.

Gas Caused Mine Explosion

Mahanoy City, Pa., Aug. 22.—By an explosion of gas in the Vulcan colliery Charles Stankus and John Maruka were killed instantly, five persons probably were fatally injured and about a dozen others were overcome by afterdamp. The fourth lift of the mine was completely wrecked. Superintendent Jones says that he cannot account for the explosion.

Falling Ashes Scared Neapolitans

Naples, Aug. 22.—A violent storm caused thick clouds of ashes from Mount Vesuvius to fall over Naples, causing great alarm among the inhabitants, who feared another eruption of the volcano. Their fears were calmed on the receipt of a telegram from the observatory on Vesuvius, saying that the latter was perfectly calm.

Will Not Permit Agitation

Odessa, Aug. 22.—It is authoritatively stated that the government contemplates sweeping changes in the governorships of southern and southwestern Russia in consequence of the alarming increase of anarchy. The new governors will be fully empowered to carry out the policy of merciless repression of agitation.

Regiment Commander Killed

Samara, Aug. 22.—The commander of the Borissov regiment was attacked and killed at his residence here. The murderers escaped, after saturating the body of their victim with methylated alcohol and setting it on fire.

NEWS IN BRIEF

MAY EXCEED 3000

Number of Killed In Earthquake Not Definitely Known

LOSSES ARE $100,000,000

Sailors From Chilean Fleet Did Good Work at Valparaiso--Papers Had Published Prognostigation of Catastrophe

Valparaiso, Aug. 22.—The loss of life by the earthquake of Thursday, Aug. 16, probably will not be short of 3000, while the property destroyed is estimated at $100,000,000 and possibly is far in excess of that sum.

Order is being maintained with the utmost severity by the military, police and armed citizens' patrols, who are empowered to shoot looters on the spot. The authorities are showing the utmost energy in the protection of property.

With the first terrible shock of the earthquake buildings collapsed, their walls falling with a tremendous noise. The inmates in many cases were unable to escape. The shock was followed almost immediately by a fierce storm, the wind prostrating walls that had been weakened by the earthquake, and these broke trolley wires, which flashed incessantly. The second shock was even heavier than the first.

Five minutes afterward fires started in every direction, and immediately the whole town, which had been momentarily in darkness, was illuminated with the lurid splendor of gigantic flames.

The authorities of Valparaiso have taken over the feeding of the people, and provisions are being brought in from places that were not destroyed.

Slight earthquake shocks are continuing. The people have not yet returned to their homes, but are sleeping on the surrounding hills and in the streets and squares. The fires have all been extinguished. More than 100 men taken in the act of commiting robberies have been shot.

The opportune arrival of the Chilean fleet which steamed into the Valparaiso harbor to be here to welcome Secretary of State Root helped to save the situation. As in San Francisco, the sailors from the warships were landed and placed in charge of the city pending the arrival of the government troops. They patrolled the waterfront and guarded the wrecked banks and other buildings containing valuables.

A strange fact in connection with the earthquake is that the daily papers here published a prognostication of the catastrophe several hours in advance of the first shocks. The first shock came in the midst of a terrific rainstorm, at 7:50 o'clock on Thursday evening. A few minutes later a second shock of almost equal violence completed the work of destruction. In darkness the panic-stricken people fled through the streets, which were choked with heaps of debris. Since that time more than 150 tremors of lesser violence have shaken Valparaiso.

It is evident that Valparaiso is the centre of the seismic disturbances, most of the destruction among the smaller cities having occurred within 100 miles of this place. While the destruction was considerable at the capital city of Santiago, 75 miles to the south, that city suffered far less than Valparaiso.

The greatest force of the shock here seemed to centre around the commercial district where the banks are situated. Most of the buildings there were either demolished or badly damaged. Practically the whole of the eastern two-thirds of the city also is destroyed.

A strong wind which came up from the south on Saturday spread the fires which were raging throughout the eastern part of the city, completing the destruction of the residence district. Probably not more than 20 percent of the buildings in the city have been spared from the effects of the fire and the earthquake shocks.

The banks at Valparaiso are mostly safe and the damage to the commercial centre is not serious, but the populous quarter has been completely wrecked. All railway and street car traffic in this vicinity has been interrupted. On Aug. 19 there was a strong convulsion at Valparaiso, which produced a further panic.

Suggests Futher Earthquakes

Washington, Aug. 22.—The backbone of the American continent has meningitis, according to Dr. C. W. Hayes, chief geologist of the geological survey and one of the world's experts in seismology. That was the way Hayes put it as he summarized an explanation of scientific phases and showed the relation of the recent San Francisco to the Chilean earthquake horror. Hayes' explanation of what has happened in the last few months of remarkable seismic activity is, by inference, also a prediction of more troubles in future. Indeed, he went further than merely to show the possibility of further disturbances; he suggested the probability of them, and where they would be most likely to take place. If Hayes' reasoning is good, the period of extreme seismic activity may be regarded as most likely to bring outbreaks in that region of the American Pacific mountain ranges not yet affected; that is, along that section of the Pacific coast mountains between Chile and California. Peru, Ecuador and Mexico would, by this reasoning, be next in line for troubles.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

BOTH HELD FOR TRIAL

Brother and Sister Accused of Insurance Irregularities

Boston, Aug. 22.—"We are conducting a rigid investigation into whatever dealings Griffin or Mrs. Tennyson may have had with insurance companies in the past," said Attorney Morse in discussing the complaint of alleged forgery of an insurance application entered by the New York Life Insurance company against Mrs. Mary A. Tennyson and her brother, Dennis Griffin, of 268 Commercial street.

"Policies taken out in various concerns under the name of Dennis Griffin are being probed in an effort to learn whether they relate to the man now under arrest."

Charged with being accessories before and after the fact in the forging of the name of Dennis Griffin to one application for a $3000 policy, Mrs. Tennyson and Griffin pleaded not guilty in the police court and were held for trial on Aug. 23.

It is alleged that Thomas Nelson, a man of vigorous health, impersonated Griffin, who is said to be dying of consumption. Meanwhile Nelson is cruising the high seas.

Mrs. Griffin conducts a lodging house at her Commercial street abode, and Nelson is said to have been intimately acquainted with her. When he returns the police expect to gain possession of startling evidence.

Great Apple Crop Promised

Boston, Aug. 22.—A canvass made by the Boston Chamber of Commerce in regard to the apple crop in the New England states for the year 1906 is reported to have found the fall varieties in excess of last year. The winter varieties do not promise to be quite so plentiful. Reports also from all sections of this country and Canada show that the apple crop this year will be greatly in excess of any recent year and of an exceptionally fine quality.

Almost a Curiosity

Gloucester, Mass., Aug. 22.—Schooner Francis J. O'Hara brought two tile fish caught 38 miles southeast of George's north shoal. The tile fish are the first that have been brought in this year. A number of years ago a large quantity of these fish, which are extremely palatable, appeared in great numbers to the southeast of the Nantucket shoals. Some unknown foe attacked the fish and they were slaughtered by millions.

Claims Reason Is Restored

Hartford, Aug. 22.—Papers have been served on state officials in the move to have Daniel J. Curtiss released from the Connecticut hospital for the insane. Curtiss was committed to the hospital last March for attempting to shoot L. F. Heublein of this city, it having developed during the trial that his mind was affected. It is now alleged that Curtiss has recovered his reason.

Accused of Heavy Larceny

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 22.—Charged with grand larceny, Frederick Willard, aged 33 years, was arrested at his home here last night. The complainant is Abraham Solomon, manager for A. Solomon & Co., New York, for which firm, it is alleged, Willard was formerly bookkeeper and confidential clerk. Willard is accused of systematically stealing between $8000 and $10,000.

Embers Set Steamer Afire

Millinocket, Me., Aug. 22.—The steamer reported burned by the forest fire in the vicinity of Norcross was the Gypsie, owned by the Norcross Transportation company. It caught fire from flying embers. Forest fires which have been burning for a week near Joe Mary mountain do not seem to make much headway and the damage has not been heavy.

Two More Mills Advance Wages

Adams, Mass., Aug. 22.—A 5 percent increase in wages will be made this week at the cotton warp manufacturing mills of Adams Bros. and W. C. Plunkett & Sons, both of this town. With this increase all of the cotton mills in this town will have advanced wages 5 percent during the past two weeks.

Charged With Embezzlement

Boston, Aug. 22.—Walter C. Tafton of Everett, bookkeeper for C. F. Hovey & Co., dry goods dealers of this city, was arrested last night on a charge of embezzling money from the firm. The exact amount of the alleged shortage is not yet known. Experts are now working on his books.

Fought Postoffice Inspectors

Boston, Aug. 22.—Francis B. Conway, a clerk in the Back Bay postal station, was arrested on Clarendon street after a desperate chase early this morning on a charge of stealing letters containing money. The man was captured after he had fought two postoffice inspectors.

Playhouse Struck by Lightning

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 22.—During a severe shower lightning struck the Casino on the ocean pier. Many persons who were attending a theatrical performance there were showered with falling splinters, but no one was injured.

Police Implicated In Robbery

Moscow, Aug. 22.—It is believed here that Belenzoff, the leader of the men who robbed the Credit Mutual bank here of over $400,000 and who escaped from custody while being conveyed from Switzerland to Moscow for trial, was deliberately allowed to escape at the instigation of a high police authority, owing to fear that Belenzoff would make revelations regarding the complicity of the police of this city in the robbery.

SULLIVAN STAYS

Attempt to Oust Him From National Committee Fails

BRYAN'S WISH IS IGNORED

Did Not Want Illinois Democrats' Endorsement Unless Sullivan Was Repudiated, but He Is Endorsed After a Wrangle

Peoria, Ills., Aug. 22.—By a vote of 1038 to 570, the Democratic state convention placed upon the table the request of W. J. Bryan for the resignation of Roger Sullivan from the national committee. Despite the fact that Bryan had declared that he did not wish to be endorsed unless Sullivan was repudiated, the convention declared him to be the one and only man capable of leading the Democratic party to victory in 1908.

The endorsement of Bryan and the tabling of the motion calling for the resignation of Sullivan came at the close of a most exciting session of the convention, in which there were several fights and throughout which confusion reigned supreme. The committee on resolutions declined to report a plank calling for the resignation of Sullivan and the debate followed upon a motion made in the convention by Judge Thompson of Jacksonville, calling for Sullivan's resignation.

It had been agreed that each side should have 45 minutes in which to present its side of the case and Thompson was the first advocate of the cause of Bryan. He aroused the hostility of Sullivan's friends by the unsparing manner in which he dwelt upon the last Democratic convention at Springfield. He strode up and down the platform, his face white with wrath and his form shaking with the intensity of his feelings. His caustic criticisms finally lost him the ear of the convention and he might never have been able to conclude his speech if Sullivan had not personally requested quiet.

Sullivan, who followed Thompson, and who was the first speaker in his own behalf, declared that the ear of Bryan had been poisoned against him and the demand for his resignation sprang from his personal enemies.

Great feeling was displayed on both sides during the debate, and at times personalities of a disagreeable character were made by various speakers. The end came on a motion that the request for the resignation of Sullivan be laid on the table. Feeling during the rollcall on this proposition ran very high.

The platform demands the revision of the present tariff laws, the use of large campaign funds for the "corruption of the electors" is denounced and the passage of a law preventing contributions to campaign funds by insurance companies is urged. The recent congress is denounced for "its surrender to the meat trust, railroads and the Standard Oil company."

Jerome Comes Back at Murphy

New York, Aug. 22.—A statement by Charles F. Murphy that he found no sentiment in Tammany Hall for Jerome as a prospective nominee of the Democratic party for governor, but that, on the contrary he found plenty of sentiment for Hearst, brought a quick response from Jerome. Murphy had declared that the Tammany delegation to Buffalo undoubtedly would be bound by the unit rule and that Tammany delegations usually were guided by the sentiment of the organization.

In a reply to Murphy, Jerome declares it was no surprise to him to find Murphy practically declaring for Hearst, and among other things he says:

"'Birds of a feather flock together' and when a person 'intellectually sterile, socially vulgar and morally obtuse,' insults the decent people of the state, irrespective of party, by seeking the nomination of a political party by advancing dollars and not ideas, and by methods akin to those of the blackmailer, no thinking man could doubt where Murphy could be found.

"I should fear I had lost all my ideals if I found men of this type supporting me, except under absolute compulsion. If I ever come to have any influence in the Democratic party it will be used to drive out of it base bosses of this type.

"The fight is not to destroy parties. Parties are essential to the proper working of our political institutions. The fight is to free the parties from just such men as Murphy; to deprive them of their control of the executive machinery, to restore it to the discharge of the functions for which it was created."

A Five-Cornered Contest

Atlanta, Aug. 22.—What has been probably the most bitterly fought political campaign in the history of Georgia ends today with the state Democratic primaries. Owing to the large predominance of the Democratic vote in the state the decision will be equivalent to an election. Five candidates for governor are in the field. They are Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution; Hoke Smith, formerly secretary of the interior; J. M. Estill, editor of the Savannah Morning News; Richard B. Russell of Jackson county, and James M. Smith, millionaire land owner and farmer.

A Statement From Hearst

New York, Aug. 22.—W. R. Hearst last night gave out a statement in which he said: "I am absolutely and unalterably opposed to the Murphys and the McCarrens and also to the Sullivans and the McClellans and the kind of politics that they all represent. I am opposed to boss rule in politics. I am opposed to corporation control of parties through machines, and the fact that a boss or a machine declares for me does not alter my attitude in any particular. I am also opposed to the Ryans and Belmonts and their Jeromes in politics; to the corrupt use of wealth to debauch the ballot and to the purchase of puppets in office."

Formal Launch of Cannon Boom

Springfield, Ills., Aug. 22.—A treasurer of state, superintendent of public instruction and four trustees of the state university were nominated by the Republicans of Illinois in a convention which was marked by harmony and good feeling. The presidential boom of Joseph G. Cannon for 1908 was given an enthusiastic endorsement by the convention. The convention unanimously endorsed Senator Cullom. Outside of the endorsement of Cannon for president and Cullom for re-election, there was little of general interest in the proceedings. The fight for state treasurer was the most spirited of the convention, but John F. Smulski won easily on the second ballot. The resolutions contain an endorsement of President Roosevelt's administration, of Illinois' senators and representatives in congress and of the administration of Governor Dineen.

Satisfied With Second Place

Boston, Aug. 22.—Henry M. Whitney, who recently announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor, gave out a statement last night, when advised of the rumor that former Governor Douglas had consented to again become a candidate for the office, saying that he would wish to withdraw in favor of Douglas and seek the second place, that of lieutenant governor, on the party ticket.

Not Seeking the Nomination

Monument Beach, Mass., Aug. 22.—Ex-Governor Douglas authorizes the statement that he will neither deny nor affirm the report that he is willing to become the Democratic candidate for governor, provided he did not have to make a contest for the delegates, and that, as two other men are contending for the nomination, he would consider it undignified to enter any contest.

Tammany Will Be Well Represented

New York, Aug. 22.—The tickets to the reception to William J. Bryan on Aug. 30, as allotted to the various state delegations, have been issued by the reception committee. These tickets are for reserved seats and number about 2500. Tammany Hall will receive 7500 tickets, but they do not entitle the holders to reserved seats.

Brownsville Loses Military Post

Washington, Aug. 22.—The negro federal troops have been ordered out of Texas. Instead of going to Fort Ringgold, which is about 100 miles from Fort Brown, the negro battalion of the Twenty-fifth infantry has been ordered to Fort Reno, Okla. By direction of the president General Bell will make a thorough investigation of the whole Brownsville affair and report to the president. Fort Brown is to be abandoned.

Peasants Overpowered Police

Tsaritsyn, Russia, Aug. 22.—A divinity student named Ilyin, who was arrested for activity in the revolutionary propaganda among the peasantry, was on a train when a mob of 7000 peasants arrived and threatened to destroy the station and kill the chief of police unless he released Ilyin. This was done, and the peasants bore off Ilyin on their shoulders.

Deal Involving $50,000,000

Buffalo, Aug. 22.—President Hubbel of the Consolidated Telephone company confirms a report that the Consolidated has bought from the Great Eastern Telephone company the latter's franchise to maintain and operate telephone, telegraph lines and electric lights in New York city. The amount paid is said to be $50,000,000.

Pugilist Corbett In Court

Jamaica, L. I., Aug. 22.—James J. Corbett, the pugilist, was put under $500 bonds to keep the peace by Judge Fleming in court here. Corbett was accused by Joseph Graul, a milkman, with threatening to do him harm. It was stated that Corbett and Graul quarreled because of the milkman's treatment of Corbett's dog.

Forest Fires Checked

St. John, Aug. 22.—Dispatches tell of welcome thunder showers which will do much to stay the ravaging forest fires. Great damage, however, has already been done. The fires on the Miramichi are reported to be the worst in years, and a long and heavy rain will be necessary to quench them.

Steamship May Not Be Saved

Honolulu, Aug. 22.—The condition of the stranded steamship Manchuria is said to be more serious than at any time since she stranded. A proposition is now being considered to dredge a channel from where the Manchuria now lies to deep water.

Denial of Island's Disappearance

New York, Aug. 22.—There is no truth in the report that a steamship has brought to Lima, Peru, a report that the earthquake wiped out the Island of Juan Fernandez.

BOSTON LETTER.

All Reports Show Splendid Business Conditions.

JAMES MELLEN'S DISINFECTANT.

Quincy Has Trouble With His Record In Bryan Year.

It is nearly time for fervid Democratic orators to begin to tell the country and the state that unless there is a change of administration we shall soon be on the rocks. For a great many years this wail of woe has been sounded in the ears of the people by Democrats anxious to get into office or engaged in attempts to further their own private interests.

It is easy to fool the people at times, but a somewhat awkward task to endeavor to fly in the face of apparent facts vouched for by the highest authority. All through the country the thrill of prosperity pervades the industrial and financial fabric. R. G. Dun's weekly review of trade Saturday declared that each week brings a new highwater mark in some department of business or trade, and the net result is uniformly better than for the corresponding week in any previous year. Abundant crops and an oversold steel market engender sentiments of confidence that make the outlook great for a continuance of present prosperous business conditions. The improvement in cotton goods is pronounced

In Massachusetts, as everywhere else, the shoe industry is enjoying the very height of prosperity. Leading manufacturers have sufficient orders on hand to maintain full time until work begins on spring contracts. In addition to that it is quite evident that business all over the country is much better than last year, as the number of failures have decreased 25 percent.

The Republican party has been in undisputed control of the national government for nearly 10 years and during that time prosperity has been constant.

It is an extremely significant fact that almost invariably Republican rule has brought great prosperity, while Democratic control of the nation has been almost invariably accompanied by disaster to business, manufacturing and finance. It would almost seem as if Democrats would finally become extremely weary of attempting to create an impression that greater prosperity would accrue in trusting the government to their charge. History refutes such a claim in unmistakable language.

Fitzgerald and Metropolitan Boston.

Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston has again broken loose in a tirade against the state government on the score of unjust burdens placed upon the city of Boston. Year after year that is what Democratic mayors in Boston have been doing, and year after year they have been going up to the legislature on Beacon Hill and importuning the legislature to impose still greater burdens upon the city of Boston. Such tactics are disgusting in the extreme.

It looks as if someone at city hall would rather spend the money of the city in the purchase of cheap disinfectants at large prices, than in paying for water systems, sewerage systems, or anything else really useful to the citizens of the metropolis. The grafters get no percentage out of the money paid to the state in taxes, but it is apparent that a large percentage of the money spent by the city for municipal purposes is diverted into the pockets of private parties. Boston tax-payers can have a genuine satisfaction in knowing that so much of the amount as they pay annually in state taxes goes for value received, while that part of their taxes devoted to municipal expenditures would have to be traced by a detective agency in order to make sure what had become of it.

James H. Mellen of Worcester, that ardent reformer from the heart of the commonwealth, has gone into the chemical business. His company has sold to the city of Boston a number of tons of a disinfectant which has been purchased by the street department, for what particular use it does not appear. For this compound Mr. Mellen charges and receives $50 a ton. The Boston Journal, scenting a job, sent a sample of the compound to a chemist for analysis. This chemist reported that it was composed largely of slacked lime and salt.

Fitzgerald and Mellen.

Some time ago Mr. Mellen was a red-hot Moran follower and he was apparently never weary of singing the praises of the district attorney. For some weeks now he has been as silent as the Sphinx itself on this subject and his friends are wondering whether there is any connection between the granting of favors to him by the Fitzgerald administration and his sudden silence on the subject of the governorship.

It is true that Mayor Fitzgerald had not up to that time himself declared either for Whitney or Moran, but it was well known that all the forces of the city administration were being used to boom Whitney and bang Moran. It is said on the part of Fitzgerald's friends that in due time he will declare himself for one or the other of the candidates, but that this will not be until he has definitely decided in his own mind which is to be the winner of the September caucuses.

Former Mayor Quincy, now chairman of the Democratic state committee, is having plenty to do in clearing up his position in regard to the presidential campaigns of 1896 and 1900. John B. Moran is following him up pretty closely and charging that he was not in favor of Bryan for president in 1900, although now posing as the head and front of the Bryan bandwagon of the present day.

There is no disguising the fact that Mr. Quincy was not an ardent Bryan man during either the 1896 or the 1900 campaign. He undoubtedly hoped in both years to see the Democratic candidate for president defeated, although he was somewhat desirous in 1900 of being regarded as regular and so wished to vote for Bryan for that reason only. It is not very strange that George Fred Williams and other men, who were ardently for Bryan both times he ran for president, should object to seeing Josiah push himself to the front of the Bryan procession in 1906, and try to force men who have been for Bryan through thick and thin to take a rear position.

System Here, a Mob There.

There is every indication today that the Whitney boom for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination is being systematically organized throughout the state, and this organization is having a perceptible effect. The Moran movement has been very strong among the rank and file of the Democracy, but there have been comparatively few organizers at work. The Whitney movement is a fine piece of organization, while the movement for Moran is a disorganized mob. This is the weakness which threatens the Moran following. There is no doubt in the minds of candid observers that a large majority of the Democratic masses is for Moran, but he has no organization, and the Moran forces under the fire of the splendid organization of the Whitney element is fast disintegrating. Rapid and thorough organization all over the state is the only thing that will save Moran, and it is extremely doubtful if it is not now too late to do this in competition with the disciplined forces engaged in organizing the Whitney following.

Guild's Action Bears Fruit.

The action of Governor Guild in the matter of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad holding trolley lines contrary to what is understood to be the law, has borne immediate fruit. That road has transferred its holdings in New England trolley lines to a voluntary association known as the New England Security and Investment company. This is a holding company and from present indications the New Haven has complied with the law as understood by the governor technically, but there is every indication that the new company is merely a stalking-horse for the New Haven. In other words, technically the New Haven road does not now control these trolley lines, but they are under the control of a corporation created for that purpose in order to clear the law. This corporation seems to be the creature of the New Haven road, and the actual control of the trolley lines has apparently not changed.

It is apparent that the step taken by the New Haven road is technically legal and so long as the law remains as it is at present, it is evident that nothing further can be done. There are some who believe the legislature should be called upon next year to wipe out the law permitting the creation of voluntary associations. If this should come about it would cause a number of important changes. The Massachusetts Electric companies is a voluntary association formed to take over and control a number of central and eastern Massachusetts trolley lines. The Old Colony and the Boston and Northern systems are both included in it. There would undoubtedly be a bitter fight against any legislation to wipe out these voluntary associations.

STAG LEGENDS.

Ancient Stories of the Animal's Antipathy to Snakes.

There is no beast in the world to which more legendary virtues are attributed than the stag, partly owing to the tale of St. Hubert, partly to a supposed antipathy of stags toward serpents, partly to a peculiar mass of gristle in the shape of a cross which is found in the animal's heart. A whole book might be written on the miraculous power of the heart and the efficacy of different parts of him against the troubles of this evil world. Fouilloux, in the sixteenth century, gives a long list, and Master Robert Topsel fills page upon page with them, but our author in his solid English fashion is chary of accepting such stories.

Men say, he admits, that when a stag is right old he beateth a serpent with his foot till she be wroth, and then eateth her, and then goeth to drink, and then runneth hither and thither till the water and venom be meddled together, and maketh him cast all his evil humors that he had in his body, and maketh his flesh come all anew. But, he adds, with the solemnity of Herodotus himself, "Thereof make I none affirmation." And this phrase occurs again and again, for the Comte de Foix is too great and noble a hunter that any assertion of his should be laughed at.—Macmillan's Magazine.

The Opinion She Sought.

"Well, what do you think of my new hat?" she asked.

"Do you want a candid opinion?" he questioned.

"Heavens, no!" she replied. "Say something nice."—New York Press.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of

MARTIN H. COOK,

late of Quincy, in said County, deceased:

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Philip D. Cook and Mary A. Cook, both of said Quincy, who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bonds.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1906, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, JAMES H. FLINT, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fourteenth day of August, in the year one thousand nine hundred and six.

J. R. McCOOLE, Ass't. Register.

Fire at Braintree.

The alarm from Box 34 at Braintree at 2.45 this morning was for a fire in the house of C. Sumner Hollis at 61 Cherry street in the vicinity of the Kennel clubhouse. The fire started from some unknown cause in the shed and was confined to the rear of the house. The loss was nearly $1,000 which is covered by insurance in the Hingham Mutual.

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles E. Jameson was fined $2.90 for threatening assault at Milton, and put under bonds to keep the peace for two months.

Freeman S. Gray was arraigned for taking a horse and buggy from James S. Gallagher at Milton, without the owner's consent. He was sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

Fred C. Munroe was arraigned for larceny at Quincy. Case placed on file on payment of costs amounting to $4.

The case of George Tate of Quincy, who was bailed to appear in court this morning for cruelty to a horse was called, and he was defaulted.

—Following the story that the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad has disposed of all its Massachusetts trolley stock to a new voluntary association, comes the story from Leominster that agents of the railroad are trying to secure control of the Fitchburg and Leominster Street Railway system, one of the largest and best paying trolley lines in central Massachusetts.

—Mrs. Johanna Brown, Worcester, was 104 years old on Saturday, and to those who congratulated her and wished her a longer life, she said: "Don't wish me another birthday. I've lived already too long. I'm so tired, I'll be glad to go at any time. I think I've had my share of life. People pity those who die young, but there is such a thing as too long a life."

—After a trial of a year of oil fuel on the torpedo boat Gwine, the officer in command of the reserve torpedo flotilla has recommended to the Navy Department that the Gwine be fitted to burn coal instead of petroleum. The best speed obtainable with oil fuel on the Gwine was about 16 one-half knots, while the sister boat, the Talbot, burnine coal, obtained 20 knots.

—Andrew Carnegie has written from Skibo Castle to say that he has no interest financial or otherwise, in a recently organized trust company that bears his name. Mr. Carnegie's denial was provoked by statements that he was interested in the company.

—In the matter of women's clubs London is undoubtedly leading the world. There was not a single institution of the kind there 21 years ago, but now there is a total membership in women's clubs of over 20,000.

—The weight of telegraph wires is sometimes increased 900 per cent. by ice forming on them.

—The tax rate of Wakefield is $20.80, an increase from $19.60.

Between Two Fires

An Earthquake Expected In Quincy On Saturday

At the two extremities of Quincy on Saturday, there will be large gatherings of Boston Republicans and Democrats, both of which are styled the fourth annual. It does not appear to be too hot for the politicians, but it would not be surprising if there was an earthquake or thunder storm between 3 and 6 P. M. on that date.

The New Dorchester Republican club will hold its fourth annual outing and dinner at Squantum on Saturday. There will be a base ball game at 3 o'clock between the Ashmont club and the New Dorchester Republican club. The former will be captained by Representative Gideon B. Abbott, and the New Dorchester club by Street Commissioner William E. Hannan. Dinner will be served at 5 P. M. at the Squantum Inn. Speeches are tabooed, and vaudeville during and after the dinner will be substituted, The governor, the lieutenant governor, Councillor S. O. Bigney, the chairmen of the State and city Republican committees, are the invited guests. About one hundred are expected to attend.

Grand Pow Wow.

The Ward 17 Tammany Club of Boston will hold its fourth annual pow wow Saturday at New Downer Landing and expects a gathering of 20,000 people. The great event of the day will be an address at 4 P. M. by Timothy W. Coakley in the interests of John B. Moran.

The sports will include a ball game between the Fore Rivers and the Queen Quality nine, a natatorial exhibition by an U. S. life saving crew, a firemen's muster, a balloon ascension and athletic contests.

Cottage City.

The selectman of Cottage City will next week call a special town meeting to consider a resolution adopted at the annual meeting of taxpayers last Monday afternoon to have the name of the place changed from Cottage City to Oak Bluffs. In consideration of the sense of the annual meeting and the fact that the townspeople are quite generally signing the petition it seems quite certain now that within a year Cottage City will be a thing of the past and Oak Bluffs will take its place as the famous island summer resort.

—Discovery was made today by investigators for the United States Census Bureau who are looking for divorce statistics in New York, that many of the divorce decisions in the old Court of Common Pleas are inoperative because no degree of divorce has been entered upon the records. In hundreds of cases in which the Court has ordered that decrees of divorce or separation issue, the order for judgment has not been submitted to the Court by counsel for the successful party. Thus no final order would issue. It is believed that in most of the cases the parties to the divorce have been married again, it was stated Monday that such marriages are void and can only be legalized by action of the Legislature and that much confusion and inconvenience to the interested parties is certain to ensue. The Court of Common Pleas is no longer in existence.

Willard Principal Has Resigned

Charles H. Taylor, the popular principal of the Willard school has accepted a call to be principal of the Edward Devotion school in Brookline. Mr. Taylor has taught in Quincy three years, first as principal of the Massachusetts Fields and Wollaston schools and later of the Willard. What is Brookline's gain is surely Quincy's loss, for Mr. Taylor has served most efficiently here. As his call to Brookline is a promotion, his friends congratulate him heartily and wish him all success in his new field of labor.

Larceny Alleged.

Fred Saggese of No. 1 Willard street, was arrested by Lieut. McKay of the Quincy police force last night for alleged larceny from a person in Boston. He was handed over to a Boston officer.

—The most beautiful wild flower is claimed to be the Table Mountain Orchid (Disa grandiflora) of South Africa. It is popularly known as the Flower of the Gods, is not easily cultivated and is at its best in June and July. Its most brilliant colors are scarlet, light rose and gold.

New Canadian North West

Milestone, N. W. T., Canada,
Aug. 19, 1906.

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:

Thinking that you might be interested in this new country I will drop you a short note and give you a faint idea of the wonderful possibilities that are open to any man young or old, that are offered here day after day. This is my second trip here, and to say that I was surprised at the change since my last visit would be putting it mildly.

I will speak of this town as an example of the wonderful progress of civilization in the new Canadian North West. In 1903 I left here and went East. At that time this town numbered exactly 34 people,—men women and children. Today it has a population of 5,000 people, and is steadily growing.

The surprising part of it is that the greater part of citizens are former American farmers from our own "great West." The real Yankee grit and pluck is plainly shown by these pioneers as they now enjoy the fruits of their labors. Many of them have grown wealthy in a few short years. What is more remarkable than anything else is, a poor house or I should say an almshouse is unknown in this part of Canada.

In this town there is no jail, and the one magistrate who holds sway could not make enough money in trials to pay for bird feed.

I am very much surprised that the young men from my birth place and other eastern cities and towns do not take advantage of the wonderful opportunities that are offered to them in this country.

I am not anxions to depopulate the United States but am only speaking of this country to those who are interested in the progress of a new country. True, it is, that I am part Canadian parentage and the other part from "Bonny Scotland," but never as long as I draw breath will I owe allegiance to any other flag than the Stars and Stripes.

I know exactly how hard it is for a young fellow to even exist in the East, especially clerks and the laboring class. What a difference here. The laborer, mechanic, clerk or professional man have equal opportunities. As an example, I will state my brother's and my own experiences. In the East I had to work hard in order to make $15 per week. At present my wages are almost double and living is much cheaper.

My brother worked in Quincy for many years and made what eastern people call good wages. He is now working in the harvest fields as a traction engineer and his wages are $8 per day with board and room.

At this time of the year men who know absolutely nothing about harvesting are guaranteed a salary of $2.50 and $3.00 a day with board and room.

If there is anyone in Quincy or thereabouts who would like to learn more about this country, or would care about investing money in land which yields more than 500 percent profit in an exceedingly short time, I would be more than pleased to put them in contact with some of the most honorable men in this country or the United States.

At present I am assistant manager of the largest store in this province. This is nearly an American country. More American or I should say United States currency is used, than Canadian. Base ball is the popular sport.

Yours most sincerely
Arthur H. Paterson.

Defender Wins The First Race

Made Best Time On Three of The Four Legs Auk Number Three

	H.	M.	S.
MANCHESTER, Manchester club	2	13	17
WINDRIM KID, Corinthian club,	2	15	32
AUK, Quincy club,	2	18	34
BONIDREI, Boston club	2	19	27

A new mainsail was used by the Auk on Wednesday which may have been responsible for her failure to win the first of the Quincy challenge cup races sailed off West Manchester. The Auk showed up poorly and was outsailed by both the Manchester and the Windrim Kid. The Manchester finished 2m., 15s., ahead of the Windrim Kid; 5m., 17s., ahead of the Auk; and 6m., 10s., ahead of the Bonidrei.

The course was windward and leeward, two and one-half miles out, the same back, and twice around. It was sailed in wind that varied in direction from southeast to south by west and in force from light to moderate and back to light.

The start was made at 2.35. The Windrim Kid and Manchester led, side by side, the Kid in the weather berth. The Bonidrei was a length astern, on their weather, and the Auk fetched up the rear, half a dozen lengths behind the Bonidrei. The Auk soon tacked to starboard, the Manchester followed, making a short hitch to House island. The others held their port tack.

Ten minutes out the Manchester held the commanding position. Luck was with the Manchester, for she stood out past the middle breakers on the port tack, and caught a change of wind that lifted her up a point higher than the others, who were eastward of her. This advantage she enjoyed several minutes, perhaps five or six, before the others got the same wind.

At the outer mark the Manchester led the Kid 1m., 2s., the Auk 1m. 50s., and the Bonidrei 2m., 30s.

The yachts held the same position on the turn at the first round, the distance between each being increased.

On the third leg the Windrim Kid made the best time, but the yachts held the same positions.

The Manchester increased her lead on the last leg and handily won the first race.

The elapsed time for the race is given at the head of the column. The elapsed time on each of the four legs was as follows:

Boat	Elapsed time M.	S.
OUTER MARK, FIRST TIME.
Manchester	43	30
Windrim Kid	44	32
Auk	45	20
Bonidrei	46	00
RETURN.
Manchester	28	25
Windrim Kid	29	25
Auk	29	33
Bonidrei	29	07
OUTER MARK, SECOND TIME.
Manchester	20	45
Windrim Kid	20	34
Auk	21	25
Bonidrei	21	49
RETURN.
Manchester	30	37
Windrim Kid	31	01
Auk	32	16
Bonidrei	32	31

Today's race will be over a triangular course, and was scheduled to start at 2.15.

Commodore Crane of the Quincy club when interviewed by the Daily Ledger after the race was not at all discouraged because of the showing of the Auk, and expects to trim the Manchester before the races are completed. He had no excuses to offer for Wednesday's race, but thought the Manchester was in luck.

Sudden Illness.

Rebecca Bird, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha B. Bird of Beach street was taken very suddenly ill on Tuesday. Dr. Johnson was called and on Wednesday pronounced it a case of appendicitis. The little patient was taken to the Emerson hospital, Boston, where an operation was immediately performed, after which she was reported as resting as quietly as could be expected.

—By the decree of the Sultan of Turkey it is technically unlawful for a Jew to live in Palestine, but at the recent convention of the Federation of Zionist Societies at Toronto it was announced that the Sultan had withdrawn his edict and that in the future Jews might settle in Palestine and be protected by its laws. A large migration from Russia is expected in consequence.

COMPARISONS.

As Soon as We Begin to Make Them We Begin to Suffer.

We would not have to strive so for courage if what we vaguely call "things" were more evenly distributed among us, for no one's lot would then seem to him an evil one. If we were all humpbacked or lame or blind; if every husband were unfaithful and every child a cross; if we were all poor and no man had any more than another; if nobody's son died in his early strength and nobody was loved while we sat neglected, then who of us would know what sorrows and afflictions were? We would take each of them for granted, as a Chinaman takes his yellow skin and an Indian his red one.

It is because we see our estate differing from that of our fellows that we are tempted to comparisons, and it is in the making of these comparisons that a sense of our sorrows, like the knowledge of our afflictions, is first born. How would we have known that we were poor unless we had seen some one else who was richer or that our son was unsuccessful unless the son of somebody else were making a great mark in the world? Would our little children be unhappy with only one dress had they not seen other children with two?

It comes to this, then: When we begin to make comparisons, we begin to suffer. T[illegible] may seem to be a hard saying, [illegible]t is a true one.—Lillie Hamil[illegible]ch in Harper's Bazar.

WHITNEY IS OUT

In Favor of Douglas For Governor of Massachusetts

A PUZZLING SITUATION

Quick Revolution of Political Wheels Leaves Key to Situation In Hands of Moran, Who Is Not Yet Ready to Talk

Boston, Aug. 23.—Developments in the contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination have been so rapid within a few hours that political leaders in this city confess that they are bewildered. District Attorney Moran is the central figure in the complicated situations.

The developments have dropped Henry M. Whitney from the contest for governor, brought former Governor William L. Douglas into the field as a conditional candidate and placed John B. Moran where he may bring about party harmony or continue a contest against a number of Democratic leaders who are opposed to his candidacy. The district attorney's friends confidently assert that he will wage his fight to a finish and that under no circumstance will he withdraw.

Following closely the publication of the announcement that Douglas would enter the field against Governor Guild, provided he was assured of an unanimous nomination, came the appearance in this city of Henry J. Skeffington, a personal friend of Douglas. After a conference with Chairman Quincy of the Democratic state committee, Skeffington was closeted with Moran.

His purpose in visiting the district attorney was said to be to bring pressure to bear on Moran to withdraw from the race and thereby prepare the way for a convention which would nominate Douglas. While the Moran-Skeffington conference was in progress Whitney, in a letter to Quincy, announced his absolute withdrawal from the contest.

With Whitney positively out of the race and Moran's attitude such that his withdrawal in favor of Douglas seems a very remote possibility, prominent Democratic politicians say that the probable make-up of the state ticket is now an enigma.

District Attorney Moran, when seen at his office late yesterday, declined to give any intimation as to the course he would pursue. He had just finished reading the afternoon papers when a group of reporters filed into his office and, instead of answering their questions, he delivered a lecture on what he termed "frequent inaccuracies" in interviews attributed to him. "Hereafter," said Moran, "I won't talk politics to any one of you. When I have anything to say I will write it and send it to your offices. Now that goes from now until the end of the campaign."

The district attorney closed his desk with a bang and hurried out of the office. Asked when a statement from him might be expected, Moran said: "I will issue one when I get ready and not before."

Josiah Quincy left the city late in the afternoon for a short vacation at Ipswich. His lieutenants would venture no prediction as to who would be selected to take Whitney's place on the ticket in the event that Moran declined to withdraw in favor of Douglas. The assertion was made, however, that Moran would not be unopposed at the convention in this city Oct. 4.

Douglas Throws a Bombshell

Boston, Aug. 23.—The Post says: Ex-Governor Douglas, who has been touted as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, disposed of the rumor in an extended communication issued last night, when he pointed out positively that he will not enter the fight. He disapproves of some methods employed recently, in jockeying with names, and last night pointed out the futility of trying to engage him in any contest for the nomination.

Hoke Smith's Great Victory

Atlanta, Aug. 23.—The state Democratic primaries resulted in a victory for Hoke Smith, candidate for governor, unprecedented in the size of the plurality. Of the 145 counties in the state, Smith carried probably 110. According to returns thus far available, Clark Newell carried six counties, J. H. Estill of Savannah two, R. B. Russell eight, and J. M. Smith three, leaving 16 to hear from. This result will give Hoke Smith 219 votes in the state convention out of 366. His nomination for governor on the first ballot in the convention is assured.

For Prosperity and Morality

Portland, Me., Aug. 23.—The campaign in the First congressional district was formally opened here last night with a rally, at which Senator Beveridge of Indiana was the speaker. He discussed national affairs and urged that congressmen and senators be elected who will support President Roosevelt, aid him in his policy of purification of American business and aggressively support his policy of increasing the prosperity of the country and at the same time uplifting the morality of the nation.

Want Bryan For President

Nashville, Aug. 23.—The Democratic state committee adopted a resolution endorsing William J. Bryan for the Democratic nomination for president in 1908.

Sailor's Jig Floated Ship

Halifax, Aug. 23.— H. M. battleship Dominion was proceeding through the Bay de Chaleur to Quebec when she struck, in rapid succession, two obstacles, over which she passed in safety only to bring up hard aground on a third. Immediately the ship's crew was ordered on deck, the Dominion's band was commanded to play a jig, and every man, with his heavy dunnage bag in his hands, danced in time to the music while the engineers put on full steam astern. Gradually the force of the engines, aided by the oscillation caused by the movement of hundreds of feet in unison, drew the big ship backward until she floated safely into deep water. The Dominion is leaking, but the steam pumps are able to cope with the leakage.

Mrs Langtry Failed to Please

London, Aug. 23.—Mrs. Langtry had been advertised to give a dramatic performance in the Pavilion at Folkestone last evening. The play she presented was only a trifling South African episode, lasting 20 minutes, and a hostile crowd followed Mrs. Langtry off the pier, vigorously hissing her. The actress had to be escorted to her hotel by policemen.

Labor Agent Disappears

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 23.—John A. Swan, agent of the Atlantic Coast Seamen's union at this port, is missing, and a warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $107 from the union has been issued. Swan was bonded and his shortage will be made good. He came from Boston.

Heat Kills Ten Chicagoans

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Heat in Chicago was responsible for 10 deaths and 20 prostrations. The thermometer at the weather bureau registered 91 degrees for four hours, when the 92 mark was reached. Later in the day a shower and a breeze brought some relief.

THE CHILE QUAKE

Number of Dead Now Placed at More Than 2000

PROVISIONS COMING IN

Authorities Had to Fight Against Lack of Water, Robbery and Pillage--Famine Reported to Exist South of Valparaiso

Valparaiso, Aug. 23.—From the Plaza de la Victoria, as far as the plaza in the section called Las Delicicas, four-fifths of the houses are completely destroyed and the remaining fifth are badly damaged as the result of the earthquake last Thursday.

From the Plaza de la Victoria down to the custom house only about one-third of the houses sustained damage. The banks of the city and the customs warehouses were not hurt. With the exception of Espiritu Santo, all the churches in the city were destroyed, as were the hospitals and the theatres. The number of dead is more than 2000.

The tragic scenes of the San Francisco disaster were reproduced here. There was the fight against fire, the lack of water and robbery and pillage. The authorities are now beginning to get in provisions, and water is being again supplied. All the fires are out.

The first shock lasted four minutes and a half and the second two minutes. Most of the houses were thrown down by the second shock.

Estimates of the damage range from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000. The Almendral quarter has been absolutely destroyed.

The people are still camping on the surrounding hills and in the streets and plazas, and only today are calmness and courage returning. The declaration is made that 80,000 people will leave the city. The lack of food is not yet serious. Telegraphic communication with Santiago was re-established yesterday.

A messenger who reached Valparaiso from Quilloto says the loss of life there is great, and that many are dying for want of medical attention and nourishment. He confirms the report that the town was practically destroyed.

A caravan of provisions started south from Valparaiso under military escort, and was completely exhausted within 10 miles of Valparaiso. The train met an army of refugees, hungry and suffering, making their way to Valparaiso, and their immediate wants were supplied. The stores had been intended for some of the remote settlements.

The refugees reported conditions further south to be heartrending, and that hundreds of injured and helpless were actually starving, while the healthy had to walk many miles in quest of food. Liberal funds have been raised, but the scarcity of supplies and the condition of the roads render immediate relief impossible. The train service is described by an operator as a "push-cart combination engine and coach."

Appeal in Behalf of Sufferers

Boston, Aug. 23.—The following notice regarding the Valparaiso earthquake disaster is issued by the Massachusetts branch of the American National Red Cross:

"Authoritative news of the great gravity of the disaster in Chile has been received at the department of state, wherefore the executive committee has ordered a general appeal for money to help the sufferers. This money will be forwarded immediately, through the department of state, to the government in Santiago. All contributions will be gratefully received and promptly forwarded by the treasurer of the Massachusetts branch, Gardiner M. Lane, 44 State street, Boston."

New York Merchants Take Action

New York, Aug. 23.—The board of directors of the Merchants' Association of New York ordered a letter sent to the members of the association and other citizens of New York asking subscriptions for the relief of the earthquake sufferers in Chile.

Ticket of Ohio Democrats

Columbus, O., Aug. 23.—S. A. Hoskins for secretary of state, C. W. Haupert for state school commissioner, R. J. Diegle for state dairy and food commissioner, and G. E. Nyswonger for member of board of public works constituted the ticket named by the Ohio Democratic convention here. The question of an endorsement of county option in temperance legislation was under discussion, an attempt to amend the platform and give such an endorsement being defeated on a rollcall.

Doctor Sentenced to Prison

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Dr. Francis Stewart, convicted on a charge of robbery, was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the penitentiary. Stewart's attorney asked 30 days' leave to file a bill of exceptions and the prisoner was released on bonds. Stewart is alleged to have robbedy Felix Berard of $110 when the young man went to his office seeking treatment.

Steamship Companies Have to Settle

Washington, Aug. 23.—More immigrants afflicted with trachoma are coming to this country now than for several years past. For every such case proved against a steamship company a fine of $100 is assessed. During the past 30 days fines totalling over $10,000 have been levied.

Mortgagee's Sale.

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS that by virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed, given by ROBERT F. ROGERS to J. WALTER BEAN, dated the fourth day of May, 1906, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1,026, Page 325, for breach of condition of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction upon the premises on THURSDAY, the sixth day of September, 1906, at three o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular, the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely:

All that certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situated on the northerly side of Glover avenue, in that part of Quincy, in said Commonwealth, known as Norfolk Downs, shown on a plan by H C. Mildram, Surveyor, dated April 23, 1892, and being lot 14 on said plan. Said lot being more fully described as follows: Bounded southerly by Glover avenue, fifty-three and thirty-three hundredths (53.33) feet; easterly by lot 13 on said plan, one hundred forty-three and forty-one hundredths (143.41) feet; northerly by land owners unknown, fifty-three and thirty-five hundredths feet; and westerly by lot 15 and 17 on said plan, one hundred forty-four and ninety-two hundredths (144.92) feet; containing seven thousand six hundred eighty-eight (7,688) square feet. This conveyance is made subject to a mortgage of $3,000 to Mary P. Bailey, recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1,023, Page 175, and being the same premises conveyed to me by deed of Henry J. Perkins, dated November 23, 1905, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 1,014, Page 235.

This sale is made subject to said first mortgage and to any and all unpaid interest, taxes, assessments and liens of every description.

$200 dollars in cash will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale and the balance of the purchase money within seven days.

RUBY EXONERATED

Result of Second Inquest on the Death of Chauffeur Stafford

North Andover, Mass., Aug. 23.—Reginald B. Stafford, chauffeur for Mrs. Mary Sutton, the young man who was shot and killed in the drawing room of Mrs. Sutton's residence on the night of June 10, is declared to have been a trespasser by a decision just rendered by Judge Frye, who conducted the inquest. Frye finds that Stafford's death was due to his own wrongful act in entering the house surreptitiously, and Edward Ruby, the butler, who fired the fatal shot, is exonerated of all blame.

The shooting occurred in the dimly lighted drawing room of the residence after the members of the family had retired, and it was shown that Stafford was mistaken for a burglar by Ruby, who, hearing a noise, entered the parlor, and, seeing a man hiding behind a couch, shot him.

At the inquest held immediately after the tragedy Judge Frye discharged Ruby and complimented him on his faithfulness to his employer's interests, but at the request of two brothers of the dead man the inquiry was reopened. The brothers charged that Stafford had been killed through jealousy because of favors accorded to him by Mrs. Sutton. Mrs. Sutton is the widow of General Eben Sutton of New York.

Made Sick by Ice Cream

Newburyport, Mass., Aug. 23.—The board of health was notified last night of a dozen cases of illness, said to be due to impure ice cream, but the board has not been able to reach a conclusion. It appears that John Caneta, an ice cream dealer, gave away part of the stock which he had in his store here. He told all those who ate the cream that he would not guarantee its purity and that those who partook of it did so at their own risk. Although most of those affected are confined to their beds, all have been pronounced out of danger.

Conway Held in $1500

Boston, Aug. 23.—Before Commissioner Hayes Francis B. Conway, arrested by postoffice inspectors after an exciting struggle, was held in $1500 for a hearing on Aug. 29. Conway is charged with the larceny of two letters containing money from the Back Bay postoffice, the letters being decoys employed by the inspectors. He has been a night collector at the Back Bay postoffice for several months.

Favorite Loses Futurity Race

Readville, Mass., Aug. 23.—The unlooked for victory of Ed Custer in the American Horse Breeder's futurity stake for 3-year-olds and the arrest of six men charged with bookmaking or being present were the features of the second day's Grand Circuit meet at the Readville track. The futurity stake was valued at $7000. Gay Bingen was the choice.

Mayor of Dover Dead

Dover, N. H., Aug. 23.—Mayor Alonzo T. Pinkham of this city was found dead in the basement of his place of business yesterday afternoon. Physicians pronounced death due to heart disease. Pinkham was born in the adjoining county of Madbury in 1847. He was engaged in the brick business and had served in the legislature.

Passengers All Got Ashore

Stockton, Me., Aug. 23.—Excursion steamer Bristol, with a party of 125 people, mostly women and children, aboard, grounded on Squaw point bar off the entrance to Stockton harbor during a dense fog. The passengers were taken ashore in small boats without injury or panic. The steamer was later floated.

Humidity Causes Much Suffering

Boston, Aug. 23.—Two deaths and several dangerous cases of prostration resulted yesterday from the intense heat and humidity. The weather was similar to that of Tuesday, the mercury not going higher than 85, but the humidity was considerably above the normal.

Manchuria May Never Be Floated

Honolulu, Aug. 23.—The Manchuria remains on the reef where she struck on Monday. The Manchuria's compartments have been filled with water to make her rest more firmly and prevent further damage. It is believed that she cannot be floated before the arrival of assistance from the Pacific coast, if ever.

Murder In Shadow of Church

St. John, Aug. 23.—A murder occurred under the shadow of the little Roman Catholic church at New Ireland, a sparsely settled community of Albert county. The body of Mary A. MacAulay, aged 50, was found in the cellar of the rectory of Fr. MacAulay, the parish priest and cousin of the victim. Thomas J. Collins, a sailor, is named by the coroner's jury as a suspect, but the county officials have been unable to find him.

Where Detectives Are Needed

St. Petersburg, Aug. 23.—On account of the utter inability of the police in various parts of the empire to cope with the ordinary forms of lawlessness, a group of foreign detective agencies has applied to the minister of the interior for a concession for the formation of a private police detective agency, which will protect the property and lives of its patrons from ordinary criminal attempts.

OPEN REBELLION

Uncertainty as to Whether It Will Prevail In Cuba

ENCOUNTER AT SAN LUIS

The Insurgents Repulse Rural Guards, Who Take Refuge In Their Quarters--Insurrection Appears to Be Gaining Ground

Havana, Aug. 23.—General Rodriguez, commander of the rural guard, made the following statement:

"You can tell the American people that Cuba is entirely competent to cope with the insurrection. The flood of rumors in all directions about the organization of insurrectionary bands in great numbers are not borne out by our reports or, so far as can be learned, by the facts. The result of the encounter at San Luis is not known definitely, but it is known that we inflicted some losses on the enemy in that vicinity.

"The much-talked-of movement in Santa Clara province has not been encountered, and no insurrectionists have been seen there by our forces. We have equipped and sent out in various directions 300 volunteers under competent officers. We have plenty of Remingtons and ammunition for all who enlist at present, and more has been ordered from the United States. Besides, we have thousands of old, but serviceable, guns. We believe the loyal people are taking up arms for the government faster than the insurgents are increasing."

While the foregoing is typical of the utterances of government officials, there are evidences of threatening increases of the insurrectionists. In the province of Havana many persons are in sympathy with the insurgents. In some cases whole communities appear to have been carried away by the recrudescence of insurrectionary times. The extent to which this will lead to open rebellion is still uncertain.

At the palace here there is a disposition to minimize the importance of the insurgents' success at San Luis, the statement being made that while the insurgents are in possession of the town the rural guards, in their garrison quarters, are still holding out.

The agent of the Western railway at San Luis station, which is a mile and one-third from the town, reports that the town has been taken by insurgents, who have surrounded the station. The agent did not know the number killed or wounded, but believed it was small. The fighting was quickly over. The garrison of San Luis is known to number less than 50. The population of the town is 5000.

The principal event yesterday was the fighting at San Luis. The reports of the commanders of the rural guard are to the following effect:

The bands of Guerra, Pozo and others, aggregating about 400 men, concentrated in the vicinity of San Luis. Seventy rural guards, under command of Major Laurent, were to attack the insurgents from the east, and 30 men, under Lieutenant Azcus, were to attack from the west. Azcuz arrived first and got into an ill-timed engagement with a far superior detachment, with the result that he was forced to retreat hastily to San Luis, pursued by a portion of the enemy. The rural guards took refuge in their quarters and Guerra's men remained in possession of the town.

An attempt is being made with 200 mounted rural guards and regulars to corner Quentin Bandera, who with 150 men is continuing his dodging tactics in the western part of the province of Havana.

Three large bands of insurgents are out in the province of Santa Clara. The insurrection appears to be growing, but the loyalists of the towns claim that they will be able to resist the movement.

The government's latest reports from San Luis, which significantly are dated from Pinar del Rio, are to the effect that Major Laurent killed four insurgents and captured a few horses and munitions.

The act nearest approaching insurrection in Havana province was the seizing yesterday of several horses which were being loaded on a train of the Western railway at Salud, a suburb west of the city.

Attempt to Kill Nunez

Havana, Aug. 23.—An attempt was made last evening to assassinate General Nunez, governor of the province of Havana. A man had a revolver levelled at Nunez as he was entering his home. Another man who was passing by saw the would-be assassin and cried out, whereupon Nunez turned and, drawing his revolver, fired over the miscreant's head. The latter was so surprised that he dropped his revolver. He was promptly arrested. His identity is not known.

Alleged Forgery Conspiracy

New York, Aug. 23.—What is said to have been a conspiracy to rob a New York bank of $200,000 or more by means of forgery partially developed when two men were arraigned in the Tombs police court and held in heavy bail. The prisoners were James T. Murray, 30 years old, and a young man who said he was Theodore J. Smith, 24 years old. Smith's real name is Schaad, and he was bailed out by his father, Ferdinand Schaad, a retired contractor.

New York Stock Commission Firm Closes Its Doors

New York, Aug. 23.—M. J. Sage & Co., brokers of 1 Montgomery street, Jersey City, and 57 Broadway, this city, have informed their correspondents that they have discontinued business.

The firm of Sage & Co. was incorporated in 1904 with a capital stock of $50,000. The object of the company, as set forth in the incorporation papers, was to conduct a stock commission business.

It is stated that the Sage system consisted of a string of at least 300 branch offices stretching from Maine to New Orleans and in some quarters the failure is declared to involve possibly $2,000,000. Although a great business was done by this firm, it had no stock exchange membership here.

During the time it had been in business it had encountered several severe bull campaigns, especially the one during the latter part of last year. During that strong bull market the firm of M. J. Sage & Co. was badly strained, and it is reported that the firm lost $1,500,000 before the tide changed. The firm's financial backers, it is reported, made good the losses.

During the sensational times in the cotton market about the time of the panic, the speculation in cotton in the south was enormous. The Sage system got a great volume of business through its 175 southern branches, and as a result of the campaign the firm came out a winner to the amount of $1,000,000. The firm succeeded in getting on the "right" side of the market. This large sum, together with the oncoming of a bear campaign in the stock market, enabled the firm to recover all its previous losses.

Alleged Investment Frauds

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Operations of the Tabasco-Chiapas Trading and Transportation company and the Lu-Mo-Mills company, Mexican investment concerns, with offices in this city, have been stopped by the postal authorities. President Bushnell and Secretary and Treasurer Miller were arraigned before Commissioner Foote, who held them in bonds of $2000 each and continued the case until Aug. 30. According to the literature of the two companies, they operate large coffee plantations and own several lines of steamers. The postal authorities declare that such is not the case.

Opposed to Monroe Doctrine

San Jose, C. R., Aug. 23.—At a preliminary meeting of the American club the objects and views of that organization were formulated. It is declared to be the purpose of the club "to work for the union of Latin-America and to be prepared to oppose the United States in its work of annihilation of Latin-American commercial independence." The Monroe doctrine, in President Roosevelt's point of view, is declared to be a menace to all Latin-American countries. The association is not against the United States, but in opposition to the alleged purpose of that country.

Old Glory Beneath Red Flag

New York, Aug. 23.—A red flag waving from a wagon in which a street meeting was being held came very near causing a riot here last night. The wagon contained three men and two women. On the side of the vehicle was a sign "Socialist and Unity." There were two American flags suspended lower than the red flag. A crowd surrounded the wagon and threatened to lynch the occupants. Police reserves arrived and forced their way through the throng and arrested the persons in the wagon. All were charged with disorderly conduct.

$30,000 Bail For Browne

New York, Aug. 23.—Charles E. Browne, the convicted customs silk examiner, who was recently extradited from Canada and released from Sing Sing on a writ of habeas corpus, then rearrested on another indictment, has been released from the Tombs on $30,000 bail. A local surety company qualified as bondsman.

Persecution of Americans

THE EARTHQUAKE ZONE

South America Has Had Many Disasters In the Past.

VALPARAISO OFTEN DEVASTATED.

City Inaptly Named "Valley of Paradise" Twice Before Shaken by Destructive Earthquakes—Twice Sacked In Its Early History—American Bluejackets Killed There In 1891, Almost Causing War.

The region which has suffered so heavily by the recent earthquake in South America is the center of a vast area which for centuries has been visited periodically by earthquake shocks. The frequency of these shocks in the Andes is expressively told by the name given this region by the Indians, says the New York Sun. They call it Cuscation—"the land that swings like a hammock."

One of the most terrible of South American earthquakes was the one which entirely destroyed the city of Caracas, Venezuela, in 1812. It lasted less than one minute. In Ecuador, in 1859, the city of Quito was almost wholly destroyed.

For three days in August, 1868, the whole south Pacific region and Hawaii, Japan, Alaska and Peru were shaken by an earthquake which, among the atolls, or coral reef islands, lifted steamships clear over the coral reefs and left them inside the doughnut-like barriers. The same shock caused a tidal wave along the west coast of South America fifty feet high in places. At Arica, a seaport of Peru, which had been often before nearly destroyed by earthquakes, every house was leveled, $12,000,000 worth of property was destroyed and 500 lives were lost.

The tidal wave which swept inland from the sea at Arica carried with it the United States steamer Wateree and other vessels and left them stranded high and dry three miles inland. To this day the hull of the old Wateree is used by Peruvian peons as a summer resort and boarding house. The shocks lasted for two days, occurring about every half hour. Among the curious results of this earthquake was the opening of a broad fissure in the earth, disclosing a large number of ancient mummies which had been buried in the sand facing the sea. The fortified island of Alocrav, which defends the port of Arica, was submerged three times, all the garrison being drowned.

Valparaiso has been twice sacked, thrice has it been racked by earthquakes, thrice has it been scourged by fire, and once has it been drowned by flood. No city of South America has received so many visitations of evil as this "Valley of Paradise," inaptly so named by a Spanish discoverer in the sixteenth century.

Don Juan de Saavedra, a captain under Almagron, Spanish voyager and soldier of fortune, sailed into the crescent bay where the city afterward stood in the year 1532. He was struck by the beauty of the spot and immediately christened this new bay on the little explored western coast by the name that it has borne through much tribulation since. Pedro de Valdivia visited the place in 1543 and formally affirmed the choice of the name given the then struggling colony by its foster father. Don Luis de Avala, one of the early governors of New Spain, made the settlement a municipality under royal charter in 1791 after it had been sorely tried by many years of misfortune.

In 1578 Sir Francis Drake sailed into the harbor of Valparaiso and bombarded the town, afterward sacking it of its treasure and putting many of its inhabitants to the sword. Sir John Hawkins, gentleman slave trader and pirate, visited the Spanish settlement later, and again the town was given up to pillage.

The year 1730 witnessed the first great earthquake that shook Valparaiso. Practically the whole town was destroyed in this convulsion and only after many years of slow progress did it recover. In 1822 a second earthquake came to shake down what had been rebuilt. In this catastrophe many lost their lives. A great fire swept the city in 1843, destroying $1,000,000 worth of property. Hardly had the fortunes of the community begun to mend when a second fire licked up five times as much wealth as had the first. This was in 1858.

When the Spanish made the last futile attempt to destroy the republic of Chile in 1866 they sent a fleet into the harbor of Valparaiso and the town was mercilessly bombarded. What with the damage wrought with the shells and the fire that followed $10,000,000 was the loss counted up. The last great disaster preceding the one which the Chilean city has just suffered came in 1888, when a large dam back of the city burst and a portion of the business district was washed away with great loss of life. The city had at the last census a population of 142,000.

For more than six months there were warnings of the present quake. In January there were many shocks, which created alarm in Valparaiso and other coast cities. There were thirty slight shocks in the night of March 30 in the Raucagua district. Prolonged and severe shocks were felt in Valdina in April. Arica was shaken on May 7, a dispatch from Valparaiso saying that much damage had been done. The British steamship Guatemala, lying at anchor in the harbor of Arica, was violently shaken and her anchor cable was snapped. On May 30 a subterranean disturbance threw a tidal wave along the Valparaiso shore line, but little damage was done. This was followed in a few hours by a fearful gale, in which the Chilean bark Antofogasta was hurled against a pier and smashed to pieces in five minutes. The Valparaiso harbor has been swept so often by destructive gales that a project to make it absolutely safe is now under way. A breakwater, at a cost of $12,000,000, is being constructed. The contract was let only about a month ago.

Valparaiso became an object of great interest to Americans in October, 1891, when the incident occurred there which almost plunged the United States and Chile into war. Some of the populace attacked sailors from the United States cruiser Baltimore, killing two of the American bluejackets. The diplomatic exchanges led to President Harrison sending a message, on Jan. 25, 1892, to congress in which he set forth that "the communications of the Chilean government have not at any time taken the form of a manly and satisfactory expression of regret, much less of an apology." A United States squadron was being fitted out on the Pacific coast when finally Chile made a complete apology, and the incident closed.

Ships from all parts of the world trade with Valparaiso, which is the terminus of important lines of steamers from Europe by way of the Strait of Magellan. The city is also the center of the South American coasting services. There is a great custom house wharf, alongside of which large steamers can moor, but most of the freight is handled from lighters.

The harbor is defended by modern batteries. The first defense works were erected in 1866, after a Spanish fleet caused great destruction by a heavy bombardment. The forts mount 142 guns, most of them from Germany and England. Valparaiso is the favorite spot on the South American coast for foreign warships. Most of the foreign consuls have their residence near the port.

A close comparison has been drawn between Valparaiso and San Francisco. Both have Golden Gates, but from the sea Valparaiso is the more inviting. Behind San Francisco the hills rise brown and bleak, while behind Valparaiso they rise in brilliant green. Entering Valparaiso bay the city streets appear in rows like the lines of seats in a theater. The city actually is built on twenty hills, and so steep is the land in places that public elevators have been installed.

SURGEONS AID HORSE.

Silver Tube Eight Inches Long Placed In Animal's Throat.

Affection for Tom, a big black truck horse that will shake hands and roll over at his master's bidding, has led James Stone of Thomaston, Conn., to employ the most eminent Connecticut surgeons and spend hundreds of dollars in an effort to save the animal's life, says a dispatch to the New York World. At present Tom is enjoying his oats while breathing freely through a silver tube eight inches long. He is the only horse in the world that has undergone the delicate operation of tracheotomy.

Tom's trouble was caused by a weakness of the glands in his neck. A veterinary surgeon who looked him over advised that he be shot.

"Not much," said Mr. Stone. "That horse is a better fellow than most of the men I know, and he's going to have a man's chance."

Regular practitioners, who were finally induced to diagnose Tom's case, thought he might be helped by the tube operation, but they said its delicacy and expense rendered it a foolish proceeding. "The horse will never be of any value anyway," they said.

"He'll still be able to shake hands and ask me for apples," said Mr. Stone. "Go ahead."

As a result Tom has enjoyed the attention of distinguished specialists, who have not only taken an academic interest in the case, but who have been touched by Mr. Stone's devotion.

AN EXCITING SCRATCH.

Trenton Man, Relieving a Tickle, Calls Out Fire Engines.

James Lavetti, an Italian, while leaning up against the city hall in Trenton scratching his head the other night, accidentally pulled the fire alarm at that point, which brought out half the fire department, says the New York Times. Lavetti was immediately arrested by a detective, who was standing close by. He could not explain, and it was just as hard to make him understand that he had caused so much trouble.

Because of the fact that the sending in of the false alarms is a common occurrence at that point by persons who declare they do not know what the box is there for, Chief Allen of the fire department will prefer charges against the man for malicious mischief as a warning to others.

Absinth Bonbons the Latest.

"Look out for absinth in bonbons," said a large candy dealer to a Philadelphia Record reporter. "They are on the market and they are loaded. I doubt if any are on sale as yet in Philadelphia, but they have been offered to us and I have seen samples of them. I have no doubt they will soon be seen here. It's likely that their stay will be short, however, for the authorities and the temperance people will surely be after them. Four of the kind of bonbons that were sent to us would make a pretty stiff drink of absinth, and an innocent customer might get laid out cold before he knew it. Those sent to us were from Europe, where, I understand, their manufacture has resulted from certain restrictive legislation concerning the sale of alcohol."

These are the Days.

These are the days when the word "Adirondacks" sounds good to everyone. Up there the sun is just as bright, but the days are never hot and enervating—the nights are always cool and the pine-laden air has that invigorating something in it that brings sleep, appetite, rest and new life to the jaded urbanite.

These are the days! The season is at its height. All the hotels are open and there is room enough for everyone. The Adirondack country is too vast ever to become crowded. From east, west, north or south you can reach the North Woods via the New York Central Lines, "America's Greatest Railroad."

New Style Quincy and Boston Cars To Be Longest In Boston

A new type of semi-convertible street car will be placed in commission within a few days by the Old Colony system, between the Dudley street terminal and Quincy. They are said to embrace all the latest devices applied to equipment of this character and to represent the very highest type of efficiency and to afford practically, absolute protection to passengers when getting off or onto one of them.

They will be, says the Herald, the longest cars ever operated in the streets of Boston, the length of the body being 33 feet 11 inches, and over all 45 feet 10 inches. Each car will seat 52 passengers and be equipped with four motors of nearly 60 horse power each.

Safety from fire has been obtained by having all wiring done according to the strictest underwriters' specifications, which require installation of wires in iron pipes and also the complete sheathing of the under side of the car body with sheet steel. The windows instead of dropping, are thrown up into the roof, giving an exceptional open-air effect.

These cars will weigh, loaded and equipped, about 32 tons each, and will be satisfactory for a maximum speed of about 25 miles an hour. They will also be provided with pneumatic sliding doors, the motorman having absolute control.

It will be impossible for a passenger to leave until the conductor signals the motorman to stop, and the latter will not throw back the doors until the car comes to an absolute standstill. The same process will be observed in taking on passengers.

Republican Candidates.

James P. Magenis of Ward 20, Boston, has formally announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in the 10th district against all-comers.

Joseph Lundy of Ward 16, Boston, has also formally announced his candidacy, so that there are two aspirants for the Republican nomination, and two for the Democratic.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS.

Try Now the Ways of Yore and See How You Like Them.

Good old times, says the San Antonio Light, are a delusion and a snare, and the man who sighs for them has little conception of what they were. Return to them, would you? Then rise on a cold morning and wash at the pump, pull on a pair of rawhide boots that rival a tin can in stiffness, pull on a woolen shirt over your back and sit down to a bare meal with your three legged stool dancing around on a split slab floor, eat corn pone and bacon for a steady diet and labor fourteen hours out of twenty-four. Go without a daily paper, a fly screen, a mosquito bar, a spring mattress, a kerosene lamp, geehaw your oxen to market and sit on the floor of an ox cart as you wend your way to church or a frolic. Parch corn and peas for coffee and sassafras for tea and see how you like it.

The old days are looked backward to affectionately, says the Galveston News, because they were the days of our youth, of bounding blood and supple joints, the days of hope and the days of love and laughter and song. The days of the present will be the good old days of the coming generation and will be regarded by our successors as rather crude in customs and harsh in many ways, yet withal not to be despised. The progressives of our age are the mossbacks of later eras. Fifty years hence we will be accounted as slow and immature as we now regard those of half a century ago.

CHIRSCHMUS.

A Swiss Dainty That Is Made of Preserved Cherries.

Last summer I ate genuine Swiss chirschmus twenty years old. It tasted like a concentration of all the richness and sweetness of the most perfect cherries. In appearance it was a purplish black mass. Age had not impaired it in the least.

Upon inquiry I learned how this cherry concoction, with its wonderful preserving quality, is made. The cherries used must be perfect—very large, ripe, juicy black ones and, above all, very sweet.

The juice of them pressed out and strained through a bag is put in a large preserving kettle, at the bottom of which is placed a piece of smoked pork fastened to a block of wood. The wood serves as a weight to keep the fat down and prevent the juice from burning as it thickens.

The cherry juice is boiled for about twenty-four hours without sugar, but stirred from time to time until it becomes a mass of sweetness so firm and thick that it would not fall if the kettle were inverted.

That is all, a simple process, but the result is delicious. This chirschmus is in general use in Switzerland with the "susse anke" (sweet butter) and bread. —London Ladies' World.

Feeding Silkworms.

The quality and quantity of silk produced by your silkworms will all depend on how you feed them. Too much food should not be given at once, but they should never be left entirely without at any time during the day or night. You must, therefore, watch carefully to get an idea of their appetite and provide accordingly, says Home Chat. Fresh mulberry leaves are the proper food for silkworms, but if at any time these are not procurable young lettuce leaves are the best substitute, but they are only a stop gap. Silkworms cannot live for a long period without their natural food.

A Rich Man.

Standards of prosperity vary in different parts of the country, but that of Captain Jack is purely local—to himself. The old man came out of his cottage door one morning and discovered some ne'er-do-well neighbors digging clams in the flat in front of his shore.

"Dear me, boys," he quavered in a weak, old voice, "don't dig my clams! There's Abel Wyman over there across the cove; he has ham for breakfast every morning in the year. Go over there and dig his clams, boys."

His Awful Mistake.

"Young man," said her father, "do you smoke cigarettes?"

"I should say not," declared the youth hastily. "I would consider it disgraceful to be seen with one of the vile things in my mouth. I think all cigarette smokers should be jailed. Why do you ask, sir?"

"Thought perhaps you could let me have one," said the old man pointedly. "I smoke 'em myself."—London Telegraph.

No Siren.

Mr. City Boarder was being entertained by his rural sweetheart.

"Do you play and sing 'When the Cows Are In the Corn,' Miss Milkyweigh?"

"Lord bless you, no!" she ejaculated; "I get the dogs and chase 'em out."—Harper's Weekly.

Unnatural Finish.

Mrs. Meeds—And did your husband die a natural death?

Mrs. Weeds—No, he died suddenly.

Mrs. Meeds—What was there unnatural about that?

Mrs. Weeds—Why, poor, dear John was the slowest man that ever lived.—Chicago Tribune.

The Society Way.

Duty called.

The man looked at the card lazily.

"Just say that I'm not at home," he ordered the maid.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

If thou knowest how to use money it will become thy handmaid. If not, it will become thy master.—Diodorus.

TODAY'S COURT.

Blanche E. Perry a one year old neglected child, at Quincy, daughter of Sadie M. Perry Birmingham, was placed in care of the State Board.

Fanny H. Wilbur of Holbrook for malicious injury to property, was found guilty and ordered to pay costs and make restitution.

Frederick P. Cronin of Weymouth for drunkenness and larceny, was found guilty and sent to the State farm.

James A. Watson for being a tramp at Quincy was sent to the State farm.

Two Boston boys of sixteen years were arraigned for breaking street lamps at Quincy. Cases continued.

—Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan Richards, the parents of the late Mrs. Craigie, the novelist, have received a letter of sympathy from Queen Alexandra on the death of their daughter.

CONVICT No. 3420

[Copyright, 1906, by R. Douglas.]

We had read all about him before he appeared at the prison under a sentence of ten years. The daily papers had said that his name was Salters and his age about forty. He had taken rooms at a fashionable boarding house on a certain street in Chicago and let it be known that he was a broker. On each side of the boarding house were private dwellings, and farther down the street, but to be reached over the roofs, was a large art store.

The first thing to happen after the arrival of Mr. Salters, but with which his name was not at all connected, was the robbery of the art store. Other robberies followed. While the detectives were after the burglar the daily papers were after the detectives, and things were being made hot all around when the rooms of eleven guests in the boarding house at which Mr. Salters stopped were robbed on the same night.

The house was filled with detectives, and everybody was examined and cross examined, but it was no use. The rooms had been entered and despoiled while the guests were sleeping.

They were waiting in fear and trembling for the next outbreak when a stupid headed servant girl in the boarding house solved the puzzle. From one of the side houses had been taken an unset catseye stone. This was found under Mr. Salters' bed one morning when the girl swept the room.

Mr. Salters was asked to explain. As he couldn't explain, he was traced to another room half a mile away and all the plunder found. He simply laughed when put under arrest. He laughed when put on trial. He had been caught so dead to rights that he smilingly pleaded guilty and took his ten year sentence without moving a muscle.

The police were on to Mr. Salters for one of the sleekest chaps in the business, and they would have given a great deal to trace his past and have him answer certain questions. He was mum on all points, however. They could not trace him back a month, and, as to how he entered the houses and rooms and left no trace behind, that was one of his professional secrets.

When Mr. Salters reached prison the first glance at him caused everybody to wonder where they had seen him before. Face, form, pose and gait all reminded us of somebody, but who that somebody was we could not recall. Had he not been passed along to the barber and from thence into stripes so soon some of us might have been the wiser. He was quiet and respectful, and it was figured that he would make a model prisoner.

After three days he was put at work in the shoe department, and all reports coming in about him were favorable. At the end of six weeks he had a chill and was sent to his cell, and the doctor gave him some medicine. Up to this time the man had not asked for a book from the library nor to see the chaplain. Many prisoners who had no religious feelings will ask for the chaplain now and then in order to have a talk and hear a human voice. On this day that he was taken ill Mr. Salters asked that the good man be sent to him, and I carried the message. I also noted that the chaplain remained with convict No. 3420 for a full hour, and when he left the cell and came down the corridor his perturbation did not fail to attract my attention. He was very pale and had been weeping.

Prison chaplains listen to many sad tales, and now and then their sympathies are aroused, but in the three years I had known our Mr. Davis I had never seen him so greatly affected. He stopped as if he would speak to me, but his tears fell afresh, his lips trembled, and he finally passed on without a word.

Mr. Salters took more medicine next day and was excused from work. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the chaplain visited him without being sent for and remained for two hours. I heard him praying long and fervently. When he left he was pale and had an anxious look, and yet there was also a look of resolve in his face. There is so much hypocrisy among convicts in the matter of religion that my curiosity in this case was not very great. The greater the rogue the harder he will try to bamboozle the chaplain into believing that he wants to walk in new paths. It was a question with me whether Mr. Salters had seen the error of his ways or was only shirking his work.

The next forenoon at 11 o'clock the chaplain paid his third visit, and as the bell rang for the convicts to march in to dinner he came forth from the cell and passed me, and the guard at the end of the corridor opened the gate for him. Other guards did the same thing, and in five minutes he was clear of the prison. It was two hours later when the doctor came in. I accompanied him to Salters' cell, and there we found the convict undressed and in bed and weeping. No, it was not the convict. It was the chaplain, though but for his long hair I should have been longer deceived. The doctor spotted him almost at once. The convict's striped suit was lying on the floor.

"You have changed clothes with No. 3420 and let him walk out!" exclaimed the doctor.

"Yes," was the tearful reply.

"But why, man, why?"

"Because he is my twin brother and has promised to lead a better life!"

The chaplain was forced to resign and was also arrested and put on trial and convicted, but I believe the governor stood his friend and had sentence suspended. M. QUAD.

The Boston Herald makes the following comments on the visit of the English team next month:

Followers of association football in Boston are looking forward with no small amount of interest to Sept. 14, when the Corinthians, the most famous English amateur team, and Fore River, the champions of the Merrimac Valley Football League, will meet in Boston. Two years ago a visit from this celebrated team was discussed, but for various reasons it was found impossible to make the journey in either 1904 or 1905. It is perhaps as well that such was the case, for football under association rules was not so far advanced then as is the case at the present time.

The Corinthians are a properly organized combination whose name and fame is of world renown. They represent amateurism in the strictest sense of the word. Each of its players has represented Oxford, Cambridge or one of the great English public schools, and no less than eight of the coming team have gained international honors. No greater honor can be bestowed upon a football player in England than to be called upon to turn out for his country, be it either England, Scotland, Ireland or Wales, and the proof of his ability is established by the fact of his selection. With eight men on the team who already have their international caps, and the remaining players prospective internationals, it will be seen that the team is the strongest possible amateur combination England can put into the field.

The Fore River team which will take the field to do battle against the Englishmen are for the most part Scotchmen, and were well versed in the laws of the code previous to coming to this country. They are one of the finest combinations in this state, and have been champions of the Merrimac Valley league for the past two years.

The characteristic play of the English team is their all-round combination which keeps the custodian backs, half-backs and forwards in perfect harmony with each other. Without a spoken word during the game, when on the field of play, there is at all times unison and clear understanding among the players. The play of the backs is well up the field, and within easy reach of the halves, whom they are ever ready to "feed." They are fast in their play, ready to hold up or overtake any sprinters in the opposing forward division. They are all speedy players, making their runs all in a line with a series of short passes and counter passes.

Rattlesnake Killed at Blue Hill

A rattlesnake, bearing nine rattles, was killed in the Blue Hills Monday afternoon by Division Inspector John Dillon of Avon, says the Brockton Enterprise. The reptile did not have a chance to put up a fight, Mr. Dillon bearing down on him with a club before he had time to get away or resent the attack. The snake measured about four feet long and was one of the largest seen in that vicinity for a long time. A few days ago, one about the same size was killed by one of Ferguson's teamsters in about the same locality.

Mr. Dillon was coming to Brockton at about 3 o'clock in a car from Mattapan and the car was near the Milton and Quincy line when the snake was discovered crossing the road. Inspector Dillon had the car stopped and as he jumped to the ground, he picked up a stake which had been left in the street from the time repairs had been made. It was a formidable weapon and the first shot aimed by Mr. Dillon took the life out of the snake. He was soon finished, the inspector having but little difficulty in doing the job.

Fire Drill

Quick Hitches And Good Work By Firemen At Wollaston

There was another very creditable exhibition of the Quincy Fire department on Thursday evening, the Wollaston station being the scene this time. There were remarkably quick hitches, skilful handling of ladders, and expert work with the hose.

Among the invited guests were Mayor Thompson, President Piper of the City Council, City Treasurer Fay, Commissioner Burke, Chief Litchfield, Assistant Engineers O'Brien and Nyhan, Councilman Hobbs, ex-Engineer Benjamin King, Capt. Gallagher of Combination 1, Capt Hayes of Truck 3, Frank L. Carlton and Russell Jones.

Capt. Rhodes was master of ceremonies and Russell Jones was the time keeper.

The first exhibition was by the Hook and Ladder company. The gong was sounded and it required but 22 seconds to make the hitch and cross the threshold. The company had a ladder on the roof of the station in 1 minute, 24 seconds, and 3 seconds later a fireman was on the ridge pole.

The ladders were left in position and it was the Hose company's turn to show their skill. The gong was sounded and in 23 seconds the hitch was made and the wagon crossed the threshold. The company laid 250 feet of hose and had water on the roof in 1 minute, 23 seconds from the gong.

By request the Ladder company was given another trial. This time they crossed the threshold in 24 seconds, had the ground ladder raised in 1 minute, 5 seconds, and had a man on the ridge pole in 1 minute 29 seconds.

The exhibition was witnessed by a large number of interested citizens, and the small boy.

A collation was served in the basement including sandwiches, ice cream and cake and coffee.

At the smoke talk which followed remarks of a congratulating nature were made by all the gentlemen mentioned above, and also by Capt. Shea and others of the Wollaston station.

Mayor Thompson was particularly pleased with the skill of the Wollaston firemen, and thought it a good idea to have frequent exhibitions by the different companies.

Auk of Quincy A Good Second

In Yesterday's Quincy Cup Race. Manchester Nearly 3 Minutes Behind

	H.	M.	S.
WINDRIM KID, Corinthian club,	1	36	14
AUK, Quincy club,	1	36	56
MANCHESTER, Manchester club	1	39	47
BONIDREI, Boston club	1	40	18

The Windrim Kid, the Quincy built yacht, came to the front on Thursday in the second of the Quincy challenge cup races off Manchester. The Auk, the Quincy challenger, was a close second, while the Manchester the defending boat was defeated over three minutes and the Bonidrei over four minutes.

Thursday's race was over a triangular course, three miles to a leg, the first leg being to windward, out of Manchester harbor to Archers rock buoy, off Marblehead harbor, thence to the southeast breaker, northeast of Halfway rock and back to Manchester. The last two legs provided broad reaches, and there was no running free.

The race was won in the windward work, and during the first half of the first leg, says the Globe. After getting a bad start the Kid went over to Misery Island, closely followed by the Auk, and there the pair started uphill for a square, hard battle, in which the Marblehead aspirant dropped the Quincy club's boat second by second, until she had spun out a lead of just three-quarters of a minute. That doesn't seem much, but in a windward climb it is a lot, and in this instance it was enough to nail the flag of victory to the mast. The other two boats chose to stand out to Bakers Island on the start, thereby putting themselves half a mile to the bad, a loss which neither was able to make good, as both boats ahead went faster than they.

The Kid rounded the mark at 3.13.15, the Auk at 3.14.30, the Bonidrei at 3.15.20, and the Manchester last at 3.16.07.

The Auk made the best time of the fleet on the second leg, but was 30 seconds behind at the second turn.

The Windrim Kid recovered 12 seconds of her lead on the last leg and the Manchester slipped into third place.

The elapsed time for the race is given at the head of the column. The elapsed time on each of the three legs was as follows:

FIRST LEG.

Boat	Elapsed time M.	S.
Windrim Kid	48	45
Auk	49	30
Bonidrei	50	20
Manchester	51	07

SECOND LEG.

Windrim Kid	22	55
Auk	22	40
Bonidrei	23	29
Manchester	23	09

THIRD LEG.

Windrim Kid	24	34
Auk	24	46
Manchester	25	31
Bonidrei	26	29

The Auk had another new sail on Thursday which worked much better than the one used on Wednesday. It was a Wilson Silsbee mainsail.

The Manchester has been defeated in one race. If the Quincy challenger does not get possession of the cup, perhaps a Quincy built boat will.

After the first race the Herald said: "The feeling at Manchester now is that the Manchester will be able to win the three races necessary to successfully defend the cup. She proved in Wednesday's race that she will be a hard one for the other boats to beat."

Wait and see.

The third of the cup races is being sailed today over a course to the windward and return. It will be necessary to extend the series of races into next week for one boat to win three.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Don't advertise if you think you are wasting your money. Let your competitor waste his money on advertising, and, perhaps in this way you can put him out of business. Fix his clock works for him. Just stand back and laugh at him when you see him squandering his money for printer's ink.—Exchange.

☞ A certain young man of this section, who has shown marked ability as a football player, has recently been offered a scholarship in three colleges if he will come and put his muscle at the service of the institution he selects. While these offers do not come directly from the college faculities, it is apparent that the athletic committees must know how to arrange matters to make their promise good.—Taunton Gazette.

☞ Expose the corn and pass the finger tips of your right hand over it slowly and caressingly, and at the same time sending a vibration from the brain to the corn. If it is a soft corn, 413 vibrations per second will suffice; if a hard corn, put on forced draught. Repeat slowly: I am now sending a current of thought force into my corn, and so separating, deducing, disintegrating, rendering, splitting, sundering, splintering, snipping, dwellicating, whittling, dispersing, dislocating, deliding, divorcing, pulverizing slashing, slicing and dissectiag it, that presently it will pass away." Repeat it three times; then, with rising reflection: "Avaunt! Avaunt! Avaunt!" Finish by repeating the password, "The universe is mine. I am it." The corn will at first look extremely surprised, then wilt and fade beautifully from sight.—New Thought.

☞ The Democrats are desperate because Moran still holds to his nomination by the Prohibs, and is determined to enter the Democratic primaries. Two schemes have been discussed. One is to renominate ex-Governor Douglas, and the other to place Congressman Sullivan first on the ticket and Whitney second. Whitney is ready to do anything for the sake of harmony. Douglas says he will support the nominee, whoever it may be. Moran says he is attending strictly to his duties as District Attorney, which interpreted by some means that he is making a great bid for Democratic delegates. He is certainly a thorn in the flesh of Josiah Quincy and other complacent leaders, who have had heretofore but to draw the bow and everyone danced, and those who have witnessed the squirming of the bosses are now laughing quietly in their sleeves. We mistake Moran greatly if he does not continue to prove a disappolutment to Quincy, et al.—Lynn Item.

REVOLT SPREADS

Cuba Evidently Has a Big Job on Her Hands

BUYS RAPID-FIRE GUNS

Bandera, Negro Rebel Leader, and Two of His Followers Are Killed In Encounter With Rural Guards Near Havana

Havana, Aug. 24.—Font Sterling, secretary of the treasury, late last night cleared up a misleading announcement made at the palace last night to the effect that the Cuban government had asked the United States for eight rapid-fire guns manned by American artillerymen to be used in the suppression of the insurrection.

The facts are, according to the secretary, that the government has ordered from an American arms manufacturing compony four rapid-fire guns and that these pieces will be manned by former members of the artillery branch of the American army now here. If these guns prove to be effective four or more additional guns will be ordered, and it is expected that experienced gunners can be procured in the United States to man them. The United States has not been asked to do anything in the premises.

The killing of the negro insurrectionary leader, General Quentin Bandera, in an engagement between rural guards and a band of his followers, is regarded as dealing the insurrection a heavy blow.

The arrival of Bandera's body here was the first news of the fight in which he met his death.

The conflict occurred at Silviera farm, near Punta Brava, 15 miles from Havana. Thirty-eight mounted rural guards were searching throughout the night for Bandera's party. At 2 a. m. the rural guards were breaking through a wire fence at the edge of the Silveira farm when they were suddenly fired upon by Bandera's 20 followers.

The guards rushed upon the insurgents, but with the exception of their chief and his two leading comrades, they all succeeded in getting away. Bandera and his companions received several bullet wounds and were mutilated by machete cuts. Not one of the guards was wounded. The bodies of Bandera and his companions were placed in a wagon and taken to Havana.

The smallness of the party accompanying Bandera has caused surprise here, but it is believed that he only had a portion of his band with him.

The government is acting with energy in sending rural guards and volunteers against the Santa Clara rebels and in dispatching 150 more men to defend Pinar del Rio against Pino Guerra. The capture of San Juan de Martinez by Guerra's band was not expected so soon. The place was protected by a small detachment of rural guards, while Guerra's strength was much greater. The taking of Pinar del Rio will be quite another matter, since there are in that vicinity twice as many troops as Guerra can muster.

Public opinion appears to vary according to locality, from enthusiastic adherence to the government to open rebellion. In this city the general attitude is one of loyalty.

The opposition and independent newspapers discuss with analytical coldness the cry that if the government is not able to squelch the insurrection within two months other forceful means must be employed for the restoration of peace. There are no ringing calls to arms. The Moderate newspapers print with approval the resolutions declaring adhesion to the government by their party organizations, but there has been nothing which could be fairly described as a general rising of the people in defense of the government.

Hurrying Tobacco Out of Cuba

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 24.—A private cablegram from one of the largest exporting firms in Havana to its correspondents here says the revolution in Cuba is assuming grave proportions. The information has caused much alarm here. All ships arriving from Havana are crowded with shipments of tobacco, indicating that importers feel great anxiety and are getting as much tobacco out of Cuba as possible before it may be impossible to bring shipments out of any Cuban ports.

Not Posted on Insurrection

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 24.—Senator Burnham, chairman of the Cuban relations committee of the senate, when asked for an opinion on the situation in Cuba, said that he had received no advices whatever regarding the insurrection. He said he did not expect to be called upon to deal with the situation in Cuba unless some legislative question concerning the affairs of this country were involved.

Press Furnishes the News

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 24.—The only official advices received here concerning Cuban conditions have been forwarded from the state department in the shape of brief reports from the American charge at Havana. None of these has thrown any light on the situation other than that contained in the press dispatches.

Military Man Called Home

New York, Aug. 24.—It is reported here that the steamer Esperanza, which sailed for Cuba yesterday, carries in her hold a complete field battery of artillery consigned to the Cuban government. Captain More of the Cuban artillery, who has been in this country on leave of absence, was hurriedly recalled to Havana and sailed on the Esperanza. He was obliged to charter a tug, which overhauled the Esperanza down the bay. The trip in the tug had been preceded by an anxious train ride from Washington and a drive at full speed in a cab to the steamer's pier.

No Outbreak In Santiago

Santiago, Cuba, Aug. 24.—There has been no insurrectionary outbreak in this city or province, but many alarming reports are current. Business here is suffering on account of the disturbed condition of the country.

As Viewed by London Press

London, Aug. 24.—The newspapers print editorials on the situation in Cuba and speculate as to the probability of the United States being obliged to intervene to restore order. However, it is generally admitted that the American government has no desire to take such a step, as it would mean the annexation of the island.

The Daily Telegraph says that intervention would create something like ferment throughout the South American republics, but that America's interests in the island are so great that public opinion in the United States will not tolerate a prolonged and aimless rebellion which would stultify all the good work accomplished there under American influence.

The Morning Post thinks the position suggests that the difficulty of the Spaniards in dealing with "the turbulent islanders" was greater than the Americans were originally inclined to believe.

The Daily Mail thinks it a mistake to suppose the rising can be easily or swiftly suppressed and that the United States will be obliged to intervene and says it thinks the situation in Cuba should be a warning to Great Britain to go slowly in the Transvaal.

HAD TO RUN FOR LIFE

Mob of Italians Chased a Contractor Through the Streets

New London, Conn., Aug. 24.—James Riley, a section boss over a gang of Italians employed on the local street railway, was mobbed because he struck Frank Serio, one of the laborers, over the head with a pickaxe handle. Serio was taken to the hospital with a fractured skull and he will probably die.

Riley was forced to run through the streets for half a mile to police headquarters with a crowd of excited Italians at his heels armed with shovels and pickaxes.

Riley was locked up and held in $10,000 bonds for examination on a charge of assault with intent to murder. The assault upon Serio was said to have been provoked, Serio having threatened to smash the foreman's head with a big stone.

Sparrows Caused Epidemic

Three Oaks, Mich., Aug. 24.—The cause of an epidemic of typhoid fever among the 1000 inhabitants of this place was discovered when the dead bodies of several thousand young sparrows in various stages of decomposition were found on the surface of the water in the water works standpipe. Hundreds of sparrows' nests have been built on a ledge that runs around the summit of the standpipe and the young birds are supposed to have fallen into the uncovered standpipe while trying to fly.

Lynched For Trying to Enter House

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 24.—Willie Spain, a negro, 21 years old, was strung up and shot to death by a mob near St. George. A mob went to the sheriff with a demand for the keys of the jail. Securing the keys, the jail was unlocked and the negro taken to the house of S. L. Connor, where his daughter, who was alone in the house, identified Spain as the one who tried to climb through the window, but who was frightened away by her screams.

A Hero's Noble Sacrifice

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 24.—Though fatally scalded by the explosion of several tubes in the boiler room of the Absecon pumping station, Joseph Medara, one of the firemen employed in the place, ran a quarter of a mile to procure a doctor for his two fellow-firemen, who he believed to have been more seriously injured than himself. He fell unconscious as he told of the accident and died shortly afterward.

Japan Will Seek Facts

Tokio, Aug. 24.—The Japanese consul at Vancouver having reported that it is impossible for him to obtain a satisfactory or full report of the killing of the Japanese poachers by Americans in the Aleutian islands, the Japanese government has decided to carry out its own investigation of the affair and may send a consul to the Pribyloff islands.

Liabilities of $330,000

New York, Aug. 24.—William H. Beverly, formerly chief clerk in the employ of the concern, has been appointed assignee of the suspended stock commission house of M. J. Sage & Co., which had branches throughout the country. Beverly found the liabilities to be about $330,000, with assets of $116,000.

Flood Invaded Cemetery

Kansas City, Aug. 24.—The washing out of graves at Elmwood cemetery by torrential rains exposed nearly 200 bodies. Much damage was done in the country districts. In the city 5.93 inches of water fell in 3½ hours.

IN NEED OF FOOD

Authorities Are Distributing Supplies at Valparaiso

CITY IN STATE OF SEIGE

Earthquakes of Moderate Violence Continue--Movement on Foot to Raise Funds Necessary to Reconstruct the City

Valparaiso, Aug. 24.—Fernandez Blanco, governor of the province of Valparaiso, has proclaimed the city of Valparaiso in a state of siege and has conferred supreme authority on Navy Captain Carreno. The prefect of police is charged with the duty of collecting and distributing foods. One of the first acts of the military governor was to issue an order that any person found breaking water mains should be shot. The water supply is fairly adequate, and repairs are actively progressing on a large number of mains that were broken by the earthquake.

The whole of Victoria street last night was illuminated by electric lamps. Two other streets also were lighted. Electric cars already are running between Baron station and Becreo. The total number of corpses buried up to Aug. 21 was 648.

Meat and bread are scarce. Meat is now being distributed by the authorities. The grocers' shops that were not destroyed by the earthquake are now nearly out of stock. Canned meats, condensed milk and biscuits are much needed.

Sanitary conditions are being established in the encampments, and most of the people are lighthearted, though four or five earth shocks of moderate violence are experienced daily. The Red Cross is caring for thousands of wounded.

A movement is on foot to organize a company to facilitate the raising of money necessary to reconstruct the city. It is proposed to advance the sums needed without interest for the first six months. The plan is to construct the new buildings of light materials and to lay out the streets so that they will have a uniform width of 20 metres.

All the provinces of the north and south which have not suffered from the earthquake are sending supplies of food and money to the cities and towns which suffered from the disturbance.

The department of public works at Santiago has appropriated $100,000 for the construction of sheds to shelter the refugees from Valparaiso and elsewhere, who continue to arrive at the Chilean capital in large numbers.

When the house of President-elect Montt collapsed, his wife fell from the balcony into the street and bandits who were passing cut off her ears and fingers to rob her of her jewelry. She was taken in a dying state on board the Chilean warship O'Higgins.

Assistance From Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Aug. 24.—The citizens' relief committee, formed at the time of the San Francisco earthquake of April 18, has set aside $10,000 to be forwarded to earthquake sufferers at Valparaiso. This sum was taken from the $80,000 remaining of the $240,000 given at the time of the San Francisco earthquake.

American Consulate Ruined

Washington, Aug. 24.—Robert S. Atkin, the American vice consul at Valparaiso, sent a dispatch to the state department announcing that everything in the American consulate in that city was destroyed and no supplies are available.

Prompter Vicchi Returned to Italy

New York, Aug. 24.—Because he is suffering from trachoma, Felix Vicchi, prompter at the Metropolitan Opera house and a member of the Conried Grand Opera company, was deported today on the steamer Vaderland by order of the Ellis island immigration officials. Vicchi had just returned from Italy, whither he went with his wife for rest, following the effects of the San Francisco earthquake. He will immediately seek treatment in Europe.

Heavy Insurance Adjusted

San Francisco, Aug. 24.—The insurance loss on the Palace hotel building has been adjusted at $1,302,610. This is more than the insurance companies will have to pay, for the total insurance of the building was only $1,265,000. It being a total loss, a liability of a trifle over $1,250,000 will be distributed among 98 companies involved in the loss. This is said to have been the largest loss upon a single risk ever adjusted in this country.

Bank Officers Under Fire

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 24.—The preliminary examination of Senator John Lovitt and Samuel A. Crowell, president and vice president respectively of the Bank of Yarmouth, who are charged by a shareholder of the bank with making false returns to the government, has begun. The evidence thus far has not disclosed anything of a startling nature.

Sons of Veterans' New Commander

Peoria, Ills., Aug. 24.—The national convention of Sons of Veterans closed with the election of officers and the selection of Dayton, O., as the next meeting place. E. N. Amies of Altoona, Pa., was elected commander-in-chief in a spirited contest in which A. M. Soule of Portland, Me., and J. B. Adams of Atlantic City were defeated.

NEW ENGLAND COOLS OFF

Northern Wind and Thunder Showers Bring Great Relief

Boston, Aug. 24.—A few hours before the heat wave, which has held persistently over New England since last Saturday, was broken last evening by the advent of a cool blast of air from the north, many portions of New England were visited by thunder showers of more or less intensity.

The shower, which passed down the Merrimac river and then northeastward over southwestern Maine, resulted in the death of William Hutchins, a farmer, at Kennebunk, a hailstorm in Portland and the destruction of two barns in York, while the same disturbance caused the burning by lightning of two buildings in Peterborough, N. H.

Thunder showers also prevailed in Vermont and certain portions of northern Maine, but no reports as to extensive damage have been received.

The cool wave which followed closely after the thunder showers brought great relief to the entire New England section. The thermometer in this city dropped 10 degrees within a few minutes last evening, while in Biddeford overcoats were necessary at 10 o'clock, where an hour before the lightest garments seemed a burden.

The heat wave began on Saturday and prostrations have been greater during the six days than at any time this summer, more than a score of human beings succumbing yesterday in this city, while outside localities had about an equal proportion to the number of inhabitants. A continuation of the cool wave is anticipated for the next few days.

Health Board Starts an Inquiry

Boston, Aug. 24.—The state board of health has been asked by the Newburyport officials to assist in handling the cases of ice cream poisoning which were discovered in that city and which are alleged to have been caused by the giving away of ice cream from eight to 10 days ago by John Canapa, who, it is alleged, told children living in the vicinity of his store that the ice cream was too old to sell, but that they might have it if they would take it home and eat it. An agent of the state board was immediately dispatched to Newburyport and began his investigation of the case.

Driving Party Dumped Into River

Great Barrington, Mass., Aug. 24.—Dr. Richard Cobdon of Larchmont, N. Y., engaged a three-seated vehicle for a ride through some of the local hills, and in crossing the river just above this place the bridge suddenly collapsed and the entire party of nine landed on the rocks in the Housatonic river in about three feet of water. They were hastily extricated and brought to the bank, but Miss Emily Morrison was seriously injured. The others suffered from bruises from the rocks.

Want Judiciary System Changed

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 24.—A committee of the Vermont State Bar association appointed to consider the propriety of a change in the judiciary system of the state, has prepared its report in the form of a bill to be introduced in the legislature. The bill provides for a supreme court of five judges to sit as a court of appeals and a circuit court of five judges to hold county courts in connection with the assistant judges now elected by each county.

Veteran Drove Mare to Victory

Readville, Mass., Aug. 24.—Golddust Maid, driven by Ed Geers, won the Ponakoag $4500 stake for 2:10 trotters at the grand circuit meeting here. In the 2:16 trotting race Wesley Baron of the Geers stable made a standstill break near the half, but started up again and finished inside the distance. He hobbled off the track on three legs and it was found that he had broken a forward tendon.

Linked Prisoners Escape

Rutland, Vt., Aug. 24.—Two prisoners handcuffed to each other escaped from Sheriff Fish of this city at Whitehall, N. Y., and they are at large in the woods near that place. Fish was bringing the men here to answer to a charge of burglary. While the party was changing cars at Whitehall the prisoners struck Fish to the ground and made for the woods.

Fell or Jumped Three Stories

Charlton, Mass., Aug. 24.—Mrs. Reba Robst of Philadelphia, aged 35, a guest at the City hotel here, either jumped or fell from a three-story window of the hotel and fractured her spine. Her injuries may prove fatal. The fact that she had removed the screen from the window leads to the belief that she had deliberately jumped.

Waltham Mill Raises Wages

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 24.—An increase of 5 percent in wages has been granted to the 1000 employes of the cotton mills of the Boston Manufacturing company here. Thirty-five back boys who have asked for a 10 percent increase in wages are out on strike, but it is expected they will accept the 5 percent advance.

Heir to Unexpected Fortune

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 24.—It was learned here, through advertisements by the New Mexico authorities, that Dennis Dorsey, employed at a local factory, is one of six heirs to a fortune Xog about $7,000,000 left by his uncle, Thomas Ward, who died in that state recently without a will.

Divorce Mill Grinds Swiftly

New York, Aug. 24.—Judge MacLean in the supreme court yesterday handed down decisions in 63 cases of divorce, which breaks all records in the supreme court here. He dismissed 20 suits, and granted interlocutory decrees in 43.

Only Daily newspaper in county.

Some of the places of historical interest are named below:

BIRTHPLACES OF PRESIDENTS.

Birthplace of John Adams, the first Vice President and second President of the United States, Franklin street, Quincy Adams; house built in 1681 and restored in 1897 by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution. Open to public. Small fee asked.

Birthplace of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, junction of Franklin street, Presidents road and Independence avenue. Built 1716, restored 1896 by the Quincy Historical Society. Open to public afternoons from 2 to 5. Admission charged.

JOHN HANCOCK BIRTHPLACE.

Adams street, junction of Dimmock and Hancock streets. A bronze tablet has been placed by the City of Quincy on Adams Academy to mark the place where the house stood in which the patriot John Hancock, the bold signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born.

MYLES STANDISH CAIRN.

Squantum heights, erected in 1895 by the Daughters of the Revolution, of Massachusetts, in memory of Captain Myles Standish and his men of Plymouth Colony, who landed here Sept. 30, 1621, guided by the indian Tisquantum.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN.

Penns hill, erected June 17, 1896, by Adams Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, to the memory of Abigail Adams, who with her son, John Quincy, from the spot watched the smoke of battle at Bunker Hill. Cairn composed of many historic stones, the corner stone being part of old sleeper of first railroad in United States which ran from Quincy quarries to tide water, Neponset river.

BURIAL PLACE OF PRESIDENTS ADAMS.

First Congregional Church (Unitarian) at Quincy centre. In auditorium each side of high pulpit, are mural monuments, to the memory of John Adams, the second president, and John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States, and their wives. In cellar is old town hearse, also box in which was brought from Washington the body of John Quincy Adams At extreme end, under front steps are the vaults of the presidents, a massive stone door closing the entrance. Admission may be secured on application to W. E. Dewhurst, sexton, 3 Maple Place, or to the office of L. S. Anderson, treasurer, 9 Savings Bank building, whose office hours are 8 A. M. to 12 M. and 2 to 5 P. M. A fee is asked for attendance, etc.

SQUAW ROCK.

Pile of rock, on which is a perfect head of a squaw, frequently mentioned in early Squantum story. Near by is also Sachem's Knoll.

Paint Which Lasts

Painters, and all others who understand paint, know that white lead and linseed oil make the best paint. Good, lasting paint cannot be had if either pigment or oil is adulterated.

Many of the so-called white leads sold now-a-days have barytes, rock-dust, silica, gypsum, etc., in them, and little real white lead.

Linseed oil is also frequently adulterated. Such mixtures are dear at any price.

Salem Pure White Lead

(Made by the Old Dutch Process)

is absolutely pure, and makes lasting paint.

Policemen Charged With Theft

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 26.—E. C. Tabb, C. B. Ruth and Bernard McCabe, policemen in the employ of the Ocean Steamship company upon its docks, and A. B. LaRoach, shipping clerk, were arrested, charged with the theft of articles of merchandise from the wharves. It is charged that the men have been accustomed to break open cases of goods at night and take such articles as they desired. The alleged thefts are said to have been going on for two years.

Policeman's Aim Was Deadly

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—Policeman Michael McNamara last night shot and killed his wife and then sent a bullet through the heart of James B. Brophy in a hotel here. Mrs. McNamara was shot in the back and fell down stairs McNamara gathered the body in his arms and kissed her as she died. The policeman had followed his wife from her home to a saloon, where she met Brophy.

England Backs Newfoundland

St. Johns, Aug. 24.—The Newfoundland government discredits the report that the British cabinet is negotiating with the American government for a settlement of the fishery dispute without referring the matter to the colony. The colonial authorities feel that Great Britain strongly upholds Newfoundland's position and intends to support it.

Fatal Explosion in Quarry

Whitinsville, Mass., Aug. 24.—By the premature explosion of a blast of dynamite at the granite quarry of Blanchard Bros., A. C. Goodwin, aged 35, an employe of the company, was killed, and William Blanchard, a member of the firm, was dangerously injured. The cause of the dynamite exploding before the men were prepared for it is not known.

Police Recover Missing Bond

New York, Aug. 24.—A man giving the name of Harry Clark was arrested here and when searched a United States gold bond, one of four bonds which the local police were asked by the New York sub-treasury officials to be on the lookout for, was found. The only information received by the police was that payment on the bonds had been stopped.

Death in Mine Explosion

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 24.—An explosion of gas occurred in a colliery at Sugar Notch, in which William Vincent, a miner, was killed, his son, William, Jr., fatally injured, and four other men were seriously burned. The explosion did considerable damage to the mines.

TACTICS OF MORAN

Prove a Serious Poser For His Political Opponents

"STRONG MAN" WANTED

Conservative Democrats Hopeful of Inducing Douglas to Enter Race For Nomination For Governor--Whitney Out For Good

Boston, Aug. 24.—Uncertainty characterizes the situation in which prominent members of the Democratic party find themselves, and District Attorney Moran is the only man who continues to plan a definite campaign for delegates to the Democratic state convention which will be held in this city on Oct. 4.

A number of the party leaders known as the conservatives, who are admittedly opposed to Moran's candidacy, have been brought to a standstill, and they are unable to follow the district attorney's tactics for the reason that they are now without a candidate for whom delegates' votes might be pledged.

One of the strongest features of the case, and the one which upset well laid plans for Whitney's campaign, was that Douglas seemed to be unaware that he was being pushed forward once more for the governorship, and the attempt to secure harmony in the party by the withdrawal of both Whitney and Moran was, according to Douglas, without authorization from him.

An interview with Josiah Quincy, chairman of the Democratic state committee, disclosed the fact that there is no hope that the political atmosphere will be cleared for several days. According to Quincy, Whitney is out of the campaign for good, and he will not re-enter it. Former Governor Douglas is the man upon whom Quincy and his followers pin their hope. It is admitted that these men are of the opinion that Douglas will see his way clear to take up the contest against Moran where it was dropped by Whitney.

Mr. Quincy was asked what course would be pursued in the event that Douglas reiterated his determination to stay out of public life. He said: "Nothing definite can be said on this matter for several days. A great deal depends on Mr. Douglas and we are waiting to hear whether or not he will run. If he declines, then some strong Democrat must be brought forward if we are to prevent Moran's nomination by default."

Mr. Quincy said that he had no "strong man" in mind. In response to a question, however, he admitted that Congressman Sullivan was a strong possibility as the representative of the "conservatives" for first place on the ticket. In brief, the situation may be summarized as follows:

Mr. Whitney has withdrawn and will not again enter the campaign. He has gone to Canada, where he has business interests, for an indefinite period. Douglas will not discuss the probability of his entrance into the breach. Moran will remain an active candidate for the Democratic nomination. He will not talk politics, however. Congressman Sullivan of Boston is expected in this city from Canada in a day or two. He may be selected as the leader of the fight against Moran.

Cortelyon at Oyster Bay

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 24.—President Roosevelt consulted yesterday with Postmaster General Cortelyou, who is also chairman of the Republican national committee. The president's keen interest in the congressional campaign has prompted him to gather political information from every source and Cortelyou's discussion with him was probably on the political situation.

Higgins Wants Another Term

New York, Aug. 24.—William Barnes, Jr., chairman of the state executive committee of the Republican state committee, after a conference with Governor Higgins, came to New York last night and announced that the governor was a candidate for renomination. He predicted that Higgins would have over 60 percent of the delegates to the state convention.

Hoke Smith's Victory Complete

Atlanta, Aug. 24.—Practically complete returns from all counties in the state show that in the Democratic primaries Hoke Smith carried 118 counties for governor, J. B. Russell 11, Clark Howell 9, J. H. Estill 4, and J. M. Smith 3. This will insure the nomination of Hoke Smith on the first ballot by an overwhelming vote.

Decision Favoring Labor Men

Leipsic, Aug. 24.—The supreme court of Saxony has decided that employers cannot demand compensation for loss caused by strikes or boycotts. The court also holds that there is no offense against the law when strikers, through the press or by pamphlets, appeal for public support.

Deaths and Prostrations From Heat

Chicago, Aug. 24.—A cool wind from the northeast last night brought relief from the hot spell that has prevailed since Monday. The temperature dropped 14 degrees. Heat caused seven deaths and 17 prostrations yesterday.

Stock Exchange Seat Brings $95,000

New York, Aug. 24.—A seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold yesterday for $95,000. This equals the record price for a seat on the exchange.

Danderine

GREW THIS HAIR

And we can PROVE IT

FRANCES MARIE KNOWLTON,
980 Garfield Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.,
Age 4 Years.

Little Frances Knowlton's beautiful head of golden hair has made her famous the world over. She is only four years old and her hair hangs within one foot of the floor. Dr. E. W. Knowlton, her father, is the discoverer of Danderine, and attributes the beauty of her wonderful growth of hair to the extraordinary hair strengthening qualities of this great hair growing remedy. It has been tested on hundreds of others and has proven absolutely successful in every case. NOW on sale at all druggists, three sizes, 25c. 50c. & $1.00 per bottle. KNOWLTON DANDERINE CO., Chicago.

ARRANGING CURIOS.

Have a Richly Plain Cabinet and Do Not Crowd It.

The proper arrangement of curios really harks back to the time of purchasing, for the cabinet itself is a thing to be considered deeply. No cabinet at all, your curios tucked into uninteresting boxes and hidden away in closet or bureaus, is better than having to display in an impossible gilt cabinet with plush furnishings bits which are eloquent of the east or which are stories of this tribe or that in its days of primitive splendor or which tell tales of deep sea caves and of daring divers.

A plain little cabinet—richly plain, if you can have it so—of plate glass, shelves and all, perhaps, or a cabinet built like a tiny closet, perhaps actually built into the wall, of mahogany or oak in one of its dark finishes, is the best sort to have. In such a cabinet the curios are set off instead of being overshadowed by the magnificence of the case which contains them.

In arranging your curios the main point to remember is that the cabinet must not be crowded. Put away the extra bits, substituting them a little later for some which hold honored places at present.

Studied carelessness, with plenty of room for each thing to show itself off, is the whole thing in a nutshell.

FLOWER VASES.

The Best Results Are Obtained From Those With Wide Necks.

When buying vases take into consideration whether they are to be used as ornaments or for flowers. All flowers are prettier and keep better in a wide neck vase unless one is going to follow the Japanese style of just one or two flowers in a vase. Vases are intended to hold plenty of water and to give the flowers an opportunity to absorb it, so it is quite important that the neck should be nearly as wide as the main part. An ideal vase for narcissuses and daffodils is one of dark green glass. A flat bowl with a wide rim is much better for short stem flowers, such as pansies and violets. Roses are of so many different kinds that they look pretty in vases of various shapes. Nothing is more attractive than a bowl of roses, but it is difficult to arrange. The very tall vases are only appropriate for roses with very long stalks, such as American Beauties. Although green vases are popular, some authorities say that the colored glass prevents the light from getting to the stalks and that flowers live longer in white glass.—New York Post.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

Charcoal absorbs the gas and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

An onion poultice will extract the pain and heat from a scald or burn. To make this poultice take a certain quantity of onions and crush them and lay between cheesecloth and apply to the burn.

Tonsilitis in the first stages can be quickly cured by gargling every hour with this: One-half glass of hot water, one-half teaspoonful of baking soda and one teaspoonful of listerine.

Boiling vinegar applied as hot as can be borne to the gum and cavity of an aching tooth will allay the pain. Use a bit of absorbent cotton to pack the tooth cavity and apply until relief is obtained.

For itching of the skin many skin doctors recommend lotions of bromide of potassium. The strength may be one part of the salt in sixty parts of water. It is not a poisonous preparation and may be tried without fear.

Danger of Lead Poisoning.

Lead poisoning, even in a mild form—if such a serious thing can ever assume a mild form—cannot be too closely guarded against. One very simple form of doing so is to fill the night before the kettle that you use for boiling the water for breakfast. The water that has been lying in the water pipes all night, when these said pipes are made of lead, is not very safe to use. It may have become impregnated with the lead, and it is very improbable that people will wait patiently in the early morning until a sufficient quantity of water has been run off to render it perfectly safe to use, which will not be the case until all that which has been standing in the pipes has been run. Of course the water thus used may not do any harm, but still it is always wiser to be on the safe side.

Little Mirrors Are Best.

In the mirrors of today the light is reflected by a layer of silver or an amalgam of tin, but a proportion of light is lost in the process of reflection, and the image is less luminous than the original. The value of a looking glass is usually estimated by the thickness of the glass, because the thicker it is the stronger it must be. But speaking scientifically thick glasses are defective, because the outlines of the image reflected are less clearly defined. An ideal mirror is one with a perfectly flat surface. But it is only possible to obtain this result in comparatively small glasses. The larger glasses do not reflect a true image, because they cannot be made flat.

A Handy Tool.

An adjuster for curtains and pictures has been invented that will no doubt save many a fall, not to speak of sprains and bruises. It consists of a long wooden handle, on the end of which is a hooklike projection of iron. With this hook pictures may be removed from the molding and curtain poles may be adjusted with the greatest ease without having to climb on a chair or stepladder.

The new meter house of the Gas Company near the East Milton line, and is a more attractive structure than some expected.

Thomas Skinner of Sargents lane reports to the police that his hen house was forced open early Thursday morning, and that 19 hens were killed.

Dr. A. H. Gilson attended this week the meeting of the British Medical Association at Toronto, Canada. Two Boston delegates were also present.

Rev. E. D. Webber will preach Sunday morning at the union service at Wollaston which will be held in the Baptist church.

Miss Catherine Meaney of So. Walnut street has returned from Marlboro where she was a guest of friends at a summer camp near there.

Work has commenced on rebuilding the culvert for Furnace brook where the Metropolitan boulevard crosses Willard street.

A crossing has been put in on Cottage avenue at its intersection with Cottage street. One is needed more on the Hancock street end and also on the Chestnut street end of Maple street.

Last night was one of the most uncomfortable of the summer, because it was necessary to close the windows to keep the rain out, and the hot muggy air was bottled up.

Chief Burrell and Lient. McKay were among the invited guests at the annual ball of the Hull police department on Wednesday night at Nantasket point.

The people of Willard street are thankful to the Commissioner for sprinkling Willard street on Thursday, even though it rained that night. The constant teaming of gravel for the boulevard had raised considerable dust.

The Gas Company has completed the extension of the Hancock street main toward Atlantic for this year, having reached Squantum street. Laterals are now being laid in the vicinity of the Tubular Rivet works.

A tract of land of over 12 acres, at Squantum, belonging to the estate of John A. Duggan, has been sold to Robert K. Dickerman, who proposes to develop it. This tract is one of the most sightly around Boston, overlooking Dorchester bay and Boston harbor.

The exhibition of pictures from the Library Art club of Granada and the Alhambra closes this week. The citadel and palace is considered the finest specimen of Moorish architecture. About twenty of the photographs may be seen on the library walls today and tomorrow.

Saw an Iceberg And Everything

Miss Minnie F. Donavan of the Lincoln school arrived home Tuesday on the "Canadian" enthusiastic over her European trip. "Such a delightful time as we had. Not a bit of fog or rain the whole trip over—just glorious sunshine. A gentleman on board who has crossed 110 times, said he never saw such perfect weather."

Miss Donavan said words failed to express their splendid trip which was without a dull moment. Her only regret was that she could not stay longer at the places she visited.

Miss Donavan did not have one day's illness and never missed a meal. She even enjoyed crossing the English channel and Irish sea.

On tha way home Capt. Bullock said: "You teachers make me tired; you want to see a whale; you want to see an iceberg. I have not seen an iceberg at this time of the year for twenty years." Scarcely two hours after he had said it, on Friday morning, off the Grand Banks they passed one of the largest icebergs the officers had ever seen; grand and stately, a towering mountain of glistening ice and the air was very cold, though they were ten miles away from it.

Better Luck.

The steam trawler Spray, built at Quincy, which has had a series of misfortunes this summer, left Thursday for the fishing grounds in command of Capt. Oliver Nelson of Gloucester. Since Capt. Dexter Malone quit the Spray in June she has had several different skippers. She has been in collision three times, and her last one, three weeks ago, with an ocean-going tug, resulted in her going into dry dock while a dozen new plates were put in her bow. Schooner fishermen who have long looked upon the Spray as a Jonah shook their heads this week, says the Herald, when they saw her being stocked to go to sea. To their minds the old style trawl fishing will never be succeeded on this coast by the English type of trawler.

—The German government has decided to widen the Kiel ship canal from 60 to 120 feet. It will cost about $50,000,000 to do this, and it is thought that the work is to be undertaken because of the constantly increasing size of war ships.

To Play for Championship

The Merrymounts and South Quincys have arranged a series of games for the championship of Quincy. Saturday the two teams will meet at Merrymount Park, and on Sept 1 will play at Ward Three playground. These games are arousing a lot of enthusiasm, as the fans have not forgotten the exciting games of last season between these two teams, and there will be a big crowd of rooters on hand to make things lively.

Time To Vaccinate.

It is time for parents who have children to enter school for the first time, to bethink themselves of vaccination. Much delay will be saved, and much annoyance, if this is attended to in time for complete recovery before the opening of school. Parents are reminded also that beginners must enter in September if at all. They cannot be received after the class is fairly under way.

Hyde Park Candidate.

Dr. Samuel A. Tuttle, one of Hyde Park's best known and highly esteemed citizens, has, at the urgent request of his many friends, decided to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Senate from this district.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

PARAGON PARK.

As the season draws to a close business at Greater Paragon Park, Nantasket beach, increases in a most notable manner. Every Sunday is bigger than the previous one; every week day exceeds the business of the day before.

This week the free open-air circus contains more sensational acts. The biggest hair-raiser is Miss Sadie Knowlton, the champion woman cyclist, who gives what she calls "The Dash of Death." On a bicycle she rides down a narrow incline from 100 feet in the air and plunges into the lagoon.

All the shows are doing well, especially "Hades to Paradise by Airship," Lover's Lane, Pike's Peak, Foolish House, Circle Swing, Figure 8 Roller Coaster, Johnstone Flood and 'Frisco Disaster.

Paragon Park this season will pursue the same policy as of last season and close on the end of Labor day, Sept. 3.

—The Plymouth County Republican campaign committee will begin its work in the fall campaign with a special meeting this afternoon at Hotel Belmont, Brockton. At this time final arrangements will be made for the outing and dinner to be held at Nantasket Sept. 6. The speaker for that occasion will be Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and Gov. Guild. Lieut. Gov. Eben S. Draper, Secretary of State William M. Olin, State Treasurer Arthur Chapin and State Auditor Henry Turner are among others invited to speak.

—A violent storm Tuesday, caused thick clouds of ashes from Mount Vesuvious to fall over Naples, causing great alarm among the inhabitants, but Vesuvious was perfectly calm.

—The eleven sons and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Willis assisted at the golden wedding of the couple at Whitman on Tuesday.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,
as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, in buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Your Sick Child
can't tell you what it has or how it feels—it only shows it is sick and miserable. If it is restless and peevish, doesn't sleep well, has pains in the stomach and bowels or has an erratic appetite the trouble undoubtedly is stomach or pin worms. Give the little one a few doses of that famous old life saver
DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR
IN USE 54 YEARS.
If worms are present they will be expelled. If no worms exist this wonderful medicine acts gently, yet positively, in toning up the whole system to rugged health.
CENTRE ABINGTON, MASS.
DR. TRUE.
DEAR SIR:—I wish to inform you of the success I have had in using your Elixir. I gave it to my children and after the third dose, one of them, a boy six years old, passed a long round worm which I believe is more than six inches long, what you call a stomach worm. I also wish to say it is one of the safest and best medicines to have in the house for children. I would not be without it now.
Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Henry C. Joy.

Activity in Naturalization

There is considerable activity in the city, especially among swedes, to take out naturalization papers before the new law goes into effect next month. A. Swedish American Republican State League has been organized, of which Theodore Hermanson of this city is secretary. A convention will be held on Monday next at the head-quarters of the Republican State Committee. There will be two delegates from Quincy, Messrs. Hermanson and Councilman Otto Gellotte. Gov. Guild has been invited to attend, also Maj. Talbot, the chairman of the State Committee and others.

Clubs will be organized in all cities and towns where Swedes are located.

Judge Avery has been asked to hold a special evening session for naturalization.

Another Candidate.

Ex-Representative Jeremiah J. Good of Ward 17, Boston, say the Globe, according to reliable authority, will probably be a candidate for the congressional nomination at the primaries in the 10th district. Mr. Good, who is one of the most active figures in the Tammany club of ward 17, of which Alderman James M. Curley is chairman, will probably go into the fight as the labor candidate, and it is understood that he will have the endorsement of many labor men of the state.

Pastor Called.

A meeting of the Congregational church society at Hollis, N. H., was held Thursday evening, and it was voted to call Rev. Leon Hudson Austin of Quincy, Mass., as pastor of the church. The action of the society was in concurrence with that taken by the church a short time ago. Rev. Mr. Austin if he accepts, will succeed Rev. Samuel Jerrould, who died recently.

TODAY'S COURT.

Christopher Frahar arraigned for breaking and entering at Weymouth was held in $500 bonds for the grand jury.

George Tate for cruelty to horse at Quincy, was fined $15. On the case for drunkenness he was discharged.

Charles P. Whiston of Randolph for sale of liquor, paid a fine of $75.

Charles A. Lyons of Quincy, for larceny; case continued until Oct. 29.

Trotting at Readville.

The best time at Readville on Thursday was 2.07 3-4 made by Golddust Maid in the Ponkapoag 2.10 class, for purse of $1200. In the 2.16 class Totara won in three straight beats. Both Axos and Carmina won in their races to beat 2.30.

Sudden Death.

William McConnell of Bradford street has received word of the sudden death of his brother, David, at Lawrence on Thursday. He formerly lived in Quincy and was a stone cutter. He was found dead in bed, from natural causes.

Gambling a Religious Duty.

"Speaking of gambling," a missionary said, "I know of a sect that regards it as a religious duty, like fasting or prayer. This sect is the Hindoos. They one day in each year gamble like mad from sunrise till sunset. The day is the festival of the lamps, a day sacred to Lakshun, the goddess of wealth. A tremendous lot of money changes hands in Lakshun's honor. All this gambling is done to test the financial success that will attend on each person throughout the year. If a gambler loses he knows a year of hard luck is ahead of him. If he wins he knows he may expect a twelvemonth of prosperity. Strange to say, a good deal of cheating accompanies this religious gambling."

Champion Divers.

"Larry Donovan," said a professional swimmer, "made the highest dive on record. It was 210 feet—a dive from the Brooklyn bridge. Donovan also took a dive from Niagara bridge, a good 200 feet. There are no other divers in the same class with Larry. Jack Burns made a dive of 150 feet from the topmost yardarm of the Three Brothers, the largest sailing ship of its time, and Jim O'Rourke and Julius Gautier have done some good diving, too—100 feet, 125 feet, and so on—but it is doubtful if Donovan's record will ever be broken."

Winged Foe of Pet Canaries.

Charleston (S. C.) pet canaries are being killed by a bird that is known as the "loggerhead." A loggerhead strikes at the canaries through the bars of the cage.

—A canvass of the New England States for the Boston Chamber of Commerce shows that the crop of fall apples is in excess of last year, but that the winter varieties do not promise to be so plentiful, and the supply of baldwins will be lighter.

The Yachts Taking Turns

Bonidrei Wins The Third Race Auk of Quincy Finished Last

	H.	M.	S.
BONIDREI, Boston club	2	26	55
MANCHESTER, Manchester club	2	28	20
WINDRIM KID, Corinthian club,	2	31	00
AUK, Quincy club,	2	33	00

The four yachts entered in the Quincy challenge cup races off Manchester are taking turns in winning. First it was the Manchester, then the Windrim Kid and yesterday the Bonidrei. If the compliment is passed around it will be the Auk's turn today. The courage of Skipper Adams and the members of the Quincy Yacht club continues bouyant.

Friday's course was two and one-half miles to the windward, twice round, with a wholesale breeze from the east south-east. The boats went off against a rugged sea, to which the Auk seemed to take more kindly than the rest. She worked out a lead on the Kid in the first half of the beat, and at the weather mark she led her by 1m 40s.

The Auk also led at the starting line at the end of the first round, but all the others had gained on her. At this time there was nothing to it but the Auk, as she had a lead of 1m, 25s.

On the windward work on the second round the Auk run into a calm streak, while the Bonidrei, holding well over to the Manchester shore, struck a nice little breeze off the land. The Manchester had followed the Bonidrei, while the Windrim Kid had held off shore, where there was also some wind. When the quartet came together at the outer mark the Bonidrei was in the lead, with the Manchester second, the Kid third and the Auk in last place.

The Auk, however, continued to lose ground after the turn. The relative position was the same at the finish, the Bonidrei winning by 1m., 25s. over the Manchester; 4m., 5s. ahead of the Windrim Kid, and just 7m. ahead of the Auk.

The elapsed time for the race is given at the head of the column. The elapsed time on each of the four legs was as follows:

Small Blaze In Big Tenement

It is some time since box 171, the danger box at the corner of Union and Main streets, has been pulled, and it proved unnecessary last evening. It was well, however, to take no chances.

About 6.30, Henry Kerr, who occupies the lower floor of the six-tenement house at No. 35 Union street, discovered his rooms full of smoke. Upon opening a closet door he found the clothing on fire. He took chances and rushed the coats to the sink in the kitchen, and succeeded in putting out the blaze. There was considerable smoke for awhile, but the damage was slight.

The apparatus from the central station made a remarkably quick run and Engineers Litchfield and Packard and Hose 4 were also on hand had their services been needed.

War, but No Gore, In Stage Fuss

Managers Use Wordy Hot Shot In Fight For Play.

"The Kreutzer Sonata" Wanted For Rival Theatrical Stars.

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

A battle royal is on in New York theatricals over Jacob Gordin's play, "The Kreutzer Sonata." No blood, only words, have flowed, as yet, but give the rival managers time. The trusty bowie knives may be drawn at any moment.

Harrison Grey Fiske is at the crank of the machine gun department on one side. The firm of Wagenhals & Kemper have hoisted the skull and crossbones at the mizzen top of their good old frigate Prior Rights, and over the port side leans a short, narrow, slippery plank, on which Mr. Fiske is warmly invited to "pedestrianize."

Mr. Fiske claims the play for Mme. Kalich, his promising new star, and has engaged a company for her support for the coming season.

Wagenhals & Kemper have done the same for Blanche Walsh, who produced the play in Chicago. Mme. Kalich appeared previously in the play at the Thalia theater, New York.

Mr. Fiske says:

"The Kreutzer Sonata" was written for Mme. Bertha Kalich several years ago upon an order from her husband, Leopold Spachner. As it is the custom with the Yiddish dramatists, the author sold his work outright, receiving his price in full for it. Later Mr. Spachner disposed of a half interest in the play to his then partner in the management of the Thalia theater, David Kessler, and under their management the play was produced with Mme. Kalich in the principal role. "The Kreutzer Sonata" has been owned solely and continuously by Spachner & Kessler, and my rights to perform the play in English with Mme. Kalich were acquired by arrangement with them. Mr. Gordin had no rights in "The Kreutzer Sonata" to dispose of two years ago to Messrs. Wagenhals & Kemper or at any other time or to any one else. When Messrs. Wagenhals & Kemper produced "The Kreutzer Sonata" in Chicago the owners prepared to take legal steps to restrain further unauthorized performances of the play.

MME. KALICH, CELEBRATED YIDDISH ACTRESS.

The author, Gordin, sides with Wagenhals & Kemper and says:

"Mr. Fiske recently announced through the press that no one in the world has any rights to 'The Kreutzer Sonata' except himself. Even the author of the play must not presume to set forth his claims. Such absolute rights were said to be conferred upon the rulers of the past by divine grace of heaven. Mr. Fiske acquired his rights by the grace of his trusted associate in the management of Miss Kalich—one Mr. Spachner.

"Mr. Fiske appropriates my literary property, my own work, and openly consigns it to 'The Jungle.' He proposes to make out of the tissue of my brains and nerves 'sausages' for himself and his co-mate, Mr. Spachner. He is mistaken, however, if he thinks he can do so with impunity.

"My able lawyers will safeguard my rights in the court of law. On my part I intrust my case to a higher court—to the court of honest public opinion and social equity.

"This piracy, which has passed from the commercial world into the literary, must be stopped."

BANK CLAIMS FRAUD

Begins Action Against President ot Failed Institution

Boston, Aug. 25.—Sylvester B. Hinckley of Newton, president of the First National bank of Chelsea, which recently closed its doors, has been petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy by the Fall River Five Cents savings bank. Hinckley is seriously ill at his home, and his recovery is not expected.

The Fall River bank, in its allegations, says that Hinckley obtained $12,000 upon a promissory note on Feb. 12, 1906, the same being made payable to bearer, thus making it a paper of tender.

The petitioners also state that Hinckley, "in order to hinder, delay and defraud his creditors, and with the intent to prefer the First National bank of Chelsea over his other creditors, made over his holdings to that institution."

In doing this, it is also alleged that he conveyed to the Chelsea bank on Aug. 10, 1906, a parcel of real estate in Boston, by a deed dated Aug. 10, which was recorded in the registry of deeds, Boston, on Aug. 13, and that he also conveyed real estate, situated in Newton, to the same bank, upon the same day; and on Aug. 17, another deed, conveying certain real estate in Boston, the deed of which is dated Dec. 19, 1896, and that he caused the same to be recorded on Aug. 13, 1906.

Two Wives Claim Young Man

Newton, Mass., Aug. 25.—James B. Fisher, 23, arrested on a bigamy charge, is said to have married first a Cambridge girl, after an exciting romance, and then a Waltham girl. Fisher married Miss Sarah Parker four years ago and started in housekeeping at North Cambridge. He went frequently to Waltham evenings and is said to have been very attentive to Miss Ethel Morris. Miss Morris, thinking she was associating with an unmarried youth, accepted a matrimonial proposal in a romantic way, and in a city outside of the Bay state the ceremony was quietly performed.

Trying Again For Divorce

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 25.—Mrs. Winona L. Taft has brought suit for divorce against Attorney Russell W. Taft, son of the late Chief Judge Taft, this being the second suit she has brought within a year. In this suit Miss Bessie B. Cilley is named as corespondent. Miss Cilley is prostrated over the affair. Mrs. Taft first brought a suit for divorce on the grounds of intolerable severity. The case was tried last spring and after a sensational hearing the petition was denied.

Wants Horse and Mule Meat

New Haven, Aug. 25.—"I want to see the time when horse and mule meat will be freely eaten and freely asked for," said Professor Brewer of Yale university at the banquet of the American Veterinary Medical association. "There is," he said, "less chance of getting disease from horse meat than from that of any other animal. Fatten the old horse, as you do the old cow, and then eat him. He will spend his last days in comfort, and you will make the price of meat cheaper."

Putrid Beef Seized

Providence, Aug. 25.—Two hind quarters of beef in a putrid condition and filled with tuberculosis sores were seized in a local meat market by Police Inspector Beane. The inspector's action followed a complaint at police headquarters. It was declared that the beef was slaughtered in Massachusetts, that the animal was suffering from tuberculosis, and that the meat was smuggled across the state line.

"For Sale Cheap"

By C. H. SUTCLIFFE

Copyright, 1906, by C. H. Sutcliffe

"Why don't you fellers," wrote Burt Henderson to young Weaver and Knowlton of Columbia college, "hire an auto some Saturday and come down here to see me? The old folks will make you welcome, and my sister Annette, of whom you have heard me speak, is home now. Arrange to stay over Sunday with us. We'll have a bully time."

Young Henderson was still living with his parents at their country house on Long Island and had been chummy with the two men during his days in college. The invitation was alluring. Each of the sophs had taken lessons in running an auto, the Long Island roads were known to be good, and at the end of the run was a handsome girl, as they knew by a photograph they had seen.

It was a rare chance to get out of town and do a lot of other things besides, and on a certain Saturday morning of a certain June an auto might have been seen speeding two rather hilarious young men up the island roads. The garage man had been particular when they went to hire the machine. They confessed to being timid about speed, but felt perfectly confident on all other points, and after displaying their knowledge in a practical way he had placed them in charge.

The destination was thirty miles from Brooklyn, but at a steady jog this might have been covered by noon had not something happened to prevent.

As they were passing through Jamaica, the journey only just begun, a handsome young lady emerged from a house, stepped into a steam runabout and, acting as her own chauffeur, started off at a fast clip.

"By George, but did you ever see anything to compare with her?" gasped young Weaver, who was noted as impressionable.

"Handsomest girl I ever saw," was the reply.

"Did you notice that look she threw at me?"

"It was meant for me."

"You go on! Say, I'd give all I expect to get from my grandmother's estate to know that girl. What eyes! What hair! As her eyes looked into mine for an instant I"—

"She was looking into mine, and there was a roguish, defiant look in them as if she dared us to follow her."

"By George, but come to think of it, we ought to follow her anyhow. No woman has any business driving a machine. Suppose a tire comes off or anything breaks. She may meet a train at a crossing, run into a ditch or have something else happen. If we are on hand we can assist"—

More speed was put on to decrease the distance and the young lady looked back as she heard the chugging of the big machine.

"She's surely flirting with me!" gurgled young Weaver as he clasped his hands.

"You dolt!" replied young Knowlton. "She doesn't know that you are on earth. Isn't she skimming along pretty fast?"

"Seems to me she's let out a link. This is faster than we ever drove before, but we've got to take chances or lose that girl."

The girl in the runabout had several ideas on the subject in hand. One was that the two young men behind her were new to the sport. Another was that they had left the direct road in order to follow her. The third was that she would be revenged on them. She rattled along at a high speed for a mile and could see without turning her head too much that the big machine was wabbling badly and being driven by a trembling hand. On coming to where the highway separated to unite a quarter of a mile farther on, she chose the roughest way. The lightweight runabout seemed to sail over the humps and ruts and washouts, while the larger machine had to slow down and bump its way along.

"If we lose her I'll commit suicide," said young Weaver as he hung on for dear life and grew paler every minute.

"Don't you fear that I will lose her," grimly replied Knowlton. "This is rather bumpy, but I'll stand ten miles of it for another look from those blue eyes."

"Her black eyes, you mean."

"I mean blue. If I ever take you out into the country again may I be hanged."

"Ditto. Because a handsome girl takes it into her head to flirt with me a bit"—

But the rest was lost in the bumping. The girl could have dropped them on that bit of road, but she made no effort. When they debouched into the main road she was in sight and jogging along at an easy pace. She had led them seven or eight miles out of their road before they realized it. Each was wishing the other would throw out a hint about abandoning the chase when the runabout turned into a highway that was not macadamized. It was heavy with sand, and the auto groaned and complained as it made the steep hills.

"If she wasn't the best looking girl I ever saw"— began Knowlton.

"If she hadn't dared us to follow her"— replied Weaver.

Then there was a scream ahead of them, and a tire was seen to leave one of the wheels of the runabout and the machine to come to a standstill.

"Ye gods, but what luck for me!" whispered Weaver.

"Say, now, if you don't let me do all the talking I'll break your neck!" replied Knowlton.

When the auto came up, the girl was down on her feet inspecting damages. It was easy to see that the machine must be got home by some motive power beyond its own. There were too many stony spots on the highway to run it on the rim of the damaged wheel. Mr. Knowlton at once introduced himself and companion and tendered their services.

They found the young lady even better looking than they had given her credit for. She was not at all embarrassed over the meeting. She was chatty and vivacious, and in five minutes' talk she made them realize that she knew twice as much about an auto as they did. One thing the boys forgot until afterward. They gave their names to her, but she did not reciprocate. It was decided that the damaged machine must be drawn to the side of the road and sent for later on, while the auto was to convey the girl to her home, a distance of fourteen or fifteen miles. Why she had gone out of her way she didn't explain, and the boys didn't ask.

"As I am used to autos I shall ask the privilege of acting as chauffeur," announced the young lady as she was ready to get in.

This seemed like a reflection on the abilities of the young men, and they were hesitating over it when Miss Blank took the matter in hand. There was room for one of them beside her, and both jumped for the place at once. There was a struggle, but shame soon came to both and they humbly climbed into the rear seat and glared at each other and mentally threatened murder at the first opportunity. They soon discovered that the young lady was no vain boaster. She turned the machine about with a whiz and started off at a speed that had not continued for five minutes when young Knowlton felt compelled to lean forward and say:

"This is certainly exhilarating, but do you think it altogether safe?"

"This isn't twenty miles an hour," was the reply as the machine sailed around a curve on three wheels.

Three minutes later Mr. Weaver, whose face was growing as white as chalk and his teeth clicking together, managed to make the young lady understand that he was troubled with palpitation of the heart at times.

"Best remedy for it in the world," she replied as the machine struck a road as level and hard as a floor, and she increased the speed.

The young men instinctively clasped hands and said farewell to each other. They didn't dare reach over and twist the wheel out of the driver's hands, and yet they realized that a calamity must soon happen. A word from her might have prevented what followed, but she was intent on the road ahead. Of a sudden, as they came upon a long strip of hazel bushes, both stood up and jumped for it and landed among the bushes with a crash.

The auto did not stop. If the girl missed them she was not concerned. They picked themselves up after a while and limped out to the road in time to make inquiries of a passing team. They walked two miles and then hired a farmer to drive them six more, always inquiring for an auto driven by a girl. At length, as they drew near a manor house embosomed in a grove, young Weaver exclaimed:

"Say, now, it's dollars to cents that this is the house we were bound for—the Henderson place!"

"And if that isn't the young lady we have been chasing may I never eat again!" replied Knowlton as he nodded at a girl on the veranda.

In front of the house was an auto tied to the fence with a rope. It was their auto. Hung in a conspicuous place was a sign reading, "For Sale Cheap." The young men did not stop to ask any questions. If their friend Burt was home they did not want to see him. If his sister Annette was home they did not want to see her. All they wanted was to get back to New York by the shortest route.

Vulgarity and the Sexes.

Vulgarity is certainly commoner among men than among women, and, indeed, when a woman is vulgar she is apt to display the quality in high perfection. The reason why it is rare among women is that the emotional nature is stronger among women than among men, and thus where men are ambitious, fond of displaying power, anxious to carry out designs, desirous of recognition, women are sympathetic, tender, affectionate, subtle; they value relations with others more than performances, they encourage and console because they are interested in the person who desires sympathy more than in the aims which he nourishes. One's main interest in life is in the personalities that surround one, one is not likely to be tempted by vulgarity because the essence, again, of vulgarity is that it tends to affix an altogether fictitious value to material things. A man who pursues wealth, comfort, power, position, is always in danger of vulgarity.—A. C. Benson in Atlantic.

Peril of Erring Soldiers.

"Strange as it may seem," said a former colonel of a Manhattan regiment, "members of state military organizations will continue to violate duty rules while knowing full well that by so doing in certain instances they render themselves marked men for life. The fact is probably not generally known among citizens that a dishonorably discharged militiaman is forever barred from holding public office, whether this applies to the municipality, the commonwealth or the federal government. I know of some cases where men with dishonorable discharges have fallen to speedy ruin upon full realization of the serious consequences attaching to conduct unbecoming a soldier."—New York Press.

ON BETTER LINES

City of Valparaiso Will Be Rebuilt Within Few Years

TENTS ARE DESERTED

Thousand Killed by Earthquake Have Been Buried, but More Than a Thousand Still Remain Beneath the Ruins

Valparaiso, Aug. 25.—As the result of the splendid courage of the people and with the co-operation of the city government, Valparaiso will be rebuilt within a few years on finer and more beautiful lines than before the disaster of Aug. 16.

Rain Thursday night caused most of the people to desert the tents which they have occupied since the earthquake and return to their houses. Almost all the walls are cracked, but there were no violent earth tremors during the night or yesterday. Many of the people had to walk long distances, carrying their bed clothes on their shoulders.

There are no conflagrations, but the blowing up of damaged and dangerous structures with dynamite continues, and loud explosions are frequently heard.

The residences on Alegre and Victoria hills, which are occupied principally by Americans, Englishmen and Germans, suffered comparatively little damage. In the quarter of the city which suffered most severely entire streets have been practically wiped out.

One thousand of those who were killed by the earthquake already have been buried and there are more than 1000 corpses beneath the ruins.

For relief purposes the city has been divided into 10 sections, so that assistance may be extended systematically to those who require it. Provisions are abundant. The foreign merchants of the city have appointed a committee to assist in the relief work. Several of the consuls here have received orders from their governments to send home such of their countrymen as have not the means to re-establish themselves here to pay their own passage to their native countries. Sheds are being constructed for the sheltering of the destitute.

Government engineers from other provinces have been ordered to come to Valparaiso to assist in making plans for the reconstruction of the city.

The summary punishment meted out to those who were caught stealing has put a stop to robberies. The import duties on foodstuffs have been temporarily suspended.

Street traffic was paralyzed yesterday by a heavy rain, which also caused much damage to buildings weakened by the earthquake. Many refugees have been taken on board ships of the Pacific Steam Navigation company at Santiago.

It is now said that more than 300 men have been shot by order of the military authorities at Valparaiso for committing robberies.

The senate has appropriated $4,000,000 for the relief of the distressed inhabitants. The government has decided to purchase cattle for the sufferers in the northern provinces.

Three steamers, loaded with coal, have arrived at Valparaiso, which will go far to relieve the situation growing out of the lack of fuel.

In order to facilitate the work of reconstruction, the government has telegraphed to Europe and the United States for large consignments of zinc.

All the establishments devoted to public instruction will remain closed until October. The school buildings are now being used for the accommodation of earthquake sufferers.

The Valparaiso railroad has re-established traffic south as far as Chilian, and it is hoped that traffic south and north will be completely re-established before Aug. 28. The trains now only carry passengers who are engaged in the relief work.

The courts are preparing to resume their sessions in the University building.

May Start For Pole This Year

London, Aug. 25.—Walter Wellman, leader of the Wellman-Chicago Record-Herald Arctic expedition, telegraphs from Spitzbergen that many minor defects have been discovered in the mechanical parts of the airship and these are now being remedied as fast as possible. Wellman adds that it will still be possible, weather permitting, to get away towards the pole during the first week of September.

New Law Displeases Parisians

Paris, Aug. 25.—Restaurant and cafe proprietors of this city are pointing out to the government the impossible situation created in the restaurant business by the compulsory weekly rest-day bill, and request a slight modification of the law. If this is not granted the petitioners blind themselves to close all the restaurants and cafes in Paris the first Sunday after the law goes into operation.

Good Rowing by Harvard

London, Aug. 25.—The unexpectedly good performance yesterday of the Harvard university crew at Putney appears to have shaken the confidence of the backers of the Cambridge eight. Some of today's newspapers admit that Cambridge is likely to have a hard nut to crack, while The Sportsman considers that the Harvards are an ideal crew and not unlikely to win.

Gans-Nelson Fight At Goldfield, Nev.

And the "Battler" Is General Favorite at the Weight, 133 Pounds.

Battling Nelson and Joe Gans will fight for the lightweight championship on Sept. 3 before the club in Goldfield, Nev.

The articles of agreement have been signed, and both boys have done a great deal of work to get into shape for the battle.

The news that Goldfield has been selected as the field of battle comes as a surprise to the fight followers, for several writers have explained how a $300 purse would be about the proper caper in the mining camp. Instead, however, the little fellows will go on for $30,000, and most of this is declared by Nelson's manager, Billy Nolan, to be real money and actually in sight, and Billy has established a reputation for knowing coin when he sees it and for insisting upon seeing it.

Billy Nolan was in Hazen, Nev., when he sent along the following good news:

"I am now on my way from Reno to Goldfield. Nelson is still in Ogden, where he closes his last theatrical engagement before his battle with Gans, which will be on Sept. 3 in Goldfield.

"We have signed the articles, and I will begin at once to make the Battler ready for the bout, and Gans will begin work as well."

This match has been looked for by the sports for months. It ought to be a slashing bout from beginning to end, and it will furnish a pure out and out lightweight champion of the world.

Gans now has the better claim. Nelson has been touted all along as the man who ought to have it.

As Gans has been taking fights all along and winning them rather consistently, his defeat by Nelson would leave the Battler in the same relation to the lightweight championship that Jim Jeffries now bears to the heavyweight championship.

The general opinion is that Nelson will win, as on form at 133 pounds he has Gans "safe by a mile." The verdict of sportsmen is as follows:

"If the fight is fought honestly on its merits Nelson will win in less than twenty rounds."

Nelson has done plenty of talking about a match with Gans. He is confident that he can beat the black in a long fight, although he feels that Gans may give him a good walloping for the first seven or eight rounds. The principal reason for Nelson's belief that he can defeat Gans in a long fight is that the Baltimorean is not at his best when fighting at 133 pounds.

Joe Gans is a hard man to beat when he works at his best speed and at a favorable weight, say 135 pounds. Those who know him intimately and have watched his style of fighting for a long time know that he has a knockout punch which is good enough to do damage even to the great Nelson. Gans is such a good fighter that Tom O'Rourke tried to get "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien to go twenty rounds with the negro when the Tuxedo club was blossoming at Essington, Pa.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

HITCHCOCK'S EXPLOIT

Secretary Credited With Stopping Spoliation of Oklahoma.

HOW HE SAVED ITS BEST LANDS

Head of Interior Department Is Said to Have Caught "Joker" In Statehood Bill and to Have Prevented Speculators From Mulcting New State of Valuable Mineral Lands.

Credit is given Secretary Hitchcock in the interior department for saving to Oklahoma thousands of acres of land rich in minerals, oil and other wealth, possession of which, according to a statement issued recently, was sought by a band of land speculators, says a Washington correspondent of the New York Herald. It is estimated there have been saved to Oklahoma holdings of a value between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000.

"Early in March," says the statement, "Secretary Hitchcock learned that an amendment had been slipped into the statehood bill in the senate, known as the Warren amendment, by which alleged mineral locations under the federal mining laws on Oklahoma school lands would be validated and the new state would have to pick out other lands in the place of those thus lost. The secretary reached the conclusion that the claims of the parties who would benefit by the amendment were entirely without merit and that the whole scheme bore some resemblance to a raid upon the treasury."

When the bill, with the Warren amendment, was in conference committee, according to the statement, Secretary Hitchcock sent to the committee a brief declaring the alleged mineral claims of the parties were void; that the parties knew they were void; that their invalidity was not due to any mere technical defect, but to the fact that the claims were set up in violation of the express enactment of congress, and the only reason for making the claims was that the parties had laid plans for slipping into the statehood bill a measure like the Warren amendment.

Representatives of the government told the committee the beneficiaries of the measure were an organized band who had been trying for several years, ever since the first discovery of oil in the Cleveland region, to get the mineral lands without making adequate payment. They had filed alleged claims all over the territory, so that if the measure passed all the mineral wealth of the territory would be acquired by them without compensation.

After detailing the successful substitution of a leasing clause drawn by Secretary Hitchcock for the Warren amendment the statement concludes:

"When the people of Oklahoma were celebrating the passage of the statehood bill it is probable they did not know the new commonwealth came near losing some of its most valuable possessions, besides having a blot on its escutcheon from having been made the victim of unscrupulous speculators on its first entrance into the Union.

"The most valuable mineral lands belonging to the territory are probably those near the town of Cleveland, in Pawnee county. One school section alone, containing oil and gas, is estimated to be worth $500,000, and there are others in the immediate vicinity. It is also reported that an oil and gas field is being developed in Kiowa county, near school lands, and there are also rumors of discoveries in Greene and Comanche counties.

"There are also deposits of cement, gypsum and salt in various parts of the territory, and it has been claimed by prospectors that Beaver contains considerable deposits of lead, copper and silver. All lands known to contain oil or other minerals will probably be leased soon after the creation of the new state."

CONGREGATION IN BOATS.

Highland Lake Preachers and Worshipers All Afloat at Services.

Holding religious service with the congregation in launches, rowboats and canoes is an innovation at Highland Lake, a summer resort at Winsted, Conn., says the New York Times.

Scores of cottagers, in craft of every description, assemble on the waters in the bay in front of Rockmere Lodge, the summer house of Miss Gaylord of Brookline, Mass., every pleasant Sunday evening for an hour's worship, which is generally led by some member of the clergy in the colony. Dr. Strong officiated at the first service.

None in the congregation goes ashore, even the preacher being afloat. Some of the more devout, who would kneel in prayer, dare not for fear of being immersed by the capsizing of their frail craft.

The Water Collector.

In these days it seems almost impossible to have a collection or fad of any kind which is not popular with hundreds of other people, but one young woman who travels a great deal has a fancy that seems unduplicated, says the New York Press. It is that of washing her hands in the waters of every famous lake, river or ocean which she visits or crosses, from which she also takes home bottles filled with the waters. Her collection of bottles labeled Jordan, Killarney, Como, Bosporus and so on, gives a very good idea of the extent of the young woman's travels. The great disadvantage of the fad is the difficulty of getting the waters safely home, and this young woman takes the precaution to invariably take two bottles of the same water and thus insure the safe arrival of one bottle at least.

had been taken ashore. The entry in the parish register reads:

Rebecca Wrolfe, wyff of Thos. Wrolfe, gent, a Virginia lady borne, here is buried in ye chancelle.

The last words, not being applicable for use in connection with the new statue, will be omitted, but the rest will be presented in its unique old time spelling.

To further the success of the project the Virginia Association For the Preservation of Antiquities has determined to co-operate with the Pocahontas Memorial association and has granted the latter organization permission to select its own site for the statue on Jamestown island. This location will be chosen when the members make their trip there next October.

Mr. Partridge, who has given his preliminary work gratuitously as his contribution to the project, will accompany the tourists and advise them regarding the artistic requirements to be considered in selecting the site. These courtesies from the sculptor and the donation of the site by the patriotic society have encouraged the Memorial association to believe that the entire cost of the statue can be met from its available funds, which now approximate $10,000. Additional contributions are anticipated when the scope of the work becomes more generally known, so that before the plans are finally and definitely concluded it will be possible to determine how enduring and appropriate surroundings for the statue can be provided.

While the work of the Memorial association would undoubtedly have resulted in the erection of some commemorative work of art, there can be no doubt it has been stimulated by the congressman's insinuations that Pocahontas was a myth or that, if such a person did live, she left no descendants. This offhand comment has done more to induce a turning over of old genealogical records at home and the historical books in the libraries than would have been accomplished by any advice to that effect by the most ardent admirer of the Indian princess. Since then members of the association have been priming themselves to defend the record of history and to explain at length the part Pocahontas really played in saving the life of Captain John Smith. They are also learning about her furnishing supplies to the early colonists in that critical two years of their experience in the new world when they were without dependable crops; when their troubles kept multiplying in most discouraging fashion and no help came from over sea from those of their own race on whom they had placed dependence. But for the service rendered by Pocahontas in this instance alone the English would probably have failed ignominiously in their colonial experiment.

As to the saving of Captain Smith's life, an incident which has been disputed by some of the latter day critics, it is recorded by scholars and historians as a fully established fact that the women of the Algonquin tribes not only had a voice in the tribal councils, like the modern Pueblos, but that they were permitted to exercise the right of saving life by adoption. Ample authorities are quoted by the promoters of the Memorial association in their indorsement of these generally accepted facts of history and are pointed to in support of their contention that nothing can be more fitting to mark the third century since the English landed at Jamestown than to erect there the most enduring of memorials to Pocahontas.

Galloping Ambulances.

Much success has attended the trial of the galloping ambulance, types of which are being used, under very practical conditions, at the camps of instruction at Fort Riley and Chickamauga, says the Army and Navy Register. The surgeon general of the army has requested the quartermaster general to build or purchase fifteen additional ambulances of this pattern with the idea of issuing one to each regiment of the cavalry. The method is to hitch to the vehicle a horse, and it is so arranged that any cavalry animal may be hastily attached to the ambulance and literally galloped to the destination. The use of the vehicle, under the observation of the army surgeons, shows that it is of great value in the field and it will take its place in the permanent equipment of the medical department in time of war.

Seaweed For Parasols.

Seaweed parasols are the latest novelty in Henley, says a London cable dispatch to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The real weed is used and is skillfully applied to a background of fine biscuit or pastel tinted gauze. An outer layer of gauze is then placed over it.

A Russian Popular Song.

An anarchist was working
Within a garret mean
Amid a potent odor
Of nitroglycerin.

His wife was making fuses
And filling cans with nails,
While all their children warbled
In pensive Slavic scales:

"It's sister Jennie's turn to throw a bomb,
Because the last one did for brother Tom
And mother's aim is bad
And all the cops know dad—
It's sister Jennie's turn to throw a bomb."

And forthwith little Jennie
Serenely started off.
"Now, mind," called out her parents,
"You blow up Peterhof!"

She did; they waited for her
Till sun gave way to moon,
Then all in mournful chorus
Struck up this Slavic tune:

"It's brother Ivan's turn to throw a bomb,
For Jennie has been wafted after Tom,
And mother cannot slay
A duke a yard away—
It's brother Ivan's turn to throw a bomb!"

Drift of Opinion.

☞Street railway people have learned that it pays to advertise, just as the steam roads learned long ago. The Boston Elevated runs an expensive ad. to develop purely pleasure riding, and the Boston & Northern and other roads favor similar publicity. The Mt. Tom railway advertisements in the Springfield papers are daily literary gems which have attracted notice all over the country. Such advertising is commendable from the viewpoint of all concerned, and particularly from that of the public.—Springfield Union.

Candidate for Senator.

Representative Tuttle of Hyde Park, proprietor of Tuttle's Elixir Co., announces himself as candidate for the senate in the following open letter:

To the citizens of the First Norfolk Senatorial District:

I hereby announce myself as a candidate of the Republican party for the Senate from the First Norfolk Senatorial District. I do this at the solicitation of a large number of citizens in the other towns and cities throughout the district as well as in Hyde Park, which town I have represented in the House two years. If elected, I shall make every effort to serve all of my constituents to the best of my ability. My legislative record is open to all. That Hyde Park is entitled to name the next senator is admitted by everyone. It has been without the honor for several years. Samuel A. Tuttle.

Masonsic Visitations.

The annual visitation of the District deputy to Rural lodge of Masons will be made early this year, being scheduled for Sept. 27. Dr. E. Alder Dyer of Whitman, the new deputy announces these dates for the 24th district:

Sept. 24, Fellowship lodge of Bridgewater.

Sept. 27, Rural lodge of Quincy.

Oct. 1, John Cutler lodge of Abington.

Oct. 9, Wollaston lodge of Wollaston.

Oct. 17, Norfolk Union lodge of Randolph.

Oct. 21, Satucket lodge of East Bridgewater.

Nov. 2, St. George lodge of Campello.

Nov. 13, Paul Revere lodge of Brockton.

Nov. 16, Puritan lodge of Whitman.

Many Candidates.

Ex-Senator Edward B. Callender, the La Follette of Dorchester politics, confided to his friends this week says the Post, that he expected to make a fight for Congress in the tenth district this year, and that he would place it in the Republican column.

The candidates to date are:

Ex-Senator E. B. Callender.
Senator Edward L. Logan.
Editor John J. Merrigan.
Ex-Senator Thomas J. Collins.
Colonel Joseph Lundy.
Lawyer James P. Magenis.
Lawyer Joseph F. O'Connell.

The Salem Veteran Firemen's association is at work on the veteran firemen's muster to be held Tuesday, Sept. 11. Six hundred and sixty dollars in prizes will be given, and will be divided as follows: First, $250; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $75; fifth, $50; sixth. $25; seventh, $10. As a special prize for the company coming the longest distance, a span of horses will be furnished free. No entrance fee will be charged, and the entries will close Monday evening, Sept. 10, at 8 o'clock.

The post office at Randolph was robbed early Thursday morning and stamps and money valued at $666.43 were taken.

— Nineteen sites have been offered for the new federal building at Barre, Vt.

Sixteen Delegates

Representation Of Quincy at Republican Conventions

By the 1906 apportionment Quincy will be entitled to 16 delegates at the Republican State convention, and all other Republican conventions to be held before the November election. They are divided as follows:

	Republican Vote.	Number Delegates.
Ward One,	487	4
Ward Two,	233	2
Ward Three,	381	3
Ward Four,	265	2
Ward Five,	445	3
Ward Six,	252	2

The nominations in the tenth Congressional district will be made by direct vote under the joint caucus act.

Quincy will send delegates to the 2d Councillor convention which is entitled to 211 delegates; to the Norfolk county convention which is entitled to 101 delegates; and to the 1st Norfolk Senatorial convention which is entitled to 45 votes.

The Senatorial convention will be made up as follows: Quincy, 16; Hyde Park, 7; Milton, 4; Canton, 3; Braintree, 4; Holbrook, 2; Randolph, 2, and Weymouth 7.

Quincy and Hyde Park, or Quincy and Weymouth if united could nominate the candidate, but it is hardly probable that the six wards of Quincy will be united.

The caucuses will be held Tuesday, Sept. 25.

Archdeacon Ill.

We learned yesterday, that Archdeacon Samuel G. Babcock, formerly of Christ church, Hyde Park, who is suffering from typhoid fever at his home in Cambridge, is comfortable, although the fever has not yet turned. The hot weather has had a most depressing effect upon him, but the change in the atmosphere has greatly benefitted him.

The Adams Vacation School

The Adams Vacation club came to a very successful close when on Tuesday afternoon of this week the mothers and friends were entertained at the Adams school. After an interesting program of sewing by Alice Barry, a recitation by Catherine Faircloth, violin solo by Margaret Brown, mandolin solo by Marion Russell, and songs and gymnastics by the club, fruit lemonade and fancy cakes were served. The following ladies assisted in serving: Mrs. Bryant, Miss Underwood and Mrs. Sanborn.

Directly connected with the Home Science Association, this club is a very vigorous organization, as the interest of the members, particularly those who have been with it since its beginning with Miss Elizabeth Johnson attests.

This year the meetings have been under the charge of Mrs. Richard Freeman, chairman, and the Misses Reed, Wild and Harding of Atlantic, and Miss Eliza Sheehan. Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Mrs. Hunting and Miss Randall have also helped in entertaining the club.

The sewing has been under the direction of Miss Florence Faxon. The members for convenience in sewing were divided into two sections of twenty-five each, and at the final meeting the following reports were read by the two secretaries.

On July 10 the Adams Vacation club held their first meeting at the Adams school. We opened our class with 25 pupils and a corps of teachers. Each meeting opened with the singing of America. Then Miss Faxon gave us gymnastics. At the first meeting the children were divided in two classes, the senior and the junior. Each morning one hour was devoted to the singing of club songs, playing games with dancing interspersed. The other hour was devoted to patch work, knitting, fancy stitches, ironing holders and fancy work. Miss Faxon gave the lessons in the different work.

At each meeting two of our number were elected to go to the hospital with flowers. At every meeting we had a new song and dance. Each pupil who was late paid a forfeit of one penny, the club voting to use the money for some good cause.

Marion Cahill,
Secretary of the Junior Class.

The Adams Vacation Club held its first meeting Tuesday, July 10, at 9 o'clock in the Adams school. Miss Johnson adressed the club, but on occount of ill health she resigned and the club was put in charge of Mrs. Freeman and Miss Sheahan for the first week, and different ladies for the other weeks. During the first part of the morning songs were sung, among which were "Auld Lang Syne", "Old Folks at Home", and "My Bonnie".

We then went to another room where we sewed for an hour. Then we returned to the former room where dancing was enjoyed. The meeting there adjourned to meet the following Friday.

The Adams Vacation Club held its second meeting Friday, July 13, in the Adams school with Mrs. Freeman and Miss Sheahan presiding. Mrs. Freeman and Miss Sheahan having finished their week the club was put in charge of Miss Read. The secretary's report was read and accepted.

During the first part of the morning we sewed. Then songs were sung among which were "Old Folks at Home", "My Bonnie", Auld Lang Syne," and "Bonnie Dundee." We then danced a Virginia Reel and the meeting adjourned to meet the following Tuesday.

The Adams Vacation club held its third meeting Tuesday, July 17, with Miss Read and Miss Harding presiding. The roll was called, the secretary's report read and accepted, and the flower committee appointed. Then songs were sung, and we danced a Virginia Reel. We played going to Jerusalem and danced a two step. The remainder of the morning was spent in sewing. The meeting then adjourned to meet the following Friday.

A very similar program was carried out on the other mornings.

DR. SAMUEL A. TUTTLE

For the Senate

IN THE 1st NORFOLK DISTRICT.

Hyde Park's Turn to Name the Senator.

DR. TUTTLE.

Since 1868 there has been but one Senator on Beacon Hill who was a resident of Hyde Park. The people of Hyde Park believe that they are entitled to name the next Senator and they are sure that the other parts of the district will at once recognize the justness of their claim.

In Dr. Samuel A. Tuttle, you have an able and fearless legislator; a man who understands the methods and ways of law making; a man who owes nothing to any ring politician; and one who is incorruptible.

The value to any district of a man with legislative experience cannot be overestimated. A man without such experience is simply deadwood and surely for this district we need a man who is alive to everything.

There is a need of business men at the State House, and Doctor Tuttle is a successful business man.

He says:—"My record is open to inspection. I believe that the people should know what their representatives are doing, for he who serves the people well must serve the State well."

We of Norfolk County should be proud of the record of this farmer boy, and we print herewith a short sketch of his social and business life.

Samuel A. Tuttle spent the early years of his life on his father's farm, and was educated in the common schools of his native town and in the academies at Wolfboro and Andover. In 1859 he went to Illinois, where he had a farm and ran a ranch, shipping cattle and hogs to Chicago. At the end of ten years he sold out, and went to the state of Mississippi, where he bought a large cotton plantation.

Then, coming North, he stopped in Boston, where he opened a sale and livery stable on a large scale. In 1884 he began to manufacture "Tuttle's Elixir," which has since been introduced throughout America.

He also has a plant in Montreal, where he manufactures for Canada, including the Marintime Provinces, and also has a plant in St. John, N. B. He has now a high reputation for skilful and successful treatment, and is called to go to all parts of New England to attend the most difficult cases of disease in highbred and valuable animals.

He is a member of the I. O. O. F. A mason of high standing, he belongs to Norfolk Royal Arch Chapter, Hyde Park Council, and Cyprus commandery. In the Hyde Park Methodist Episcopal church, of which he is a member, the doctor has served on the official board for many years, and has been a teacher of the Sunday school. He has been a resident of Hyde Park since 1872.

Dr. Tuttle was elected to the Massachusetts legislature from Hyde Park in 1898, and was sent back again in 1905 for another term.

Brutal Assault.

A Boston paper reports that Frank Mason, an animal trainer attached to one of the amusement attractions at Revere, was sentenced to a year in the house of correction at Friday's session of the Chelsea police court by Judge Albert D. Bosson. Thursday afternoon Mason inflicted such injuries on Gilbert Fargays of 30 Chestnut street, Quincy, that the latter appeared in court with his head and face done up in bandages.

From the story told in court, it appears that Fargays and several others visited the attraction with which Mason was connected on Thursday afternoon. There was a delay in starting the show and Mr. Fargays made some inquiries pertaining to the delay. Testimony was given that Mason attacked him with a club and struck him over the head several times and also struck him in the face.

Judge Bosson said that it was the most brutal assault that had ever come to his attention.

Hens Killed.

AN ARMY OF 2000

Guerra Well Equipped For Long Campaign In Cuba

CAPTURES ANOTHER CITY

Sympathy of People In Country Districts Is With Insurgents--Government Pays Two Dollars a Day For Recruits

Havana, Aug. 25.—Unofficial advices received from the western part of the province of Pinar del Rio are to the effect that the insurgent forces now concentrating west of San Juan de Martinez are far more formidable and are better supplied for camping and a long and aggressive campaign than had been supposed.

A prominent resident of Havana, whose word is beyond question, returned last evening from a three days' tour in the vicinity of San Luis and San Juan de Martinez. He declared that the following of Pino Guerra, the insurgent leader, in Pinar del Rio now is certainly from 1500 to 2000 men. He said the idea of his not having sufficient ammunition was ridiculous and that he is abundantly supplied with every possible necessity. The behavior of his forces is excellent.

All the tobacco plantations owned by Americans and other American property are flying the American flag, this man declared, and are not being molested. He said the insurrectionists had eight mules loaded with dynamite and that lately they had received supplies from unknown sources. He positively declared that fully 100 members of the rural guard had deserted and joined the insurrectionists since the trouble began and that practically all Cubans in western Cuba now were sympathizers with the movement.

The critics of the government privately ridicule the plans of the government to bring rapid-fire guns to the island, asserting that the experience of the Spaniards with these guns in Cuba proved their uselessness in the field.

Guerra, who on Thursday captured the town of San Juan Martinez, following his capture of San Luis the day before, says that his policy is to occupy towns as peacefully as possible, to continue the local authorities in office for the present and to change the officials gradually and compel the government to annul the last elections and hold new ones.

A letter received here from a reliable correspondent, who visited Guerra at San Juan de Martinez, says that the insurgent leader's force amounts to 2000 men. The correspondent adds that all the people in that part of the country are Liberals and sympathizers with the insurrection, but that Guerra has not sufficient ammunition either to take Pinar del Rio or sustain a prolonged fight.

Reports from tht country districts say that the people generally have been influenced by the Liberal leaders and are inclined to be distrustful of the motives of President Palma's government. Therefore they readily sympathize with the cause of the insurgents. In the cities there is much more approach to patriotism, but the government's offer of $2 pay a day for all recruits does not meet with more than slow responses. Many men are interested in the crisis, as onlookers, but a genuine general desire to fight for the government is lacking.

During the vacancy of the secretaryship of the interior, due to the resignation of Senor O'Farrill, who was acting secretary, Senor Montalvo, secretary of public works, has been given charge of all matters referring to the maintenance of public order. Font Sterling, secretary of the treasury, will have charge of the administration of military affairs.

In an interview, Alfredo Zayas, vice president of the senate and leader of the Liberal party, said: "The Liberals will take no action or make any official statement with regard to the present revolt unless the independence of Cuba should be menaced by actions of the revolutionists or the government which would be likely to bring outside interference."

Zayas admitted that it was true the majority of the insurgents are Liberals, but claimed that there are also Moderates among the insurgents. The Liberals, he said, always had been opposed to resorting to arms and did not countenance the present method of protest against the manner of the holding of the last elections.

President Palma has not left the palace this week. He is consatntly receiving reports, holding consultations and issuing orders. He is assisted in his work by his two righthand men in the cabinet, Font Sterling, secretary of the treasury, and General Montalvo, secretary of public works, who, since the resignation of O'Farrill, secretary of state and justice, divide the duties of those offices between them.

President Palma bears the strain of his labors remarkably well, considering his age, and does not appear especially fatigued in spite of the arduous nature of the duties he has performed for the last four years, contending most of the time with a hostile congress. The president is hopeful of the outcome and is confident of the loyalty of Cubans in general.

Worse Than Known to Outside World

Tampa, Fla., Aug. 25.—Steamer Gussie, from Havana, was loaded to her full capacity with tobacco which is being rushed out of the island by importers. Information received from private sources by this boat state that President Palma is virtually a prisoner in the palace at Havana and that he has not left it for a week. Indications are that the situation on the island is much worse than is known to the outside world. The revolution has also extended into Santa Clara province and has broken out in Matanzas.

Rebels Kill Three Recruits

Havana, Aug. 25.—Colonel Estrampes, with 45 recruits from Havana, was fired upon by 80 insurgents ambushed behind a wall near Guanes. The recruits were routtd and three of them were killed and six wounded.

CONTEMPT OF COURT

An Alleged Attempt to Bribe a Member of a Boston Jury

Boston, Aug. 25.—Walter M. Clark, a horse dealer, and William Washington, a negro, were placed under arrest and sent to jail in default of bonds of $10,000, charged with contempt of court in attempting to bribe a member of the jury which is trying the case of Dr. John Sinclair, charged with performing a criminal operation and causing the death of Miss Annie Russell.

The arrest of Clark and Washington followed a sensational interruption of the court proceedings. Alfred M. Green, a negro member of the jury, informed Judge Harris that an attempt had been made to influence him in favor of the defendant by an offer of $50. Judge Harris excused the jury until next Tuesday and placed the matter in the hands of District Attorney Moran, who ordered the arrest of Clark and Washington. Clark has been a prominent witness for the government in the case against his friend, Dr. Sinclair. Both men will be given a hearing next Tuesday.

Too Many Major Generals

Washington, Aug. 25.—The report of Major General Greely, commanding the department of the Pacific, criticising the present arrangement of divisions and departments in the army, has caused considerable discussion in the war department, and officers are wondering what will be the effect when congress takes up the subject again. It is said the report emphasizes the point several times made that with six major generals of the line and 15 brigadier generals of the line, great difficulty is found in finding places for them commensurate with their rank.

Held For Stealing Diamonds

New York, Aug. 25.—Locked up at police headquarters is Louis Mochorosky, aged 17, charged with the larceny of $5000 worth of diamonds several months ago. Mochorosky afforded the police of many of the states of this country a vain chase and then went to Europe. Affection for a girl in Denver led him to return to the United States and his arrest followed.

Trouble Threatened at Brownsville

Austin, Aug. 25.—The International and Great Northern Railway company last night received orders to hold itself in readiness to provide a special train to carry troops towards the Mexican border. It is believed that the troops are to be sent to San Antonio in order that they may quickly reach Brownsville should further trouble develop.

Living Up to Agreement

Cologne, Aug. 25.—The Gazette officially says that the news that Port Dalny will become a free port Sept. 1 may be considered as a sign that the Japanese government is willing to carry out honestly the political and commercial obligations imposed upon it by the treaty of Portsmouth.

Special Rates on Oil Shipments

Jamestown, N. Y., Aug. 25.—The federal grand jury has returned indictments against the Standard Oil company and the New York Central Railroad company, charging violations of the interstate commerce law in giving and accepting special rates in the shipment of oil.

Money Packages Filled With Lead

St. Petersburg, Aug. 25.—About $75,000, three-quarters of which belonged to the state, mysteriously disappeared while in transit from Erivan to St. Petersburg. Packages which were addressed to the imperial bank when opened here were found to be filled with lead.

PROMPT WORK GOOD WORK

Two Able Baseball Veterans

Tom Corcoran, the Famous Old Cincinnati Shortstop.

William Sullivan, Star Catcher of the Chicago Americans.

Not long ago a Cincinnati newspaper printed the following lines at the head of a story:

"Much more regret will be felt at the passing of Tom Corcoran, who has probably played his last game with the Cincinnati Reds."

But Thomas W. Corcoran, the veteran National league shortstop, fooled the writer of his anticipatory obituary notice. Tom is still in the game and is holding the lid down on his job as effectively as though he had the avoirdupois of "Pecos Bill" Shafter, hero of the safe and sane rear "guard" at Santiago, or Secretary Taft, the great matrimonial organizer.

Corcoran has had a long and notable diamond career. He was born Jan. 4, 1869, at New Haven, Conn., in which city he began his baseball playing. He gained quite a reputation as an infielder with the amateur and semiprofessional teams in and around his native city. His first professional engagement, however, was in 1886, when he signed to play third base for the Little Rock (Ark.) team. In 1887 he accepted an engagement with the Lynn club of the New England league. In 1888 he joined the Wilkesbarre (Pa.) club of the Central league.

W. H. Holbert, the veteran player and umpire, recommended Corcoran highly to Manager Hanlon, who engaged him in 1890 for his Pittsburg team of the Players' league, Corcoran taking part that year as a shortstop in no fewer than 123 championship games. In 1891 he filled the position of shortstop for the old Athletic club of the American association. He virtually led that year as shortstop, taking part in 129 championship games. In 1892 he signed with the Brooklyn club, remaining with that team for three years, when he was traded to Cincinnati, with which club he has played ever since.

William D. Sullivan, the star catcher of the Chicago American team, has done the bulk of the backstop work for five seasons. He was a pupil of Tom Loftus, who developed him at Dubuque in 1897, and the following season took him to Columbus. Previous to that his only professional experience had been with a Wisconsin State league team in 1896. In 1899 the Boston National club purchased his release and employed him two years, when he jumped at the offer of a fat salary from the Chicago American league club in 1902, for which club he has been a tower of strength ever since. He is generally considered the best maskman in the service of the American league, with the possible exception of Lou Criger of Boston, now in poor health. He hails from Fort Atkinson, Wis., where he was born twenty-seven years ago.

"Carnegie Jargon" Not Favored

London, Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt's decision to adopt the reformed spelling in his messages and in executive correspondence is commented upon by the newspapers of London in anything but a sympathetic spirit. The Standard bluntly declares that the president over-rates his powers, adding that it declines to believe that scholarly and cultured Americans will sacrifice the history and meaning of the language by adopting the "Carnegie jargon." Other of the newspapers deal with the matter in a humorous vein.

Solicited Eggs by Mail

Boston, Aug. 25.—Charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, John H. Bent of Quincy was held in $2000 for the September term of the United States grand jury. Bent, who is a dealer in eggs, is alleged to have secured consignments of eggs from farmers and to have failed to send any payment for them. Bent admitted that he had solicited eggs by mail, but claimed that he intended to pay for them.

Still on Littlefield's Trail

Rockland, Me., Aug. 25.—Samuel Gompers, who is stumping the Second congressional district of Maine in an attempt to defeat Congressman Littlefield, addressed a large audience here, the home of Littlfield, last night. Gompers cited instances wherein, he alleged, the congressman had worked against the common people and in the interest of large corporations.

Fighting New Railway Company

Cleveland, Aug. 25.—Application has been made by the Cleveland Electric Railway company for an injunction against the Municipal Traction company to prevent it from laying its tracks in the city. The latter company is known as the proposed 3-cent fare line and is understood to be intended ultimately for municipal ownership.

May Abolish Religious Oaths

Madrid, Aug. 25.—King Alfonso has formally signified his approval of the attitude of the ministers on the religious question. The minister of justice is now considering the abolition of religious oaths before the courts. The liberal journals consider the king's action to be the beginning of a new era for Spain.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Mrs. Mary J. Hurter of Framingham, Mass., 40 years old, cut her throat in a fit of despondency and died within an hour.

That the varied industries of Rhode Island have enjoyed better prosperity during the past year than in any other previous year is the substance of a manufacturers' report which Commissioner of Industrial Statistics Webb will issue next month.

New Hampshire's eighth annual Old Home week has officially closed, though a number of scattered celebrations will continue to be held. The number of observances in 1906 has been larger than in any previous year.

Donald Campbell, 18 years old, butler for Mrs. John Sloane of New York, was drowned while boating alone in Laurel lake, Lenox, Mass. Campbell came from Scotland a few months ago.

George W. Harris, who had been connected with the National Bank of Commerce of Boston for 56 years, most of the time as cashier, dropped dead of apoplexy at the bank. He was 80 years old.

VIEWS OF EXPERTS

Embodied In a Bill Governing Life Insurance

IT STRIKES ROOT OF EVIL

Holds Officers Responsible For Enormous Surplus Funds--Will Show Larger Credit of Dividends to Policyholders

St. Paul, Aug. 25.—Millions will be held in reserve for the policyholders of life insurance companies and the cost of insurance will be materially lowered if a bill approved by the state insurance commissioners at their session here meets with the approval of the various state legislatures next winter.

The bill, which requires an annual apportionment and accounting of surplus of life insurance companies as adopted, it is maintained by many of the commissioners, strikes at the root of all evil of life insurance, by holding officers of such companies accountable for the enormous surplus funds accumulated under the deferred dividend contracts.

Apportionment of surplus was brought before the commission by Zeno Host, insurance commissioner of Wisconsin.

It is thought that if the bill requiring an accounting and distribution of surplus is passed by all the states, it will do more toward securing the economical management of insurance companies than anything else. The commissioners believe that the competition which exists between the companies will make them eager to show a larger credit of dividends to the policyholders than their competitors. This will result, it is declared, in a substantial decrease in the expense of the management and will also prevent the management from using the accumulated surplus for speculation or for private emolument.

The bill provides that "every life insurance company conducted on the mutual plan, or in which policyholders are entitled to share in the profits or surplus, shall make an annual apportionment and accounting of divisible surplus to each policyholder, beginning on or before the second policy year, or on all participating policies hereafter issued; and each such policyholder shall be entitled to and be credited with, or paid in a manner provided, such a portion of the entire divisible surplus as has been contributed thereto by his policy."

Under the terms of the bill these dividends are to be carried as credits and shall, in the event of the death of the insured, be payable with the policy. Another important feature of the bill is a clause providing for a contingency reserve fund on a sliding scale of percentage. This contingency fund is to guard against unforeseen contingencies and fluctuations of assets.

Wholesome Activity In Trade

New York, Aug. 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that Wall street provided the only important development in the business situation during the past week, prices of securities rising within an average of $2 per share of the high record established last January. Trade reports indicate wholesome activity, with no evidence of reaction.

Arrest of Murder Suspect

St. John, Aug. 25.—Thomas Collins, the man suspected of the murder of Miss Mary A. MacAulay in the home of her cousin, Father MacAulay, at New Ireland, was captured in the woods about 10 miles from St. George while making for the American border. He admits that he had been at MacAulay's house, but he does not admit the murder.

Sapper Battalions In Revolt

Odessa, Aug. 25.—The Eleventh and Twelfth sapper battalions, encamped near Odessa, mutinied last night. They assembled at a political meeting, singing the "Marseillaise," and passed a resolution not to fire on the revolutionists if called upon. Officers of the battalions who tried to break up the meeting were beaten by the soldiers.

Won't Have Betting Shops

Sydney, N. S. W., Aug. 25.—After an angry, all-night session, the assembly of New South Wales, by a large majority, passed to second reading the gaming and betting bill, proposing to close all betting shops and reduce the number of race meetings and to impose severe penalties for breaches of the law.

Official Protest on Boycott

Hong Kong, Aug. 25.—The American consul general has sent a dispatch to the viceroy of Canton requesting him to suppress the boycott association for the hindrance of American commerce. The association recently held several great meetings.

Typhoid Patients Should Be Fed

Toronto, Aug. 25.—Professor Smith of London, in his lecture here, discarded the theory of "feeding a cold and starving a fever." A typhoid fever patient, he said, should be fed as often as he desired food, and in satisfying quantities.

Train Dropped From Trestle

Bristol, Va., Aug. 25.—As a result of a washout, a freight train ran off a trestle at Moccasin river and a brakeman and fireman were killed. The engineer was seriously injured.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

FUN WITH A LAMP.

You Can Melt a Piece of Tin on an Ordinary Card.

Take an ordinary knitting needle and stick one end of it into a cork. Holding it by the cork so as not to burn your fingers, thrust the other end into the flame of an alcohol lamp and keep it there until it is heated to redness. Dip the redhot needle into cold water and when it is cool thrust it again into the flame. If you watch it now you will see that it changes color curiously, turning first yellow, then orange, then crimson, violet, blue and finally gray.

The reason is that a film of rust forms on the needle, and this alters its color as it grows gradually thicker.

This is a matter of great importance in tempering steel, for the changes in color are watched carefully, as the kind of steel depends on the time when it is taken from the fire and cooled.

MELTING TIN ON A CARD.

For instance, if you take the needle from the flame and cool it when it is yellow it will be much harder than if left in the flame until blue and then cooled.

This is shown in the steel pins that are commonly used. The blue steel ones are likely to snap in two with the least pressure, whereas those that are tempered yellow are much stronger.

While you have your alcohol lamp burning take a piece of metallic tin, not tin plate, and place it on an ordinary playing card, first turning up the edges of the card, forming a sort of box lid. Hold the card containing the tin over the flame, and the card will not burn, but the tin may be melted thus.

The reason is that the tin is so good a conductor of heat that it carries it away before the card has time to burn.

Now take a copper wire, an iron wire and a glass tube and dip each of them into melted wax, so as to form a coating on them. After they are dry lay them on a table, with the ends projecting about two inches over the edge and crossing each other. Under the place where they cross hold the flame of the alcohol lamp, so as to heat them equally.

You can tell which is the best conductor of heat by the way the wax melts, that on the best conductor melting first. But there will be a point where the wax does not melt at all, because the heat will be conducted off into the air before reaching that point on the rod. On the good conductor, however, the wax will be melted much farther than on a poor conductor.

Chickens at Sunday School.

A bright and winsome little girl, daughter to one of the editor's friends, was sent out to the henhouse one day recently to gather and bring in the fresh eggs, but she came back almost immediately without any eggs, and when her mother asked about them the little one answered:

"Well, mother, the chickens were holding Sunday school, and I would not disturb them."

The mother afterward found out that the hens were all cackling at the top of their lungs, and this made the Sunday school.

The Lobster's Color.

Did you ever hear of the young housekeeper who refused to buy a fresh lobster at the market because it was not bright red in color? And of the poet's bad blunder, who called it "the cardinal of the sea?" The point of the joke is that the young housekeeper and the poet both thought that red was the lobster's natural color. As most of you know, perhaps, the natural color of the shell is a mixture of two pigments, red and blue. When it is boiled the blue washes out and the red remains.

It Comes; It Comes.

This is a simple guessing game, familiar to children in New England. One child of the party says to another, "It comes; it comes." The player addressed asks, "What do you come by?" The first replies by naming the initial letter of some object in the room. If, for instance, it is the table he has in mind, he says, "I come by T." The rest must now guess what thing beginning with this letter is meant.

Isn't This So?

Every hour you are sulky and unforgiving you find it easier to be cross and more difficult to be agreeable.

Unwelcome Tasks.

"I hate to sew this ugly seam,"
Said little Eva May.
"It's bad as any dream!
I'd rather go and play.
And not a stitch is small and neat,
As stitches ought to be;
They seem to walk like great long feet
And are a shame to me.

"When grandma was a child like me
A quilt she often made,
But no one ever such will see
From me, I'm much afraid.
When I grow up I'll sew my seams,"
Said little Eva May.
"Today I'll walk along the streams.
I'd so much rather play."

WOMAN'S WORLD

MISS IDA ESTELLE HALL.

One of the Successful Women Lawyers of Boston.

Miss Ida Estelle Hall is one of the successful women lawyers of Boston, a close student of her chosen profession who has made the most of her opportunities. Miss Hall is an energetic, wide awake, broad minded woman, whose grandfather was a Maine lawyer of considerable reputation.

Miss Hall is a graduate of the Boston University Law school. For the past nine years she has been practicing law in Boston and making for herself an enviable reputation and at the same time a very handsome income.

As a type of the Massachusetts woman Miss Hall is true to the usual conception, being alert, up to date and intelligent to a marked degree. With her two sisters, one of whom not long ago was made custodian of the Holton Memorial library, Brighton, she resides in that suburb, occupying a pretty home on Foster street.

MISS IDA ESTELLE HALL.

Miss Hall is very fond of travel, and two summers ago, together with her sisters, paid an extended visit to Europe, spending many weeks in Ireland, where they camped in the lake regions and saw much of the surrounding country from their jaunting car.

The fact that she is a direct descendant from Governor Endicott is a matter of considerable pride to Miss Hall, who inherits much of her ancestor's public spirit. She is an ardent suffragist and is a leading member of the Young Woman's Political club.—Boston Traveler.

Young Men and the Home.

Many a young man "goes wrong" because his home is distasteful and forbidding. Where love and peace and joy should reign, fault finding, wrangling and discord abound. He does not find in the home what his heart longs for, hence flies to the outside world for brightness and cheer. The refuge that is denied him under the parental roof he seeks for elsewhere. And too often is it that he designs his downward course at the same time.

If our boys and young men are to be kept in our homes, there must be something in these same homes to attract them. There must be good, wholesome food, good housekeeping, good family government, good comradeship and good, not spurious, religion.

The mother must have the moral and spiritual as well as the mental good of her children at heart. What is wealth or fame or society or pleasure or ease compared with the welfare of our boys?

Mothers, teach your boys that no young man is safe who is disloyal to his father. He will see for himself that the same is true with regard to being disloyal to his mother. There is an ancient law older than "the memory of man." It is a law of nature. Respect for parents—filial obedience and filial love—lies at the foundation of every character. Very few men ever broke the law of a state without first breaking the laws laid down by their parents. Disloyalty to parents paves the way for almost every other kind of disloyalty.

"I began my downward career by disobeying my parents, by disregarding their wishes and by tramping upon their love and counsel," is the confession of more than one victim who has lost manhood and all that accompanies it.—E. Bartlett Simmons in Housekeeper.

Baby Talk Bad.

"If parents would begin to speak English to a child as soon as he can talk, instead of some absurd 'baby talk' lingo, the work of a primary school teacher would be lightened by half," said one of them recently.

"Half the children who start going to school don't understand what you are saying to them, and it adds to their terror in their strange surroundings and to the work of their instructors.

"One little boy who was in my class last session impressed me at his first appearance here as one of the dullest children I had ever encountered. I soon found what the trouble was. The boy was the only child of a widow who made him her constant companion and never spoke a word to him that was intelligible to any one else. All food was known to him as 'doody,' chairs as 'rakkey' and money as 'kip.'

"It took that poor child two years to learn enough of the king's English to be transferred from my grade to the next."—Washington Post.

Women After Middle Age.

After middle age the average woman begins to care more for women than she does for men. Her allegiance undergoes a psychic change, her eyes are opened, her judgment cleared, and she learns to appreciate her own sex fully. The characteristics that seemed to her hateful frailties long ago are defended now as their poetic distinctions. She sees in every girl the fair mirage of her own youth; in the pathetic, care worn face of the young matron, the gentle heroism of her other years; in the mother of a grown family, her own queen days when sons and daughters suddenly grew tall and proclaimed her. And for them all she has a chastened affinity. Men have passed out of her calculations. They are the things with whom she failed or succeeded, from lover and husband down to her youngest son. And, however much she remains dependent upon them, she is no longer related to them in the same way. She has survived them and returned to her own.—Mrs. L. H. Harris in Independent.

Burning Old Papers.

If you have been tormented by the blowing about in your back yard of papers which have been put outside to burn and have not caught fire from the heap as they should, try the plan which the residents of a Long Island town where the village laws are strict regarding such things have devised. A piece of coarse wire netting from one and a half to two yards long and perhaps twenty-seven inches wide is joined together at the ends. When papers have to be burned the netting ring is set in the back yard in some out of the way spot, and the papers are packed into it. Then they are set on fire at the bottom, and they burn through quickly and neatly, with none left to blow about and look untidy.

Fitting a Sleeve.

Nine out of ten amateur dressmakers will try to put a small sleeve top into a large arm scye, or vice versa, without the least idea of the relation of size between the two. Another evil lies in "taking in" promiscuously. "It is too big under the arms" or "it is too long in the shoulder seam; I shall have to take it in a little." Now, you will only make matters worse by constantly pinching in and cutting off any portion of your material in one place. You must take it in by gentler methods. Slope it away gradually down the seam or work the material out in two or three places. Never take the material out abruptly in one spot.

On Choosing Presents.

Never give anything that pretends to be of better material than it is. Therefore shun rolled gold, electroplate, velveteen and artificial gems. A half marked silver thimble costing half a dollar does more honor to the giver and shows more respect for the recipient than a sham silver teapot costing ten times that sum. Whatever is given should be, so far as its kind is concerned, without superior. A carefully chosen rose has this character; an imitation Dresden tea service has one directly opposite.

Ribbon Belts.

If you make a belt out of ribbon, which, of course, is on the straight, it is very much more satisfactory to use two lengths of narrower ribbon instead of one length of wide. Do not sew the two lengths of ribbon together, but adjust them to the bones at the front, back and sides. The two pieces of ribbon will allow more "give" than one piece would, so that the belt will fit better into the line of the waist.

A Hair Hint.

A simple way of making the hair look thicker and heavier is as follows: After the shampoo and when the hair is perfectly dry braid it into two or three braids. Have one strand small and the other two large, braid loosely, hold the little strand tight and push the other two up toward the head. This will cause it to form large natural waves.

Wrinkled Skirts.

To keep dress skirts free from wrinkles they should be folded down the center front, then the doubled skirts folded in thirds and a large safety pin thrust through the folds. The safety pin, when fastened, is used as a hanger, and in this way the skirt hangs straight, with no strain on any part of the waistband.

Making Up Cottons.

It is not generally known that there is an "up and down" to cotton materials. Dampen a small piece of material and rub with the finger. You will notice that the cotton fabric has a nap just as a woolen material has. The material should be cut so that the nap will run down.

To Enlarge the Hips.

The following exercise, practiced faithfully, will aid in enlarging the hips: Stand alternately on each foot and swing the free limb pendulum fashion from the hip, each time allowing it to go as far forward and backward as possible.

Recently compiled statistics show there are fully 100,000 clubwomen on Manhattan Island. The clubs range from the Fencers' and the Chorus Girls' Protective union to the Emma Willard association.

Scrim bags for soiled handkerchiefs and neckwear are so sheer that the air passes through them, which prevents the fabrics from turning yellow, as in a close bag.

Never use borated talcum if your skin is oily, for the boric acid will only increase the shine. Get a good, heavy antiseptic powder.

Copperas mixed with whitewash and used for storerooms will keep all insect life away.

City of Presidents

Birthplace of Two Burial Place Of Two

Old historic Quincy settled in 1625 has much of interest to visitors. When Braintree was incorporated in 1640, the territory now known as Quincy, was a part. In 1792 Quincy became an independent town, and in 1888 was incorporated as a city.

Quincy was named in honor of Col. John Quincy, descendant in the third generation from Edmund, 2d, who settled in Quincy, in 1634; grandfather of Abigail (Smith) Adams, the wife and mother of a President of the United States.

The city includes Wollaston, Atlantic, Quincy Point, South Quincy, West Quincy, Montclair, Norfolk Downs, Wollaston Park, Squantum, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Quincy Neck, comprising in all over 16 square miles, of which 2,530 acres are in public parks.

TWO RACES IN MARS.

So States Syracuse Man Who Says He Visited the Planet.

Sackville G. Leyson of Syracuse, N. Y., president of the Society For Psychical Research, says he recently paid a visit to Mars, and although the distance is 141,000,000 miles his spirit went there and back in forty minutes, while his body was in his residence, 131 South avenue. In describing his visit to a correspondent of the New York World he said:

"When I approached Mars it looked like a big globe of fire and it seemed as if I was about to plunge into a molten mass. It was surrounded with blood red clouds, mixed with others of a greenish hue.

"There are two tribes of people on Mars, one so large that I only came up to their knees and the other so small that they only came up to my knees. None wore clothing and all were covered with hair.

"The larger species had large ears, a nose like a lion and only one eye in the middle of the forehead. Their lungs did not move up and down in breathing, but the expansion was crosswise. The little men lived in holes in the ground or in rocks, and the larger ones had houses made of rocks. The little ones had web feet and slipped over a mosslike substance as though skating. They could walk up perpendicular walls like flies. The small ones have two eyes, one in each temple. They had no nose, but there was a hole in each cheek.

"The trees looked as if made of rubber and I saw none decayed. There was a substance which looked like snow, but which was not cold, and easy and soft to walk upon. Down in a deep chasm I saw men working with some sort of machines which were guiding lights across transparent rocks and the rays seemed to be reflected clear to the atmosphere of the earth."

MAY MAKE MONKEYS TALK.

Scientists Going to Experiment With Gutta Percha Noses.

W. Reed Blair, the animal physician at the Bronx park zoo in New York, and several other scientists have come to the conclusion that the only reason a monkey cannot talk like a human being is his nose, says the New York Times. They have found that a monkey's vocal chords and the general contour of his head are the same as a man's, but the nose is different. The scientists say that it is too flat to permit the monkey to articulate like a man. They propose to remedy this by a gutta percha nose and to experiment with the artificial nose on August, the latest orang outang which has arrived at the Bronx zoo. Later similar experiments will be tried on Dohong, another orang outang, and Soko and Polly, two chimpanzees.

Keeper Reilly, who says he has taught the monkeys to do almost everything but talk, has volunteered to be their language teacher. The keeper will begin to teach August his A B C as soon as the new nose arrives. Monkeys are very quick in imitating, and it is believed that with the right kind of nose they will be able to imitate the sound of the human voice. August will be taught to talk just the same as a child in school.

The scientists got the idea of a gutta percha nose from a well known professor who has studied monkeys and the supposed monkey language for the last fifteen years in the Kongo. Some years ago the professor met a man whose nose had been shot off in a battle. The man was able to talk only by forming a cone with his hands over the place where his nose had been. The professor reasoned that a monkey was in about the same condition as a man with his nose shot off and has been working on the theory of an artificial nose since.

BEWARE BRIDAL CAKE.

Practice of Blowing Icing on It Disgusting, Says London Lancet.

It seems to be part of the function of the London Lancet to point out weekly the perils we encounter in daily life, says a special cable dispatch from London to the New York Sun.

A little while ago we learned that poison lurked in the threepenny postage stamp. Now we are warned of the peril in the joyous bridal cake. Attention is drawn to the "disgusting and filthy practice of blowing icing and other sweet stuff on bride cakes and other ornamental pastry by means of tubes applied to the lips of pastry cooks."

The writer mentions dealing with a case recently where a pastry cook was suffering with a well marked disease of the mouth and throat as a good example of the practice complained of.

Montenegro to Have a Parliament.

Prince Nicholas of Montenegro recently promulgated the decree under which the grand old race of fighting mountaineers will shortly go through, for the first time in their history, the experience of electing a parliament, says the London Globe. The election takes place on Sept. 27, and the deputies will be elected for four years. Every captaincy, as the districts are suggestively named, will return a member, as will each of the six towns of the principality. Every adult male of twenty-one is a voter, and every man of thirty paying about 13 shillings a year in taxes is eligible. The following have also seats, ex officio: The Orthodox metropolitan, the Roman Catholic primate, the Moslem chief mufti and members of the privy council of the high court, of the court of accounts, and three generals of brigade, nominated by the ministry.

The Under Side of Fish.

Experiments have been made with flounders in order to determine whether the whiteness of the under sides of those fish is due to the exclusion of light, and the presence of color on their upper sides to exposure to light. The fish experimented upon were kept living in a glass tank, having a mirror placed beneath, so as to reflect light upon the under sides of the fish. One of these prisoners survived for three years under conditions so strangely different from its ordinary habits of life, and all of them exhibited the development of spots of pigment on their lower surfaces. The experimenters concluded that it is exposure to light that causes the coloration of the upper parts of the bodies, not only of flounders, but of other fish, and, conversely, that it is to the comparative absence of light that the whiteness of under sides of fish is due. They extend the same principle to explain the colorless condition of the skins of many animals that pass all their lives in caves.

Bird Songs.

Naturalists have long been puzzled as to how birds learn to sing. Does it come natural to a bird of a certain species to sing the song common to its kind or does it learn to imitate whatever song it most hears during the early days of its life? Experiments made by a well known student of bird life proved that most birds simply learn by imitation. He placed young linnets to be reared by skylarks, woodlarks, titlarks and other breeds, and in every case the linnet learned the song of his foster parents. Again, a number of linnets were reared where they had no chance of hearing the song of any bird at all. In due course they began to sing, but their song was entirely original. The cuckoo, however, seems to be an exception, for although it is almost invariably reared by foster parents of any species but its own, it always sings to perfection its own peculiar song, quite uninfluenced by the vocal efforts of its guardians.

Origin of the Strike Fund.

The earliest mention of a strike fund occurred in the strike of the Parisian stocking weavers in 1724, when a crown a day was subscribed for every striker and all blacklegs were mercilessly boycotted. But the biggest strike under the "ancient regime" was that of the silk factory hands at Lyons in 1744, when 12,000 men went on strike and so alarmed the mayor that he conceded everything they asked and wrote to his brother that he had "la tete cassee par cette vile canaille." The "vile canaille," however, had had their moment, and it was no longer theirs. Two months later the king sent down 20,000 soldiers "pour remettre l'ordre dans la bonneville de Lyon," and we hear no more of strikes till the supreme strike of 1789.

A Snail's Sense of Smell.

Professor E. Yung of Geneva discovered that the keen sense of smell attributed to the ordinary snail is distributed over the entire body not covered by the shell, the two pairs of tentacles, the lips and the edges of the feet being particularly sensitive. In the experiments made a brush dipped in various odorous substances in turn was brought near the different parts of the body, and responses were noted at distances of one twenty-fifth of an inch to several inches. Only in exceptional cases was odor perceived as much as fifteen or twenty inches away, showing that smell cannot guide these creatures to food far removed.

The Mulberry Tree.

Silk is the great industry of northern Italy, and the plains of the quadrilateral are dark with mulberry trees. The mulberry tree is the hardest worked piece of timber in the world. First its leaves are skinned off for the worms to feed on, then the little branches are clipped for the worms to nest in, then the large limbs are cropped for charcoal, and the trunk has not only to produce a new crop of leaves and limbs for next year, but must act as trellis for a grapevine.

His Bucolic Business.

"That was a perfectly lovely gentleman I met last night," declared the pretty milliner. "He has a good, reliable business too."

"What is it?" asked her friend.

"Why, he sells farm implements," continued the pretty girl.

"What kind of farm implements?"

"Buckets—nothing but buckets. He told me he kept a bucket shop."—Detroit Free Press.

Ptomaines.

Ptomaines, according to Quain, are alkaloids produced by the decomposition of animal substances. The word ptomaine was at first restricted to alkaloids produced by cadaveric decomposition, but it is now also employed to designate alkaloids of animal origin formed during life as a result of chemical changes induced by some agency or other acting within the organism.

Youth and Pleasure.

Youth is not the age of pleasure. We then expect too much, and we are, therefore, exposed to daily disappointments and mortifications. When we are a little older and have brought down our wishes to our experience, then we become calm and begin to enjoy ourselves.—Lord Liverpool.

Fortune.

Fortune is like the market, where many times if you can stay a little the price will fall, and again it is sometimes like a sibyl's offer, which at first offereth the commodity at full, then consumeth part and part and still holdeth up the price.—Bacon.

A proper secrecy is the only mystery of able men. Mystery is the only secrecy of weak and cunning ones.

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The notable event at Keith's theatre, Boston, the week commencing next Monday, August 27th, will be the farewell of the Fadettes, who will complete an engagement of thirteen weeks on Saturday evening, September 1st. The present season is their fifth at Keith's and never have they proved a more attractive feature. For the regular vaudeville section of the bill, the head-liners will include Claire Beasy's troupe of performing cats, an act imported especially for the Keith Circuit; the Doherty sisters, two chic comediennes; Carson and Willard, Dutch humorists, and the Melnotte-La Nole trio of athletic amusers.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Saturday evening, Sept. 1, the regular dramatic season at the Castle Square Theatre begins. The stock company, headed by Howell Hansel as leading man and Miss Thais Lawton as leading woman, will appear as heretofore in a weekly change of bill that will include many of the most popular plays of the day, and no pains will be spared in making every production and revival as perfect and as artistic as possible. Among the new members of the company, in addition to Miss Lawton, will be Ben Johnson, Sholly Hull, Louis Albion, Frederick Murray and Frances Brandt, the favorite players remaining from last season being Mr. Hansel, Lenora Bradley, Mark Kent, John Waldron, Edward Wade and Elfrida Lasche.

BOSTON THEATRE.

In constructing the new play, "Cape Cod Folks," which will be seen for the first time on any stage at the Boston Theatre next Monday evening, the authors have gone far afield for novel situations, and one of the most important is the famous story of Grace Darling. Mary Hungerford, the pretty Boston school teacher, puts out in the teeth of a fierce storm on the Cape, and battles her way in a small dory to the wreck of the schooner in which her lover had sailed away in a moment of anger. The scene shows the girl in the flashing rays of the lighthouse, beating toward the crushed schooner. The actual rescue itself is also seen.

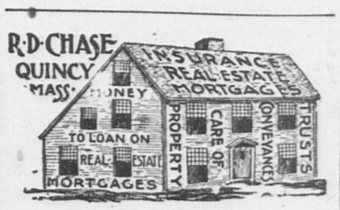

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Wright Lorimer will begin his fourth Boston engagement in "The Shepherd King" at the Colonial Theatre on Monday, Sept. 3d, opening with a special Labor Day matinee. Mr. Lorimer's engagement will last for three weeks and an entirely new and it possible, more gorgeous production than ever before of "The Shepherd King" will be given. Mr. Lorimer's company will number upwards of 150 people and during this engagement the orchestra at the Colonial Theatre will be augmented to 24 musicians. Mr. Eckstrom will again be seen as Prince Jonathan, Mr. Hales as King Saul, Mr. Prince as Ahimeleck, Miss Ward as Adora, and Miss Margaret Hayward as the Witch of Endor. A new Princess Michal in the person of Miss Marie Shotwell will be seen. She is a leading actress well and favorably known in this vicinity. Miss Lorena Atwood will be the Princess Merab.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. League Team Win From Fore River

On the Ward Three playground on Saturday afternoon the champion Fore River team of the Merrimac Valley foot ball league in 1905 lined up against a picked team from the league captained by Thomas Robertson of the McGregors.

Editor Luce of the soccer football and cricket departments of the Herald was referee, and was prompt to check all rough play and keep both teams where they belonged.

All the scoring was done in the first half. The good work of Lynch in protecting the Merrimacs' goal prevented the Fore Rivers from getting a goal, while the Merrimacs secured two on good team work.

The goal tenders had more work in the second half but in each case were successful in keeping the ball out. On one occasion Collins left his post and pushed the ball beyond the centre of the field until it went outside.

The Wollaston Championship

The Goblin finished so far ahead of the other boats in her class in the championship race of the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday, that the judges did not figure the time. The Whisper was second. Other yachts in the race were the Sheila, Stranger and IXL. The Goblin and Sheila now have a leg each for the championship of class B.

Anna Leads The Power Boats

A race for power boats was sailed under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club on Saturday off the club house. The judges were George S. Morse and John J. Deasy. Six boats were entered, but it was an easy victory for the Anna, which by the way is a home made craft.

The summary:

Name and owner.	El. time. h m s
Anna, E. Them	0 59 30
Susie, R. H. McCarter	1 06 00
Iona, P. Catarina	1 06 15
Marjorie, A. H. Taber	1 09 00
Eleanor, Gould & Hamblett	1 12 00
Gustie, Wm. Norteman	1 12 35

Arawak a Winner.

The Cape cat boats of Quincy had another interesting race on Saturday in the open regatta of the Duxbury club as will be seen by the summary of elapsed time:

Name and owner	h m s
Arawak, H. C. Nickerson	1 59 59
Iris, F. F. Crane	2 02 32
Marvel, I. M. Whittemore	2 05 40

Crude Oil Engine.

John F. Wentworth, of 31 Bigelow street, has just placed the contract for the construction of an experimental engine of the internal combustion type with Geo. Lawley & Son of South Boston. The engine is an invention of Mr. Wentworth's and uses for fuel crude oil or any hydro carbon liquid. The chief advantages of the engine are that it is as reliable as steam, as convenient as gasolene, as safe as kerosene, and cheaper than any other form of motive power.

Other Games.

At Wollaston the Wollastons defeated the Boston Library Bureau team 9 to 8.

At South Weymouth the Norfolks defeated the Braintrees 8 to 1.

Big Pow-Wow At Downer Landing

There was something doing on Saturday afternoon and evening at New Downer Landing at the fourth annual pow-wow of the Tammany club of Ward 17, Boston. It is estimated that over 10,000 were present and most of them made the trip between Boston and Quincy by electric cars which were run as frequently as possible. The fact that there is a single track road between City Square and Quincy Point caused more or less delay, but on the whole the Old Colony street railway handled the crowd well.

Considerable interest centered in the fire men's muster in which nine hand engines participated. First prize went to the Defender of Weymouth. The other tubs were from Braintree, Brockton, Roxbury and Jamaica Plain.

The Queen Quality and Fore River teams were well matched in the ball game of six innings. Each club made eight hits and the former won 8 to 7. Bjorkland and Hanson were the Fore River battery.

A successful balloon ascension was made, and the air ship travelled over a mile toward Quincy square.

There were other sports and attractions but the event of the day was the address of "Tim" Coakley, who championed the cause of John B. Moran for Governor. He also criticised Josiah Quincy, Henry M. Whitney and corporate interests, and extended sympathy to ex-Gov. Douglas.

Dancing and other amusements continued in the evening and it was nearly midnight before some of the picknickers were able to get a car for home. On several of the cars in the evening there were boisterous crowds and some damage was reported.

Merry Mounts

Win First Of New Series With the South Quincys

The Merrymounts defeated the South Quincys at Merrymount Park on Saturday by score of 5 to 1. Both pitchers were effective, Kolson holding South Quincy to four hits, and Collins was touched for but seven.

Baker and Osgood did some brilliant fielding, and Birnie did most of the hitting for his team, and covered first base in high class style.

In the first inning Duffy was out on a fly to Osgood, Birnie singled but was left as Drake and Kiley were thrown out by Kolson.

For Merrymounts, Baker was safe on Duggan's poor throw, which allowed the runner to reach second. Hoxie singled to centre and Oswald threw home to catch Baker, the throw was wild and Hoxie reached third. Stevens sent up a fly to Duggan in short left. Hoxie dashed for home and was safe by a narrow margin. Dunn was thrown out by Galvin, and Osgood fanned. Score—Merrymounts 2, South Quincys 0.

Second inning—Oswald singled, but was doubled up with Spargo on a fast double play started by Dunn. Duggan was safe on Dunn's error but was thrown out trying to steal second.

For Merrymounts, Loud started with a safety; Kappler bunted and was safe on Galvins juggle; Woodman bunted to Collins and was thrown out; Kolson fanned and Baker worked a pass. With three on bases, Hoxie smashed one to centre that Oswald captured.

It was one, two, three for South Quincys in the third, and Merrymounts followed suit.

In the fourth, with two down, Kiley reached first when Dunn misjudged on his roller, and Oswald was thrown out by Baker. After one was out Kappler was safe on a scratch and was thrown out at second by Duffy when Woodman hit into his territory. Kolson closed the inning with a fan act.

In the fifth, with two gone, Galvin was passed and stole second, but was left as Collins flied out to Osgood.

For Merrymounts, Baker flew out to Duffy, Hoxie struck out, and Stevens fouled out to Drake.

In the sixth, after two were out, Drake hit a roller that Dunn failed to stop, he stole second, aided by a low throw, and started to steal third, but Woodman threw the ball wild to Baker and Drake scored.

Merrymounts went out in order. Score, Merrymounts 2, South Quincys 1.

In the seventh Duggan got to first with two gone and stole second but was left.

With one down Woodman singled and Kolson beat out a bunt; Baker was thrown out by Collins; Hoxie fanned, but Drake missed the third strike allowing Woodman and Kolson to score. Stevens singled, scoring Hoxie, but was out trying for second. Score Merrymounts 5, South Quincys 1.

In the eighth Birnie singled but was left.

For Merrymounts, Dunn singled but was doubled up when Osgood hit a liner to Duggan. Loud was thrown out by Kiley.

In the ninth Kiley hit the ball a hard swat straight into Baker's hands. Baker threw out Oswald. Spargo was hit and Duggan was safe on a scratch hit on the foul line. Galvin closed the game by a hard drive to right that Loud captured. Score 5 to 1.

The Auk Is Out

Failed to Win One in Four The Bonidrei Now Has Two

The elapsed time on Saturday was:

Bonidrei, G. H. Wightman	3 18 15
Auk, C. F. Adams 2d	3 25 03
Manchester II, Dr. J. L. Bremer	3 35 12
Windrim Kid, F. G. Macomber,	3 36 45

Local interest in the Quincy Yacht club challenge cup races received a rude shock on Saturday, when the Auk, the Quincy challenger, failing to win one race in four, was ruled out of further contests. The Windrim Kid, now named the Chewink VII, which remains in the contest, is however, a Quincy built boat, and it would be some satisfaction should she win the cup. The Bonidrei which has won two races is nevertheless the favorite with many.

The wind for Saturday's race was very light, all the yachts requiring over three hours. The Bonidrei won with over six minutes to spare. The Auk led the other two over ten minutes. The elapsed time on each leg was:

Locals and City Brevities

Labor day next Monday.

The last week of August.

Dog days are scheduled to end next week Wednesday.

There was a heavy travel on the street cars on Sunday.

The public schools will open two weeks from today.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pollock of New York city are the guests of Mrs. Mary Pollock of Bigelow street.

Last year Quincy had a 58 degree day and a 60 degree day in August, in all six days below 70, but the lowest noon temperature this month has been 73.

Mrs. Nora Geary with daughter and cousin Cornelius Cronin spent Sunday at Nantasket, the guest of their cousin, Miss Anna Louise Cronin of Detroit, Mich., at Hotel Nantasket.

The Knights of Malta had a pleasaant outing on Saturday evening. About six o'clock they met in City Square and took cars for Houghs Neck where they engaged a special boat for Nantasket. A supper at Wade's hotel with speech-making and a good time foltowed.

Mrs. Harry Fisher of Upland road has had for guests the past week, Mrs. Will Poxom and Miss Luella Poxom of Fall River, Miss Amy Currier of Sea View, Eldm Richardson of Worcester, Miss Viola Maccomber of Abbots Run, R. I., and Bert Richardson of Hanover.

How to Keep Well In Warm Weather

If you would be well in warm weather heed the following rules, says the Rochester Herald:

Moderation in eating and drinking.

Pure air, out of the house and within it.

Keep every vital organ in constant working order.

Take regular exercise every day in all weathers.

Sleep only from six to seven hours, going to bed early and rising early.

Daily baths, cold one day, warm the next.

Regular work and mental occupation.

Cultivate placidity, cheerfulness and hopefulness.

Control passion and nervous fear.

Strengthen the will in carrying out whatever is useful.

Check the craving for stimulants and anodynes.

How to Drive a Nail.

At last the secret of driving a nail without profanity and without pain is out, says the Locomotive Engineering. Practice alone will not accomplish it. You must fix your mind on the nail. When you drive a nail into a board what do you do? Do you trust to luck that the swinging hammer above your head shall come down in the right place? Do you concentrate your thoughts on the hammer circling in the air? No; you concentrate your thoughts and eyes square on the head of the nail you want to hit, and, no matter where your hammer is or what curves it describes in the air, if your intense thought is on the spot where the blow should fall, there it will fall. If your thoughts wabble and are uncertain you will miss the nail or drive it sidewise.

How to Cure Summer Complaint.

To cure children of summer complaint tie a quarter of a pound of wheat flour in a thick cloth and boil it in a quart of water for three hours; then remove the cloth and expose the flour to the air or heat until it is hard and dry; grate from it, when wanted, a tablespoonful, which put into half a pint of new milk and stir over the fire until it comes to a boil, when add a pinch of salt and a tablespoonful of cold water and serve. This gruel is excellent for children afflicted with summer complaint. Or brown a tablespoonful of flour in the oven or on top of the stove on a baking tin; feed a few pinches at a time to a child.

DECREE DELAYED

Cuban Government Considered Granting of Amnesty

FAVORED BY PRESIDENT

Was Strongly Opposed by Persons Close to Him--Insurrection Has Spread From Villages to Large Towns--Palma and Vice President Capote at Odds

Havana, Aug. 27.—The deep anxiety of President Palma to extend every possible opportunity for peace without bloodshed, and his desire to permit those who joined the insurrection under misguidance to repent and return to their homes unmolested, combined with the general wish to end a situation fraught with so much loss and suffering, has led to consideration by the president and his cabinet of a project decreeing a 30-day amnesty period, during which the insurrectionists are invited to lay down their arms and return to their peaceful pursuits. It was proposed to issue the decree today, but persons close to the president strongly opposed the measure and the matter was deferred and may be relinquished.

General Montalvo, who is acting secretary of the interior, on leaving the president last night, said that at present there was no intention to issue an amnesty. Font Sterling, secretary of the treasury, said the matter was not being seriously considered, and other friends of President Palma declared it would be an unwise move.

So far as actual conflict went, Sunday proved to be a day of inactivity, but preparations proceeded without abatement. A fund of $2,000,000 has been set aside by the treasury for defense, and drafts on it are heavy and constant.

The situation is so increasingly serious that it is tacitly admitted in all government circles that the enlargement of the army will not stop at any given number, but will continue indefinitely. While the number of men at present leaving their regular occupations to enlist for the war is small, employers are beginning to find that they soon will be confronted with a considerable scarcity of labor.

Several new insurgent bands have taken to the brush. The growth of the insurrection certainly seems to keep pace with the preparations for suffocating it. Next to the progress of the combatants, the most interesting question seems to be how to end the war without fighting. Around the discussion of this question centers a deal of crimination and recrimination from both Liberals and Moderates, each side bringing accusations against the other as to the responsibility for precipitating the rebellion.

All discussion of this sort leads inevitably to the subject of American intervention. If the conflict should last for a long time intervention is considered to loom as a tolerably certain eventuality. If the government subdues the insurrection and chastises, wounds or kills members of the Liberal party, the feeling of rancor is expected to continue for years. If the insurrectionists prevail, it is predicted that uncertain conditions are bound to continue.

Santa Clara is becoming a thorough insurrectionist province. Some villages have become wholly insurrectionist, and even larger towns, in some cases, have taken up arms against the government. The attitude of the people is entirely a question of the attitude of the leaders. A former mayor of Trinidad has suddenly placed himself at the head of a band of 100 insurgents. The mayor of Las Cruces is leading a band from his town, consisting of 200 men.

The province of Havana is still kept nervous by unimportant encounters.

There are grave differences between President Palma and Vice President Capote. The latter is suspected of having considered with Senator Zayas, president of the Liberal party, the question of whether peace could not be restored by Palma's withdrawal from the presidency, by permitting Capote to succeed him, and by giving certain posts to the Liberals. None of the parties concerned are willing to discuss this matter, but the source of the information is entirely reliable.

No Supplies From Mexico

Mexico City, Aug. 27.—The Mexican government has issued strict orders that no use shall be made of gulf ports, especially those of Yucatan, as a base of supplies for the Cuban revolutionists.

Two Throwing Records Fall

New York, Aug. 27.—Martin J. Sheridan threw the discus 134 feet 4 inches at the Irish carnival in Celtic park. This throw eclipses the mark of 133 feet 11 inches made by Sheridan last year and constitutes a new world's record. Another world's record was set by John J. Flanagan in the 56-pound weight throwing competition. He sent the big iron ball 43 feet 5 inches. The old record was a foot short of this mark.

Railway Strike at San Francisco

San Francisco, Aug. 27.—With the exception of the California and the Geary street lines, street railway traffic here was suspended yesterday as the result of a strike for higher wages by conductors and motormen of the United Railways system. There was no disorder.

CRASH OF BIG AUTO

Met a Street Car and Owner and Chauffeur Are Killed

Providence, Aug. 27.—Liquor Inspector Aime E. Frazeau of Fall River was fatally injured and his chauffeur, Oliver Labelle, was killed in a collision near Lakewood, a suburb of this city. Two women, another man and a little girl, who were in the machine, were thrown out, but escaped serious injury.

The accident happened as the party, who were in Frazeau's large touring car, were crossing the tracks of a street railroad. The car which figured in the accident was a large box car as big as a steam coach and the auto was struck squarely in the middle.

Mrs. Frazeau jumped and escaped injury. The little girl was thrown between the tracks and also escaped. The tonneau came off and those who were sitting in the back of the machine fell out in safety.

The chauffeur was hurled head first from the auto and struck under the front of the car, lying directly across the track. The left forward truck rolled over his head and crushed the skull, cutting it off just over the eyes. Frazeau was also thrown and struck by the car, suffering compound fractures of both legs and serious internal injuries, which caused his death this morning.

Victims of Stensland's Theveryl

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Johann Kindler, 18 years old, became violent and alarmed passengers in a street car while brooding over the loss of $80, which he had deposited in the failed Milwaukee Avenue state bank. Kindler is held pending an investigation of his sanity. Kindler is the second person to become mentally deranged as a result of the failure of this bank. In addition, three persons have committed suicide and one man fell dead. The police are still in the dark as to the whereabouts of Stensland.

Children May Be Deported

New York, Aug. 27.—The case of 40 Russian Hebrew children who arrived here Saturday on the steamship Amerika was heard by the board of special inquiry at Ellis island and it was decided to deport them. The order is not final, however, as the case has been appealed to Washington. The children, all of them made orphans by the recent massacres in Russia, were brought here through funds supplied by wealthy Hebrews of this city, who secured homes throughout the country where the children could be sent.

Engineer and Fireman Killed

Little Falls, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The boiler of a freight locomotive exploded near here, causing the death of Engineer Wagner and Fireman Hall. The boiler was thrown from the trucks high in the air and landed 100 feet away, blocking all four tracks of the road. Neither the driving wheels nor the tender of the engine was thrown from the tracks, but ran on with the train for a quarter of a mile. The engine had just taken water and the cause of the explosion has not been ascertained.

Denies Charge of Murder

St. John, Aug. 27.—Thomas Collins, held on suspicion of the murder of Mary A. Macaulay at New Ireland, was brought here last evening from Charlotte county. Collins, the police say, told them he had been working at Father Macaulay's and left there because the latter's housekeeper, the murdered woman, was always scolding him and finding fault. He says she was alive and well when he left.

Jerome's Challenge Answered

New York, Aug. 27.—Tammany Leader Harburger declares he will be a delegate to the Buffalo convention and will take the platform and present, for the Democratic nomination for governor, the name of Congressman Sulzer. Harburger makes this statement in response to District Attorney Jerome, who challenged the leaders of Tammany Hall to express their choice for governor.

Street Car Passengers In Panic

Cleveland, Aug. 27.—Seven persons were injured and 20 others were imprisoned in a disabled car for some time, following a head-on collision of two street cars. Almost a panic followed the collision and those who were fastened in the disabled car were trampled over by other frightened passengers in their efforts to escape. None of the injured will die.

Wellman Ready For Trial Trip

London, Aug. 27.—The Daily Mail's Christiana correspondent says that a steamer from Spitzbergen brings a report that the Wellman-Chicago Record-Herald North Pole expedition's shed and balloon were finished last week and that Wellman intends shortly to make a trial trip.

Schooner Cannot Be Saved

Shediac, N. B., Aug. 27.—The American schooner Island City, from Newcastle, N. B., for New York with a cargo of laths, is ashore 15 miles east of this port. The vessel is a total loss. The crew is safe. The Island City was built at Boston in 1871.

NEWS IN BRIEF

IN POOL OF BLOOD

Woman Found With a Bullet Wound In Her Head

HUSBAND ALSO WOUNDED

Theory That He Killed Wife and Then Tried Suicide--The Dead Body Discovered by Daughter of the Couple

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 27.—William M. Berry, aged 40, a day laborer, is under surveillance at the North Adams hospital suffering from a slight bullet wound in the scalp, and the authorities say that he will probably be arraigned on the charge of killing his wife, whose body, with a bullet hole through the heart, was found last night lying in the kitchen at their home. Berry appeared in a dazed condition when the crime was discovered. The cause of the shooting is not known, but according to his daughter, Mary, who discovered the body, Berry has been subject to fits of jealousy without cause.

The theory which the authorities hold is that Berry shot his wife and then turned the revolver upon himself, intending to commit suicide. The bullet, however, inflicted only a slight scalp wound above his right ear.

The daughter is employed at a sanitarium at Sand Springs and did not return to her home until late last evening. On her arrival she found the house locked and shouted to her father to let her in. After some delay he opened the door and admitted her, she says, and when she asked where her mother was, he replied "In the kitchen."

Miss Berry says her father then went upstairs, while she passed into the kitchen and found the body of her mother lying in a pool of blood between the kitchen range and the chimney. She notified Dr. Nelson, who found that the woman had been dead apparently for several hours from a bullet wound in the heart.

Medical Examiner Brown and Dr. Lloyd were then summoned to the house. The medical examiner found a trail of blood from the stove to the sink in the kitchen. On going up stairs he discovered Berry lying in bed and seemingly asleep. When partly aroused Berry, who seemed to be dazed, refused to say anything except that the revolver was in a trunk in a corner of the room. The medical examiner found the weapon, a 32-calibre affair, where Berry said it was. Two bullets had been fired from it, and the other chambers were loaded.

Berry's wound is not considered serious and the medical examiner says that a warrant will probably be issued for him today.

"Ideal Child of God"

Rochester, Aug. 27.—Christian Science healers are censured in a verdict rendered by Coroner Killip in the case of Fanny Green, a young woman who died here of cerebro spinal meningitis. She was taken ill 11 weeks ago and the coroner finds that she was attended only by so-called Christian Science healers, their treatment consisting of prayer and endeavoring to impress upon the mind of the girl that she was not sick, and if she but realized that she was "the ideal child of God" her sickness would be overcome and she would be well.

Label on Lynched Man's Body

Calhoun, La., Aug. 27.—Alfred Schaufniet, a negro, was hanged to a telegraph pole here by a mob for attempting to criminally assault a young woman of this place early yesterday morning. Schaufniet was frightened by the screams of his intended victim and fled, but was captured by a posse. The following notice was posted on the negro's body: "This is a warning to all negroes who would attempt to force an entrance to the apartments of white women."

Murdered For Almost Nothing

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 27.—Vincenzo Errinoni, a foreman of railroad section hands, was operating a phonograph belonging to Luigi Salwiner in an Italian boarding shanty. He accidentally broke one of the records and, after cursing him, Salwiner secured his revolver and shot Errinoni in the eye, instantly killing him. Salwiner escaped.

Became Insane at Altar

Toronto, Aug. 27.—While giving out the announcements in St. Michael's Roman Catholic church, Rev. Father McEachren suddenly became insane. He became so violent that it was necessary to send for the police. There was a temporary panic among the members of the congregation, but without serious results.

HINCKLEY IS DEAD

Did Not Know Bank of Which He Was President Had Failed

Boston, Aug. 27.—Sylvester B. Hinckley, president of the First National bank of Chelsea, which closed its doors Aug. 17, died yesterday in his home at Newton, in his 65th year. Hinckley had been ill for several months with liver trouble, and death had been expected for the past few days. He died without having been advised of the failure of the banking institution of which he had been president for six years.

Hinckley was a large stockholder and closely identified with the management of the bank, and when it was closed a week ago Friday by Bank Examiner Ewer it was announced that a failure had resulted from heavy loans to Hinckley on real estate held by him, and that the directors had been unable to realize on his property. The bank's failure was kept a secret from Hinckley.

For many years Hinckley was identified with the cordage industry of New England. He retired from business 14 years ago, occupying himself actively, however, with financial matters. In addition to his late presidency of the First National bank of Chelsea, he had been a large operator in real estate.

Bulleta For Two Brothers

Springfield, Vt., Aug. 27.—Andrew Blanchard and Frank Blanchard, brothers, were shot by George Miles during an altercation at Gould's Mills, a small hamlet near here. It is not thought that the wounds of either of the Blanchards will prove fatal. Miles says the Blanchards, who were apparently under the influence of liquor, entered the house where all three boarded and created a disturbance. Miles ordered them to desist and they then attacked him, whereupon he fired in self-defense.

Boston Strike Held Up

Boston, Aug. 27.—A threatened general strike of longshoremen, freight handlers and other transportation workers of this city will not take place today. At a special meeting of labor men a letter was read which requested a delay of a day in order that a number of interested parties connected with the large transportation companies might have an opportunity to confer with the union officials in an effort to settle the matter without recourse to a strike. This was agreed upon.

Crew Almost Played Out

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 27.—Schooner Neptune, lumber laden, from Machias, Me., for Hingham, Mass., was helped into harbor by members of the lifesaving crew, leaking 4000 strokes an hour, and with three feet of water in her hold. She was beached at Kittery point for repairs. Her crew, who had been pumping steadily for 48 hours, were nearly exhausted.

Attempt to Wreck Train

Reading, Mass., Aug. 27.—The engineer of a passenger train from Boston for Lawrence, due here at 9:11 p. m., discovered an obstruction on the track, and, stopping his train, removed two ties that had been placed across the rails. The railroad officials here refuse to say anything about the occurrence, but the police admit that they are investigating the matter.

Heavier Burden For Ice Consumers

Boston, Aug. 27.—An advance in the price of ice, which is at present higher than usual, is said by the officials of several ice companies to be in immediate prospect. The reason given by the dealers for the advance is that the shortage in last winter's ice crop is becoming so serious that it is now necessary to haul ice to the cities from distant points.

Killed a Fellow Indian

Bangor, Me., Aug. 27.—John Ranco, a Penobscot Indian of Old Town, was found guilty of manslaughter in shooting Peter Loring of the same tribe at Indian island. The defense claimed that the shooting was accidental. The prosecution introduced evidence to show that Ranco was drinking at the time and shot the other Indian during a quarrel.

Assignment of Bank Director

Boston, Aug. 27.—Following the recent closing of the First National bank of Chelsea, George D. Emery, one of the directors of the defunct bank, has assigned all his personal and real property. The reason given for the assignment was that Emery felt that he was unable to meet all his obligations as they mature.

BOMB INTENDED FOR STOLYPIN

It Missed the Marked Man, but Killed Thirty-Two Others

A TERRIBLE SCENE OF CARNAGE

Havoc Wrought In Premier's Home Is Indescribable--Two Conspirators Killed--On One Is Found Death Sentence of Stolypin, Who Miraculously Escaped Death--Bodies of Victims of Explosion Lay Exposed In Hospital Yard--General Min Shot Down and Killed.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—Thirty-two persons are dead and 24 wounded as the result of an attempt to assassinate Premier Stolypin with a bomb while he was holding a public reception at his country house on Aptekarsky island.

Among the dead are General Zameatin, the premier's personal secretary; M. Khovostoff, former governor of the province of Ponza; Colonel Foderoff, chief of the premier's personal guard; Count Chamberlain Davidoff, Court Chamberlain Voronin and Aide Doubassoff.

The wounded included Stolypin's 15-year-old daughter, 3-year-old son, who are seriously injured, and a number of persons prominent in the official and social worlds.

Of the four conspirators who engineered the outrage, two were killed with their victims, while the third, who acted as coachman for the party, and the fourth, who remained inside the carriage, were badly wounded and are now in St. Peter and St. Paul fortress. Whether the assassins who entered the crowded reception hall threw the bomb, or accidentally dropped it, probably never will be known, as all the immediate eye-witnesses were killed.

The tremendous force of the explosion absolutely blew out the front of the premier's residence and carried away the ceilings above and the floors beneath, and the walls of the adjoining rooms. People were literally blown to pieces. Those who were not killed instantly were horribly maimed or lacerated and all the others present were prostrated by the shock.

The premier's escape was miraculous, for only a moment before the explosion took place he had stepped inside his study at the rear of the salon to speak to Prince Shakovsky. He was slightly injured.

The havoc wrought by the explosion is indescribable. Bodies were so torn or mangled as to make identification impossible, some of them headless, armless or legless lying in the blood-dripping wreckage.

Pieces of flesh and clothing clung to the shattered rafters overhead and some lodged in the branches of the elm trees which border the roadway separating the premier's residence from the river.

The terrorist who carried the explosive into the house was literally converted into pulp by the explosion. Inside the gendarme officer's coat which he had on was found the death sentence of Premier Stolypin, which he had tried to execute. The police refuse to make public the contents of this document.

At the hospital of St. Peter and St. Paul there was a disgraceful scramble of thousands of curiosity seekers around the mangled remains of 26 of the victims of the explosion, which had lain exposed on the grass in the hospital yard the whole of Saturday night and yesterday. Society women fought and jostled street laborers and peasant women for a chance to view the sight. Many of them were accompanied by children of tender age.

Though dozens of suspected revolutionists were gathered in yesterday in the capital, no important arrests have been chronicled. The police have been unsuccessful in getting on the real track of the conspiracy beyond establishing from the text of the death sentence found on the body of one of the dead assassins that the band belonged to the Maximists, better known as the "flying group" of the Social Revolutionists. This group is thus designated because it operates on an unfixed base. It has been responsible for most of the recent assassinations, not having accepted the dictum of the larger "fighting organization" of the Social Revolutionists to discontinue activity during the session of parliament.

The unsuccessful attempt on the life of Stolypin was followed last night by another revolutionary outrage, in which General Min, commander of the Seminovsky guard regiment, and who, since his promotion to be a general, has been attached as a personal adjutant to the suite of the czar, was killed on the station platform at Peterhof by a young woman, who fired five shots into his body from an automatic revolver and then, without resistance, submitted to arrest. The capture of the girl was effected by Min's wife, who held her until the arrival of an officer. Any one of the five wounds would have resulted fatally.

This was the third successive attempt on the life of Min, who was condemned to death by the terrorists immediately after the Moscow revolt last December on account of the stern repression practiced by a battalion under his command and especially for the wholesale execution of persons condemned by drumhead court martial for being caught with arms in their hands.

General Min was returning from the capital to his summer residence at Peterhof and had just greeted his wife and daughter on the platform when a young woman—almost a girl—approached from behind and fired two shots into his back and then three more into his body as it sank to the ground.

Bomb Dropped Unexpectedly

Odessa, Aug. 27.—Late Saturday evening a girl dropped a bomb in the Nicholas boulevard near the palace of Governor General Kaulbars. There was a deafening detonation and a wild stampede of the promenaders. No one was injured except the girl who dropped the bomb, whose hand was shattered. It is supposed that the bomb accidentally fell before she had reached the entrance to the palace. She and another girl and a university student who was accompanying them were arrested.

Threat of Revolutionists

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—The central committee of the Social Revolutionists has drawn up a proclamation which declares that unless the government forthwith alters its policy, such acts as the attempt on the life of Stolypin will be pursued to the utmost and government representatives will be killed by hundreds.

Officers Implicated In Plot

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—Private advices received here from Tiflis are to the effect that a plot on the life of Count Von Vorontzoff-Dashkoff, viceroy of the Caucasus, has been discovered and that many arrests have been made, including several officers.

Cossacks Fired on Workmen

Yudooka, Russia, Aug. 27.—After a meeting of workmen here yesterday shots were fired. This resulted in an encounter between the workmen and Cossacks and police, the latter firing nine volleys, which killed eight persons and wounded 32.

Valparaiso's Rebuilding Plans

Valparaiso, Aug. 27.—The government has drawn up and presented a project for the reconstruction of Valparaiso. In order to prevent the flooding of streets they will have a uniform level. The government will pay cash for lands expropriated for widening streets and will facilitate loans to owners of lands thus taken. Customs duties will be suspended for 18 months on construction material. The bourse and commercial houses are not yet doing business, and because of a lack of money the banks are forced to continue limited payments.

Policyholders In the Lurch

San Francisco, Aug. 27.—The Rhine and Moselle Fire Insurance company of Germany has surrendered its license to do business in California. In relation to the claims of policyholders who suffered losses in the conflagration following the earthquake the company authorizes the statement that as to any policyholder having no other insurance other than in this company, and whose loss does not exceed $500, they will allow 50 percent of the claim, but that as to all other claims they will refuse payment.

JOHN, THE ORANGE MAN

Glimpses of Harvard University's Famous Old Character.

BELOVED BY ALL THE STUDENTS

Odd Figure In College Yard Was Familiar Sight to Generations of Harvard Men—A Mascot Everywhere and Only Once Made a Mistake, Says a Chicago Alumni.

The Harvard colony in Chicago is in mourning for old John, the orange man. In fact hundreds of Harvard graduates throughout the country are mourning the loss of this famous old character.

Since the early fifties the late John Lovett (he was seldom called by his full name) was the crimson mascot, says the Chicago Post. Nobody ever knew how old he was. John himself didn't. But he was a fruit peddler at Harvard when President Eliot was studying "The Anabasis."

"We all thought a good deal of John," declared a prominent Harvard man recently. "As an orange man he was indispensable. As a mascot we could never have got along without him. It was John, in his silk hat and red ribbons, who pulled Harvard through many a trying ninth inning, who rallied the exhausted football giants in the last five minutes at the stadium. Dear old John! He was as much a part of Harvard as the college yard."

If you ever have attended one of the big games on an eastern gridiron; if you have ever been a unit in that half delirious mob at triennial; if you have ever watched breathless from the observation train the crimson crew sweep down the Hudson or the Thames, you must remember John, the orange man.

When they used to hold the championship football games at Springfield, there was always John with the red fringe around his head, pranked out in good old crimson, riotously leading the student crowd out to the battlefield. The girls in red—and many of the girls in blue—had smiles for him. The coaches listened to his sage advice.

The football captains took him into their secret councils. To him the crew manager applied for green apples, when it became necessary to reduce the weight of the cockswain. It was old John who led the cheering—even when he could hardly stand on his feet for enthusiasm; who, later, led the college band, waving a ribbon bedecked cane for a baton to the measured rhythm of "Fair Harvard."

But now "Fair Harvard" knows him no more. The subfreshmen who have looked forward so proudly to meeting him are doomed to disappointment. The sophomores and juniors who once knew him will discover what a big place the little old Irishman held in their affections. His cheery "Good evening, friend," and "Good night, friend," will be heard no more about the campus rooms at night—nor his well known shuffle in the hallway.

"We knew him," said F. Herman Gade, "in gray days and gold. When Harvard lost, old John was as disconsolate as the manager of the team could be. The riotous days would have been nothing without old John, in his red coat and crimson banded silk hat, reeling at the head of the student crowd while they carried the victorious football captain on their shoulders.

"We took him everywhere, and everywhere he was a mascot. Only once did he make a mistake. It was at New Haven, and the old man evidently got twisted or forgot that the goals had been changed during the second half. A Yale man grabbed the ball out of a scrimmage and, dodging our half back, hurdling the quarter back, plunged eighty yards down the field for a touchdown.

"The Yale stands rose with a mighty roar. Seat cushions, hats and canes flew into the air. On the Harvard stands, however, all was silence and depression. But there was old John, thinking that Harvard had scored, waving his arms and belching forth husky 'Rah! rahs!'

"It was almost more than we could stand. 'Why don't you cheer, boys?' he yelled, and we—we were in tears. Then, up in the corner, the crimson band began to play 'Fair Harvard.' One by one the students took it up, and old John stood in front leading us on. When he learned his mistake later he was inconsolable.

"In his business life John was a wonder. He never kept books, nor did we, but he could remember accurately how much each fellow owed him—to a cent.

"He would shuffle into your room when you were grinding for exams. With a 'Good evening, friend,' he would leave some oranges or bananas or figs where you might want them. If you weren't there he would leave them anyway. At the end of the month, when the remittances came in, he made his collections, and if he cheated any one it was himself.

"He grew feeble a few years ago and his friends bought him a donkey and a cart. The cart had two big H's on its sides, and in this equipage John would ride down the yard as if he was the president. He was like a pet child to the student body."

In the recent New York production of "Brown of Harvard" John, the orange man, against the advice of his friends, was persuaded to go on the stage. The strain was too great for him, however, and he soon returned to Cambridge.

THE TRIP ABROAD.

How to Prepare For Its Enjoyment In a Sensible Manner.

It is always well to get into first class physical condition before you undertake an ocean journey, for you are sure to tax your strength daily as far as it will go, says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune. Your family physician can give you some safe, simple remedies fitted to your constitution, which you can take while abroad for any of the ordinary ailments to which your individual flesh is heir, thus sparing you many an uncomfortable moment as well as the necessity of calling in a strange practitioner. However good this doctor is, he may not immediately know how best to treat you.

The safest plan is not to take anything which your doctor does not heartily indorse, to avoid sweets, uncooked fruit and all things not likely to agree with you. When nauseated, assume a recumbent attitude and remain as quiet as possible. Take only hot and easily assimilated food and have a hot water bag, which you can place either at your feet or stomach. Heat will soothe a spasm of seasickness when all other methods fail. Spend as much time as possible on deck.

All travelers will find it convenient to have a piece of oiled silk, oilcloth or even waterproof cloth, if not a bag, wherein to wrap wet sponges and towels. Besides all the usual toilet articles, travelers are expected to provide their own soap. This is conveniently carried in the form of soap leaves. Be sure to have a celluloid case for your toothbrush bristles.

A flat steamer trunk to be left at the steamer office until your return is desirable. This will contain your steamer rug and a small pillow anyhow and probably most of your steamer outfit. A man should have on the steamer one medium weight traveling suit of good make able to withstand weather.

Underwear of extra thickness will make this suit warm enough for cold ocean days, while a couple of suits of gauze underwear will adapt it to temperate and even moderately hot days. An extra suit for emergencies, dress clothes, as need for them is likely to arise; a mackintosh or raincoat, which can answer for overcoat on cold days and even a dressing gown on a pinch, make the bulk of the impedimenta.

A felt hat of comfortable make and shape and a traveling cap answer every purpose as headgear for the average tourist. Most travelers, male and female, will find it wise to take the least possible amount of clothing with them. The only article of which both sexes should have a-plenty at the start is footwear, which should be new, yet thoroughly broken in. Remember you are to walk many a mile and stand many an hour. Low heels, rubber preferred, are an assistance, and in most cases "high necked" shoes are better than the "decollete" variety. Keep your ankles warm on shipboard.

Ladies should set out with one tailor made skirt and jacket, as plain as possible, of a material which will shed the rain and dust and stand the sun. These should be so constructed that you can get in and out of them without aid from anybody else. Belt, collar and tie should be securely fastened to shirt waist and jacket, so that they cannot be mislaid even in an emergency.

How to Care For Tired Feet.

People who suffer from tired feet may note that a good deal of their discomfort is caused by the fact that they wear stockings that do not fit. Indeed, the fit of stockings is almost as important as that of shoes, says London Lancet. They should have as few seams as possible, as these cause corns. The feet should be bathed at night, and this treatment is an excellent sleep producer. The water should be salted. The feet should be scrubbed all over with a nailbrush, which will often prevent the formation of corns, while hard spots on the soles may be reduced with a piece of fine emery paper or pumice stone before the feet are placed in water.

How to Keep Our Wild Fowl.

To keep our wild fowl from further decrease and better to increase their abundance it is vitally necessary so to regulate shooting that there shall always remain each spring a sufficient breeding stock to return to the wilderness "nurseries," certainly in no less numbers than the year before, says Country Life. Various restrictive measures which are now in force are none too many and are eminently wise and necessary, but there are the best of reasons for believing that the thing most emphatically needed at the present time is the absolute stopping of spring shooting in all parts of the country.

How to Prevent Tan.

If you are obliged to be out of doors very much you should secure a good cream and vegetable powder, says the Pittsburg Press. Each time before venturing out apply a little of the cream and then dust on the powder. In this way the face is well protected, and you will avoid another crop of the freckles and also be able to prevent the skin from becoming tanned. Each night wash the face with warm water and a good, mild soap, then rub on the whitening cream. In the morning wash with cold water. You will find that this treatment will bleach your skin as nothing else can.

How to Waterproof Cloth.

To waterproof cloth take of powdered alum and sugar of lead each half an ounce and stir them into a gallon of rain water, and when the mixture is clear pour off the upper liquid. Immerse the cloth for twenty-four hours, then dry and press it. The cloth will be uninjured in color and texture and will stand any amount of rain to which you are likely to be exposed.

The Latest Local Brevities

Frank Chubbuck returned Saturday night from a trip to Illinois, and reports a delightful time.

Mr. Arthur P. Wentworth, window-dresser for the Emerson Shoe Co., is taking a much needed and enjoyed vacation.

Miss Ethel Meritt of Elm place has been visiting her uncle, Geo. W. Penniman and family of Brockton the past week.

Miss Edna Wood of Upland road has gone to Elliot, Maine, where she will be entertained by her college friend, Miss Vinton, for two weeks.

Daniel W. Lane, wife and son have returned to their home on Granite street from a months visit with relatives in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Cora Thurston of Cherry avenue is enjoying her annual vacation, and leaves this week for her former home in Maine for a month's rest.

Mrs. L. C. Hewson and daughter Marion of Newcomb place have returned from three weeks' recreation, spent at her former home at Hanover.

Mrs. Eliza A. Penniman of Elm place returned on Saturday, from a two weeks' visit at the home of her son George, at Brockton.

John H. Gillis has purchased the Gavin estate on Pleasant street and is remodeling the same, putting in all modern improvements. He with his family will occupy the same.

Julius Johnson has just completed a summer cottage on the North Weymouth shore for W. A. Bradford of Upland road, who with his family are now occuping the same.

Ralph Merritt severed his connections as clerk for C. H. Brooks on Saturday night and will go to Scituate, accompanied by his mother, for a two weeks' rest with relatives.

Through the courtesy and kindness of A. H. Taber, several ladies had the pleasure of a delightful sail in his launch the Marjorie, on Sunday afternoon. The water calm and the day perfect for motor boats.

Mrs. Richard Dexter Perry of Saxton's River, Vt., formerly of Cross street, West Quincy, has been renewing old friends and acquaintances in this city the past week. She is looking hale and hearty.

Those who recall the excellent dinner served at Wade's Hotel last year will not want to miss the annual dinner on Wednesday evening of this week. It was well-cooked and beautiful. The trip will be made by special electrics to Houghs Neck and a special boat to Nantasket Point.

For the past few days congratulations have been showered on Harry Hathorne, the pleasing and obliging conductor on the Old Colony Street Railway. The bird with the long bill visited his home 17 Grant street, Wednesday, Aug. 22, and donated a nine pound girl, which was most cordially welcomed. It is the first girl and naturally there never was anybody like her. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Hathorne, also Grandpa Marden, the District Court Officer.

Windy today.

Friends of Mrs. Abbie Brackett Dickey of Thayer street are pained to hear of her serious illness.

Picnickers In Court

The disturbances which took place on the Quincy Point street cars Saturday evening were aired in court this morning when Thomas Kelley and Thomas J. Whiteside were tried on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Officer Goodhue testified to finding several cars at a standstill with the defendants and others pulling vigorously and constantly on the bell cords and register cord, so vigorously that one of the cords was broken and the conductor had to lock the register to save it from injury.

The officer was corroborated by Conductor Little and at the conclusion of the latter's testimony the government rested.

The defendants both took the stand and so did half a dozen of their witnesses. They denied in toto the testimoney of the government witnesses in respect to everything except that there was a tumultous time on board the cars.

The defendants were represented by Jeremiah O'Horan and the prosecution by W. G. A. Pattee. At the conclusion of the former's argument the judge expressed a question as to whether the facts constituted disorderly conduct and after a conference with the attorneys took the matter under consideration till next Saturday.

Invitation Shoot.

The Wollaston Gun Club held an invitation shoot on Saturday at its grounds on Elmwood avenue. The best scores were:

Fourth event (15 birds)—Muldown, 15; Gleason, 14; Bain, 14; Woodward 14.

Fifth event (15 birds)—Buffalo, Gleason, Worthing, Woodward, Churchill, Kirkwood, Morse, Buckman, each 14.

Sixth event (15 birds)—Kirkwood, 15; Fay 15; Gleason, 14; Hebbard, 14; Hassam, 14.

Seventh event (15 birds)—Kirkwood, 15; Gleason, 13; Muldown, 13.

Eighth event (20 birds)—Kirkwood. 17; Gleason 16.

How Sound Waves Move.

The speed with which sound waves are transmitted through the atmosphere depends on several conditions. When the temperature is at 32 degrees F., sounds move with a speed of 1,090 feet per second, the velocity increasing with the temperature at the rate of about one foot of speed per second for each degree above the freezing point. Then, again, in damp air sound moves with a greater velocity than it does in dry air, no odds if the dry air be warm and the damp cold. In water sound moves more than four times as fast as it does in air, or, say, at about the rate of 4,700 feet per second.

Wooden Spoons.

A curious industry in Russia and one which nevertheless finds employment for thousands of men is that of making wooden spoons. In the district of Semenovsk, where they chiefly come from, no fewer than 7,000 men make a living at the trade. The spoons are generally made from birchwood, and a skilled workman can turn out several hundred a day. No fewer than 12,000,000 spoons are manufactured during the course of the year, which are sold at 6 to 8 rubles per thousand. They find a ready market and penetrate as far as Persia, Khiva, Bokhara and Khokand.

Husbands.

A woman who shall be nameless furnishes the following essay on husbands:

"There are three kinds of husbands—the young husbands who make us unhappy because we are so jealous of them, the middle aged husbands who break our hearts because they would rather make money or play golf than devote any attention to us and the old husbands who sicken us with their silly objections whenever we turn to look at younger men."—Chicago Tribune.

Insult to the Quincy Yacht Club

The members of the Quincy Yacht club cannot be expected to feel very friendly toward the Boston Yacht club after the direct insult which the representatives of the Quincy club received at Marblehead last week.

It seems that on the opening date of the Quincy cup races on Wednesday, the Quincy club's representative, Rear Commodore E. W. Sheppard, attempted to land at the float of the Boston Yacht club to seek information relative to arrangement on judge's boat, etc.

The Boston club, as well as the Quincy club, had a boat entered in the races, the Bonidrei sailing under the colors of the Boston club.

Mr. Sheppard wore his commodore's cap and the janitor must have known his position. Mr. Sheppard inquired for Mr. Sumner P. Foster, but was informed that Mr. Foster was not there. Further, the janitor said it was on Mr. Foster's orders that he was to admit no one. He was told that Quincy members would probably be around but to admit no one except members.

At the clubhouse of the Corinthian club the Quincy representatives were hospitably entertained.

When it is known that members of the Boston club are using almost daily the float and clubhouse of the Quincy club the insult to the Quincy club becomes more aggravating. Surely it was not sportsmanlike of the Boston club to withdraw all hospitality from a club which was a day's run from home, both clubs being entered in a friendly contest. Was it because the Auk was selected to sail in the races against the Germans?

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of MARTIN H. COOK,
late of Quincy, in said County, deceased:

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Philip D. Cook and Mary A. Cook, both of said Quincy, who pray that letters testamentary may be issued to them, the executors therein named, without giving a surety on their official bonds.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the fifth day of September, A. D. 1906, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, JAMES H. FLINT, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fourteenth day of August, in the year one thousand nine hundred and six.

HOW TO KNOW POISON IVY.

Hints on Detecting the Plant and Curing Its Poisonous Effects.

Poison ivy grows wild throughout the whole land. Its leaves are in threes, smooth and shining on both surfaces, with margins which may be toothed or even. There are flowers in May and June and fruit in the autumn—a smooth, white, wax-like berry, says the Boston Traveler.

The poison is a nonvolatile oil found in all parts of the plant. When it touches the skin of a susceptible person it produces an eruption of an erysipelas-like nature. In severe cases the point affected frequently becomes irritated year after year.

A person is particularly susceptible to the poison in warm weather, when the blood is heated and the skin pores are open. It is, however, dangerous at all seasons, and some of the worst cases of poisoning have occurred in the winter, when woodchoppers have been perspiring freely and have worked amid the ivy vines.

To relieve the inflammation and dry up the pustules powdered sugar of lead dissolved in alcohol is highly recommended. Tincture of grindelia diluted with three times its bulk of water and applied two or three times an hour will check the spread of the eruption. A solution of one part of hyposulphite of soda to three of water applied constantly to the affected place is a good remedy.

A doctor who has been poisoned about eighty times says the poisonous principle is a fixed oil soluble in alcohol and which is precipitated by lead subacetate; hence the use of lead salts in inflammation of the skin resulting from the action of the poison ivy oil is rational, but the precipitated lead compound must be removed from the skin, as it is gradually decomposed and the oil set free again to continue its irritant action.

The use of soap and water and a good hand brush is the simplest way of getting rid of the oil. The action is mechanical and perfectly efficient. Alcohol in full strength dissolves and removes the oil, but does not neutralize it. Care should be taken lest the alcohol with oil in solution flows over a part as yet unaffected, as it may cause further eruption. The use of ointments and fatty substances is wrong, as they serve to spread the irritant oil of the poison. Clothing that may have been in contact with the plants will retain and transmit the irritating quality. A doctor says he has been poisoned by a pair of shoes worn while collecting ivy plants the previous year.

The ivy plant is usually a climbing or trailing shrub, but sometimes assumes an erect habit of growth. On the seashore along the Atlantic coast it sometimes covers hundreds of acres on islands and spreads over large areas. The trunk is buried out of sight below the surface, and the branches rise erect out of the sand like separate plants. In such forms of ivy growth the poisonous properties do not seem to be so powerful and active.

It is not generally known that if boiling water is poured on the plant the vapors are often poisonous, and that the smoke from a bonfire of ivy brush is as dangerous to inhale as the breeze which blows off the vines in June.

How to Cure Snake Bites.

For a sure cure for snake bite take about seven drops of iodine, scarify and bathe the wound also with iodine, says a correspondent of the Topeka Capital. This remedy was first used by a medical officer in British service in India. It has cured both man and a number of animals. It never fails. It is really wonderful in its effects. One instance I will relate. A young man working for me in the harvest field was bitten by a very large rattlesnake on one of his large toes. I gave him about seven drops of tincture of iodine on a little sugar, and to make doubly sure repeated the dose an hour later. His foot swelled, but next morning he was all right. I have had animals whose bodies have swelled considerably, but all have recovered from the bite.

How to Make Coffee Sherbet.

For coffee sherbet pour one quart of boiling water over four ounces fine ground Java coffee, says the New York Telegram. Cover, simmer ten minutes, strain through cheesecloth and sweeten with six tablespoonfuls of sugar. When cold pour into the freezer and begin to freeze. As it thickens add the whites of two eggs, beaten to a stiff froth; freeze five minutes longer, remove the beater, scrape down, cover and let it stand fifteen or twenty minutes before serving. A quart will be enough for twelve people. Serve in glasses, with a spoonful of whipped cream on top.

How to Serve a Boiled Lobster.

So many people are ignorant as to how a boiled lobster should be served, and so, instead of a pretty and easily carved dish, there is difficulty in getting at any of the meat, says the Washington Star. First break off the large claws and crack them at the joints with the flat side of a chopper, separate the head from the tail, split the tail lengthwise in two, place the body, cut also in half, upright in the dish, lay the claws and half tails round it and garnish with parsley. Hand with lobster a good salad and thinly cut bread and butter.

How to Clean Frying Pans.

Much labor may be saved in washing frying pans if they are wiped out clean with a piece of paper after the fat is poured from them before they are put in the dishwater. The paper should then be burned. These pans should also have a periodic boiling in soda water in a large kettle. If these two things are done they will be kept as smooth inside as when new.

Hugged and Kissed.

The sight of two Italian workmen hugging and kissing each other furnished quite a lot of amusement to the large crowd of people who were waiting for the electric cars in City Square Sunday evening, until the cause of the loving embraces was learned. The two men, who had not seen each other for twenty years, were brothers. They were to accept a position at the same place and the meeting was very unexpected.

Among the men in Italy they say it is a very common method of salutation.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, in buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Freeman Endorsed

Republican City Committee With Him for Senatorial Nomination

A meeting of the Republican Ward and City Committee was held Monday evening to make arrangements for the State caucuses of Sept. 25.

The candidacy of Richard R. Freeman of Ward Five, the ex-Representative, for the Senate, was unanimously endorsed.

The renomination of Edward J. Sandberg of Ward Four, in the new Representative district composed of Ward Four, Five and Six was also endorsed.

No action was taken relative to the nomination for representative in the other district composed of Wards One, Two and Three, and it is probable that Representative Eugene C. Hultman will have a contest for the renomination. It is said ex-Representative Harry S. Nicol will enter the field.

At the caucusses last year when all the Wards of Quincy were in a double Representative district the vote was as follows: Hultman, 637; Sandberg, 616; Freeman, 604; Nicol, 604; Hall, 391; Baxter, 212; blanks 437; in a total of 1747.

In Wards One, Two and Three the totals of Messrs. Hultman and Nicols were as follows:

	Hultman.	Nicol.
Ward One,	168	92
Ward Two,	148	19
Ward Three,	105	237
	421	348

Richard R. Freeman entered the City Council in 1898 and served five years, being chairman in the last three of the Finance Committee. In 1903, 1904 and 1905 he was a member of the Legislature, serving on important committees. He is also chairman of the Republican City Committee.

M. Y. C. Officers.

The Manchester Yacht club elected these officers at their annual meeting on Monday.

S. Parker Bremer, commodore; Edwin A. Boardman, vice-commodore; Augustus P. Loring, Jr., rear commodore; Arthur M. Merriam, secretary; Francis W. Fabyan, treasurer; David Fenton, measurer; executive committee, William A. Tucker, A. F. Bemis, Edward S. Grew, T. K. Lothrop, Jr., George W. Wigglesworth; regatta committee, George W. Mansfield, F. M. Whitehouse, Dr. J. L. Bremer, Reginald Boardman, Lawrence W. Morgan.

Receiver Wanted.

The Griswold Manufacturing Company, formerly of Quincy, and now doing business at Hingham, is having internal trouble. Richard L. Tappenden, James P. Hinds and other stockholders have through their attorneys petitioned for a receivership. An injunction has also been issued in the case. It is understood that the president holds a majority share of the stock and will try to prevent the concern being wound up. Most of the stockholders, if not all, belong to Quincy. The petitioners are represented by Lawyers Pattee and Mackay.

No Foundation.

The Daily Ledger has interviewed an official of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company relative to the rumor that 200 to 300 Negroes were to be imported from the South to work in the shipyard. The official said it was news to him, and he would know if anything of the kind was contemplated.

No. 2 For Kid

She Weathers A Calm and Wins on the Last Leg

The elapsed time in Monday's race was:

	h	m	s
Windrim Kid	2	25	23
Manchester	2	25	47
Bonidrei	2	26	00

The Windrim Kid, or more properly speaking the Chewink VII, took the fifth race in the Quincy cup series on Monday by passing both the Bonidrei and Manchester on the last leg. Only 37 seconds separated the three yachts at the finish. The course was two and one-half miles to the windward and return, twice round.

On the first turn the order was Bonidrei, Manchester and Windrim Kid, and the positions remained the same at the second turn, but the Manchester almost overtook the Bonidrei.

The Manchester made the best time on the third leg and took the lead, the Windrim Kid continuing last.

All the boats entered a calm when almost home, and good luck allowed the Kid to cross the line 24 seconds ahead of the Manchester.

The elapsed time in minutes and seconds on each of the four legs was:

	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.
Windrim Kid	46.59	19.33	24.44	54.07
Manchester	46.10	19.16	24.26	55.55
Bonidrei	45.49	19.30	24.59	55.42

In the races that have been held the yachts took the following positions:

	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th.
Windrim Kid	2	1	3	4	1	—
Bonidrei	4	4	1	1	3	—
Manchester	1	3	2	3	2	—
Auk	3	2	4	2	—	—

Unless the Manchester wins today the cup will go either to the Windrim Kid or the Bonidrei.

Sub Contractor Is to Blame

For Delay at The High School Slow Arrival Of the Granite

What will the School Committee do this evening relative to accommodations for High school pupils?

The fall term of the public schools will open on Monday, Sept. 10, and it is evident that no part of the High school building which is being enlarged, will be ready for occupancy, and it is not an easy matter to find accommodations for 600 pupils where the studies are elective.

There are many combinations of pupils in each class, some take one language and some another, and some take science and others do not, and there is the business course, etc., etc. The pupils generally recite in one room, and then go to the study hall, or to recite to a teacher in another room. It is greatly different from a grammar grade where all pupils take the same studies, and recite to one teacher.

When the contract for the enlargement of the High school building was awarded it contained a stipulation that all the new part toward Butler road should be ready for occupancy on Monday, Sept. 10, also the old class rooms in the old part and the sanitaries in the basement.

The contractor was to be given until Oct. 20 to complete the changes of the old hall into classrooms. Bonds were given and it was agreed that there should be a per diem forfeiture for failure to complete on dates named.

Later, when it was found that the new part could not be completed on Sept. 10 there was an agreement that it would be satisfactory to the city if all the class rooms in the old part of the building were ready Sept. 10, and during the early part of August it was thought this would be possible. Obstacles, however, have been encountered and the work has not progressed rapidly. The contractor has given no written notice that he will be unable to complete his contract on time, but has told Supt. Parlin and Headmaster Harper that he cannot. Therefore other arrangements must be made.

Superintendent Lord, who is brother of the contractor for the enlargement, does not hesitate in placing the responsibility for the delay. He says it rests entirely with Fallon & Sons of Quincy, the sub-contractors for the granite. Mr. Lord states positively that the new addition would have been roofed in before the school closed in June had granite been supplied by Fallon for the trimmings when wanted. Almost from the start Mr. Lord and Mr. Thomas have been handicapped by the slow arrival of the granite.

Mr. Lord, and Mr. Thomas the subcontractor for the carpenter work, have labored at great disadvantage because of the non-arrival of the granite needed.

The contractor is now endeavoring to complete the remodeling of the old part. It was only a few days ago that the granite for the doorway to this part was received, and because of the failure of Fallon & Sons to put in the foundation, Mr. Lord had the work done and charged to Fallon. In fact he has had to do considerable work for Fallon this month.

Yesterday four or five small pieces of granite were needed to complete the band which circles the building above the doorway, but because of the non-arrival it was necessary to suspend the brick work. Yet it is very important to build up this side wall and gable that the roof may be closed in.

Most of the rooms on the first floor of the entire building are ready for plastering, but this cannot be done as long as the roof is open. Everything is at hand except the granite to rush the job to completion and the contractor is anxious to do it.

Nearly 100 men are now employed daily in the building, and much should be accomplished. If the delay in granite continues it will be long after the first of October, however, before any part of the building is ready for occupancy.

It is said that Mr. Lord, the contractor, is greatly agitated because others have prevented him from fulfilling his contract on time. He has an excellent reputation as a contractor, and financially and generally finishes his work on contract time.

It is said that Fallon & Sons were not the lowest bidders for the contract for the granite, but that the city authorities desired that he should get the contract.

NO MORE "EXTRAS"

Abolished by Railroad Rate Law, Which Is Now In Effect

SCHEDULES NOT FINISHED

Transportation Companies Will Be Given Additional Time--Shippers Gain, but the Public Reaps No Benefit From Law

New York, Aug. 28.—The new railroad rate law, which applies to all railroads doing an interstate business, went into effect at midnight. According to the new law the roads were to have filed with the commission by midnight all their tariffs and charges, showing not only the full cost of transportation from point to point, but also what items go to the making up of this cost. From today on there can be no "extras," but the shipper is expected to be able to obtain in advance a final statement of the charge he has to meet.

It is stated that in fact not a single company has been able to fully comply with the provisions of the law requiring them to have all their schedules on file by midnight. The schedule of switching charges was the most difficult of completion and it is said that no road has been able to finish it.

Under the law every company which failed to complete its schedules might be fined, but it is understood that the interstate commerce commission will give additional time in every case when a road has given evidence of sincere intent to comply with the law. To discuss this and other points, a committee representing the big eastern railroads will go to Washington today in order to meet the commission. This conference will be attended by representatives of the anthracite coal roads, who are anxious to obtain a ruling from the commission on that section of the law which prohibits a railroad from carrying from state to state any article manufactured, mined or produced by it except for its own use.

It is expected that shippers will find themselves benefited by the provision which requires the railroads to include all charges of whatsoever nature in their quoted rates. Heretofore a shipper has had to figure for himself on icing, refrigerator and elevator charges, and the dozen or more other incidentals, dickering with the separate companies which had a hand in a transportation or care of his shipment. Now the railroad must do that, and the shipper meets but one charge and deals with but one concern. All the sources of side charges are consolidated, and private cars, sidetracks, spurs, terminals and elevators are made subject to the law.

The new law also requires the railroads to establish a uniform system of accounting, and to keep their books open for inspection at all times by the expert accountants of the commission. The railroad accountants are now conferring in regard to the uniform system of bookkeeping, which, however, will not go into effect until June 1 next year. In the meantime, the commission has put its own experts at work devising a system.

Forces of clerks from all express companies in the country have for the last few days been engaged here in the task of revising express rates to comply with the provisions of the rate bill, but have been unable to finish their task in time to file schedules with the interstate commerce commission before the bill became effective.

From the new arrangement the public will reap no benefit. The rates will not be lowered. The rates of every company will be identical with those of every other.

As a direct consequence of the provisions of the rate bill, the Union Pacific railway has determined to install its own system of refrigerator cars. Heretofore the Armour private car lines have had a monopoly of this business over the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, with all the profitable California fruit trade.

The Union Pacific yesterday opened bids for the construction of 6000 steel underbody refrigerator cars and is likely to ask for bids for another lot soon.

New Haven Road Suspends Passes

Boston, Aug. 28.—None of the New England railroads, except the New York, New Haven and Hartford system, will take any action regarding the issuance of free passes at this time. With the exception of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road, the railroads in this section do not consider that the clause of the Hepburn bill relating to passes becomes operative before Jan. 1. In respect to the New Haven road an order has been issued to stop the issuance of all forms of interstate transportation, either complimentary or on account of the newspapers published on the lines of the system with which the company has reciprocal relations.

Prosperous Salmon Fisheries

Washington, Aug. 28.—Commissioner Bowers of the bureau of fisheries returned yesterday from a trip to Alaska, where he went to inspect the fisheries of that territory. He said the catch of red salmon in Alaskan waters this season will be as large as it has been in any season for many years. He saw one haul in which 145,000 red salmon were taken. Bowers left last night for the fisheries laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass.

Sought Death In Synagogue

Baltimore, Aug. 28.—With a revolver grasped in the right hand, the dead body of Gilbert H. Walters was found in a small storage room in Eutaw place synagogue, with which he was prominently connected in official capacities. The bullet that ended his life had entered his head. No one seems able to assign a cause for the suicide. Walters was general agent here of the Prudential Insurance company.

Labor Barred From Tickets

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 28.—The American Federation of Labor of Porto Rico was denied representation on the legislative ticket at the Unionist convention, the majority holding that a lawmaker subject to the dictates of the federation would be hurtful to party policy and public interests. The Republican party maintains a similar position.

Bareheaded Women Barred

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 28.—Mgr. Arther J. Teeling, rector of St. Mary's Catholic church, has taken a determined stand at what he terms immodest dressing. In future, according to the terms of an edict issued in the monthly calendar of the church, women with heads uncovered will not be permitted to enter St. Mary's church.

Election Returns Come Slowly

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 28.—Returns in the state primary are very slow coming in because of the large list of officers and the large number of candidates. Returns thus far show that Comer has carried every precinct for governor over Cunningham. For alternate United States senator, Johnston is leading the field.

Valparaiso Again Shaken

Valparaiso, Aug. 28.—There was a heavy earthquake shock here yesterday, but no damage was done. Prominent citizens of Valparaiso met yesterday afternoon and discussed plans for the rebuilding of the city.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions announces that two Boston merchants have offered to the board sums aggregating $30,000 on the condition that a total of $100,000 be secured through contribution by Sept. 4.

Charles D'Amours, aged 25, employed in the advertising department of the Boston Herald, was drowned in Lake Mascuppic, near Lowell, Mass. He was seized with cramps while bathing.

Hugh Jennings of the Baltimore Eastern League Baseball club will go to Detroit next season as manager of the American league club in that city.

Acting Mayor McGowan of New York says that it is his desire that all citizens should hang out American flags in honor of Mr. Bryan on his arrival in that city.

China has placed heavy orders for artillery with Japanese factories. Cyclist detachments are being formed in the Chinese army and will be employed in the coming maneuvers.

RESORT TO FORCE

Spectre of Dictatorship In Revived In Russia

SYMPATHY FOR STOLYPIN

None of It Comes From the General Public--Acting Military Governor General of Warsaw Killed by Unknown Man

St. Petersburg, Aug. 28.—The open campaign against the government which the Social Revolutionists inaugurated with the attempt on the life of Premier Stolypin and the assassination of General Min has produced such a feeling of resentment at Peterhof that the spectre of a dictatorship has been revived.

The government, it is claimed, can only rely on force to fight the terrorists, as the public press, which might be expected to manifest a revulsion of feeling against the crime which sacrificed the lives of over a score of innocent persons in the attempt to murder a man who personally had not given cause for offense, remains coldly indifferent. Only The Novoe Vremya and the official Rossia denounces the terrorists.

The conclusions of the liberal press are summed up in the charge made by The Rech that the government alone is guilty and responsible for what has happened.

The police have made hundreds of arrests since Saturday in an attempt to get their hands upon the participants in what is evidently a far-reaching conspiracy, but thus far all that has been definitely established is that two of the men who sacrificed their lives in the attempt on the premier arrived here Aug. 23 from Moscow, where the organization is supposed to have its headquarters.

The supposition that the slayer of General Min was the "servant" of the party concerned in the Stolypin attempt has been disproved, further investigation showing that the woman had been living under an admittedly false name with a peasant family in the village of Luedina, near Peterhof, since Aug. 16. The extraordinary police surveillance at Peterhof had not extended to Luzina and she escaped notice. She was brought to St. Petersburg yesterday in irons.

Premier Stolypin has received many telegrams of sympathy over his escape, but it is noticeable that they all are from municipalities, bourses and other official or semi-official organizations, and that the general public is not represented.

Assassination at Warsaw

Warsaw, Aug. 28.—General Vonliarpiarski, acting military governor general of Warsaw, was shot and killed yesterday afternoon while driving in a cab. The assassin escaped.

Vonliarpiarski was the commander of the Fifth army corps stationed at Warsaw. He was driving in a carriage from the commandant's office to his residence. As the general's driver slackened speed at a place where the street was torn up for repaving, an unknown young man fired four shots at Vonliarpiarski through the top of the carriage, which was up on account of the rain, one of the bullets entering the general's breast under the heart.

The driver of the carriage whipped up his horses and drove at full speed to the hospital, where the general died almost instantly. Vonliarpiarski had only recently been appointed acting military governor of this city.

Crown Lands For Peasants

St. Petersburg, Aug. 28.—The distribution of crown appanages, the first first part of the administration's agrarian program by which it is hoped to win the peasantry to the support of the government at the coming elections, was put in effect yesterday, when an ukase was published transferring 4,500,000 acres of appanage lands to the peasants' bank for distribution to the peasants. The urgency of the situation is such that the ukase was gazetted without waiting for final decision as to the method and terms of payment.

Sailors Plant a Red Flag

St. Petersburg, Aug. 28.—It is reported that 21 men belonging to the battleship Panteleimon, formerly the Kniaz Potemkine, on which a mutiny occurred last year, seized a cutter and landed on Berenzan island, where Lieutenant Schmitt, the mutineer, was executed, and planted a red flag there. Meetings of seamen belonging to the Black sea fleet are said to have been held at various places.

Executions and Whippings

Riga, Aug. 28.—A punitive expedition visited the district near Weden where a rural guard was killed recently, instituted a drumhead court martial, put to death three revolutionists and flogged many peasants with whips. A fine of $1500 was imposed on the two communes involved.

Shooting Moscow Police

Moscow, Aug. 28.—The revolutionists have inaugurated a campaign against the police similar to the one so long in force in Warsaw. A sergeant and two policemen were shot with revolvers yesterday.

Spanish Miners to Strike

Santander, Spain, Aug. 28.—The strike situation is again bad, a general strike having been declared throughout the mining region. Troops have been sent to preserve order.

HEALTH RULES IGNORED

Criticism of Ice Cream Dealers and Their Establishments

Boston, Aug. 28.—The state board of health made public last night its report of an investigation of the ice cream business in Newburyport, in which city and vicinity nearly 50 people were recently made severely ill by eating ice cream.

The state board examined eight ice cream establishments and reports that not one was found in even a reasonably sanitary condition. The personal cleanliness of the dealers was also criticised. The state officials further pointed out blame on the part of the local board of health, charging it with having issued a certificate of cleanliness on Aug. 17 to one of the worst of the alleged offenders, which dealer subsequently used the certificate for advertising purposes.

The report made no recommendation for further action to be taken in the matter.

Murder Charge Against Doctor

Bangor, Me., Aug. 28.—Charged with the murder of Maud E. Taggett as the result of alleged criminal surgery, Dr. W. H. Briggs was arraigned in the supreme court. He pleaded not guilty. The trial is due to last over a week. Miss Taggett died in Bangor on March 1 last. On the following day Briggs was arrested on a preliminary charge of manslaughter. He was held in $2000 bail. In June he was rearrested on the charge of murder and committed without bail. The grand jury at this term of court found a true bill against him for murder, and he is now being held on that charge.

City Official Mysteriously Missing

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 28.—An all-day search of Chicopee roads and woods by a posse of citizens developed no clue regarding the mysterious disappearance of City Clerk and Treasurer John W. White, who is believed to be suffering from a nervous breakdown. The Boston police have been asked to search for him. The city auditor is working on White's books. He has found everything perfect thus far, and says there is only the slightest chance that anything wrong could turn up in what remains to be revised.

Report on Railroad Disaster

Newport, Me., Aug. 28.—The state railroad commissioners, who have investigated the railroad wreck at Etna, by which one man was killed and a dozen others injured in a collision between a work train and a freight, report that the collision was due to lack of knowledge of that particular section of the road on the part of the conductor of the work train, who was taking the place of the regular conductor on the day of the accident.

Cranberries Ready For Picking

Wareham, Mass., Aug. 28.—The cranberry picking season, which has opened in many bogs in this section, promises to afford a crop of medium size, the estimate of the total yield in Massachusetts being between 200,000 and 225,000 barrels. Buyers are offering $5 a barrel for the first fruit in this vicinity. The crop last year amounted to 156,000 barrels, while the year 1904 produced 256,000.

Dams and Bridges Injured

Bristol, Vt., Aug. 28.—Much damage was caused in Lincoln by a heavy rainstorm which assumed almost the proportions of a cloudburst. Several small streams became so suddenly swollen from the downpour that a number of bridges were carried away, and two dams were broken. The damage in this town was confined to the roads, which were badly gullied.

Father and Son Badly Hurt

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 28.—A trolley car ran into a junk cart on which Barney Black and his son, Abraham, were riding and both men were seriously injured. The men were driving along the street in the same direction as the car and had turned suddenly to cross the track into another street when the car struck them.

A "Political Jesse James"

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 28.—Congressman Littlefield addressed a large audience in city hall last night. He discussed national issues and replied to the charges made against him by Samuel Gompers. He characterized Gompers as the "Jesse James of this political campaign."

Newfoundlanders Worried

St. Johns, Aug. 28.—Some concern is exhibited in official circles over the repetition of reports of a settlement of the fishery question regardless of the colonies' views. The government, however, does not believe that such a course is intended. The dispatch of the American navy tug Potomac to Newfoundland for the herring season is understood to be mainly for the purpose of towing American fishing vessels and clearing channels for them through ice, if frozen as in previous years.

Navy Department Sells Hulks

Washington, Aug. 28.—Three Spanish ships captured by Admiral Dewey in Manila bay have been sold by the navy department for $103. These ships were advertised at several Asiatic ports, the total cost of advertising being $28, and the navy department is satisfied that the bids were sufficient to cover the expense of advertising. The three ships have been stripped of everything movable and are simply old hulks.

Chose Terrible Road to Death

GUZMAN IS BEATEN

Insurgents Contemplated Attack Upon Cienfuegos

SEVENTEEN MEN KILLED

Cuban Government Forces Lost but One Man--Guerra's Band Well Supplied--Offer of Clemency Variously Received

Havana, Aug. 28.—At the moment when the government was issuing its proclamation offering pardon to rebels who would lay down their arms, its forces were dealing the most telling blow that has yet been struck against insurgents in the field.

For several days it has been stated that General Guzman's force of insurgents, which was variously estimated at from 200 upwards, contemplated an attack on Cienfuegos. Colonel Valle, with a detachment of rural guards and volunteers, was dispatched to Cienfuegos for the purpose of engaging Guzman and breaking up the bands. The encounter of the two forces yesterday resulted in the worst disaster which the insurgents have sustained up to this time. They lost 17 men killed and many wounded, while the loss to the government force was one man killed.

The insurrection seems in a shaky condition, although the end may not be as near as members of the government profess to believe. Ex-Congressman Faustino (Pino) Guerra, the insurgent leader operating in the province of Pinar del Rio, in a signed statement, declares that he is as determined as ever that the last presidential election shall be annulled before there can be peace in Cuba.

That Guerra's force of 2000 men is well armed and supplied with ammunition and food is amply verified. Their greatest drawback now is the lack of money, but the people of the western part of Pinar del Rio are furnishing them with all the supplies needed, taking in return therefor orders on the "Cuban government" and, in many cases, refusing to accept any consideration.

The government's offer of amnesty, which was issued yesterday afternoon, is variously received. It is impossible to say what its effect will be upon those to whom it is addressed. Alfredo Zayas, president of the senate and leader of the Liberal party, states that he is unable to express any opinion as to whether the insurgents will grasp the opportunity offered them of surrendering, but says, in his opinion as a lawyer, that Secretary Montalvo could not legally issue such an order, for the constitution provides that only the president may make such a proclamation, which must be countersigned by some member of the cabinet.

Secretary Montalvo, on the contrary, says that the offer of clemency was issued by the direct order of President Palma and also gazetted officially. The secretary adds that the document is in reality an order of the secretary of the interior, issued by direction of the president to General Rodridguez, commander of the rural guards.

The foreign element, including many Americans, criticise the offer of amnesty as a weak and disappointing action, showing a desire for peace at any price and a willingness to sacrifice the possibility of future security to a present expediency.

Secretary Montalvo's order does not provide for the relief of alleged conspirators who are now in jail in Havana, and the question has arisen as to what shall be done with them.

Guerra knows nothing of the Montalvo order, and if he did it is altogether unlikely that it would affect his course materially. At present there is every reason for expecting that Guerra will hold out for some time to come. The district in which he is operating is inhabited by Liberals, who are practically all tentative, if not active, sympathizers with the insurrection.

The chief of the secret service has formally charged Senator Morua del Gado with being one of the initiators of the insurrection and with being at present one of its chief supporters. The chief claims that Del Gado led the late Quentin Bandera to revolt, against the latter's better judgment. Del Gado, who is the only negro senator, was charged with instigating the outrage at Guanabacoa in February last.

Attitude of Guerra

San Juan de Martinez, Aug. 28.—A press correspondent spent last night in Pont Guerra's camp, after producing letters of identification. Guerra was willing to talk for the American people, and said:

"I want it understood that I will not accept any offers of compromise with the Cuban government, but I would be glad to arbitrate with properly accredited representatives of the United States appointed by President Roosevelt on the basis only of a new presidential election in Cuba. Otherwise we shall stay out indefinitely. We could not trust the promises of the Palma government in any case."

Guerra gravely charged the Cuban government with trying to send spies to his camp and said that his information of movements of troops "is as perfect as that obtained by Palma, the illegal president of Cuba."

Guerra is all powerful at present among the people of this region. He believes most confidently he could take San Juan de Martinez and defeat the government troops any night or any day. He charges President Palma, Secretary Montalvo and Freyre Andrade with all manner of official and personal dishonesty. Until Sunday Guerra had money, but this is completely exhausted, and yesterday he began issuing orders in payment for supplies on "the Cuban government," which he assures the people eventually will be paid.

Guerra said he would not object to a foreign government's guarantee of inspection of new elections, with the object of ensuring a fair deal, but he would not trust the Palma government. Guerra not only is popular with his command, but the people appear to be devoted to him.

Says Insurgents Will Yield

Havana, Aug. 28.—Senator Dolz, a leader of the Moderate party, at the conclusion of a conference with President Palma at midnight, stated that practically all the insurgent leaders of consequence except Pino Guerra had signified their willingness to disband their men if all were positively guaranteed immunity for their insurrectionary acts. On account of information of the insurgents' willingness to quit there will be no further enlistments.

QUINCY MAY QUIT

Moran Men Will Perhaps Control Bay State Democracy

Boston, Aug. 28.—That Josiah Quincy will soon resign from the state committee, and that they will get complete control of the organization, is the belief now confidently expressed by John B. Moran's managers.

One of his lieutenants made the declaration last evening that when Quincy in his letter to Moran last Saturday made the offer to resign from the state committee in case Moran was given the nomination, he was only preparing to retire as gracefully as he could from a position which he would soon have to abandon in any case.

This letter, in which Quincy suggested to Moran that Bryan decide whether Moran or Douglas should get the nomination, has not yet been noticed directly by the district attorney, though his statement that he would be a candidate to the end has generally been considered an indirect reply.

Automobiles In Postal Service

Washington, Aug. 28.—Automobiles are to be substituted for one-horse wagons in the collection of mail from letter boxes in large cities. Baltimore is the first city in which a contract for collection wagons will terminate and two specially constructed automobiles will be leased to make the experiment there, beginning Oct. 1. These automobiles will do away with four wagons and will compete with 15 wagons to be retained. If the experiment proves successful other cities will be equipped.

Bogus Baron Robbed His Wife

Hamburg, Aug. 28.—Ewald Konrad, allas Baron Donnersmarck, who was alleged to have deserted his American wife at Paris, taking with him $8000 worth of jewels and some money belonging to her, and who was arrested here on the charge of robbery, was discharged, the court holding that he was not culpable under German law. His wife, who registered as Baroness Donnersmarck, visited him at his hotel here. She was married to Konrad in Manila May 4.

A Conscience-Stricken Woman

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Nine years ago Mrs. John Coleman, so she claims, murdered her 2-year-old daughter in Towanda, Pa. For nine years she kept the secret to herself. She has been a wanderer and an outcast, pursued wherever she went by the thought of her crime. During a revival camp meeting at Port Dickinson she made a public confession of her alleged crime. The local authorities have notified the Towanda police.

France and Turkey Reaching Terms

Paris, Aug. 28.—Distinct progress has been made toward the settlement of the dispute between Turkey and France with regard to the frontier of Tripoli adjacent to the French Sahara. Turkey, in compliance with the request of France, has ordered the evacuation of Djanet. The status quo ante is re-established until an arrangement can be made to fix the boundary between the Ghat oasis and the French possessions.

Pupils May Take Their Choice

Washington, Aug. 28.—Superintendent Chancellor of the District of Columbia public schools announces that he will introduce the simplified spelling system in the higher grammar grades. The pupils will be given their choice of the old or the new. In the lower grades the old system will be continued.

Postoffice Clerks' Union

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Representative postoffice clerks from six cities of the west met here and formed a national union under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor. The organization is the first national labor union in America to be composed exclusively of government employes.

To Consider Foreign Ideas

Pekin, Aug. 28.—The dowager empress has appointed a large committee to consider the report of the Chinese commissioners who recently returned from abroad and to make recommendations upon the subject to the throne. The majority of the committee are elderly conservatives.

WANTS GIANT WARSHIPS

Best Way to Preserve Peace, Says Captain Hobson.

FAVORS THE DREADNOUGHT TYPE

Former Naval Constructor Says the United States Should Build Three of World's Biggest Battleships Each Year—Declares Clash With Japan Can Be Prevented Only by a Great Pacific Fleet.

Warships of 25,000 tons displacement instead of 20,000 and plenty of them are what the American navy needs, according to Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson, formerly of the United States navy, who is assured of election to congress from the Sixth Alabama district to succeed John Hollis Bankhead.

Captain Hobson in an interview at Washington discussed many phases of the naval problem of the United States, says the New York Globe. He declared a greater navy alone would prevent a clash between America and Japan, and as an exponent of the greater navy Hobson intends to do all the hard work possible when he gets to congress. He believes in the big battleship both as a fighting machine and a peace preservative.

"I am in favor of building a warship of the Dreadnought type," he said. "Only I would go further. I would build battleships of 25,000 tons instead of 20,000, and I would build three of them a year. Moreover, I would equip them each with four thirteen-inch guns and twelve twelve-inch. The twelve inch gun has to be handled by machinery, and it is just as easy to handle a thirteen inch. It has been the American naval practice from the beginning to just outclass the foreign ships, to be one class better in guns and speed. This practice should be continued."

The increased expense would not be burdensome, Captain Hobson maintains, and, besides, it would be economy in the long run. A formidable American navy, he holds, is the best possible guarantee of the peace of the United States and the world. He is getting his Chautauqua audiences to adopt resolutions to be sent to representatives and senators advocating not only a progressive naval programme, but general treaties of arbitration and a permanent international congress to assemble periodically. A great number of these resolutions have reached members of the house and senate.

Regarding the proposal of the Italian warship designer Cuniberti to plan a battleship that will far outstrip the Dreadnought, Captain Hobson does not believe the Italian government can afford to build such a monster. Still he thinks there is no reason why the United States should not far excel the Cuniberti proposal. He believes in submarines and torpedo craft as auxiliaries, but declares it is on the big battleship, whose military weight increases with its volume, that reliance must be placed when it comes to a contest for control of the sea.

Whether the United States and Japan clash depends, in Captain Hobson's opinion, on just one thing—whether America maintains naval superiority in the Pacific. He discussed the present friction with Japan over the open door in Manchuria and the danger of a conflict ultimately growing out of it.

"Japanese goods and Japanese people are getting the advantage in Manchuria," he said. "Japan is reaching out to control the trade and commerce of Manchuria and the far east. Japan was unquestionably back of the Chinese boycott. In her efforts to capture the trade of Manchuria and China she has the backing of China herself. One cannot blame Japan for seeking to further its interests.

"Whether American interests are regarded depends on whether our navy in the Pacific is superior to the Japanese navy. So long as it is superior we shall receive consideration at Japanese hands. Otherwise we shall not. Without a superior navy in the Pacific the rights of our merchants and manufacturers in Manchuria and the far east will be overridden, and then there will be no end of trouble and controversy, and war will undoubtedly come out of it."

"Can the American navy lick the Japanese?"

"The American navy cannot get within a thousand miles of making an adequate attack on the Japanese. It has no base from which to operate. There is no properly protected base in Hawaii and none in the Philippines. We have no base to operate from to protect our own territory in the far east. Eight years have gone by since we came into possession of the Philippines, and we have done almost nothing to prepare for their defense.

"Japan in case of war would lack a proper base from which to attack us. At the same time, as things stand now, Japan would come much nearer capturing the Philippines than you or I like to imagine possible. I do not mean to imply that the American naval force in far eastern waters would not give a good account of itself. But we would not be able to spare a sufficient force from the navy for use in the Pacific to cope with the Japanese navy."

Big Wheat Yield In Manitoba.

It is estimated by the premier of Manitoba, says the London Express, that 100,000,000 bushels of wheat will be available for export from the northwestern provinces of Canada at the close of the harvest, and he states that it will take the railways a year to carry this quantity to the coast.

UNIQUE NAVAL REVIEW.

Warships at Anchor While President Will Pass on Mayflower.

President Roosevelt's review of the Atlantic fleet will be as unique as many other things he has done since the beginning of his administration. The ships of the great fleet will not maneuver or pass before him in line, but, contrary to precedent, they will remain stationary while the Mayflower, with the president aboard, will pass between the three lines of ships and also circle the entire fleet, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Herald.

The navy department has prepared a very comprehensive chart of Oyster Bay and Long Island sound, showing the exact positions to be occupied by the designated ships of the fleet and also the course which the Mayflower will take in making the review. According to this chart the fleet will be drawn up in three lines due north of Pine and Centre islands, and about 2,200 yards from Centre island point, the fleet facing eastward at 450 yard intervals. A picket line of boats is to be established 700 yards outside the fleet formation, and beyond this picket line yachts and other craft will be obliged to anchor.

In the outer or northern line will be, beginning at the west end of the line, the Denver, the Cleveland, the Tacoma, the Minneapolis, the Maryland, the Colorado, the Pennsylvania, the West Virginia, the Iowa, the Indiana, the Illinois and the Alabama, with the Dolphin in advance as the reviewing stand of Secretary Bonaparte. The central line, named in the same order, will contain the Arkansas, the Florida, the Nevada, the Puritan, the Virginia, the New Jersey, the Rhode Island, the Louisiana, the Kearsarge, the Kentucky, the Missouri and the Maine, and to the east of the latter the Mayflower will come to an anchor after finishing the review. The third, or southern, line will be made up of the De Long, the Blakely, the Stockton, the Rodgers, the Tingey, the Wilkes, the MacDonough, the Lawrence, the Hopkins, the Truxtun, the Worden, the Whipple and the Des Moines.

The Porpoise, the Shark and the Nina will constitute a separate group to the south of the Whipple, while to the southwest of the fleet and outside the picket line will be the Leonidas, the Lebanon, the Abarenda, the Arethusa, the Celtic and the Yankee in single line.

CAINE ON CURSE OF DRINK.

His New Book Deals With It as a Disease or a Sin.

Hall Caine's new novel, just published, deals with the subject of hereditary drink craving cured by hypnotism, says a London cable to the Chicago Post. Interviewed on the subject, Mr. Caine asks:

"Is habitual intemperance a disease or a sin? If it is a disease the victim is an object for compassion, and the cure lies at the door of the physician. If it is a sin the transgressor is a subject for reproof and punishment, and the duty of his moral regeneration is in the hands of the clergy. If intemperance is both a disease and a sin the legislators share with the physicians and the clergy the task of healing and controlling it.

"Again, which is the true place for the habitual drunkard, the hospital, reformatory or the prison? On the answer to that question the welfare of a vast proportion of the human family seems to depend."

The author's conclusion is that neither the law, the church nor medical science has yet been able to answer the question.

SCHOOL FOR INFANTS.

Chicago Woman Opens Institution For Two-year-olds.

Miss Helen Todd of the Henry Booth House recently returned from Europe to open a "maternity school" at the settlement, says the Chicago Post.

Miss Todd said that the new enterprise is made necessary by the fact that the child of two or three years is shoved to one side when the new baby comes to the tenement. The two-year-old is neglected in a physical way, and it becomes stupid and sullen. For its benefit Miss Todd has opened the maternity school, which is a large, sunny room, well equipped with toys of all kinds, where children between the ages of two and five are cared for from early in the morning until late at night. In France, Italy and Germany such schools have been maintained and have proved very successful.

Miss Todd spent much of her time while abroad in investigating social conditions and settlements and was much impressed with the maternity schools.

New Protection For Chauffeurs.

A new speedometer for motorists is now on the market, says the Technical World Magazine for September, which not only gives the rate of speed per hour and the number of minutes to the mile, but can be set at any given speed, so that when that speed is exceeded a buzzer announces the fact to the driver. With this device in use a chauffeur can set the speedometer at the limit of speed allowed in the country where he is traveling, and as soon as the limit is exceeded he will be warned of the fact.

Paul Revere Bell to be Recast.

One of the few bells cast by Paul Revere now in existence is to be taken from the belfry of the old Baptist church in Warren, R. I., to be recast at Troy, says a Providence dispatch to the New York Tribune. A member of the church will officially oversee the task and will write an account of the undertaking for historical purposes.

Neglected Rheumatism Causes Paralysis

A Uric-O Treatment Will in All Cases Remove the Cause.

Paralysis is a disease whose cause is shrouded in mystery. If you were to investigate carefully all cases of Paralysis you would find that at some time previous to the attack, the patient suffered from some form of rheumatism. Possibly like so many others, he thought it was only a slight matter of temporary inconvenience and paid no further attention to it. Rheumatism is not to be neglected with impunity. The Uric and poisonous Rheumatic Acid must be neutralized and driven from the system as soon as they put in an appearance. Do this with Uric-O.

It is a harmless vegetable preparation and does not contain a single drop of alcohol. It operates by its action upon the blood, muscles and kidneys and cures Rheumatism to stay cured. We might give you testimonials from thousands of people in all parts of the country, but we would rather have you talk with some one whom you know and can believe. Next time you are down town, just drop into the store of E. J. Murphy, Quincy's popular druggist, and ask him about Uric-O. We won't predict what he will say, but we have confidence enough in the remedy to leave it to him.

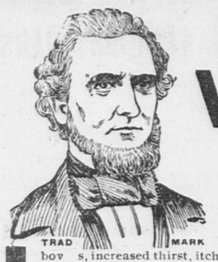

Uric-O is not a cathartic, nor does it affect or distress the stomach in any way. Uric-O is a cure for Rheumatism and for Rheumatism only. That is why it is such a great success. It does one thing and does that one thing perfectly. Most druggists sell Uric-O at 75c and $1.00 the bottle, but you can have a sample bottle free if you cut out this advertisement and send it with your name and address to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y. Sometimes they send an order on your druggist for a 75c bottle free of charge in reply to those requests for a sample.

UNSUSPECTED WORMS

are the cause of numerous little things that go wrong with children. When they are sick you rarely think their sickness is caused by worms. They are rarely treated for worms. Yet worms are the cause either directly or indirectly of over 75 per cent. of the ailments of children. They are also frequent cause of illness in adults. The familiar symptoms of worms are disturbed health, deranged stomach, furred tongue, variable appetite and bowels, increased thirst, itching of nostrils, indolence, malaria, irritability, disturbed sleep, grinding of teeth, slow fever and often in children, convulsions—is the only safe, sure, entirely vegetable worm remedy ever compounded. It not only expels worms but all waste matter, leaving the blood rich and pure and the whole system strong and healthy. Known and used successfully for three generations. This testimonial came with an order for more Elixir.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

POCAHONTAS MEMORIAL

Plan to Honor Indian Princess at Jamestown Exposition.

BRONZE STATUE TO BE ERECTED

Promoters of the Project Apparently Assured of Its Success—Work of Memorial Association In Securing Funds Accelerated by a Congressman's Rebuff—Features of Design Proposed For Statue and Pedestal.

The tendency to destructive criticism which makes itself apparent at intervals in spasmodic individual attempts to impose a new version of a generally accepted incident of historical record is not without some redeeming features, says the New York Post's Washington correspondent. The first result of such an attack is, of course, to attract attention to the pros and cons of the subject at issue. This arouses interest among a large number of persons who would not otherwise evince more than passing concern. The next and more important effect is to stimulate a good many more minds to come to the defense of the records attacked than the number who chose to align themselves in support of the new exponent of captious criticism.

All this has been demonstrated in the development of the preliminary plans for erecting at the Jamestown exposition a permanent memorial in honor of the Indian princess Pocahontas. It is well known that in Virginia those descendants of the "F. F. V.'s" who claim direct descent from King Powhatan's line cherish that tinge of aboriginal blood as possibly the greatest inheritance any one could hope for. The possession of an unbroken line of 300 years of American ancestry is valued more than great wealth, and it is little wonder, therefore, that it should be made the subject of reminiscence and the theme of family memoirs.

To honor the memory of the Indian princess and to inculcate patriotic ideas generally there was recently formed in Washington the Pocahontas Memorial association, with the object in view of erecting on Jamestown island a statue of heroic mold to record the importance of her participation in the early affairs of the English colonists who landed at Jamestown in 1607. It had a few zealous promoters, and they expressed confidence in carrying their plans to successful conclusion, but the movement progressed slowly. One day one of them broached the subject casually on encountering a congressman of the twentieth century commercial sort, who have no use for historical reminiscences.

"Oh, that's all a fraud," he interjected impatiently as soon as the topic was broached to him. "It's all a fraud, I say. You're all frauds, I believe, bothering congress for appropriations. There is nothing in it."

That settled it. The rude and thoughtless rebuff had insured the success of the Pocahontas Memorial association. It was quickly repeated to the other prime movers in the project and passed along by word of mouth and by letters until it had aroused the fighting blood of every one who had even the most remote interest in the subject. The story of the rebuff spread and no doubt gained in the telling. It was a challenge from the materialistic world of today to defend the fame of the settlers who had hewed their way into the wilderness and had laid the foundations for the great commonwealth which became the "mother of presidents" and was a prime factor in the early history of the American republic.

Having had their energies stimulated by this incident, the founders of the association have been working enthusiastically. They now have 700 members enrolled and have planned a pilgrimage to Jamestown on Oct. 11 next, the anniversary of the landing of Columbus. A few weeks before that time a finished model of the proposed statue will be submitted to the association and will be on view in Washington. The sculptor, Ordway Partridge, will be on hand to describe his work and to answer criticisms. The statue will be a full length figure of heroic size done in golden bronze. The exact pose has not yet been determined as between two figures under consideration by the sculptor.

Matching the statue in point of interest will be its splendid pedestal, bearing on the four sides tablets recording historical events in the life of the Indian princess. Three of them will be scenes in bas-relief. The first will be a reproduction of the famous painting "The Baptism of Pocahontas," by Chapman, which occupies a conspicuous position on the south wall of the rotunda of the capitol. The second tablet will depict the marriage of Pocahontas, from the famous Brueckner painting. The third will present an original design by one of the members of the Memorial association showing Pocahontas and her servitors bringing supplies for the subsistence of the starving English colonists.

On the fourth tablet will be reproduced a partial copy of the old parish register still in existence at Gravesend, England, where Pocahontas died on the eve of returning to Virginia after her visit to England as the wife of Thomas Rolfe. History records that Pocahontas grieved over the separation from her Indian kinsfolk and that the nostalgia so affected her health that a return journey to the new world was begun. With her husband she had actually taken ship at Gravesend, but the sailing was delayed by adverse winds. Before the ship was able to leave port her illness became critical and terminated fatally soon after

THE CAMPHOR LAUREL.

How the Drug Is Extracted From the Wood of the Tree.

The camphor laurel, from which the greater part of the camphor of commerce is produced, is a native of China, Japan, Formosa and Cochin-China. It is a hardy, long lived tree and sometimes grows to a great size. It has evergreen leaves, yellowish white flowers in panicles and is a very ornamental tree, the trunk running up to a height of twenty or thirty feet before branching. The fruit is very much like a black currant.

In the extraction of camphor the wood is first cut into small chips, and the chips are put into water in a still and steamed. The head of the still is filled with straw, and as the steam carries off the camphor in vapor it is deposited in little grains around the straw.

The crude camphor is then heated in a vessel, from which the steam is allowed to escape through a small aperture. The camphor sublimes in a semitransparent cake. In the manufacture of camphor the tree is necessarily destroyed, but by a rigid law of the lands in which the tree grows another is planted in the place of every one that is cut down. The wood is highly valued for carpenter's work.

Camphor was unknown to the Greeks and Romans and was first brought to Europe by the Arabs.

BROEK, IN HOLLAND.

It Is Said to Be the Cleanest Town In the World.

The cleanest town in the world is said to be Broek, in Holland. It is only a few miles from the capital, and has been famous for its cleanliness from time immemorial. It is also notable on account of the fanciful style of its houses and yards and gardens and streets.

The people, though only peasants, are all well to do, and all feel a pride in their town. It seems to be the first business of their lives to keep their houses freshly painted, their gardens in perfect order and their yards and streets as clean as a new pin. No carts are allowed in the streets, and no cattle.

Though the raising of stock and the making of butter and cheese are their occupations, a stranger would never imagine that there were any cattle in the region, unless he went to the beautiful green meadows at the back of the houses or the stables out there, where cows are kept in stalls scrubbed and washed like a kitchen.

The streets are too fine and neat for the feet of the animals to step on. All are paved with polished stone, intermingled with bricks of different colors, and kept so scrupulously clean that a lady could walk anywhere in white satin slippers.—Pearson's Weely.

Deadly Snakes.

The deadliest of snakes is said to be the mamba, an African cobra. It flies at everybody and everything; it goes out of its way to quarrel; it will even come down from a tree to solicit an interview. Over in India there is the great king cobra, or hamadryad, a size larger, quite as fierce—it has been known to chase a man on horseback; he had to ride for his life—but his poison is a degree less virulent. The difference, however, may be considered negligible and ceases to interest the patient after a few minutes. Among the Australian cobras, the pit vipers of America and the great west African vipers there are species with evil reputations, and the most alarming feature is that the aggressive snakes are all desperately poisonous.

The Size of Bolivia.

The area of Bolivia is not accurately known, yet it is probable that its present area is not far from 600,000 square miles, which is the equivalent of the area of Germany, France and Spain combined. From the lowlands on the east and southeast the land rises, sometimes by easy slope and sometimes by abrupt uplift to the snowcapped peak of Sorata, with its altitude of near 25,000 feet and to the pyramid of Illimani, which is given as 21,300 feet in height. La Paz lies at an elevation of 11,000 feet above sea level and Potosi at nearly 14,000 feet. A few miles west of La Paz lies the inland sea of Titicaca, at an elevation of 13,000 feet.

His Position In the Matter.

"Gracious!" exclaimed the fond wife, coming in her husband's den and finding him smoking his pipe and reading. "This room is thick with smoke. I don't see how you can stand to sit in here."

"You can't?" responded the brutal husband. "Well, I don't stand to sit in here; I sit to sit in here. Did you think you had married a freak?"

It is said that this was the first time in their married life that she slammed a door on leaving him.

Wit.

Wit, like every other power, has its boundaries. Its success depends on the aptitude of others to receive impressions, and that as some bodies, indissoluble by heat, can set the furnace and crucible at defiance, there are minds upon which the rays of fancy may be pointed without effect and which no fire of sentiment can agitate or exalt.—Johnson.

Too Well Recommended.

BIG IF

Causes School Committee to Make Other Plans For the High

If the School Committee were satisfied that the High school building would be ready for occupancy on Oct. 1, or even Oct. 15, they would have postponed the opening of the fall term for that school, but they are all at sea as to when they can occupy any part of the building, so they will endeavor to make temporary arrangements and open the school Sept. 10, somewhere.

The regular monthly meeting of the School Committee was held last evening all the members being present except Chairman Hallowell, who is confined to his home by injuries.

The records of the last meeting were read and accepted.

UNDESIRABLE NEIGHBOR.

Attention was again called to the fact that a granite cutting shed and polishing mill were being erected on Brooks avenue opposite the Lincoln school, which were sure to disturb the school when in session. An opinion was received from the City Solicitor which did not offer relief.

FINANCES.

The following financial statement to date was presented:

	Appropriation.	Expended.	Balance.

TEACHERS.

The following resignations of teachers were accepted:

Miss Ina M. Harden of the eighth grade at the Willard.

Charles H. Taylor the master at the Willard, who goes to Brookline.

Lee T. Gray at the High school.

The vacancy in master of the Willard was filled by the election of William R. Cramer of Hingham at a salary of $1200.

Mr. Cramer was born in Clinton; is a graduate of the High school and Bridgewater Normal and has taken special courses at summer schools; has taught at Lancaster, Winchendon and Hingham.

It was voted to increase the salary of Miss Adele Schroder at the High school to the maximum of $800. Miss Schroder has recently received offers of $900 and $1000 to go elsewhere but will remain.

HIGH SCHOOL.

It was voted to suspend the salary of the janitor of the High school until his services were needed at the new building. Voted to place the salary of the janitor at the old High school building at $550.

Mr. Smith—When will the duties of a janitor be required at the High school?

Mr. Porter—I have maintained almost from the start that the enlarged building will not be completed before Jan. 1, 1907. About 670 pupils will be registered for the fall term.

Supt. Parlin then outlined the research for outside accommodations for High school pupils.

First,—the Coliseum was suggested. It would do for recitations but not for assembly purposes. Improvements were to be made by the present lessee. He would sub-let to the city during the day time, and furnish heat and janitor service, at cost not to exceed $50 per week.

Second, — Arrangements could probably be made to use during the afternoon the Woodward Institute and possible the Adams Academy, which in conjunction with the morning and afternoon sessions at the "Old High" might answer for a few weeks.

It should be stated that Mr. Lord and Mr. Thomas, the contractors at the High now promise rooms in the old part by October 15 and in the new part by November. Mr. Gould the architect sets the dates at Oct. 1 and Nov. 1.

Mr. Porter—I would be in favor of postponing the opening of the school until Oct. 15 if sure the building would be ready.

Mr. Miller—Have no idea building will be ready then. Might be Jan. 1 or Feb. 1.

Mr. Porter—The delay seems to have been caused by the failure of the subcontractor for granite to deliver stone as wanted. Understood Mr. Fallon was not the lowest bidder for the granite; that the firm of E. Ricker & Son had agreed to furnish granite for $500 less, but because they would not agree to use Quincy granite, the contract was awarded to Fallon & Son.

Mr. Miller—Contract did not call for Quincy granite, as he remembered it. Understood there was a political reason why Fallon got the contract. He further criticised the award to Mr. Fallon.

Mr. Porter — Are there any funds available for outside accommodations?

Supt. Parlin—Some savings might be effected in salary of janitor, drawing teacher, etc.

Mr. Porter favored the use of the Woodward and Adams in connection with the Old High.

Mr. Miller questioned if under the Woodward will the Woodward could be used.

Mr. Porter thought there would be no legal difficulty as none of the fund was to be used.

The consensus of opinion of the members of the board seemed to be that the Coliseum would not make a good school house even as a last resort.

Voted on motion of Mr. Owen that the subject of accommodations be referred to the sub-committee of the High school with full power.

The sub-committee are: Messrs. Porter, Hallowell and Record.

Adjourned at 9.25.

Was Far Reaching

Representative May Retaliate Against the Committee

When opposition was expressed at the meeting of the Republican City Committee to the customary renomination for a second term of Representative Eugene C. Hultman, the friends of Harry S. Nicol probably had no idea of the consequences.

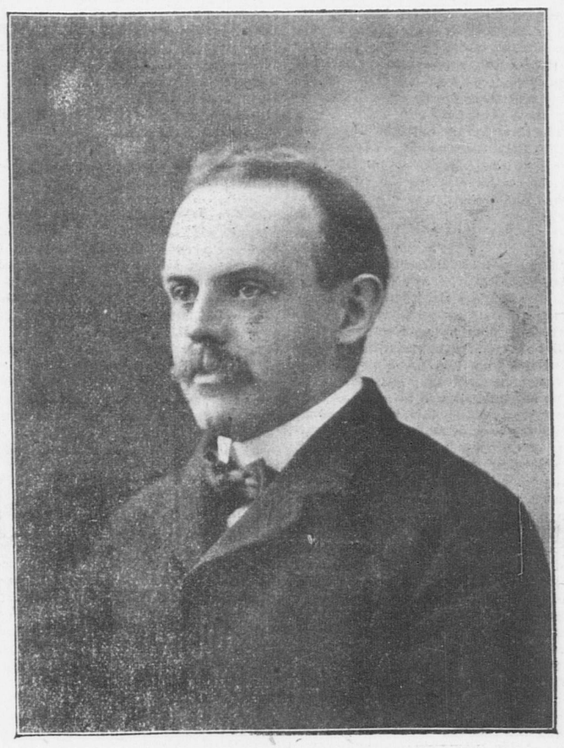

Now it is said that Mr. Hultman will enter the Mayoralty contest against Mayor Thompson, claiming that His Honor and his friends are responsible for the present opposition to him.

Mr. Hultman's friends were much surprised at the action of the City Committee, but say they have no anxiety over the result should they make a contest with Mr. Nicols. Mr. Hultman's vote in Ward One, Two and Three last year was considerable larger than that of Mr. Nicols and they believeit would be this year.

With Mr. Hultman out of the field at the City caucuses, Mayor Thompson would probably have had "a cinch" as in the past two years, but it may be different with an aggressive and able candidate like Mr. Hultman.

A Good Point.

Dr. Everett in his pungent protest against the "extraordinary and unwarranted proceeding of President Roosevelt in giving government authority to the so-called 'reformed' spelling," asks: Are he and Mr. Carnegie satisfied that their own names are spelled as pronounced?—Boston Advertiser.

Protest Filed

Quincy Cup Will Probably Go To Bonidrei Of Boston Club

The elapsed time in Tuesday's race was:

Bonidrei	2	47	00
Windrim Kid	2	50	50
Manchester II	2	54	30

At the close of yesterday's race the Windrim Kid protested the Bonidrei so that the possession of the Quincy cup is in doubt. It was claimed by the Kid that the Bonidrei failed to give her room at the windward mark and that a foul resulted.

The Globe says: "This takes the settlement of the series out of the realm of sport into the maze of argument and contention necessary to prove a case before a board of judges, who, after hearing the evidence, may bestow the cup on one or the other of the parties to the protest, or may disqualify both. In the event the race would go to the defender, Manchester II, and still another race would be necessary to settle the matter, as all three boats would then have two races each, and three are necessary to win the cup."

The elapsed time on each of the six legs is given below, the Bonidrei making the best time on all but the second. The Manchester led at the second and third, but then fell to last place.

	1st.	2d.	3d.
Bonidrei	33.30	16.53	21.18
Windrim Kid	33.40	17.40	21.22
Manchester	34.10	15.50	21.21
	4th.	5th.	6th.
Bonidrei	48.09	24.20	22.50
Windrim Kid	49.47	25.07	23.23
Manchester	53.55	25.15	23.55

The judges who will pass on the protests are S. Parker Bremer, commodore, and A. W. Merriam, secretary of the Manchester yacht club; George W. Mansfield of the regatta committee of that club, and J. F. Sheppard of the Quincy yacht club. The representatives of the Corinthian yacht club, W. H. Joyce, and of the Boston yacht club, David A. Weir, on the judges' boat Tuesday will also attend the hearing.

The Pointers won from Social Club 7 to 6 in last game.

How to Feed Dogs.

A man who has been very successful raising thoroughbred dogs, especially of the large breeds, gives this recipe for a most nourishing and economical dog food: Procure a soup bone and boil as for soup. When all the juice has been extracted take the bone from the broth, remove the meat, chop fine and return to the soup. Stir in sufficient cornmeal to make a thick mush and set aside to cool. When cold cut in slices and feed to the dogs as required. Vegetables, such as cabbages and beets, are valuable additions. Each dog should have a large beef bone to gnaw daily to keep his teeth in good condition.

SHOWS WEAKNESS

Cuba's Offer of Clemency Is Open to Criticism

REBELS NOT RESPONDING

People In Remote Districts Sympathize With Insurgent Bands --Havana Newspaper's Frank Discussion of Platt Amendment

Havana, Aug. 29.—In the absence of news of fighting between government and insurgent forces, interest centers in the government's offer of clemency to those of its enemies who will lay down thier arms and return to their homes. While the press and public regard the offer as an important incident of the conflict, the result thus far has not been what the government seemed to anticipate. Citizens generally are unwilling to predict its results, and it is criticised especially in many quarters because it does not fix a time limit for the laying down of arms, thus giving the insurgents time to test their cause a while longer and still reserve the opportunity to quit when they are satisfied that there is no chance of success.

Residents of the country districts of Havana and Pinar del Rio provinces uniformly speak respectfully of the size and conduct of the insurgent bands, and it is asserted that the people of the more remote districts unquestionably are with them. The force of the revolutionary sentiment does not appear as yet to have greatly diminished and there are no signs of the laying down of arms.

The first frank, outright discussion of the Platt amendment, as bearing on the situation, appears today in The Diario De La Marina, the old-established Spanish organ and the most conservative. The editorial article, which was written by Chief Editor Rivero, says:

"Some people admit that the present rebellion is over. We do not know whether they are right, but we do know it should be and quickly. If the insurrection does not end quickly there will be American intervention. If the war lasts long and the United States government does not intervene, the Platt amendment will be a failure. In the fewest words, intervention would mean the loss, or at least, the diminution, of Cuban independence. The lack of intervention, were the war to continue long, would be equivalent to the annulment of guarantees which up to the present induced foreign capitalists to invest their funds in Cuba. If, instead of warranting peace, solvency and security in Cuba, the Platt amendment is to be restricted solely to the protection of American interests, it is almost certain that English, American and Spanish money should not have been invested in Cuba in such amounts as they have during the past year."

Enlistments and other war preparations proceed more rapidly than ever. Extra precautions are being taken to guard the railroad between Pinar del Rio and San Juan de Martinez in anticipation of Guerra sending a force against it. His strength is augmenting so much that he may undertake to carry out his threat of destroying bridges and wrecking trains.

Strengthening Guerra's Forces

San Juan de Martinez, Aug. 29.—Colonel Lores, with a band of insurgents, yesterday passed this city from the northward and joined Pino Guerra, who is reported to be near Guanes. The government troops here have been reinforced by 100 men.

Made Mountain Out of Molehill

Washington, Aug. 29.—G. J. Bowens, a negro, has resigned as American consul at Guadeloupe, French West Indies. Rioting in Guadeloupe caused Bowens to send alarming reports to the state department about the dangers which threatened American interests in Guadeloupe. In consequence of this report an American gunboat was sent to the island to the displeasure of France, which had warships near Guadeloupe and was prepared to check election riots. An investigation is said to have shown that Bowens exaggerated the condition of affairs.

To Wed American Actress

London, Aug. 29.—In an interview published in The Daily Chronicle, Henry L. Bruce, eldest son and heir of Lord Aberdare, authorizes the announcement of his engagement to Miss Camille Clifford, the American actress. Bruce says his friends were frantic, and his father, who was simply furious, had severely upbraided him. He had not been home and they had hardly spoken since Miss Clifford accepted him three months ago.

Lottery Agent In Custody

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—Secret service operatives last night arrested Herman Hanau, traveling agent in Pennsylvania and New England for the Royal Havana lottery. During Hanau's absence his home was searched by secret service agents, who secured tickets for the September drawings to the value of $10,000.

An Inspection of Stock Yards

Chicago, Aug. 29.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson spent yesterday at the stock yards inspecting the packing plants. He was especially interested in the canning departments. At the conclusion of his visit to the stock yards he expressed himself as greatly pleased with the excellent sanitary conditions he found.

Chile Emerging From Distress

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 29.—President Riesco expresses the belief that all the villages and towns of Chile destroyed by the recent earthquake will be rebuilt on their old sites. The Chilean people will always be grateful for the generosity and self-denial of the foreign colonies in Chile at the moment of the disaster. The president eulogizes the work of the authorities in the procuring and distribution of food, of which there is an abundance. Distributions of provisions are made daily, but every able-bodied man is required to work.

Funds Show Heavy Deficit

Columbus, O., Aug. 29.—The report of the state examiners who investigated the books of Treasurer Smith of Akron shows that the face value of securities held by Smith to protect loans of public funds is $12,358 less than the apparent deficit in the funds of which he was custodian. The deficit amounts to $217,824. The examiners did not attempt to make any actual valuation of the securities, but some of them, of an aggregate face value of $205,484, are said to be almost valueless.

Supreme "Nerve" of Launch Sailors

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug 29.—People wro crowded the board walk last night were greatly excited at the sight of signals of distress several miles out in the ocean. The lifesaving crews from the three stations put out only to discover that the launch Mary, from Essington, Pa., was out of gasoline and was signalling for help so that the supply could be replenished.

Troops Needed to Quell Strikers

Santander, Spain, Aug. 29.—The strike situation is growing worse and the mine owners have sent an urgent demand for reinforcements of the troops. The news from Camargo is most alarming. The strikers are destroying the mine and the railways have been pillaged of their dynamite stores.

Antagonizes Claims of Church

Madrid, Aug. 29.—A royal decree restores the civil marriage formalities and suppresses the obligation on the part of parties desiring to marry to declare their religion. This is directly opposed to the papal nuncio's claim, and it is expected to arouse a political struggle when parliament reassembles.

Blaze In Oil Fields

Beaumont, Tex., Aug. 29.—A boiler exploded in the Keith-Ward tract at Spindle Top last night, setting fire to oil-storage tanks and derricks, 15 of which already have burned. The fire is spreading. Some of the best wells in the field are in this tract.

GUILD AND MORAN

Only Candidates For Governor, Says District Attorney

QUINCY IS NOT SATISFIED

Does Not Want Candidate Whose Nomination "Spells Humiliation and Disaster"--Foss and Draper In Hot Contest

Boston, Aug. 29.—Public utterances from various state leaders have developed new interest in the struggle for the Democratic nomination for governor of Massachusetts. District Attorney Moran led off by sending a caustic letter to Josiah Quincy, chairman of the Democratic state committee, refusing the latter's suggestion to submit the nomination issue to William J. Bryan.

The letter declared that "as no candidate opposes my nomination the suggestion of arbitration is absurd. The only contest now possible is that about to take place between Guild and Moran."

The district attorney forwarded one of his campaign buttons to Quincy with the remark that the wearing of the same would be proof of Quincy's recognition of the right of the Democratic masses to govern themselves "in defiance of dictation by self-constituted bosses."

Chairman Quincy replied by promising vigorous hostility to Moran's candidacy to the end of the convention. But he added that he would make no further opposition to Moran after he had become satisfied that a majority of the Democrats wanted a candidate whose nomination, to his mind, spelled "humiliation and disaster." Quincy added that he would resign his position as chairman if Moran were nominated.

Former Congressman John R. Thayer of Worcester announced that he would not be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor under any circumstances, Henry M. Whitney recently issued a similar announcement, and former Governor William L. Douglas has declared his unwillingness to run unless nominated without opposition. The situation has apparently given new hope to the Moran forces, which are now hard at work.

The contest for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor between Eugene N. Foss and Lieutenant Governor Draper has been vigorously taken up by Foss through public advertising. Foss has issued a proclamation to Republicans calling upon all who favor Canadian reciprocity and immediate tariff revision and the overthrow of the "political machine in Massachusetts" to volunteer their services upon a local committee pledged to the Foss candidacy.

Not a Democratic Candidate

New York, Aug. 29.—W. R. Hearst said in the course of an interview that he would not be a candidate for governor at the next election on the Democratic ticket. "I shall run only as the nominee of the Independence League," he said. "Of course, I should be glad of all the Democratic votes that I could get. The fact that I was the Independence League candidate would not prevent me from accepting the support of those Democrats who wished to support and vote for me."

Useless to Fight Smith

Atlanta, Aug. 29.—The Populist state convention called to meet here yesterday to nominate a state ticket failed to materialize, only nine delegates making their appearance. The reasons assigned for the failure of the convention are that Hoke Smith's overwhelming victory in the Democratic primaries recently held would make it useless to put out a candidate against him.

Victory For Dispensary Advocates

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 29.—The state primary elections attracted unusual interest and the vote was large. The state dispensary was the issue. The probability is that a majority of the dispensary advocates have been chosen, although returns are incomplete.

Hartje Settlement In Sight

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 29.—Augustus Hartje has offered to pay his wife approximately $250,000 to agree to a settlement out of court of the notorious divorce case which is now in the hands of Judge Fraser for decision. The source of this information is one of the attorneys who appeared in the case. Neither of the principals will discuss the report, but it is understood Mrs. Hartje has accepted these conditions.

Jewish Youngsters Released

New York, Aug. 29.—All but two of the 30 Jewish orphans who were ordered deported by the Ellis Island authorities were released from the immigration station last evening under orders from the department of commerce and labor at Washington. The children arrived here Saturday on the steamship Amerika. The officers of the United Hebrew Charities at once appealed the case to Washington.

Polar Journey In 1907

Hammerfest, Norway, Aug. 29.—A dispatch was received here from Walter Wellman, leader of the polar expedition at Spitzbergen, in which he says he has decided not to attempt a voyage northward this year on account of defects in the mechanical equipment of his airship. His confidence of success in 1907 has been increased by this summer's work and by weather observations.

WHITE'S ACCOUNTS SHORT

Chicopee City Treasurer Is Still Numbered Among the Missing

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 29.—City Auditor Kirby of Chicopee reported to Mayor Taylor last evening that there is an apparent shortage of $3500 in the accounts of the missing city clerk and treasurer, John D. White. It is evident that the shortage is in the cash carried in the office for daily business, only $192 of such cash having been found in the safe. Mayor Taylor expresses confidence that when White is found he will be able to explain, and he still is certain that White wandered away because of a mental breakdown due to worry and not because of a desire to escape prosecution.

No steps for prosecution have been taken yet, but for the benefit of the family the police are continuing to trace out every clue. They have learned that White was in the Springfield railroad station at 3 o'clock Monday morning, with a ticket to Albany in his hand. He missed the Albany train, but whether he took another train later is not yet determined.

Tragedy Attributed to Jealousy

Chelsea, Mass., Aug. 29.—Robert H. Long of this city, aged 32, was arrested last night on a charge of attempting to kill his wife, Jennie H. Long, a cashier at a Revere Beach resort. Mrs. Long was shot four times and is in a serious condition. Mrs. Long's employers say that she and her husband had separated. Late yesterday Long telephoned to Revere that he had shot his baby and himself, and requested that his wife come home immediately. Mrs. Long did so and found her baby sitting in the parlor with her mother-in-law. In a few minutes Long appeared with a revolver and shot his wife. The action of Long is attributed to jealousy.

Hub Celestials Uneasy

Boston, Aug. 29.—Chinatown's knees are knocking together on account of the presence of the seven alleged Highbinders, who came over from New York, bringing with them a new Joss, which they installed in the Joss house with imposing ceremonies. The members of the Hep Sing Tong society considered the old idol unlucky and discarded it amidst the drinking of much Chinese wine. In mortal terror of their enemies the members of the Ong Leon Tong society appealed to Chief Watts to send down detectives to protect them, which was done. While the Leon Tongs are in hiding the Hep Sings are making merry.

Sheriff Held Mob at Bay

Grand Isle, Vt., Aug. 29.—"Lynch him!" clamored 500 furious farmers and villagers, as they gathered outside the county jail, wherein Edson Bleteau was confined in $5000 bonds for alleged assault on 12-year-old Josephine Patnaude in a lonely spot on her father's farm outside this village. "Stand back! I'll shoot the first man who attempts to break into this jail," shouted Sheriff Hurlburt in reply. For more than an hour he held the mob at bay and at dark had the satisfaction of seeing the crowd disperse. With seven hastily sworn in deputies the jail is guarded and violence will be met with bullets.

Sent to Jail For Fraud

Littleton, N. H., Aug. 29.—Charles E. George was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in jail on a charge of using the mails for a scheme to defraud. A fine of $100 was suspended during good behavior and two other similar indictments against George were placed on file. It was alleged that George defrauded various individuals of $5.40 each, representing this amount to be costs of suits at law to be brought for recovery of money due merchants from collection agencies.

Danger In Stove Polish

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 29.—Following the explosion of highly inflammable stove polish at the home of Oscar Anderson last night, Miss Hannah Laglund's body was horribly burned, every portion of her clothes were burned and her hair likewise. Miss Laglund and her sister were cleaning a stove. The polish exploded and the flames caught the clothes of Miss Laglund.

Story Writer's Memory Honored

Portland, Me., Aug. 29.—A monument erected to the memory of Rev. Elijah Kellogg, the author and writer of boys' books, was dedicated at Harpswell Centre. The monument is a rectangular shaft of granite eight feet high, and stands on a sightly spot near the church in which for more than 50 years Kellogg preached.

Manager Collins Laid Off

Boston, Aug. 29.—James Collins, manager and third baseman of the Boston American league baseball club, has been suspended for absenting himself from the team without leave. For several weeks Collins has declined to take any part in the management. He claims that he has not been in condition for weeks to play.

Sues Union For Losing His Job

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 29.—Alleging that officers of local union No. 125, International Union of Brewery Workers of America, illegally induced the Cold Spring brewery to discharge him because he was not a union man, Andrew Rau has sued the union and its 22 members for $10,000 in an action of tort.

RECEIVER NAMED

Philadelphia Concern Has Liabilities of $10,000,000

ITS PRESIDENT IS DEAD

Crash Followed an Investigaiton of His Methods, Which Revealed False Statements to Directors of Bank's Condition

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—The Real Estate Trust company, organized in 1885, the depository for nearly $1,000,000 of the funds of the Presbyterian church, and holding $300,000 of the money of the City of Philadelphia and $175,000 of state deposits, has closed its doors. The failure was caused by heavy loans made by the late president, Frank K. Hipple, to Adolf Segal, a promoter, on insufficient security.

A desperate effort was made to save the institution by the board of directors through an appeal to the Clearing House association, but that body declined to subscribe a guarantee fund of $7,000,000 because of insufficient security. The liabilities are placed at $10,000,000, with quick assets of $3,500,000, and doubtful collateral amounting to $8,000,000. George H. Earle, Jr., president of the Finance Company of Pennsylvania, was appointed receiver.

President Hipple was always regarded as a conservative financier, but following his sudden death last Friday an investigation by the directors developed the fact that his loans to Segal had been made regardless of proper security and that he had made false statements to the directors of the bank's condition. Friends of the president express the belief that Segal exercised a hypnotic influence over Hipple.

Although the cause of Hipple's death was given by his physician and the coroner as cerebral hemorrhage, it is intimated that he may have committed suicide.

Persistent rumors that President Hipple committed suicide were borne out last night when it was authoritatively stated that he took his life at his home Friday morning. Hipple is said to have taken a dose of laudanum with suicidal intent. While still conscious he filled his bathtub with water and later was found apparently drowned. Hipple's family decline to make any statement on the subject and the physicians interested in the case decline to be interviewed regarding the suicide theory.

Hipple, in addition to being president of the Real Estate Trust company, was treasurer of the board of trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States and of several other church funds and was a director of the Franklin National bank.

How far Hipple benefited in the loans made or whether he was merely the tool of others is yet to be determined. All the directors remain silent on that point, and also on the question of whether there will be any criminal prosecutions. In order to hide the true condition of the company and save himself Hipple used what the directors term "a double system of making a report." When the state examiner called, Hipple presented to him securities to offset the loans made, and when the president made his report to the directors he would show them a bundle of other securities and other paper, and along with these he would exhibit the certificate of the bank examiner, which showed that the accounts the examiner had investigated were correct. The directors, supposing the securities shown them were the same, approved the reports.

As soon as the directors learned of the sudden death of President Hipple they began an investigation of his affairs and were shocked when they learned the true condition of the company and made strenuous efforts to tide the institution over the difficulty. All day Monday they worked, but it became apparent shortly after noon yesterday that the crash was inevitable.

Application papers for a temporary receiver were prepared and left at the offices of the trust company, after which the directors went to the meeting of the Clearing House association to make a last appeal for help. There were probably 50 bank presidents at the clearing house to meet the directors of the trust company. The latter stated that they needed $7,000,000, but the best the banks could do was to guarantee $3,500,000. This was not enough and, as all other means for getting money had failed, Vice President Houston telephoned to the bank to suspend business and send the receivership papers to court.

The application for the receiver says that the company has a paid up capital of $1,500,000, an apparent surplus of an equal amount and deposits of about $10,000,000. The assets consist of real estate in Philadelphia, loans upon collateral upon demand and on time and other securities. President Hipple, the application says, by false reports to the directors of the loans made by him, brought about the condition of the company which was first discovered by the officers of the bank subsequent to the death of the president.

Fredericton, N. B., Aug. 29.—A heavy frost during the past few nights has injured crops in the St. John river districts. The greatest damage was done along the valleys of the Nashwaak and Kenswick rivers.

Why Adulterated Paint is Dear

A maker of adulterated white lead sneered "Why should paint be pure? No one eats it."

True, but when white lead is adulterated with barytes, sublimed lead, gypsum, whiting, etc., it loses the qualities which make pure white lead the best paint pigment.

And when these imitations are sold as white lead, the consumer is deceived into paying white lead prices for worthless substitutes.

Salem Pure White Lead

(Made by the Old Dutch Process

contains no adulteration whatever, and when mixed with Pure Linseed Oil lasts as no paint made of cheap imitations can.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, Timothy Reed, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, Richard D. Chase, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE
Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, William F. Cummings, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, Ernest G. Gay, will be happy to answer inquiries.

THE RUSSIAN POLICY

Would Settle Pressing Questions In a Legal Manner

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29.—It is semi-officially stated that it would be a great mistake to suppose that revolutionary terrorism will be met by terrorism on the part of the government, which always will be able to distinguish between legal opposition and enemies determined to nullify the law, whether by propaganda or by passive resistance. A propaganda has its own means of struggling, whether through the press or by meeting, but disturbances of order will be prosecuted sternly, whatever ideas are professed.

The government has sufficient means, the statement continues, of suppressing illegal acts, but suppression is not the only aim, the first problem being the preparation of bills to be presented in parliament for the settlement of pressing questions in a legal manner. The statement concludes as follows:

"Revolutionaries may try to destroy the work of the government, but finally they must fail, as the government cannot refrain from the fulfilment of reforms simply because one statesman or another may be replaced."

Min's Body at St Petersburg

St. Petersburg, Aug. 29.—In spite of the threats of the revolutionists, the transfer of the body of General Min from Peterhof, where he was assassinated Aug. 26, to St. Petersburg for interment in the regimental chapel of the Seminovsky regiment, occurred without incident, though with imposing military ceremonials. The casket was escorted to the barracks here by the entire Seminovsky regiment and by deputations from other guard regiments.

Barrels Had False Bottoms

Riga, Aug. 29.—Seventeen cocoanut oil barrels which were auctioned off here by the customs authorities were found to contain 500,000 copies of proclamations printed in various languages hidden in false bottoms.

New Governor of Warsaw

London, Aug. 29.—The Standard's Warsaw correspondent telegraphs that General Rennenkampf has been appointed successor of General Skallon, governor of Warsaw.

Union Labor Gets a Black Eye

Racine, Wis., Aug. 29.—Circuit Court Judge Fowler of Fond du Lac, in the boycott suit for $25,000 damages brought by Otto B. Schultz, a Racine baker, against the Trades Labor Council and others, held illegal the contract exacted from the boss bakers by the union men in an effort to enforce the closed shop. The trades council and the individual members are enjoined from using the "unfair list." The boycott is declared an actionable conspiracy to accomplish a criminal or unlawful purpose; Schultz is allowed to recover damages of $2500 for the loss of profits and $3500 in damages for the amount of injury to his business and property in relation to its selling value.

To Suspend Rule For Bryan

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 29.—In response to a request from friends of William J. Bryan, President Roosevelt has directed the proper authorities of the port of New York to suspend the rule prohibiting the landing of women from quarantine in order that Mrs. and Miss Bryan may be permitted to come ashore from the liner with Bryan. Without this order the party would have to be separated at quarantine so that Bryan might fulfill his part in the reception ceremonies.

Harvard Men Show Up Well

Putney, Eng., Aug. 29.—The Harvard crew's performance yesterday has removed all doubts from the minds of English rowing men as to their staying powers. They never lost form, every man staying to the finish, when all sat up looking capable of going still further. The Sporting Life says: It was what Americans call a "paddle," but if they can do better than this Cambridge will have a hard race.

Phonetic Spelling Adopted

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Secretary Taft received the first letter from President Roosevelt written in accordance with the rules of the reformed spelling board. The letter pertained to the business of the government, which fact rendered its publication impossible. All of the executive correspondence will be spelled hereafter in accordance with the new spelling rules.

French Fishermen Handicapped

St. Johns, Aug. 29.—The French fishery at St. Pierre is a failure, the present season having been the worst in many years. Many residents are leaving the place for Canada and it is expected that more will follow. Newfoundland's enforcement of the bait act is largely responsible for these conditions.

Case of Robbery and Murder

Buffalo, Aug. 29.—An inquest into the death of George H. Desmond, a traveling man of Somerville, Mass., has begun here. The evidence tends to show that Desmond was robbed and murdered. Three men are under arrest pending the result of the inquiry.

English-American-Dutch

London, Aug. 29.—Thomas Hardy, the novelist, opposes the suggested changes in spelling and writes: "I am struck with the advantage of having reform of English spelling taken in hand by an eminent American of Dutch extraction."

BOSTON LETTER.

Lightning Changes In Democratic Situation Astonishing.

AS TO ILLEGAL NATURALIZATION

U. S. District Attorney French Is In Fraud Quest.

The political situation, so far as the Massachusetts Democracy is concerned, is a most amazing kaleidoscope. The changes which have taken place in the alignment of party candidates since the 1st of May, has been something bewildering in the extreme.

Ever since District Attorney John B. Moran came into the lime-light the conservative Democrats have been at their wits' ends. Mr. Moran is a sensationalist of no mean calibre. His course, his talk, and his actions since he first conceived the idea of running off with the Democratic gubernatorial nomination have stamped him as a great egotist. But he has played in a very wily way to the galleries in his conduct of the office of district attorney, and there is no doubt that he has a considerable following. His record in office, however, has been sensational in the extreme. He has shown a remarkable faculty for doing indiscreet things, and the class of men who surround him does not tend to reassure those Democrats who fear that if he should secure the regular Democratic nomination he might secure control of the Democratic state machine.

Certainly no man who has ever filled the office of district attorney in this county or any other county in this state, or so far as can be learned, in any other state, has boldly used that office so openly for his own political upliftment as has Mr. Moran in the good old county of Suffolk. He has evidently used it to try to force the Boston Democratic machine to support him for the nomination, and he has aimed heavy blows at those prominent individual Democrats who have come out in opposition to his candidacy.

Like the Butler Year

Not since the famous Butler year has there been such a sensational and spectacular canvass made for the Democratic nomination for the governorship of this commonwealth. It will not do merely to ridicule the candidacy of Mr. Moran. Should he secure the Democratic nomination he will be a formidable candidate for the sole reason that no one, even the most expert politician, will be able to gauge his strength with the people. If nominated, he would probably secure a large proportion of the Democratic vote and there is a general fear that a good many Republicans would vote for him on the same ground that Republicans voted for General Butler in 1882, that is, in order to see what he would do if elected.

It is true that the conservative Democrats do not care for Moran and would do anything in their power to prevent his securing the regular nomination. As a matter of fact, quite a number of them, no doubt, would vote against him if nominated, but so many of them desire to be "regular" in their politics that they would not dare to oppose him openly, even though greatly desiring to see him defeated at the polls.

Whitney Is Out of It

There seems to be no doubt whatever that Henry M. Whitney must be considered absolutely out of the fight for the Democratic nomination. It is not to be wondered at that he withdrew from the contest. A great many people wonder that a man with so vulnerable a record as Mr. Whitney's would allow himself to be drawn into the fight at all, even though his interest in the Democratic party might be very great. It would require more than ordinary courage for a man with such a record to face the reckless fire of the men forming the nucleus of the Moran movement, and when a man like Mr. Whitney had done this after all the old party leaders had refused to serve in this capacity, he certainly had a right to ask the undivided support of the conservative wing.

That he did not receive this, and that there was a good deal of back-biting and recrimination was unquestionably the fact.

The withdrawal of Mr. Whitney will force the conservatives to unite upon some man like Sullivan or Thayer, and it will be necessary for them to act at once if they expect to make any head against the Moran movement.

The fortunes of Mr. Moran have been greatly strengthened by the accession of men who, while they have nothing in common with Moran, are willing to support anybody in order to overthrow the present Democratic machine. At least one half of the strength of the Moran following is due to antipathy to the state machine. A great many even of the more conservative class of Democrats regard the present machine as an annex to the various Boston corporations which desire to control the situation in the city of Boston and as far as possible in the commonwealth. These men charge that it was these corporations which placed Fitzgerald in the mayor's chair in Boston and defeated Edward J. Donovan, his opponent for the nomination, and Louis A. Frothingham, his Republican opponent at the polls. The ascendency of corporation control in the Democratic machine has been a source of grief and disgust to a large element of conservative Democrats outside of the city of Boston as well as in it. They would regard as not wholly an unmixed evil the nomination of any Democrat which would tend to loosen the grip of the corporations on the Democratic organization.

On the Trail of Frauds

For a number of years there have been grave suspicions that much illegal naturalization was being done in the city of Boston. Every year the Democratic party has naturalized a large number of aliens before the state or city elections in order to swell the Democratic vote at the polls. The Democratic naturalization bureau has worked overtime in its effort to pile up a big enough naturalization to elect the candidates of the party at state and city elections. The man who has had charge of this bureau was John J. McCarthy, whose name is now on the payroll of the sanitary department of the city of Boston.

Mr. McCarthy has been called upon by United States District Attorney Asa P. French to explain some things in connection with his naturalization work. As Mr. McCarthy is not at present on the best of terms with the Democratic leaders, he has told a great many things in regard to Democratic naturalization which will probably make sensational reading when the matter is called up in court later on.

It is not a tremendously difficult matter to secure the naturalization of an alien. At least it is not so in the circuit court. In the United States district court, however, there is much greater care exercised, and for that reason all the Democratic naturalization is done in the circuit court. It is charged that for years the courts have been called upon to naturalize aliens who have been in this country only a few months, but who have been persuaded to swear that they have resided here sufficiently long to receive their papers. Then two other witnesses come up and swear that they have known the person in this country more than the length of time necessary to qualify him for citizenship. Sometimes questions are asked by the court, but it is an easy matter to put through anybody who is willing to perjure himself before the court.

Colossal Frauds Probable

An enormous amount of this illegal naturalization has been done in this commonwealth. Cambridge has been a hot-bed for such work, and a number of those who have been illegally put through the naturalization mill have been detected, tried, and punished for their misdemeanor. In the city of Boston, however, apparently no effort has been made to get at this sort of lawbreaking. Previous United States district attorneys have not interested themselves sufficiently to bring any of the parties into court.

Mr. French is one of the ablest criminal lawyers in the commonwealth, and he has the opportunity to make a splendid reputation by unearthing this sort of crime in the city of Boston, where it is extremely rampant. It is intimated that thousands of names of men illegally naturalized are on the voting list in the city of Boston, and if Mr. French can inaugurate action which will put some of these lawbreakers into states prison, along with the men who instigated the crime, he will be doing a commendable work in the interest of morality and decency.

SWEEPING THE HOUSE.

How to Prevent Making a Great Dust.

When you sweep a room raise as little dust as possible, because this dust when breathed irritates the nose and throat and may set up catarrh. Some of the dust breathed in dusty air reaches the lungs, making parts of them black and hard and useless. If the dust in the air you breathe contains the germs of consumption—tubercle bacilli—you run the risk of getting consumption yourself, says the Pittsburg Press.

To prevent making a great dust in sweeping use moist sawdust on bare floors. When the room is carpeted, moisten a newspaper and tear it into small scraps and scatter these upon the carpet where you begin sweeping.

As you sweep brush the papers along with the broom, and they will catch most of the dust and hold it fast, just as the sawdust does on bare floors. Do not have either the paper or the sawdust dripping wet, only moist.

In dusting a room do not use a feather duster, because this does not remove the dust from the room, but only brushes it into the air so that you breathe it in or it settles down, and then you have to do the work over again.

Use soft, dry cloths to dust with and shake them frequently out of the window, or use slightly moistened cloths and rinse them out in water when you have finished. In this way you get the dust out of the room.

In cleaning rooms you should remember that dust settles upon the floor as well as on the furniture and is stirred into the air we breathe by walking over them.

You can easily remove all this dust in rooms which have bare floors—In houses, stores, shops, schoolrooms, etc.—after the dust has settled by passing over the floor a mop which has been wrung out so as to be only moist, not dripping wet.

His Eloquence.

The curate of a country parish lately preached a charity sermon, and the collection which followed amounted to £20 7s. 4½d. In the vestry after the service the church wardens counted it out and mentioned the result. "Well," said the reverend preacher, "I must have preached pretty well to get all that." "No doubt you did, sir," replied one of the church wardens who had been collecting, "but the squire put in a £20 note, and he's deaf."—London Mail.

Eben C. Stanwood Dead in England

Eben C. Stanwood, the well known broker of Boston, whose wife was a Quincy lady, died at Ventnor, Isle of Wight, England, on Monday.

Mr. Stanwood was born in Boston June 14, 1856, and had lived there all his life. He was the son of Eben C. Stanwood, who, 40 years ago, was one of the leading business men of Boston. The father was born in Augusta, Me, and passed away in March, 1866.

The son was a man of quiet and refined tastes and enjoyed the respect and confidence of all who had met him. He was graduated from the English high school in 1874, and at once went into the banking business. In 1895 he organized the firm of which he was the senior member, his associate being George S. Stockwell. The offices are at 95 Milk street.

Mr. Stanwood was a member of the New Algonquin, the Exchange and the New York clubs, and other social organizations. It is thought that the body will be brought to Boston for interment.

Mrs. Stanwood's maiden name was Annie Isabel Whicher, daughter of the late Thomas A. Whitcher of Adams street, Quincy. They were married Oct. 30, 1879.

Mr. Stanwood had two brothers and two sisters who are well known in social and business circles of Boston.

In the banking business and investment bond market Mr. Stanwood was regarded as a man of good judgment and strict integrity. He will be missed by his business associates.

Mr. Stanwood is reported to have been a millionaire.

Mrs. Stanwood and her daughters Audrey and Faith, were with Mr. Stanwood at the time of his death, having been abroad since May.

—The Boston Yacht club will make power boat racing a feature of its Labor day races.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, in buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

Mayor Thompson Principal Speaker At Outing of Board of Trade

Those who attended the annual outing of the Quincy Board of Trade on Wednesday evening for a good time enjoyed every moment, but for the politicians it was not such a love feast as it promised to be a week ago.

All the conditions were favorable for the outing. The weather was fair, the temperature mild, the moon nearly full, the sail delightful, and the menu seldom excelled anywhere. But there was a chilliness among a few, and some of the speeches were in marked contrast with the jovialness of the party.

It was about 6 P. M. when the special car left West Quincy, and it picked up en route to City Square many members of the Board of Trade and their friends. When City Square was reached the big car was filled to overflowing, and it was necessary to secure additional accommodations.

Houghs Neck was reached about 7 P. M., where others joined the party, and a rush was made for the steamer Houghs Neck which soon headed for Nantasket Point. It was a beautiful evening and a most delightful sail across Hull bay. Instrumental and vocal music enlivened the occasion.

Shortly after the arrival of the steamer, dinner was announced, and the Quincy party almost filled the large dining room at Wade's Hotel. Such a feast as was spread before them. There was variety, and the supply was bountiful and of the best, while the service was good. The menu follows:

Clam Chowder — Fish Chowder
Steamed Clams
Tomato — Cucumbers
Fried Perch
Fried Clams — Potato Chips
Rolls — Brown Bread
Roast Lamb — Roast Beef
Boiled Potatoes — String Beans
Ice Cream and Cake
Watermelon
Tea — Coffee

President T. L. Williams of the Board of Trade opened the post prandial exercises. He was pleased to welcome such a representative gathering of Quincy's business men. Quincy was a cosmopolitan city, as all parts of the world are represented. It was so at this gathering, and also in our City Council.

Many of us like to think with Longfellow of "the dear old town by the sea" which they left behind, but they are also thinking of Quincy, which during the last few years has thrown off its lethargy.

Here President Williams was interrupted by the query—"What is the matter with Quincy?" And there were three cheers for the City of Presidents.

Quincy has one of the finest electric lighting systems in the country; it has one of the largest electric power plants; it has next to the largest iron works, and a granite industry as large as any city or town.

President Piper of the City Council was introduced as toastmaster of the evening, and there was a cry—"What is the matter with Ward Three Piper." Mr. Piper spoke briefly and then presented the Mayor.

Mayor Thompson thanked the Board of Trade for the courtesy of invitation to be present, and was pleased with the hospitality and the evidence of good fellowship. A Board of Trade like this can be a power and can dominate in any work which it may undertake. Its objects he supposed were to induce new industries to locate in the city, and to foster those we have.

At this point the Mayor said he would like to reply to some criticism directed toward him, which he characterized as untruthful, unfair, and full of inuendoes. Last year, he said, they were directed toward the Crescent street fence. The people would not fully realize their loss until the boulevard through the Willard school yard was completed.

Of late the Mayor has been criticised by the press and a coordinate body of the city government relative to progress on the High school enlargement. Have heard it said that there was no contract, no time limit, no penalty, etc. All these are untrue. There is a contract and it calls for the completion of the new part, the class rooms in the old part and the sanitaries in the basement before the reopening of the schools on Sept 10; and the contractor is allowed until Oct. 20 to complete the building. There is a money forfeiture for failure to comply with contract.

Referring to the Daily Ledger article of Tuesday, the Mayor took exceptions to two statements. He said that there had been no agreement to accept on Sept. 10 class rooms in the old part instead of the new part. Second, the administration asked no favoritism for sub-contractors, except that preference be given to Quincy firms where other things are equal.

Understood contracts for the carpenter work, the painting, the roofing, etc., had been let to lowest bidders, but that was not the Mayor's business. I hold the contractor alone responsible, and not any he may employ. There is no politics in it, and I refute the statement to the contrary. I would be ashamed if I could not stand before the citizens with honor and integrity after my fifty years in business.

W. B. Nichols, local manager of the Citizens Gas Light Company was then introduced by Toastmaster Piper. Mr. Nichols was glad to meet the business men of the city. He told of what the company was doing in supplying gas to all parts of the city. We promised a reduction in price of gas, and rates have been reduced. We will live up to all promises and more. The company will work for the best interests of the city.

John L. Miller of the School Committee was then introduced, being also president of the Granite Manufacturers' Association. He thought it unfair to call on him, for he supposed that those in office and those who wanted office would be the speakers.

Mr. Miller believed in a Board of Trade. It was a good thing for the business men to get together and work for the city. To watch our city officials and see that they are not spending all their time talking politics. If the Mayor referred to my remarks at the School Committee meeting relative to the High school, I have only to say that I have nothing to take back. My information was obtained from a man who knows as much if not more about the High school enlargement than the Mayor.

All citizens should be interested in in the erection of city school houses, in street construction, and other city work. Quincy is growing rapidly. It may double in population in the next ten years. There is considerable cheap land for manufacturing purposes. All should speak a good word for Quincy at all times.

Upon motion of Representative Sandberg votes of thanks were extended to the Houghs Neck & Boston Steamship company, to Landlord Wade, and the pretty girls who served as waiters.

Before 10 o'clock the excursionists were again on the briny deep. The steamer did not head directly for Houghs Neck but took the course of the Boston steamers along the Hull shore and out through Hull gut. It was a delightful sail. The singing must not be overlooked. With Dick Prout as leader and a large chorus of good voices, one could not feel blue over the High school. At Houghs Neck the special car was taken for City Square, and it was after midnight before many reached home.

At the head table were:
President T. L. Williams.
Mayor James Thompson.

CUTTLE FISH

First of the Submarines To be Launched On Saturday

A novelty in launching will take place at the shipyard of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of this city Saturday morning, when the Cuttlefish, the first of the four submarine boats will be launched at 9.30 A. M. She will be christened by Miss Eleanor Gow, daughter of Commander John L. Gow, U. S. N., inspector of Machinery at the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company.

Fore River Shipbuilding Company will be represented at the launching by Admiral F. T. Bowles, president, and the Electric Boat Company by L. Y. Spear, vice president.

The dimensions and particulars of the Cuttlefish are held as confidential by the Navy Department, but it is known that she is a larger and faster development of the so-called "Holland boats" now owned by the government, built by the same company, in one of which, the Plunger, President Roosevelt made his famous trip last year.

The Electric Boat Company and the Fore River Company are building in the same yard two sister ships of the Cuttlefish, the Viper and the Tarantula, and an additional vessel, the Octopus, which is understood to be considerably larger than the Cuttlefish class and as large as any of the successful submarine boats in commission in Europe. These three boats are rapidly nearing completion and will be launched in the near future.

It is expected that the preliminary trials of the Cuttlefish will begin within two or three weeks and the official trials later in the fall.

Contracts for this group of submarine boats were secured by the Electric Boat Company under a discretionary appropriation as a result of the exhaustive competitive trials of the Fulton held at Newport in June, 1904.

The Fulton was subsequently sold to Russia and after trials at St. Petersburg, was shipped over the Siberian Railway to Vladivostok, where she served during the latter part of the war under the name of La Somme.

A similar provision of law was enacted by the last Congress and an appropriation is therefore now available. One or more of the submarines building here will take part in the competitive or comparative tests which will be held by the Navy Department to determine the most efficient type available before awarding contracts under the present appropriation.

As hitherto, the Electric Boat Company's types have been exclusively adopted in the United States, Great Britain, Japan, Holland, and elsewhere, it is altogether probable that the performance of the new boats will bring additional contracts to the company.

Among those invited to the launching of the Cuttlefish are the following:

The Honorable Ernest W. Roberts, M. C.
The Honorable Wm. S. McNary, M. C.
The Honorable John A. Sullivan, M. C.
The Honorable John W. Weeks, M. C.
The Honorable John A. Keliher, M. C.
Mr. C. F. Dumaine.
Colonel J. K. Davis, U. S. A., and party.

Lieut. Commander W. R. Rush, U. S. N.
Naval Constructor R. M. Watt, U. S. N.
Asst Naval Constructor G. S. Radford, U. S. N.
Lieut. Emmet R. Pollock, U. S. N.
Lieut. W. B. Tardy, U. S. N.
Lieut. C. A. Gardiner, U. S. N.
Lieut. H. L. Brinser, U. S. N.
Ensigns W. R. Raudenbush, W. W. Smith and H. McL. Walker, U. S. N.
Representatives of the Daily Ledger, Quincy Patriot and the Boston press.

The launching will be reported at length in the Saturday Daily Ledger.

One Found Dead Other Dying

A Brockton dispatch to the Boston Herald says Mrs. Harriet Wilde Butters, aged almost 90 years, died Wednesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lizzie C. Winslow, 11 Waverley street. In the same house, with death momentarily expected, lies her sister, Mrs. Caroline W. Estabrooks, whose age is 87 years.

These are the two women who were taken from the home of Mrs. Helen Frances Cox in Wollaston two months ago by Deputy Sheriff Blake, and placed by the supreme court in the care of Mrs. Winslow of Brockton on the allegation that they were kept prisoners in the Wollaston house.

When found Wednesday forenoon both of the old ladies were lying side by side in bed unconscious.

The death will to some extent complicate a lawsuit in which Mrs. Butters was defendant. Through counsel Mrs. Winslow, her guardian, has instituted proceedings against Mrs. Cox of Wollaston, alleging the embezzlement of over $5000 worth of property belonging to Mrs. Butters when the latter was in her charge.

This suit will be carried on, however, in the endeavor to recover according to counsel.

The body of Mrs. Butters was taken to her former home in Concord N. H. Thursday morning, where the interment will take place.

Buggy Struck By Electric Car

As the 11 o'clock car from Houghs Neck was slowly climbing the hill in Quincy woods last night it struck an open buggy in which P. McNamara of Hyde Park was riding to the beach. The street is 100 feet wide at this point but the horse pulled suddenly toward the track, and the car struck one wheel.

The man was laying across the seat of the carriage at the time and was under the influence of liquor. The horse freed himself of carriage and harness and dashed down the hill. McNamara was thrown but unhurt, and about the only damage was to the harness. A bottle of liquor nearly empty was saved. No blame is placed on Motorman Michael Pitts by those who saw the accident. The car was full of passengers including several Board of Trade excursionists.

Mrs. Joseph C. Morse of Goffe street returned last night from a seven weeks' trip abroad with the DeMolay club.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

A little cold wave now and then, is relished by most men.

Cannon now hopes, that regarding the nomination for president, Illinois will "stand pat."

The Prohibitionist candidate for Governor of S. C., angrily struck his one-legged rival. There is intemperance in other things, besides whiskey.

An Ohio dispatch refers to a politician who is "100 years old and still alive and kicking." No doubt this is a pleasantly delicate way of referring to Gen. Grosvenor.

It would probably be a novelty to Headmaster Harper if he could plan for a September opening of the High school under one roof. This has not been possible during the eight years he has been at the head of the school, and has added considerably to his labors, and it would be surprising if it has not decreased the efficiency of the school. The pupils have been the greatest suffers, for it is for their benefit that the school is conducted. It cannot be expected that they will make a great advance during the coming school term. It will be different when the new building is ready.

GOLD IN SOLUTION.

There Are Billions of Tons In the Waters of the Oceans.

Do you know that the waters of our globe hold thousands of millions of tons of gold in solution, and that if it were possible to extract the precious metal from the aqueous constituent of our planet gold would be the commonest of the metals? More than 100 years ago the salt boilers on the coast of Maine found slight traces of the precious metal on the sides of their evaporators, and later on Scottish tradesmen in the same article reported gold settlings in the water taken from the mouth of the Dundee. In 1853 the chemists Malaguti and Durocher analyzed waters from several different localities in the several oceans and seas, the result being that they found a slight trace of gold and silver in every specimen tested. Finally, in 1855, they made a grand summary of all their findings, the figures presented with that report being without doubt the most wonderful exhibit that has ever been given to the scientific world.

It was there shown that the average depth of all oceans is 2,500 fathoms, and that the surface area is sufficient to make a grand total of 400,000,000 cubic miles of water, or not less than 1,837,030,272,000,000,000 tons. Each ton of that vast amount of surging liquid holds, at a very low estimate, one-thirteenth of a grain of gold, or a total of not less than 10,250,000,000 tons of the precious metal. If this vast amount of gold could be extracted and thrown upon the market the best financier in the world cannot imagine what the result would be.

FUNDS ARE SAFE

Presbyterians Will Not Lose by Philadelphia Failure

BANK MAY SOON REOPEN

Rumor That Guarantee Fund of $17,000,000 to Rehabilitate Real Estate Trust Company Has Been Agreed Upon

Philadelphia, Aug. 30.—Receiver Earle has taken charge of the affairs of the Real Estate Trust company, which failed because of the heavy loans made by Frank K. Hipple, late president, to Adolf Segal, a promoter, upon insufficient security. Until Earle completes his investigation the exact condition of the company's affairs cannot be told. The receiver, however, expresses the belief that the trust funds are intact.

John H. Converse, a director of the company and one of the foremost Presbyterian laymen in the country, upon whose petition the receiver was appointed, says he is satisfied that the securities of the various Presbyterian church boards are safe.

The Presbyterian hospital, of which Hipple was treasurer, elected the Fidelity Trust company as his successor, and through that concern learned that the institution's securities, amounting to $1,500,000, are intact. While it is believed that the securities of the board of trustees of the general assembly are equally safe, it will be necessary to elect a new secretary before the fact can be determined.

It was developed that Hipple had on deposit for various Presbyterian church organizations $150,000 in cash. Included in this was the sum of $10,000 deposited by the Woman's Foreign Missionary society, to be used in rebuilding the home for rescued white slaves in San Francisco, destroyed by the earthquake.

One of the many rumors is that the local banks had voted a plan to raise a guarantee fund of $7,000,000 with which to rehabilitate the trust company, but this cannot be verified. It is the hope of the directors, however, to reopen the doors of the bank and, with this end in view, they have held numerous meetings, conferring with Receiver Earle. One of the meetings was attended by Adolf Segal, and later it was learned that he had sold the town of South Altoona, Pa., which he built with money borrowed from the trust company. The purchaser, it is said, paid $500,000 for the various properties.

Frank W. Hipple, son of the late president, who is a clerk in the bank, was set upon by a crowd of angry depositors as he was leaving the building yesterday, and he would have been roughly handled had the police not interfered.

Adolf Segal, who is the central figure in the collapse of the Real Estate Trust company, states that some days ago he placed in the hands of the officials of that company several million dollars' worth of bonds in order to make his borrowings absolutely secure. "There were no conditions attached," he declared. "They were to be used to the best advantage of the company. I feel I have done everything in my power to relieve the Real Estate Trust company."

Mr. Segal declined to give a list of his securities, consisting of bonds and mortgages which the trust company holds. He said that W. H. Hipple, son of the late president, has occupied the position of secretary in one of his companies, but declared the position was purely honorary and that no salary was paid the young man.

There were no evidences of apprehension in the Stock Exchange. Bankers pointed out that there never was an instance in which an institution of the trust company's size had so few brokerage loans outstanding. This exercised a reassuring effect on the local stock market, which recovered from the demoralization of Tuesday. The recovery did not apply to Real Estate Trust company stock, which had been selling close to $300 a share, but for which there were no bids.

Would Take Rights From Jews

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—A new party, strongly anti-Jewish in sentiment, and which will be designated as the "Popular National party" has been formed. It recognizes the legislative power of the lower house of parliament, but favors the Russification of the various nationalities in the empire, opposing especially the equalization of rights of the Jews and advancing the novel proposition that Hebrews should be excluded from the army and, instead, subjected to a compensatory poll tax. The party has an organ in St. Petersburg, The Voice of the People.

Lived a Year With a Broken Spine

Albany, Aug. 30.—Miss Ella Donahue died yesterday, the 14th victim of the collapse more than a year ago of the store building of the John G. Myers company, her spine having been broken at the waist by a heavy steam pipe, from beneath which she was taken with great difficulty. The doctors said, at the time, that she could not live 24 hours, but she has lingered between life and death since Aug. 8, 1905, the day of the catastrophe. Miss Donahue was a cloak model of exceptional beauty.

Russia's Reign of Terror

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—Official statistics of the terrorism of last week show that 101 officials, gendarmes, police, etc., were killed, 92 were wounded, 291 private persons were killed or wounded, 34 spirit shops were plundered, private and individual institutions were robbed of over $180,000 and state institutions of $84,981. Besides this there were over 150 armed attempts to rob banks, houses, etc.

Mob Failed to Get Negro

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 30.—A mob of about 500 persons last night attempted to take and lynch William Thompson, a negro assailant of two little white girls and one little negro girl. The mob broke into the jail yard and the sheriff's deputies met them at the door armed with riffes. A committee of the mob was admitted to the jail and upon its being assured that the negro was not there, the mob disappeared.

Governor's Life In Danger

Shusha, Aug. 30.—A subterranean passage was discovered extending beneath the house occupied by General Goloschapoff, the governor of this province. It is thought that Tartars are concerned in an attempt to blow up the governor's residence in revenge for the use of troops against the Mohammedans in the recent race war.

Blocked by Bad Roads

Ogden, Utah, Aug. 30.—R. H. Little and C. D. Hagerty, who have been trying to break the trans-continental automobile record, abandoned the attempt at Kelton, owing to the bad condition of the roads. They will, however, proceed to San Francisco in their touring car.

NEWS IN BRIEF

John J. Rogers of Worcester was elected president of the Massachusetts branch of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at the biennial convention of the state organization, his rival for the presidency, J. D. Donnelly of Boston, receiving 203 votes, while Rogers had 278.

By special order of President Roosevelt the Washington navy yard will be closed on Labor day and all of the employes will be given leave with pay.

George P. Houlton, an old-time actor, died at his home at Fitchburg, Mass., aged 76. Holton supported William Warren, Mrs. Vincent and others who were prominent on the stage years ago.

Professor Merriman of the department of civil engineering of Lehigh university has notified the students that hereafter the Carnegie system of reform spelling will be used in his department.

Nervous? There are many causes of nervousness, but poor blood heads the list. The doctors call it anemia. The blood lacks red corpuscles. At your first opportunity, consult your doctor about taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Ask him if he has anything better for weakness, debility, nervousness. If he has, take it. If not, take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Get well, that's what you are after. We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our medicines! J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

GAINING HEADWAY

Insurgent Movement Is Spreading Throughout Cuba

SUSPICION OF RECRUITS

Believed to Be Inclined to Join the Anti-Government Forces--Former Postmaster General Deserts the Government

Havana, Aug. 30.—The surrender of some of the insurgent leaders in the provinces of Mantanzas and Santa Clara and the coming in of a scattering few insurgents in response to the government's proffer of amnesty is vastly more than offset by the insurgent sentiment looming stronger daily in the country districts of the provinces of Havana, Pinar del Rio and Santa Clara, and now is reported to be gaining headway in Santiago.

The latest reports regarding the fight at Rodas, near Cienfuegos, Aug. 26, shows that instead of 17 insurgents having been killed, only one was killed.

General Aleman, governor of Santa Clara province, has telegraphed President Palma that, unless reinforcements are sent, Santa Clara City is likely to fall into the hands of the insurgents.

The insurgents who occupied Cabanas took arms from a small detachment of rural guards and captured 50 horses which the government had requisitioned.

The testimony of persons arriving here from the country is unanimous to the effect that the people are restless and becoming more and more excited. The talk of the towns is about those who have gone out to join the insurgents and the chances of winning against the government. There are grave doubts of the loyalty of recruits, and especially of negro recruits, who are suspected in many quarters of a willingness to join the other side, with which many of their people are identified.

The undeniable evidences of the growth of insurrectionist sentiment is causing increasing doubt as to whether the government will after all be able to cope promptly and successfully with the movement. Interest centers in a projected meeting of Cuban veterans and other prominent men to consider the question of approaching Pino Guerra and other insurgent commanders, as well as leaders of the Liberal party and members of the government, with a view to ascertaining whether the difficulty cannot be settled through some compromise.

At the present stage of affairs, however, a compromise would appear to be out of the question. Many Cubans feel that patriotism demands that some effort be made to end the war and avoid the possibility of intervention by the United States. There is no question that foreigners would welcome intervention to restore peace and many Cubans would do likewise were it not for the sentiment of pride in making it appear that Cuba is able to maintain order within her own boundaries and an unwillingness to have the world regard her as the ward of the United States.

Government officials predict that matters will become quiet after a few heavy blows have been dealt the rebels. Meanwhile a rapid-fire artillery corps is being organized under American officers and ammunition and guns are being unpacked.

The insurrection in the province of Pinar del Rio has spread across the mountains to the north coast, and the town of Cabanas is now in the hands of the insurgents.

Considerable surprise is expressed at the fact that Orencio Nodarse has joined the anti-government forces. He was director of posts and telegraphs up to the present month, and was president of the local Moderate assembly. He was highly complimented by President Palma when he resigned the postmaster generalship on account of differences between the administration and himself over his candidacy for mayor of Havana, to which office he had once previously been elected by a majority of one, but was counted out. Palma persuaded Nodarse to remain postmaster general for a time, because, he said, the country needed his excellent services. Almost immediately afterwards the president requested him to resign because he had signed the protest of the Moderate municipal assembly against Palma's appointments of Havana municipal officers, leaving out most of the Moderate machine candidates.

Sugar Estate Raided by Rebels

Washington, Aug. 30.—Mr. Sleeper the American charge at Havana, reports that a band of the Cuban insurgents, led by Campos Marquetti, a negro member of the Cuban congress made a raid on the Mercedita sugar estate, near Cabanas, and took some horses and other property of the sugar company.

Reciprocal Tariff With Spain

Washington, Aug. 30.—The state department last night made public a proclamation by President Roosevelt declaring and putting into effect the new agreement as to reciprocal tariff concessions between this government and Spain. Under the agreement American goods are to pay duty according to Spain's second tariff schedule, the rate accorded favored nations, in return for American concessions in the way of tariff reductions on wines and other Spanish imports into the United States.

PROBABLY A SUICIDE

Opinion Regarding Missing City Treasurer of Chicopee

Chicopee, Mass., Aug. 30.—John D. White, the city clerk and treasurer who disappeared from his home last Saturday afternoon, and whom the efforts of the police have thus far failed to definitely locate, is now believed by the members of his family and the police to have met his death, probably by suicide.

At a meeting of the city government last night, J. C. Buckley was elected city clerk and treasurer pro tem in the absence of White, and the mayor was authorized to employ an expert accountant to go over the books of the city clerk and treasurer for the past 16 years in an effort to account for the apparent shortage in White's accounts of about $3500.

Cow's Warning Saved Lives

Peabody, Mass., Aug. 30.—M. W. Ellis and his wife and family of four children had a narrow escape last night from being victims of a fire which burned the farmhouse in which they lived. The fire started on the first floor of the house and the smoke had already filled the chambers on the second floor when the family escaped, although two of the little ones were overcome by smoke and unconscious. The bellowing of a cow which was fastened in a tie-up close to the house awakened Ellis and undoubtedly saved the lives of the entire family. The loss is $4000.

Hanged Himself In Cell

Newport, R. I., Aug. 30.—George F. Blake, a coachman, aged 38, who was arrested yesterday afternoon for assault, on his wife's complaint, committed suicide last night by hanging in his cell at the police station. He had been under police probation since last June for assaulting his wife. For the last three years he is said to have been drinking heavily, and his five children were supported by his wife, who took in washing.

Boat Smashed--Occupants Saved

Nantucket, Mass., Aug. 30.—Just after the steamer Nanucket had swung out from her dock here she struck catboat Mildred and cut her in two. Captain Horace B. Cash and a boy, the only occupants of the little craft, were drawn completely under the steamer. They came to the surface astern and were rescued. Cash, who is 75 years old, was struck a severe blow on the back and seriously hurt. The boy was uninjured.

Noted Geologists' Sudden Death

Cottage City, Mass., Aug. 30.—After falling into the water from a pier he was at work upon in front of his summer residence here, Professor William B. Dwight, professor of geology and mineralogy at Vassar college, died very suddenly. Death was caused by apoplexy, due probably to over-exertion. Professor Dwight was born in Constantinople in 1833, the son of Harrison G. O. Dwight, an American missionary.

Killed by Falling on Head

Great Barrington, Mass., Aug. 30.—Pushed out of the barber shop of Robert Willis, where it was said that he had been making himself obnoxious, Thomas Kelly, a hostler, aged 55, fell in front of the shop and struck his head against a stone step, receiving a fatal injury. It is supposed that his skull was fractured, but that will be determined by an autopsy. It is said that Kelly had been drinking.

Girls Granted Higher Wages

Rumford Falls, Me., Aug. 30.—The strike of 250 girls employed by the Continental Paper Bag company was permanently ended yesterday when the girls, who have been back at work in the factory since last Saturday, were notified that their demand for an increase in wages had been granted. The strike lasted only two days, as they agreed to return to work pending a settlement.

Embezzlement Charged

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 30.—Officers of the Progressive Loan association of this city caused the arrest of Harry Archer, a bookkeeper at the Kerr thread mill and financial secretary of the loan association. Archer is accused of embezzling funds of the loan association by collecting installments from members and failing to give credit on the books.

Jail For Would-Be Briber

Boston, Aug. 30.—Adjudged guilty of contempt of court, Walter M. Clark, William Washington and Israel Rue, charged with attempted bribery of Juror A. M. Green sitting in the Sinclair case, were sentenced by Judge Harris. Clark was given two years at hard labor in jail. Washington and Rue were fined $50 each.

Inquest on Framingham Disaster

South Framingham, Mass., Aug. 30.—An inquest on the death of 12 workmen who were killed by the collapse of the Amsden building on July 23 has been begun by Judge Kingsbury. The proceedings are private. Over 20 witnesses have been summoned and it is expected that the inquiry will occupy several days.

Lenient Toward Yankee Fisherman

St. Johns, Aug. 30.—The customs authorities seized the Gloucester schooner Meteor at Bay Bull for illegally purchasing stores within colonial non-treaty waters. The government, finding the vessel short of provisions, ordered her release, being unwilling to enforce the law under those conditions.

England Watching Persian Affairs

Teheran, Aug. 30.—Two British warships are cruising in the Persian gulf in view of the troubled situation in Persia and the possibility of refugees making a dash for the coast.

A GREAT WELCOME

Bryan Returns From His Journey Around the World

COMES NOT AS PROPHET

Gratified at Revolution In Opinion on Economic Questions In United States--A Movement Toward Democratic Success

New York, Aug. 30.—In exuberant spirits and bronzed by the suns of many climes during a year of travel around the world, William J. Bryan passed up New York bay yesterday afternoon on the steamer Prinzess Irene and received an ovation from large welcoming parties which went down to quarantine to meet and cheer the incoming vessel and its distinguished passenger.

Mr. Bryan did not enjoy his usual health during the voyage, but he said that he felt sure he would be able to carry out the plans which have been made for him during the next few days. He was very much fatigued when he boarded the steamer and during the entire voyage suffered from indigestion and severe headache.

Mr. Bryan's steamer's anchor had not been cast in quarantine before the Nebraskan was met by a delegation of newspaper men.

"I do not know what I can say worth reporting," he said, in answer to the queries. "Our travels have been discussed in my letters and as I make a speech on Thursday night I shall reserve until that time any comments I may have to make upon the political situation.

"From what I have read in the papers and heard from Americans in Europe there has been quite a revolution in opinion on economic questions in the United States and this is, of course, gratifying. On the presidential question I do not care to add anything to the interviews which I gave in London and the letter written by me to former Senator Jones.

"I have been away for some time and I can add that I have been away too long to come back a prophet. I never predict, for predictions do not tell the story. You have seen some of the predictions given out in the heat of a campaign and you even know how different some estimates are from what comes to pass. No, I will not prophecy.

"I always assume that the chances of Democratic success are improving. I believe that the people are coming to recognize that the Democratic ideas are the ideas of the people. It is not easy to fix definitely when these ideas will triumph, but I believe that there is always a forward movement toward that triumph. Whether the Republican administration has been such as to increase these chances I cannot discuss at present, but I do think that the present administration has done much to educate the people to make them see the value of Democratic ideas. To go beyond that would be to discuss politics and that, as I have said, I will not do.

"I am of course interested in the coming campaign in this state. I am interested in a sense in every campaign. But I have made it a practice to take no part in a campaign before the nomination is made. I don't do that in my own state. In the past 10 years I have taken no part in any state campaign before the nominations are made, but after the nominations are made I am willing to do all I can for the cause."

Mr. Bryan will not land in New York city proper until this afternoon, when he will be received at the Battery by delegations of prominent Democrats from all parts of the country and escorted to the hotel where he will make his headquarters while here. He left the Prinzess Irene shortly after the vessel had anchored in quarantine. First he went aboard two tugs which had been chartered by "Bryan's Nebraska Home Folks," where he was exultantly greeted and hailed as the next president. He then went aboard the yacht Illini, owned by his lifelong friend and schoolmate, Edward F. Goltra of St. Louis, and where well known Democrats were awaiting him. In the Illini Bryan was taken to the landing of the Ocean Yacht club at Stapleton, S. I., where he landed and was whirled away in an automobile to the home of Lewis Nixon, on the heights of Tompkinsville.

Here Mr. Bryan spent the night, the evening being devoted to a serious conference with intimate personal friends and men of prominence in his party. No especial political significance was attached to this conference by those who attended it, as they declared its purport was merely to learn Bryan's wishes regarding the plans which have been made for him during the next few weeks and to acquaint him with the drift of affairs at home.

Mr. Bryan could not be drawn into a discussion of political questions. "What I have to say of politics at this time and with my incomplete knowledge of affairs at home," he said, "will be said at the Madison Square Garden reception under the auspices of the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league. Probably then you will find that I shall discuss subjects I have spoken of before."

It was said that last night's conference might have some weight regarding the features of tonight's speech, which will be in the nature of a response by Bryan to the endorsements recently accorded him by various state conventions as the next Democratic presidential candidate.

WHIRLED HIGH IN AIR

Remarkable Aerial Journey of Woman at County Fair

Kingston, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Maggie Dailey, who has been making daily ascensions at the Ulster county fair grounds at Ellenville in a hot-air balloon, had just entered the car yesterday afternoon and was about to give the order to cast off when the balloon broke loose and sailed upwards with the anchor trailing. Before the bystanders could scatter, the anchor fluke caught in the dress of Mrs. Roper of Brooklyn and she was whipped up into the air over the heads of 5000 spectators.

The weight on the anchor rope caused the balloon to tip over and Miss Dailey, looking out of the car to ascertain the cause of the trouble, caught sight of her unwilling fellow-voyager swinging far below at the end of the rope, and at once pulled the safety cord. The balloon, which by that time had reached an altitude of 500 feet, quickly descended and reached ground a quarter of a mile from the point of ascension.

Mrs. Roper struck the ground heavily and when picked up was found to be unconscious. She sustained fractures of the shoulder and several fingers, but is not fatally hurt.

Dispensary Advocates Lose

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 30.—Returns from the Democratic primary give Ansel, the anti-state dispensary candidate for governor, 31,978 votes, with Manning, the dispensary candidate, in second place with 12,971. The race is now between these two and will be settled finally two weeks from now. The next legislature will decide the fate of the state dispensary. Senator Tillman has been heavily scratched, amounting to over 30 percent.

Will Benefit Korea--and Japan

Tokio, Aug. 30.—Under an agreement reached between Japan and Korea, it is understood that Chinsaewan and Yongheung will be converted into naval stations at an early date, at the expense of Japan. Chinsaewan is an important strategic point guarding the entrance of the Sea of Japan near the Tsu islands, while Yongheung, on the east coast of Korea, will be a valuable base against an attack on Korea from the north.

Infernal Machine on Steamer

Philadelphia, Aug. 30.—An infernal machine was discovered in the hold of the steamship Eagle Point, as the vessel lay in the Delaware river. The steamer was saved from destruction by a fraction of a second, as the bomb exploded as it touched the water after being thrown overboard. The Eagle Point plies between this city and London. The infernal machine was discovered in the after hold by a stevedore.

Green's Nomination Nullified

Austin, Aug. 30.—The state attorney general has rendered an opinion nullifying the nomination of L. H. R. Green, son of Mrs. Hetty Green of New York, as the gubernatorial nominee of the Republican party. Because of a split in the party separate conventions were held, one faction being known as the reorganized Republican party and the other as the regulars. Green was nominated by the reorganized faction.

Killed by Poisoned Candy

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 30.—As the result of eating poisoned candy mailed to a prisoner in the county jail by an unknown party, the recipient, A. S. Fitzgerald, aged 19, is dead, four others are dangerously ill and two who tasted the confectionary are also ill. Fitzgerald was held on a charge of burglary. An examination of the candy, after Fitzgerald's death, showed that it had been sprinkled with strychnine.

Held as Fugitive From Justice

New York, Aug. 30.—W. H. Gormley of the firm of Gormley & Meehan, stock brokers of Atlantic City, was arrested here and held in $1000 bail on the charge of being a fugitive from justice. A. J. Miller alleges that on Aug. 21 he gave Gormley & Meehan $100 with which to purchase National Lead shares. On Aug. 25, Miller alleges, the firm went out of business.

Actress Killed by Elevator

Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 30.—Miss Charlotte Dean, aged 30, leading woman of the Vallamont Park Stock company, was killed late last night in the elevator shaft at the Park hotel. She was caught between the elevator and the side of the shaft and was carried to the second floor, from where she dropped to the basement.

Steamer Struck a Rock

Selkirk, Manitoba, Aug. 30.—Steamer City of Selkirk, from the north end of Lake Winnipeg, reports that the steamer Princess, with 16 hands on board, ran into a rock near Swampy island and six of the crew were drowned. The vessel was engaged in the fish trade.

Peasants to Get Crown Lands

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—More than 4,500,000 acres, forming part of the crown lands, which consist of 20,000,000 acres, including 12,500,000 acres of forest lands, are to be sold to peasants through the medium of the Peasants' bank.

Equal Rights Denied Women

Melbourne, Aug. 30.—For the 14th time, the legislative council of Victoria has rejected the proposal to confer the right of suffrage on women.

HIS FORTUNE FOR HIS DOG.

A Chicago Man Protecting a Pet From the Courts.

Man's affection for his dog and woman's love for her child, themes of the masters and the melodramatists, have crossed wires in Indiana avenue, Chicago, says a correspondent of the Kansas City Times. The man has staked his fortune of $30,000 for preserving the dog's life. The woman has dedicated her remaining days to her vow that the pet shall die.

Colonel H. T. Morton owns the dog and considerable property, besides receiving a pension. Mrs. Lula Poole is the mother of the child. Early in July the dog bit the girl. Two physicians saved her life after a determined effort. The doctors declared the dog should be killed. Colonel Morton refused to hear their entreaties, and Mrs. Poole took the matter to court.

Three decisions have been given in the woman's favor, and thrice the police have sworn the dog must die. The dog yet lives, just where the police have given up.

Justice Hurley heard the pleadings of the child's mother in her third appeal the other day and granted her technically the life of the pet, besides imposing a fine of $50 upon Colonel Morton. Then the colonel took steps to carry the case to the supreme court. Some time in October the fourth trial will take place.

"I love my dog, and before I shall see it killed I will spend everything I have," said Colonel Morton to Mrs. Poole after the hearing. "If it takes my last red cent, gladly will I give it up to defend its life."

Colonel Morton has spent more than $200 so far in defense of his pet. His money has been paid out as follows:

Fine charged by Justice Caverly in first trial	$25
Cost of first trial	12
Cost of rehearing before Justice Caverly	12
Fine charged by Justice Hurley	50
Cost of third trial	12
Lawyer's fees	100
Total	$211

NOTICE TO BURGLARS.

"No Valuables Within," the Legend Posted on New York Mansions.

Residents of upper Riverside drive in New York are displaying unwonted solicitude for the welfare of the festive burglar, says the New York American. The knight of the jimmy is being saved untold trouble by wealthy householders who before going to the country tacked signs on their houses telling the prospective housebreaker that there wasn't any silver or jewelry on the premises.

In some cases storage warehouse companies have pinned notices on doors announcing that the valuables which used to be within are now in vaults, and they give the names of the firms and their addresses.

This scheme is to prevent burglars from uselessly wrecking doors and breaking windows.

Ink From Cornstalks.

After ten years of experimenting David Anderson of Joelton, Ind., is about to harvest his first crop of ink, says the Buffalo News. He has a fine field of corn, and the stalks, as a result of his labors, are of a rich purple color and contain each about a pint and a half of deep purple fluid which makes an excellent ink. The color is permanent, and as good ink is worth far more than ordinary corn sap, he expects a good profit from his venture.

Song of the Wild Chauffeur.

I want to go out in my automobile,
My automobubblety-bobblety-bubble,
And rattle and roar till I run against trouble;
I want to cut loose with the Gabriel tooter,
To skip and to scamper about with my scooter,
My howler, my yeller, my shrieker, my hooter,
My automobubblety-bobblety-bubble,
That roars at the rubbering ring of the rabble,
My triple expansion and forty horse double,
My automobubblety-bobblety-bubble,
With honkety-honkety-honkety-bing!
And tootlety-tootlety-tootlety-spring!
My automobipper—
My automozipper—
Ker-smash!
I want to whop out and go whirling and whizzing
And scooting and tooting and fizzing and sizzing
And flipping and flashing and fussing and flying
And gliding and sliding and shooting and shying;
I want to go tilting around every corner,
A-honking and honking my Gabriel warner;
I want to scare dogs till they seem to have rabies;
I want to bewilder nursemaids with their babies;
I want to whir past the old men with their crutches
And call back their youth with my hair raising touches;
I want to go puffing and panting, pell-melling
And coughing and crying and screaming and yelling
By street and by store and by doorway and dwelling;
To ride in my automobubblety-bebble,
Surrounded by dust and by smoke and by pebble—
My autemorammer—
My automoslammer—
Ker-smash!
I want to wind up with a tire on my collar,
To face a repair bill that takes my last dollar;
I want to go smash in the smashest of smashes—
The end of the worst of all death daring dashes;
To fly in the air and come down in the stubble,
Commingled with all of my automobubble,
Mixed up and mixed in and securely entangled
With all the machinery hopelessly mangled,
The Gabriel horn in a twist beyond tooting,
The wheels past all chances of skidding or scooting.
Oh, let me go out in my automobobble,
My automobubblety-wibblety-wobble,
My honkety-honkety-honkety-bang!
And sizzlety-fizzlety-whizzlety-whang!
My automobipper—
My automozipper—
Ker-smash!

The Latest Local Brevities

New hours at the Thomas Crane Public Library next week.

The cesspool nuisance at the foot of Beach street near the clubhouse has been abated on orders of the Board of Health.

A Canadian souvenir postal card was received today from Councilman W. H. Hull who is at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, and will continue his sojourn there.

Rev. Alfred R. Atwood will return to his pulpit on Sunday preaching morning and evening. "Vacation experiences" will be his evening subject.

Miss Adah Parker of Roxbury is spending two weeks very pleasantly with Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Smith of 92 Botolph street.

If you have not visited Squantum of late, take an electric car on Saturday and see the seashore lots offered for sale by the American Land Improvement Co.

Murray Bros., the granite manufacturers of Granite street, report that their granite sheds were entered last night and stones upset. The damage was not heavy.

It is reported on good authority that Mr. Emanuel of the candy store has leased a store in City Hall block, Brockton, and will shortly open there. His friends wish him great success in his new venture.

Capt. Charles N. Hunt observed his 84th birthday Wednesday. He entertained Chief Burrell of the Police department, Chief Litchfield of the Fire department, several Grand Army comrades and others.

The Squantum cars have no reason to complain of lack of patronage these warm days, for the crowds going to the Inn have made seating capacity on some of the cars around dinner time very much at a premium.

Mrs. Emma Lark of Granite street has returned from an enjoyable visit in New York city, New London, Waterford and elswhere. She was accompanied by Mrs. William Rogers of Stony Creek who will be her guest for a few weeks.

A limited number of tickets may still be secured for the annual reunion on Saturday of the W. M. French Hose Association at the Squantum Inn. A special car will leave City Square at 1.30, and dinner will be served at 5 P. M.

Boys in Court.

It was a busy morning in the juvenile court this morning when the cases of several boys were heard for malicious mischief and breaking street lamps, mostly at Norfolk Downs. Most of the cases were placed on file, but some of the boys were asked to pay damages and costs. Others were placed on probation.

Need Glasses? We test your eyes and grind the glasses the same day. No waiting. Williams, 1473 Hancock street, Quincy. Tel. 279-3.

Base ball notes should be forwarded to reach Ledger office before 4 p. m.

Both Content With Situation

The Nicol-Hultman Representative contest is the talk of the town among politicians. The announcement of Thursday which came as a bombshell and seemed to include the senatorial contest as well as the mayoralty.

Both Representative Hultman and ex-Representative Nicol are disposed at present to let the matter rest as it is.

Chairman Freeman of the Republican City Committee, who is personally interested because of his candidacy for the Senate, informs the Daily Ledger that neither Representative Sandberg or Representative Hultman were endorsed for renomination. Others say different.

A. O. H. Conventions.

A contest developed on Wednesday at the State convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H. at Fall River and Mrs. Catherine Burke of Somerville was elected president, receiving 198 votes to 108 votes for Miss Eliza Sheahan of Quincy, the vice president the past year.

The other officers are: vice-president, Miss Julia Hayes of Abington; secretary, Miss Mary Cavanagh of East Boston; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Shaughnessy of Clinton.

The A. O. H. elected John J. Rogers of Worcester president; he receiving 278 votes to 203 for J. J. Donnelley of Cambridge.

The other officers are: Terrence O'Donnell of Holyoke, vice-president; J. T. Mahoney of Lowell, secretary, and Daniel Reidy of Weymouth, treasurer.

The Dahlia Display.

Dahlia enthusiasts and all garden lovers will enjoy the fine display of dalhias which is in the window of the Hancock Market, Mr. T. K. Morton, proprietor. These flowers so beautiful and varied in color and form, ranging from those six inches across to almost tiny balls in the pompon varieties; and through all the tints of whites, yellows, pinks, reds and crimsons, are very easy to cultivate. This exhibition is from the East Bridgewater dahlia gardens, owned by Mr. J. K. Alexander.

The collection has been chosen with particular care as to the most attractive varieties, and will remain here till Saturday only. Miss F. R. Faxon will be in attendance to take orders for them. 2t

TODAY'S COURT.

Giocoma Giordani of Quincy for threatening to assault, continued until Sept. 1.

Joseph Sloan for larceny, placed on file.

John Krocker for keeping and exposing liquo for sale at Quincy Neck, paid a fine of $75.

Arthur Turner for larceny at Quincy was found guilty. Case continued until Sept. 1.

Thomas Wilson for breaking street lamps was placed on probation.

These are the Days.

These are the days when the word "Adiron dacks" sounds good to everyone. Up there the sun is just as bright, but the days are never hot and enervating—the nights are always cool and the pine-laden air has that invigorating something in it that brings sleep, appetite, rest and new life to the jaded urbanite.

These are the days! The season is at its height. All the hotels are open and there is room enough for everyone. The Adirondack country is too vast ever to become crowded. From east, west, north or south you can reach the North Woods via the New York Central Lines, "America's Greatest Railroad."

ANECDOTES OF DWYER

How the Famous Turf Plunger Got His Start.

The Dwyer Brothers Began With a Horse of Only Ordinary Caliber In 1875—Won Thousands With Refreshing Nonchalance—Separation of the Brothers—Figured In Greatest Betting Kentucky Derby.

The story of the late Mike Dwyer's rise and fall is without a parallel. From a meat stall in Washington market, New York, he branched out into a race track operator. With one horse, Rhadamanthus, he and his brother Phil won many races and then, giving up the butcher business, turned all their attention to horse racing. For nearly twenty years they owned the most formidable stable of thoroughbreds in America. They never bred a horse, contenting themselves with buying tried performers.

The story is told how one day Dwyer and "Father Bill" Daly met in the judge's stand at Gravesend just before a race in which one of Dwyer's favorite horses was a starter.

"Have you bet on your horse, Mike?" asked Daly.

"No, Father," said Dwyer calmly.

"Well, well," mused Daly, "I wanted to put $10 on him myself, but if you don't think him good I'll back my own horse. It is between them."

Mr. Daly hobbled away. M. F. Dwyer's commissioners made the rounds and bet thousands of dollars for their chief on his horse.

When the race was run the favorite, Dwyer's horse, won, and Daly's horse, an outsider, was second.

"Too bad you didn't bet on him," said Daly to Dwyer, with a sigh.

"Why, did you bet on your horse, Father?"

"Yes," said Daly, "and I'm glad it was only for a place."

Daly won $25 on his horse and Dwyer $10,000 on his. Daly was happier than Dwyer, who never seemed to rejoice after the manner of men who win or bemoan after the manner of those who lose.

Mike Dwyer was by long odds the greatest plunger ever seen on any American race track, while his brother Phil was careful and conservative in his turf speculations.

It was a common thing for Mike to wager $10,000 on the result of a race, and there were several occasions when he wagered $50,000 to win $5,000, the odds on his horse being 1 to 10. Phil was strongly opposed to this method of betting and the result was that the partnership which had lasted for fourteen years was by mutual consent dissolved. After the separation Phil built the Brooklyn Jockey's club's track at Gravesend, which he still owns, and which has made him a millionaire several times over. Mike went to New Jersey and built a race track at Elizabeth, but its gates were closed by the enforcement of a law passed by the New Jersey legislature against racing and bookmaking.

This was a severe blow to Mike Dwyer, and his good luck of previous years seemed to have deserted him. Nevertheless, in 1898, he won almost $100,000 with Banquet, Raceland and others, but at this time he made a disastrous trip to England and returned broken in health and spirit.

Mike Dwyer figured in the greatest betting Kentucky Derby in the long history of that classic event. It occurred in 1886, and Colonel Barnes had the famous Blue Wing in the big race. That was the spring Colonel M. Lewis Clark, then president of the Louisville Jockey club, had his famous fight with the Western Bookmakers' association. The outcome of that disagreement was no bookmaking on Derby day that year.

The auction pooling was the heaviest that afternoon in the history of the Louisville track. Mike Dwyer stood on one side of the seller bidding in every pool on Blue Wing, while the New York turfman L. O. Appleby was on the other side, buying for J. B. Haggin the latter's great colt, Ben Ali, in every ticket. The pools averaged $1,000 and upward, and hundreds of tickets were sold. Blue Wing swerved all over the track near the finish, and after a battle royal Ben Ali won. Horsemen who witnessed the great race contend to this day that had Garrison held Billet's son's head and rode with his hands and heels instead of the whip the Barnes and Dwyer coup would surely have gone through and Dwyer would have won a fortune instead of losing one. Blue Wing afterward finished in front of Ben Ali in the American Derby won by Silver Cloud, which would seem to indicate he was really a better horse than the son of Virgil.

It was also a Kentucky Derby which caused the only turf fraud Mike Dwyer was ever charged with. In an interview at one time Captain S. S. Brown, owner of the Kentucky association race course, was credited with saying that Dwyer Bros. had Runnymeade pulled in the Derby won by Green B. Morris' Apollo in order to aid the winter books, which had made Runnymeade a big favorite for that event, while Apollo was a rank outsider. Mike Dwyer took the charge before the officials of the Louisville Jockey club and demanded an investigation. Captain Brown denied that he had said such a thing, and the article was traced to an unreliable reporter noted for his fake sensational stories, and the matter was thus easily disposed of.

KILLING DUMB ANIMALS.

Cases Where the Use of Chloroform Is Positively Cruel.

"Why will so many people cling to the idea that chloroforming is the most merciful means of death possible for dumb animals?" asked a veterinarian recently. 'Only the other day I was called upon to perform the trying and almost impossible task of killing an old horse in this way.

"The horse, it seems, had been the pet of a wealthy woman who left provision for him in her will and decreed that if ever the family to whose care she intrusted him should deem it necessary to end his life this should be done with chloroform, so that he might be assured a painless death. Then the horse became blind and otherwise disabled, and the family decided that death would be a mercy.

"Of course the provision of the will had to be carried out, but no greater case of mistaken kindness could have been possible. It is impossible to administer sufficient chloroform at one time to kill an animal the size of a horse, so dose after dose had to be given, the poor brute slowly and painfully smothering to death.

"Chloroform is all right for cats or dogs, but for larger animals it is a positive cruelty, whereas a pistol, well aimed at the head of any beast, will send it out of life so quickly that it has not time to feel the shot or realize what has happened."—New York Press.

THROWING THE DISCUS.

Methods of the Grecian Athletes In Homeric Times.

Discus throwing was a refined form of hurling the stone. In Homeric times, and even at Olympia, a stone or mass of iron was first used for the purpose. This was held by a leathern thong, swung in a circle and hurled as far as possible. A circular or lenticular disk of bronze was used at least as early as the beginning of the fifth century.

A standard weight must, of course, be assumed for the great games. A discus now in the British museum, which seems to have been used, weighs 11 pounds 9 ounces, but whether this was the standard weight or not is not definitely known.

The thrower took his stand upon a slight elevation of limited circumference, where he could have a secure foothold and was prevented from running. Then, with a swing of the arm and a corresponding movement of the whole body, he hurled the discus as far as possible.

The value of the body movement was recognized by the sculptor Myorn in his famous statue, "The Discobolus," and is understood by the modern athlete when he swings the hammer or even when he makes a drive at golf.

A Lesson In Economy.

The son was about to enter upon the sea of matrimony. The father called him to his side and for the last time gave him a lesson in economy.

"Economy," said the father, "is the source of all wealth, and extravagance is the ruination of genius.

"Now," continued the parent, "a woman can take a piece of straw, trim it, and it will be a ten dollar hat. On the woman's part that is"—

"Genius," the son answered.

"A wealthy man can expend $10,000 a year and live no better than the man that spends only $400. On the wealthy man's part that's"—

"Extravagance."

"Now to the point. A married man can live on one half the money that a single man requires. On the married man's part that's"—

"Compulsory."

Gemelli Rings.

A quaint custom of the long ago was that of breaking a ring for betrothal. Such rings were fashioned for the purpose, being made of two twin circles, and were called gimmal rings, from the word gemelli, meaning twins.

A ring of pure gold she from her finger took,
And just in the middle the same there she broke.
Quoth she, "As a token of love you this take,
And this as a pledge I will keep for your sake."

The gimmal was also a favorite wedding ring for many years.

Really a Vegetarian.

"I hope the Bible I gave you last week," said the missionary, "will teach you something"—

"It has taught me something already," replied the cannibal chief. "I find that I'm really a vegetarian."

"Er—how's that?"

"Why, you know, it says 'all flesh is grass.'"—Philadelphia Press.

A Costly Collection.

"What a lovely collection of odd cups!" exclaimed a guest, peering into the china cabinet. "Did it take you long to get so many?"

"Oh, no!" said the hostess. "Those are samples of the sets we have had in the last two years!"—Detroit Free Press.

Books.

I would prefer to have one comfortable room well stocked with books to all you can give me in the way of decoration which the highest art can supply. There is no greater blessing that can be given to a family than a love of books.—John Bright.

Quite Unnatural.

He—I thought the author of this play was famous for his keen understanding of the female character? She—Well, do you doubt it? He—Of course. He has just made his heroine say that she "will suffer in silence."—Illustrated Bits.

Q. Y. C. CUP

Is Awarded On Protest to Windrim Kid Or Chewink VII

The Quincy Yacht Club challenge cup will move from Manchester to Marblehead, the protest of the Chewink VII (or Windrim Kid) having been allowed by the judges of last Tuesdays race. The decision gave the Chewink three races instead of the Bonidrei. The Quincy Yacht club was not represented on the board of judges, although entitled to be, because J. F. Sheppard 2d, was away. The judges were all officers of the Manchester Yacht club, namely, George W. Mansfield, chairman of the regatta committee; Commodore S. P. Bremer and Secretary A. W. Merriman.

The protest came under an interpretation of sections 11 and 12 of the Quincy Yacht club's deed of trust, which govern the contests for the cup. These rules are:

11. When two yachts, both close-hauled on the same tack, are converging by reason of the leeward yacht holding a better wind, and neither can claim the right of a yacht overtaken, the windward yacht shall keep clear.

12. If an overlap exists between two yachts when both of them, without tacking, are about to pass a mark on a required side, then the outside yacht must give the inside yacht room to pass clear of the mark.

The alleged foul came at the windward mark. Both boats were standing for the mark on the starboard tack, after the Windrim Kid had come up on the port tack and had tacked under the Bonidrei's lee. At the mark the Windrim Kid called for room and luffed. The Bonidrei also luffed and the two pinched around the mark together. In doing so the Windrim Kid touched the mark boat, and also touched the Bonidrei. Both boats were under very slow way in a thin air, and the tide was setting them on the mark.

After an exhaustive hearing in which all interested parties were heard and also the newspaper men, the judges allowed the protest, and awarded the race and Quincy cup to the Chewink representing the Corinthian club.

The positions of the yachts in each race are shown at a glance in the summary below:

	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th
Chewink VII	2	1	3	4	1	1
Bonidrei	4	4	1	1	3	*
Manchester	1	3	2	3	2	2
Auk	3	2	4	2	†	†

—* Finished first but protested.
† Dropped out of contest.

The cup does not go to the owner of the yacht, but passes into possession of the Corinthian Yacht Club of Marblehead, and is subject to perpetual challenge.

The Chewink VII or Windrim Kid is owned by F. G. Macomber of the Corinthian Yacht club. She was designed by Small and built at Quincy at the Baker Yacht Basin; length over all 36.88 feet; length water line 19.44 feet; beam 5.90 feet; draft 5.04 feet; weight 4,066 pounds.

NEW CARS

Semi-Convertible And Fast Cars For Quincy and Boston Route

Expense has not been spared in the construction of the new and fast semi-convertable cars built for and now being delivered to the Boston and Northern and Old Colony St. Ry. companies, some to be used between Boston and Quincy as already reported. Although to the layman, the large plush seated cars, now on use in many of the companies' lines, seem the essence of perfection, the management of the companies has realized for some time that the ideal car had not yet been constructed. With characteristic energy it was determined to solve the problem, the magnitude of which can only be appreciated by practical street railway men.

These new cars, built by the J. G. Brill Company of Philadelphia, are of what is known as the semi-convertible type, a cognomen that is almost self explanatory. To be exact, during the summer season the cars can be made into the coolest of open cars, with free play for the cool breezes. On short notice they can be converted into the warmest of closed cars, for the winter months, with the most modern of heaters. They are as comfortable as they are fast and handsome, appealing to the eye on all lines.

It truly may be said to represent the acme of street car construction. The exterior is painted a Merrimac green with gold and yellow stripes. The cars measure over all 45 feet 10 inches, the car body proper being 33 feet 11 inches in length and 8 feet 6 inches wide. From the truck to the trolley stand they are 12 feet high. A good idea of the size and construction of the cars may be drawn from the statement that they weigh about 32 tons. They are equipped to seat 52 passengers and owing to their great width of aisle can carry more, when compelled by heavy travel.

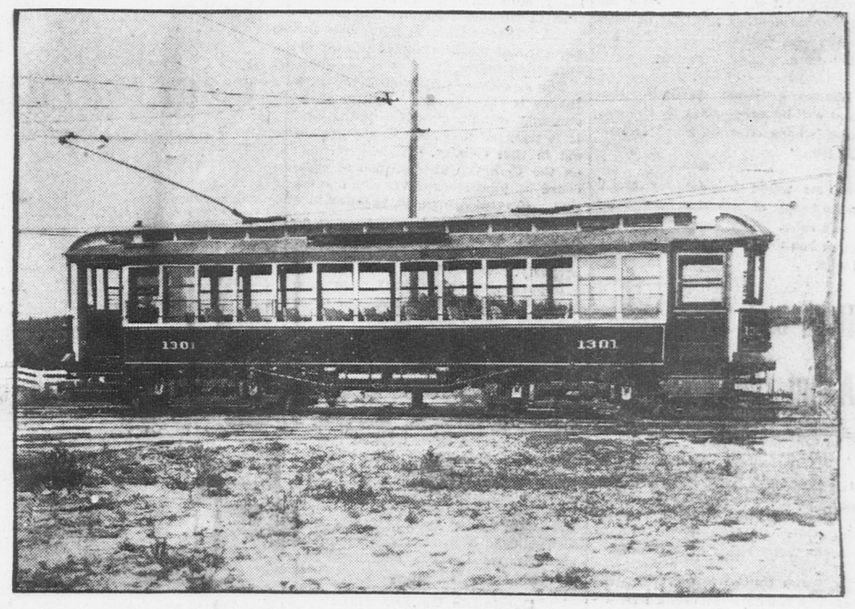

The interior is handsomely finished in cherry with eighteen cross seats finished in rattan, that will each hold two passengers, and two long seats on each end that will seat 4 passengers. These seats while cool in summer are, paradoxical as it may seem, warm in winter owing to the fact that being of light construction they permit of the free passage of the warm currents of air from the heaters.

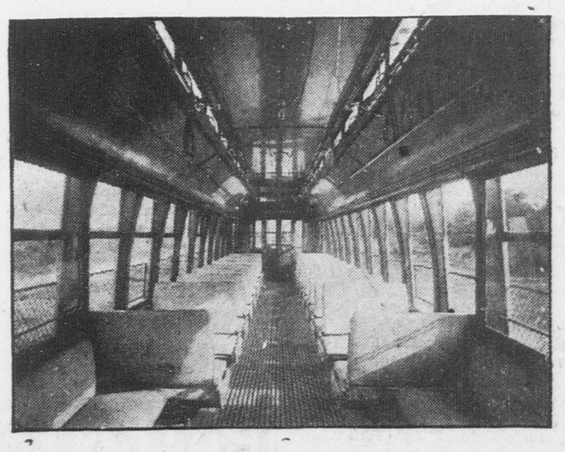

Another feature of the cars is the two movable steps, which like the sliding doors to the vestibule are operated by the motorman by means of compressed air. This obliterates altogether the danger of accident from boarding the car while it is in motion, as the doors are only opened and closed and the steps only in position when the car is at a full stop.

The vestibule itself is particularly roomy, the motorman occupying a little cab in one corner, separated from the vestibule, proper. There is no door between the car itself and the vestibule, the only thing between being an artistic archway, and the floors of both car and vestibule are on the same level, there being no threshold, over which to trip.

Another feature that will be appreciated to the utmost by the passengers is the installing of electric push buttons between seats, enabling the passenger to stop the car without the customary whistle or waving of hand.

In short it may be said that the cars are the finished product of the modern brains of the twentieth century. They are complete in every detail, and are a perfect product of the lessons of twenty odd years of electric car construction.

W. Y. C. Cruise.

Commodore Chase of the Wollaston Yacht club desires that there shall be concerted action by the yachts this year on the annual cruise and has issued orders that the boats rendezvous off Hull on Saturday afternoon, the captains to meet on the flagship Harolde at 7 P. M. to make further plans. Whether the yachts remain at Hull or start for Bass Point or Marblehead rests with the majority. Among the yachts which have signified intentions to participate are: Harold, Eleanor, Claytonia, Stranger, Marguerite, Sheria, Goblin and West Wind.

A VERY FORMAL HONOR.

Palmerston Had Not Been Introduced to Hugo or Dumas.

Alexandre Dumas, the elder, tells this story in his diary: "One day Victor Hugo and I were dining with the Duc Decazes, and among the guests were Lord and Lady Palmerston. Lord and Lady Palmerston had come late. There had been no time for an introduction before dinner, and after dinner, while we were taking tea, the formality had been forgotten. Young Duc Decazes came up to me. 'My dear M. Dumas,' he said, 'Lord Palmerston has begged me to ask you to leave an empty chair between yourself and Victor Hugo.' I did so.

"Lord Palmerston got up, took his wife by the hand and brought her over to us. 'Look at the clock, my lady,' he said. 'What o'clock is it?' asked Lord Palmerston. 'Thirty-five minutes past 10,' replied my lady. 'Then remember,' said her husband, 'that this evening at thirty-five minutes past 10 you were seated between Victor Hugo and Alexandre Dumas and that such an honor is not likely to happen to you twice in a lifetime.'

"He then took his wife by the hand and took her back to her place at the other side of the room without another word. You see, he had not been introduced either to Victor Hugo or me."

CLOSE TO HAVANA

Insurgents Are Routed After a Three Hours' Fight

FORTY REPORTED KILLED

Many Slashed by Machetes In Bloodiest Fight Since Insurrection Began--Situation Near Cienfuegos Is Threatening

Havana, Aug. 31.—General Avalos and Pino Guerra are close to each other in the vicinity of Guanes, whither Avalos, with 1000 cavalry, mounted infantry, rural guards and recruits, marched yesterday from the little village of Sabalo, which the rebels looted while they occupied it. The opposing forces are so close that a battle is expected shortly.

The only fight of consequence reported yesterday was a three hours' conflict between 150 rural guards and volunteers and an insurgent band estimated to number 300 near Campo Florido, 20 miles east of Havana. An American, who witnessed the fighting, says the firing was continuous, but scattering, and that there was no volleying. After two hours of this fighting the combatants came closer together and finally the rural guards and volunteers made a fine charge up a hill, routing the insurgents.

One of the prisoners captured says that probably 40 insurrectionists were killed and that many more were terribly slashed with machetes in the charge of the rural guards. The clothing of many, both pursued and pursuers, was torn in rushing through the underbrush. It is evident that this was the fiercest and bloodiest fight since the insurrection began.

The situation in the vicinity of Cienfuegos is threatening. Parties of insurgents wander at will near the city. It is reported that 3000 insurgents are out in that vicinity. Passenger trains on the Central Cuba railroad are preceded by pilot locomotives as a precaution. Several towns in the province of Santa Clara have been entered by insurgent bands, who have robbed the inhabitants of money and portable property.

Reports received from Manicaragua, in the tobacco district of Santa Clara province, show that there is great alarm among the people there, who are fleeing from the cities on account of the growth of the insurgent forces. Insurrectionists are scouring the country and seizing all the horses and cattle that can be found. On Monday there were 500 insurgents camped outside of Manicaragua and by Tuesday the unmber had increased to 1000. At first the insurgents did not interfere with American property, but later all animals were taken from the plantations of Kaffenburgh & Sons of Boston and the Manicaragua Tobacco company of Boston.

Dominican General Killed

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Aug. 31.—Advices received here from the republic of Santo Domingo say that after the insurgents had occupied Dajabon the government forces made an attack upon it and compelled the enemy to abandon the town, leaving General Marcado and five men killed on the field. The government force lost eight men killed. The revolutionists marched on Jicaquita and further fighting followed, resulting in the revolutionists being defeated with severe loss.

Sailors Have Chagres Fever

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—The British steamer Elswick Lodge arrived at the Delaware breakwater with most of the crew ill with chagres fever, which closely resembles yellow fever. The vessel left Tampico on Aug. 7 and stopped at Norfolk last Monday. The fever made its appearance soon after the ship left Norfolk. The vessel is in quarantine.

Dedication of Dover Hospital

Dover, N. H., Aug. 31.—The Wentworth hospital, the gift of Arioch Wentworth, the late Boston millionaire and a native of this city, was dedicated yesterday. The hospital is a two-story brick structure, built and equipped at a cost of about $100,000. It will accommodate about 100 patients.

Queer Weather In Colorado

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 31.—Snow and hail fell at intervals yesterday, accompanied by vivid flashes of lightning. At noon the darkness was so dense that lights were necessary in offices and houses.

STOLE OVER $5,000,000

Receiver Finds That President Hipple Was an Embezzler

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—Examination of the list of securities held by the defunct Real Estate Trust company has disclosed the fact that Frank K. Hipple, president of the institution, who committed suicide, was an embezzler. The authority for this statement is Mr. Earle, receiver for the company. Earle declined to say what securities are missing, but he declared that Hipple had hypothecated $65,000 worth of paper, securing $50,000 for the securities, which he never returned. Earle further declared that Hipple embezzled the $5,000,000 he loaned to Adolf Segal, the promoter. These loans, Earle asserted, were personal transactions.

Receiver Earle reiterated his opposition to a permanent receivership for the trust company. This proceeding, he declared, would deprive the concern of its trust funds, which are among its most valuable assets.

Hammered on Head by Policemen

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 31.—It was reported to Coroner Doten by Medical Examiner Downs that George Semko, a prisoner at the jail, who was supposed to have died from alcoholism, had in reality met death from meningitis, caused by a severe beating upon the head, administered by two policemen while arresting him. Semko had run amuck, shooting with a revolver at everyone in sight, and he was only subdued after a lively tussle with the policemen.

Returns to Face Justice

Philadelphia, Aug. 31.—William H. Latimer, manager of the Provident Investment bureau, which was forced out of business 18 months ago and who has since been a fugitive from justice, has surrendered. He was held in $2000 bail for trial in the federal court. With F. C. Marrin and Stanley Francis Latimer was indicted in 1905, charged with conspiracy and using the mails to defraud. Latimer said he fled to London.

Whitney May Be In the Fight

New York, Aug. 31.—It is reported here among the Massachusetts members of the Bryan party that Henry M. Whitney may yet be the candidate against John B. Moran for the Democratic nomination for governor. Whitney has been in consultation with leading Democrats, and it is said that he is being strongly prevailed upon to reconsider his withdrawal. It is believed that Whitney will stand again.

Mayor Removed From Office

New Albany, Ind., Aug. 31.—William V. Grose, mayor of this city, was impeached and removed from office by the city council last evening. Two members of the board of public works were also removed from office. The acceptance of a new sewage system just completed at a cost of $229,000 by the mayor and board of public works is said to have been the cause of the impeachment and removal.

Notable Steamship Arrival

Boston, Aug. 31.—With 2377 passengers, the largest number ever to arrive in Boston on one ship, the Cunard liner Ivernia arrived yesterday. The pathos of a burial at sea of a little girl, the romance of a wedding on the dock, the excitement attending the detention of 375 Russian refugees, and the gayety of throngs present to welcome notables made the arrival a notable one.

Eyes Injured by Pepper

Boston, Aug. 31.—With his eyes full of pepper, Robert B. Lee, 34, a negro, living at 15 Piedmont street, was taken to the relief station. It is claimed he received the pepper in an altercation with his landlady, Clara Winters, also colored. At the hospital Lee claimed that he was in the wrong and would make no complaint. Lee's eyes were badly injured.

Killed In Automobile Accident

Kingston, Mass., Aug. 31.—Byron C. Quimby of this town, aged 63, was killed as the result of his automobile being overturned while he was trying to avert a collision with a passing wagon. His skull was fractured and death was almost instantaneous.

Charged With Manslaughter

Great Barrington, Mass., Aug. 31.—Robert Weeks, from whose barber shop Thomas Kelly was ejected just before he met his death by a fall on the sidewalk, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter, and gave bail of $500 for a hearing on Sept. 6.

Train Ditched, but No One Hurt

Phillips, Me., Aug. 31.—A train of four cars, with 15 passengers aboard, jumped the rails at a curve on the Sandy River railroad. All the cars were overturned into a ditch beside the track, but none of the passengers or trainmen was injured.

Finding an Heir

[Original.]

Sidney Pleasandon was despondent. Was he in love? No. Was he impoverished? No; he was rich. Was he in poor health? He was exceptionally healthy. Then what was the matter with him? He had been thwarted in one desire. He wished to find some kin to whom he might leave his fortune, and, contrary to the usual happening in such cases, no one with a drop of Pleasandon blood in his or her veins was to be found.

Pleasandon had run away from his home in England when a lad and, coming to America, had been so absorbed in business that he had not had time to trouble himself about his British relatives. His father was a country gentleman and well to do. Sidney thought that when he could go back with a fortune to make him welcome he would do so; otherwise he would remain away. Forty years after his departure he went back with the fortune, but not a member or descendant from the Pleasandon family could be found. All were dead save the daughter of one of Sidney Pleasandon's sisters. Her mother had married without the consent of the head of the family and had disappeared. The homestead had passed to others.

What we prize in youth we are apt to consider worthless in old age, and vice versa. Pleasandon returned to America with an exalted appreciation for what was denied him—the family he had so long neglected. If he had discovered one member of the family, no matter how remote, he would have found some satisfaction in making him or her happy with a fortune after his own death.

Pleasandon, on his way to his office one day, passed a small house with a little ground in its front protected by a wooden fence. One morning a little girl about four years old, perched on the gate, smiled at him. There was something in the smile that went to the lonely man's heart. The next morning when he passed again the child was waiting for him and held out a dandelion flower. If a highborn dame had given him an armful of roses it would not have moved him, but the dandelion offered by the child struck a chord in his heart that had never before vibrated.

There were many love tokens passing after that between the child and the old man, and once when he went by he saw a woman looking at him curiously, if not suspiciously. He turned, went to the house, and the woman came to the door.

"Will you kindly give me your little girl's name?" he said.

"What do you want with it?"

"She has bestowed upon me the only disinterested gift I have ever received. I wish to repay it. I desire to remember her in my will."

The woman looked at him quizzically. "No," she said, "you can't be her father. You're too old; but I expect you're in league with him."

"Will you please explain?"

"Well, there's no use beatin' round the bush. I've got the child and I mean to hold on to her. When her mother died, two years ago, she left her with me, and I promised her that I'd bury her in the back woods before her father should lay hands on her. He went to the bad, you know."

"No, I don't know anything about him. I have simply seen her while passing to and from my office. If you will give me her full name, when I die she shall be remembered in my will."

"Do you really mean it?"

"I do."

"She's a good little girl, sir, and I should like to have her benefited. She's like her mother, sir; not like her father a bit. Her mother's mother made a bad marriage too. She came of a fine family, sir. She had only one child, this little girl's mother. Both were good women and looked and acted like ladies. Their husbands were well connected, too, but both were worthless. The child's mother told me that her mother had married against her parents' will and they disowned her. Her husband brought her to America, promising to make a fortune and go back and show 'em that they had been mistaken in him, but he never did it. Their daughter married a man that was worthless too."

"Thank you for telling me this." He took out a pencil and a notebook. "Will you give me the child's name?"

"Rosalind Gaskell."

"Any middle name?"

"Yes, I believe there is a middle name, but I'll have to go and look at the writing her mother gave me to see what it is."

She went away and brought an envelope from which she drew a sheet of paper and ran her eyes over the writing that covered it, reading aloud scraps of sentences.

"Mother Crane from England. Thirty years ago. Married Thomas Ledfield. I am their only child. My husband is George Gaskell. Rosalind was born May 5, 1898. She is named Rosalind for her father's mother, a dear, good woman, and Pleasandon"—

"Pleasandon!"

"Yes sir."

"Go on."

"From my mother's family the Pleasandons of Chester county, England."

The old man took up the child, who was standing by, and folded her in his arms.

It was not long before Rosalind went to live with her great-uncle, a maid was hired to take care of her, and when she was older a governess began her education. The Pleasandon homestead has been purchased and will belong to her.

WELCOME TO CITIZEN BRYAN

Cheered by Over Thirty Thousand People at New York

HIS IDEAS OF DEMOCRATIC POLICIES

United States Senators Should Be Elected by the People--Convinced of Justice of Income Tax--Advocates Arbitration In Settling Labor Disputes--Declares That Trusts Are the Issue of the Day and Discusses Government Ownership of Railroads--Financial Question and Our Foreign Relations Discussed by the Nebraskan

New York, Aug. 31.—The home-coming of William J. Bryan was made complete last night when he was greeted in Madison Square Garden by a throng numbering more than 20,000. It was such a welcome as seldom has been accorded a private citizen. Mr. Bryan's eyes filled with tears as he acknowledged the cheers. For eight minutes he strode nervously from side to side of the narrow platform.

Only once again during the entire evening was there anything approaching a demonstration. That was when the speaker told his hearers that he had become converted to the cause of government ownership of railroads.

"I favor the control of only the trunk lines by the national government," said Bryan, "and the ownership of all other railroads by the state governments."

In an instant thousands of voices were raised and faces were turned toward the side of the building opposite the speaker's stand where William R. Hearst sat.

"Three cheers for Hearst" was the cry which swelled until the speaker's voice was drowned for a moment.

The only discordant note sounded during the evening was when Mr. Bryan turned to a discussion of socialism and declared that the man who says the trust is an economic growth and has come to stay is the one who is helping the Socialist. Someone yelled, "Three cheers for socialism," but the call was drowned in hisses.

Mr. Bryan quickly said: "My friends, I have no objection to anybody expressing himself in favor of socialism, because the Socialist as a rule is an honest man; he is seeking what he believes to be a benefit to him with argument and not with a business. I deny that the trust is an institution made necessary for enonomic purposes; I deny that it is an economic institution at all. It is not economical, it is political. It rests not on natural laws, but on man-made laws."

Last night's reception, which was given under the auspices of the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league, proved to be the sounding of the Democratic campaign call. Bryan's 80-minute speech was a clear-cut outline of his ideas as to what the Democratic policy should be. He said in part:

Brings Message of Peace

Like all travelers who have visited other lands, I return with delight to the land of my birth, more proud of its people, with more confidence in its government and grateful to the kind providence that cast my lot in the United States. My national pride has been increased because of the abundant evidence I have seen of the altruistic interest taken by Americans in the people of other countries. No other nation can show such a record of benevolence and disinterested friendship.

My love for our form of government has been quickened as I have visited castles and towers and peered into dark dungeons, and I am glad that our nation, profiting by the experience of the past and yet unhampered by traditions and unfettered by caste, has been permitted to form a new center of civilization on new soil and erect here "a government of the people, by the people and for the people."

The first message that I bring from the Old World is a message of peace. The cause of arbitration is making real progress in spite of the fact that the nations most prominent in the establishment of The Hague tribunal have themselves been engaged in wars since that court was organized. There is a perceptible growth in sentiment in favor of the settlement of international disputes by peaceful means.

Lose Prestige by Colonialism

I venture to suggest that we may not only promote peace, but also advance our commercial interests by announcing as a national policy that our navy will not be used for the collection of private debts. While protecting the lives of our citizens everywhere and guaranteeing the personal safety of all who owe allegiance to our flag, we should, in my judgment, announce that persons engaging in business and holding property in other lands for business purposes must be subject to the laws of the countries in which they engage in business enterprises. Many profitable fields of investment are now closed because the people of the smaller nations are afraid that an investment of foreign capital will be made an excuse for a foreign invasion.

Before leaving international politics let me add that our nation has lost prestige, rather than gained it, by our experiment in colonialism. We have given the monarchist a chance to ridicule our Declaration of Independence and the scoffer has twitted us with inconsistency. A tour through the Philippine islands has deepened the conviction that we should lose no time in announcing our purpose to deal with the Filipinos as we dealt with the Cubans. Every consideration, commercial and political, leads to this conclusion. Such ground as we may need for coaling stations or for a naval base will be gladly conceded by the Filipinos, who simply desire an opportunity to work out their own destiny, inspired by our example and aided by our advice.

In so far as our efforts have been directed toward the education of the Filipinos we have rendered them a distinct service, but in educating them we must recognize that we are making colonialism impossible. If we intended to hold them as subjects we would not dare to educate them. Self-government with ultimate independence must be assumed if we contemplate universal education in the Philippines.

Elect Senators by Popular Vote

I return more convinced than before of the importance of a change in the method of electing United States senators. There is noticeable everywhere a distinct movement toward Democracy in its broadest sense. In the United States this trend toward Democracy has taken the form of a growing demand for the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people. It must be difficult to over-estimate the strategic advantage of this reform, for since every bill must receive the sanction of the senate as well as the house of representatives before it can become a law, no important legislation of a national character is possible until the senate is brought into harmony with the people.

I am within the limits of the truth when I say that the senate has been for some years the bulwark of predatory wealth and that it even now contains so many members who owe their election to favor-seeking corporations and are so subservient to their masters as to prevent needed legislation. The popular branch of congress has four times declared in favor of this reform by a two thirds vote and more than two thirds of the states have demanded it and yet the senate arrogantly and impudently blocks the way.

Income Tax Is Just

The income tax, which some in our country have denounced as a socialistic attack upon wealth, has, I am pleased to report, the endorsement of the most conservative countries in the Old World. It is a permanent part of the fiscal system of most of the countries of Europe. I am so convinced of the justice of the income tax that I feel sure that the people will sooner or later demand an amendment to the constitution which will specifically authorize an income tax and thus make it possible for the burdens of the federal government to be apporticned among the people in proportion to their ability to bear them.

Arbitration In Labor Disputes

The plan of investigation of international controversies under a system which does not bind the parties to accept the findings of the court of inquiry can be used in disputes between labor and capital. In advocating arbitration of differences between large corporate employers and their employes I believe we are defending the highest interest of the three parties to these disputes, viz, the employers, the employes and the public. The employe cannot be turned over to the employer to be dealt with as the employer may please. The effort of the employer to settle differences without arbitration has done much to embitter him against those who work for him and to estrange them from him—a condition deplorable from every standpoint.

But if it is unwise to make the employer the sole custodian of the rights and interests of the employes, it is equally unwise to give to the employes uncontrolled authority over the rights and interests of the employer. The employes are no more to be trusted to act unselfishly and disinterestedly than the employers. In their zeal to secure a present advantage they may not only do injustice, but even forfeit a larger future gain.

Society, moreover, has something at stake as well as the employer and employes, for there can be no considerable strike without considerable loss to the public. Society, therefore, is justified in demanding that the differences between capital and labor shall be settled by peaceful means. If a permanent, impartial board is created to which either party of an industrial dispute may appeal, or which can of its motion institute an inquiry, public opinion may be relied upon to enforce the finding.

No reference to the labor question is complete that does not include some mention of what is known as government by injunction. As the main purpose of the writ is to evade trial by jury, it is really an attack upon the jury system and ought to arouse a unanimous protest. So long as the meanest thief is guaranteed a trial by jury, a jury ought not to be denied to wage earners.

The struggle to secure an eight-hour day is an international struggle and it is sure to be settled in favor of the working man's contention. The benefits of the labor saving machine have not been distributed with equity. The producer has enormously multiplied his capacity, but so far the owner of the machine has received too much of the increase and the laborer too little. Those who oppose the eight-hour day do it, I am convinced, more because of ignorance of conditions than because of lack of sympathy with those who toil.

Money Division Healed

Our opponents have derived not only partisan pleasure, but also partisan advantage from the division caused in our party by the money question. They ought not, therefore, begrudge us the satisfaction that we find in the fact that unexpected conditions have removed the cause of our differences and permitted us to present a united front on present issues. The unlooked for and unprecedented increase in the production of gold has brought a victory to both the advocates of gold and the advocates of bimetallism—the former keeping the gold standard which they wanted and the latter securing the larger volume of money for which they contended. We who favor bimetallism are satisfied with our victory if the friends of monometallism are satisfied with theirs, and we can invite them to a contest of zeal and endurance in the effort to restore to the people the rights which have been gradually taken from them by the trusts.

Discussion of Trusts

No party can exterminate the trusts so long as it owes its political success to campaign contributions secured from the trusts. The great corporations do not contribute their money to any party except for immunity expressly promised or clearly implied. The president has recommended legislation on this subject, but so far his party has failed to respond. The great majority of corporations are engaged in legitimate business and have nothing to fear from hostile legislation, and the officers should not be permitted to use the money of the stockholders to advance their own political opinions. Contributions should be individual, not corporate.

While men may differ as to the relative importance of issues, and while the next congress will largely shape the lines upon which the coming presidential campaign will be fought, I think it is safe to say that at present the paramount issue in the minds of a large majority of the people is the trust issue. I congratulate President Roosevelt upon the step which he has taken to enforce the anti-trust law, and my gratification is not lessened by the fact that he has followed the Democratic rather than the Republican platform in every advance he has made. He has probably gone as far as he could without incurring the hostility of the leaders of his own party.

The trouble is that the Republican party is not in a position to apply effective and thorough-going reforms because it has built up, through special legislation, the very abuses which need to be eradicated.

There must be no mistaking of the issue and no confusing of the line of battle. The trust, as an institution, will have few open defenders. The policy of the trust magnates will be to insist upon "reasonable legislation" and then they will rely upon their power to corrupt legislatures and intimidate executives to prevent the application of any remedies which will interfere with the trusts. Our motto must be: "A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable," and our plan of attack must contemplate the total and complete overthrow of the monopoly principle in industry.

Time For Tariff Reform

The tariff question is very closely allied to the trust question and the reduction of the tariff furnishes an easy means of limiting the extortion which the trusts can practice. While absolute free trade would not necessarily make a trust impossible, still it is probable that very few manufacturing establishments would dare to enter into a trust if the president were empowered to put up the free list articles competing with those controlled by a trust. I cannot permit this opportunity to pass without expressing the opinion that the principle embodied in the protective tariff has been the fruitful source of a great deal of political corruption as well as the support of many of our most iniquitous trusts.

There never was a time when tariff reform could be more easily entered upon, for the manufacturers, by selling abroad cheaper than at home, as many of them do, have not only shown their ingratitude toward those who built the tariff wall for them, but they have demonstrated their ability to sell in competition with the world. The high tariff has long been a burden to the consumer in the United States and it is growing more and more a menace to our foreign commerce because it arouses resentment and provokes retaliation.

Public Ownership of Railroads

The railroad question is also interwoven with the trust question. Nearly all the private monopolies have received rebates or secured other advantages over competitors. Absolute equality of treatment at the hands of the railroads would go far toward crippling the trusts, and I rejoice that the president has had the courage to press this question upon congress. While the law, as it was finally distorted by the senate, is not all that could be wished, it deserves a fair trial.

I have already reached the conclusion that railroads partake so much of the nature of a monopoly that they must ultimately become public property and be managed by public officials in the interest of the whole community, in accordance with the well-defined theory that public ownership is necessary where competition is impossible. I believe that an increasing number of the members of all parties see in public ownership the sure remedy for discriminations between persons and places and for the extortionate rates for the carrying of freight and passengers.

Believing, however, that the operation of all the railroads by the federal government would result in a centralization which would all but obliterate state lines, I prefer to see only the trunk lines operated by the federal government, and the local lines by the several state governments. Some have opposed this dual ownership as impracticable, but investigation in Europe has convinced me that it is entirely practicable.

As to the right of governments, federal and state, to own and operate railroads there can be no doubt. If we can deepen the water in the lakes and build connecting canals in order to cheapen railroad transportation, during half of the year, we can build a railroad and cheapen rates the whole year; if we can spend several hundred millions on the Panama canal to lower trans-continental rates, we can build a railroad from New York to San Francisco to lower both trans-continental and local rates. The United States mail is increasing so rapidly that we shall soon be able to pay the interest on the cost of trunk lines out of the money which we now pay to railroads for carrying through mails.

More About Trusts

Just a word more in regard to the trusts. Some defend them on the ground that they are an economic development and that they cannot be prevented without great injury to our industrial system. This may be answered in two ways. First, trusts are a political development, rather than an economical one; and, second, the trust system cannot be permitted to continue even though it did result in a net economic gain.

It is political because it rests upon the corporation and the corporation rests upon a statutory foundation. The trust, instead of being a natural development, is a form of legalized larceny, and can exist only so long as the law permits it to exist. The moment an industry approaches the position of a monopoly it begins to lose economic efficiency, for a monopoly discourages invention, invites deterioration in quality, and destroys a most potent factor in production, viz, individual ambition.

Landlordism, the curse of Europe, is an innocent institution in comparison with the trust, when the trust is carried to its logical conclusion. The man who argues that there is an economic advantage in private monopoly is aiding socialism. The socialist, asserting the enonomic superiority of the monopoly, insists that its benefits shall accrue to the whole people, and his conclusion cannot be denied if the superiority of monopoly is admitted.

Attitude of Democrats

The Democratic party, if I understand its position, denies the economic as well as the political advantage of private monopoly and promises to oppose it wherever it manifests itself. It offers, as an alternative, competition where competition is possible, and public monopoly wherever circumstances are such as to prevent competition.

Socialism presents a consistent theory, but a tehory which, in my judgment, does not take human nature into account. Its strength is in its attack upon evils the existence of which is confessed. Its weakness is that it would substitute a new disease—if not a worse one—for the disease from which we suffer.

The Democratic party does not menace a single dollar legitimately accumulated; on the contrary, it insists upon the protection of rich and poor alike, in the enjoyment of that which they have honestly earned. Special privileges and the use of the taxing power for private gain—these are the twin pillars upon which plutocracy rests. To take away these supports and to elevate the beneficiaries of special legislation to the path of honest effort ought to be the purpose of our party.

Plutocracy is abhorrent to a republic, it is more despotic than monarchy, more heartless than aristocracy, more selfish than bureaucracy. It preys upon the nation in time of peace and conspires against it in the hour of its calamity. Conscienceless, compassionless and devoid of wisdom, it enervates its votaries, while it impoverishes its victims. It is already sapping the strength of the nation, vulgarizing social life and making a mockery of morals.

The time is ripe for its overthrow. Let us attack it boldly, making our appeal to awakened conscience of the nation in the name of the counting room which it has defiled, in the name of business honor which it has sullied, in the name of the people whom it has oppressed, in the name of the homes which it has despoiled and in the name of religion, upon which it has placed the stigma of hipocrisy.

Hot Shot For Uncle Joe

Richmond, Ind., Aug. 31.—"The mention of the name of Joseph G. Cannon in connection with the presidency is an insult to the nation," said Professor Zueblin of the University of Chicago in his address to an audience of 3000 people at the Richmond Chautauqua. "It is a reflection on the American congress that a man of his habits and standing should have such great power in its legislation," declared Zubelin.

Lodge's Voice Is Heard

Boston, Aug. 31.—In speaking to the members of the Essex club, Senator Lodge, dealing with national politics, said: "I consider the continued Republican control of the house as of enormous importance to the stability of our industries and to the welfare of the country. I want to elect this year in this state every possible Republican congressman."

Sparks Renominated In Nevada

Reno, Nev., Aug. 31.—Governor John Sparks was renominated by acclamation by the Democratic state convention. James G. Sweeny and Samuel Davis withdrew as gubernatorial candidates, Sweeny accepting the nomination for the supreme court bench.

The Latest Local Brevities

Launching tomorrow.

A new cross walk is being put in on Hancock street in front of John Hall's stable.

Pleasant weather is wanted the next few days that there may be a glorious ending of the vacation season.

John Kane, aged 40, died at Lawrence on Thursday. He had a brother in Quincy and sister in Springfield.

Mr. John Y. Hamilton and family have moved from Hollis avenue to Cushing street, Wollaston.

Miss Ruth Ferguson of Norfolk Downs who has been quite ill is now over the worst of her illness.

This morning the venerable Samuel G. Babcock was resting comfortably and there is every hope that he will soon recover.

At the quarry of Field & Wild this week a stone fell upon the foot of Thomas Roche. He was taken to the City Hospital for treatment.

Archie Thayer has arranged for a campaign meeting on Sunday afternoon at Hancock hall. The program includes speaking and singing.

William T. Shea and Joseph Costello were among the enthusiastic Democrats who greeted Col. Bryan at New York this week.

A special meeting of the City Council has been called for this evening, but as the only business is to draw jurors the session will not be over five minutes long.

While an appropiation of $80,000 was authorized by Congress for a federal building at Quincy, Senator Lodge says that only $20,000 has actually been appropiated.

The launch of the submarine "Cuttlefish built at the Fore River shipyard for the United States goverment, will take place tomorrow at 9.30 A.M. The Daily Ledger will report the launching in the afternoon paper.

In the Boston game between the Bostonians and Lynn, Mayor Fitzgerald is invited to kick off the ball at start, and in Quincy at Merrymount Park Mayor Thompson will be invited to kick off the ball in the game between the MacGregors and the Fore Rivers at 3 P. M.

TODAY'S COURT.

Daniel McArthur of Quincy for assault and battery paid $10.

August Johnson of Boston, on complaint of Annie Akerstrom of Quincy for bastardy. Case continued to Sept. 1.

Better Progress On High School

Each day now is showing better progress on the High school enlargement. The Fallon brothers are there with their coats off and sleeves rolled up. The front wall on the southerly front has been rebuilt up to the gable. Supt. Lord says if Mr. Fallon gets the wide granite band in place early today he will complete the brick work of the gable this week. Then there is a granite coping.

When the granite is in place the derrick can be removed and the roof closed in. Then it will be possible to do the plastering and rush along the interior.

Peter T. Fallon tells the Daily Ledger that there has been no delay because of granite.

Contractor Lord, Superintendent Lord, Sub-Contractor Thomas for the carpenter work and Architect Gould all say differently however.

Pretty Party.

Miss Margaret Robertson of Standish avenue gave a party in honor of her cousin Miss Ruth MacMonagle of Reading Thursday evening. Those invited were: Edith Armstrong, Margaret Johnson, Catharine Johnson, Dorothy Kingsbury, Carolyn Lewis, Marguerite Morgan, Gertrude Parks, Dorothy Taylor, Barbara Taylor, Helen Wrumsley, Paul Clark, John Conway, Anthony Cain, John Burns, Chester Brown, Carl Haynes, Roy Haynes, Eldon Howe, Fred Kingsbury, Vivian McCarty, Eliot McCarty and Bowdoin Smith. Sandwiches, ice cream, cake and candy were served. Games were played and dancing finished the evenings enjoyment.

Base ball news should be forwarded to reach the Daily Ledger office before 8 A. M.

A NATION OF CRIPPLES RHEUMATISM BEYOND CONTROL

The Only Hope to Rheumatic Suffers is Uric-O Treatment.

If rheumatism continues to spread as it has in the past few years, it would seem as though we would before long become a nation of cripples. The terrible destructiveness of this disease is apparent on every side of us. Almost nine out of ten of the cripples one meets had their affliction brought on by Rheumatism. How many thousands more there are that are hopelessly bed-ridden and whom we never see. Rheumatism from the very nature of the disease, can never cure itself, and if neglected, is bound to grow worse rather than better. If you ever have any twinges of Rheumatism go to E. J. Murphy's drug store right here in Quincy, and get a bottle of Uric-O, the wonderful new Rheumatic Specific. It will cure you and it is the only treatment in the world that will cure you permanently and thoroughly. Uric-O cures by its direct action on the muscles, blood and kidneys. It seeks out the poisonous Uric and Rheumatic Acid and drives it from the system and it is only a treatment of such a nature that will ever cure Rheumatism. Liniments and plasters only serve to drive it from one spot to another. They never cure Rheumatism, because it is primarily a blood disease, and until the blood is cleared from the poison, a cure cannot take place.

There never was a case of Rheumatism that Uric-O could not cure and you should not put off taking it because it is in the end by far the cheapest method. You can test Uric-O free of charge if you wish. Just cut out this advertisement and send it to the Smith Drug Co., Syracuse, N. Y., and state that you have never used Uric-O and would like to try it. They will send you a free sample which you can test and try free of charge.

Mortgagee's Sale.

BY virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Nellie H. Trussler and Vincent M. Trussler to Edward Billings, dated September 26, 1900, and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, Book 880, Page 185, for breach of the condition thereof and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold by public auction on the premises hereinafter described at four o'clock in the afternoon, on SATURDAY, the twenty-second day of September, A. D. 1906, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage and described therein as follows, viz: "a certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situated on the Southwesterly side of Whitwell Street in said Quincy and being lot numbered sixteen (16) on 'Plan of House Lots on Cranch Hill by H. T. Whitman, Surveyor, dated January 20, 1897,' and recorded with Norfolk Deeds, libro 777, folio 538; bounded and described as follows, viz: Northeasterly by said Whitwell Street, fifty (50) feet; Northwesterly by Lot No. 15 on said plan, one hundred (100) feet; Southwesterly by Lots Nos. 11 and 10 on said plan, fifty (50) feet; Southeasterly by Lot No. 17 on said plan, one hundred (100) feet and containing 5,000 square feet of land." Subject to a mortgage of $1,700. Said premises will be sold subject to all unpaid or outstanding taxes, assessments or tax sales, if any such there are. Terms, one hundred dollars to be paid at time and place of sale. Other terms at time of sale.

EDWARD BILLINGS,
Mortgagee.

To Late to Make Up.

Saturday night James Campbell and Angus McArthur attended a dance and got into a dispute. McArthur had Campbell arrested for drunk and he was released. Then Campbell got out a warrant against McArthur for assault. Instead of giving it to an officer to serve, he personally visited McArthur. The two made up and they destroyed the warrent. This did not satisfy the court, however, as some return must be made on each warrant issued. A new warrant was drawn and McArthur was arrested on Thursday afternoon. In court he was fined $10.

Big Catches by Spray.

The steam trawler Spray built at Quincy has good luck as well as bad. The Globe says Capt. Oliver Thomas surprised everybody at T. wharf Boston on Thurday by bringing in the steam trawler Spray again with a large catch. This is his second trip within a week, and both were large ones. Last Thursday evening he sailed from T. wharf, and returned again Monday and got away in the evening, and his appearance Thursday was not looked for. He had 38,000 pounds of haddock, 3000 pounds of market cod, 2000 pounds of large cod and a few hake and pollock.

Battleship Floors.

About $10,000 worth of linoleum will be required to cover the floors of the big new battleship Vermont, now building at Quincy. Thousands of square yards of this material will be used to cover the main deck, the gun deck, including the admiral's and the captain's quarters the berth deck, the quarters of all the petty officers and all of the ammunition passages and barbettes. The contract has been awarded to R. H. White & Co. of Boston, the work to be done before Jan. 1.

—Directors of the Boston, Lowell and Lawrence Electric Railroad Co., including Butler Ames, Paul Butler, Spencer Borden, Jr., Oakes Ames and Charles F. Remington, have petitioned the Massachusetts Railroad Commissioners for authority to construct a street railway from Boston to Lowell.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, in buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

Her Dream Come True

Mrs. Caroline W. Estabrook died at Brockton on Wednesday night a few hours after her sister, Mrs. Harriet Wilde Butters. She was nearly 86 years of age and her sister 90. Both the old ladies recently resided with their daughter, Mrs. Helen F. Fox of Wollaston.

Several days ago Mrs. Estabrook told her daughter with whom she lived at Brockton that she had a dream, that she had been to the holy city, and was surprised to find awaiting there her sister, Mrs. Butters.

"I expect to go there soon," she said. "Has Harriet gone away?"

The next morning at one she was taken seriously ill. Both sisters were unconscious for a considerable period. Mrs. Butters died Wednesday morning, unknown to Mrs. Estabrook. The latter died that night.

Mrs. Estabrook leaves, besides Mrs. Winslow and Mrs. Fox, two other daughters, Mrs. Herbert C. Holmes of Ashmont and Mrs. Harriett Houston of Boston; also two sons, Charles F. Wilde of Ashmont and Joseph W. Wilde of Boston.

Mrs. William Warren of Botolph street was brought home ill from an unfinished cruise around Buzzards Bay in a 60 foot yacht owned by Capt. Brady.
